MAINE GOVERNOR URGES CUT IN ALCOHOL IN SOFT DRINKS

AUGUSTA, Me., April 4—Governor Milliken, stating that Maine allowed the highest percentage of alcohol in beverage of any "dry" State has urged the Legislature to reconsider its unfavorable action on a bill which would place the percentage of alcoholic content at one-half of one per cent. the federal standard. The Maine standard is three per cent.

The resolution directing the Attorney General to obtain from the United States Supreme Court a decision on the constitutionality of the federal prohibition amendment was favorably reported in the Senate today by the Judiciary Committee. It was placed on the calendar for action next Wednesday. The House already has passed the resolution.

BIRDS FACE STARVATION

Fifteen Species Come to Canada Too Early.

MONTREAL, April 4.—Unless bird lovers come to the rescue of their feathered friends, thousands of beautiful song birds that returned to Canada with the first hint of spring sunshine will face starvation. More than fifteen species of birds took flight to Canada from the warm southern region as soon as the rising temperature dispersed the snow from the wheatfields. The songsters experienced only a few days of mild weather, however, for winter, with its heavy snowfalls, has renewed its attack with redoubled vigor.

Chevy Chase Girl Reveals Shattered Romance, Seeks To Be Rid of Fake Hero

Mrs. Florence Brainard Grimwood's Annulment Action Tells of Whirlwind Wooing by Man Who Posed as Wounded British Officer—Seized in Washington.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Picturesque and tragic is the story of Mrs. Florence Brainard Grimwood's romance revealed in the Supreme Court here. This young society woman, who lives at Chevy Chase, outside Washington, D. C., calls her husband an adventurer and masquerader.

The story of heroic deeds of the battlefields of France and wounds suffered in conflict helped to cast a glamor over a brief courtship, which Mrs. Grimwood confesses she found irresistible. But in less than a year following her marriage events developed exposing the duplicity she asserts, of her husband, and now she seeks an annulment of the marriage.

Her strange tale was told when she petitioned Justice Cohalan for permission to serve notice upon Wm. Robert Archer, also known as Wm. F. G. Grimwood, of her action to have the marriage dissolved.

Since the awakening which shattered her romance, Mrs. Grimwood has returned to her parents' home in Chevy Chase. There she lives with her baby daughter, Rosemary Brainard Grimwood. While Grimwood was in la Washington jail facing charges of which he later admitted his built, the baby was born.

Meets Future Husband Here.

Durin gthe summer of 1916, Mrs. Grimwood, then 22 years old, arrived in this city to be the guest of friends. On July 5th she made the acquaintance of her dashing suitor, who posed as an English officer relieved from field service because of his wounds. He described himself as Dr. William F. G. Grimwood, of the British army.

His activities were directed towards the British war relief work, and he was identified with the Allied Bazaar, declares Mrs. Grimwood.

Later, the young lady asserts, he confidentially disclosed himself as a widower, 31 years old, with two daughters, one aged 14, and the other 12. Both girls, he said, were in a convent.

In wooing the young woman, she avers, he professed to have been a practising physician before the war, and a one-time candidate for Parliament. He spoke of the large remittances sent by his family in London ,England, and in proof of the wealth he possessed showered expensive gifts upon her.

Mrs. Grimwood was further impressed by his acceptance in the homes of many prominent families in New York, she states. He explained his mission to this country was to interest the wealthy in behalf of his compatriots who had suffered in the war. American sympathizers of the allied cause were glad to contribute funds for wounded soldiers, he declared.

He meanwhile pursued his conquest of her heart, says Mrs. Grimwood, who sums up the situation which then existed, in the following language:

"The glamour which surrounded the defendant and the sympathy excited by the honourable wounds, which he professed to have received on the battlefield, led the plaintiff to listen to his proposals of marriage, proposals which soon became importunities as the defendant further represented that he was compelled shortly to return to England, and that it was essential to his happiness that she should go with him as his wife."

Parents Not Consulted.

Mrs. Grimwood declares she hesitated taking such an important step after so short an acquaintance and courtship. Her uncertainty was due to a question concerning the depth and permanency of her love, she says, and not from any suspicion against her suitor.

At that time, relates the young woman, her parents had not met Grimwood, nor did they know of the proposed marriage. His suit of her hand was supported by friends of high standing in New York society, continues Mrs. Grimwood.

She admits it was unfortunate that without consulting her father she accepted Grimwood's marriage proposal, and on July 27, 1916, 22 days after their first meeting, they were married by the Rev. G. C. Houghton in the Church of the Transfiguration. None of her family was present at the ceremony and were not aware of the proposed marriage until that morning, when she telephoned her mother of her intentions. Afterward, Mrs. Grimwood says, she telegraphed her family that she was married.

Their honeymoon was spent in the Hotel Gramatan, Bronxville, and after several days' sojourn there, Mrs. Grimwood took her husband to meet her family in Washington. She tells how by his pleasing manner and personality he quickly ingratiated himself with her parents who were proud to accept him as their son-in-law.

In substantiation of his claims to social prominence in England, Mrs. Grimwood alleges her husband produced cablegrams of congratulations he had received from them, but which she now asserts were fraudulent.

They moved back to Bronxville, where they remained for several weeks, when Mrs. Grimwood decided to go on a visit to her parents again.

On Christmas, Grimwood rejoined his wife in Washington, explaining his purpose was to raise additional funds for the British wounded. He remained in the capital until Jan. 7, 1917, when he was arrested on the charge of obtaining funds under false pretences.

Mrs. Grimwood and her family were stunned by the arrest. Her husband was sent to the Washington asylum and jail for medical treatment, and remained there until November 5, 1917, when he withdrew his plea of not guilty and entered one of guilty.

Sentenced to Penitentiary.

The dashing, debonair "officer" was sentenced to serve three years in the penitentiary, says Mrs Grimwood but his sentence was later suspended and he was released on probation. Until months after his arrest, when the authorities produced evidence clearly establishing his [illegible], Mrs. Grimwood's confidence [illegible] unshaken.

The investigation further showed he had married [illegible]ce Lenard, in October, 1900, in E[illegible], England. Mrs. Lenard was a widow, or so believed herself, her first husband having disappeared years before. She and Archer lived together, having two children, until 1905, when Lenard reappeared.

When Mrs. Grimwood heard her husband had been arraigned in Old Bailey, she communicated with Mrs. Lenard, who wrote: "He is trapped at last. Be brave, dear girl and all will be well. God alone knows the sufferings he has caused me."

BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SPRING

The Spring is a time of anxiety to mothers who have little ones in the home. Conditions make it necessary to keep the baby indoors. He is often confined to overheated badly ventilated rooms and catches colds which rack his whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will prevent colds; constipation or colic and keep baby well. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail. at 25 cents a box from The Dr. William's Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PATENTS NEW FUEL WHICH MAY TAKE PLACE OF GASOLENE.

PITTSBURG, April 4. — The mystery in the activity of United States Industrial Alcohol stock, the price of which has advanced sensationally on the Exchange in the last few days, was dispeleld yesterday.

H. S. Rubins, chairman of the Board of Directors, announced that the company was the sole owner of a patent for refining a new fuel with an alcohol base. The fuel, he said could be produced much cheaper than gasolene, for which it will produce a substitute in many instances. This new fuel, it is understood, produces a greater driving power, comparatively lower engine pressure and absolutely no carbon.

During the war the discovery was turned over to the government and for that reason no announcement of its invention was made. Mr. Rubins' statement follows:

"All previous fuels with an alcohol base had the disadvantage of separting into constituent elements under changes of temperature. This problem is comparatively solved in our new fuel. Long tests have shown no corrosive action on the engine parts. We have patented a series of fuels, all with an alcohol base."

Mr. Rubins said that this additional alcohol outlet will enable the company to take advantage of its capacity, which was so greatly increased by the demands of the war for alcohol to make poison gas and power for the government.

It is understood tests of the new fuel are being made in Washington for the Navy Department.

BRANTFORD PRISONER GAINS A POUND A DAY

BRANTFORD, April 4—The Brantford jail officials have an interesting case among the ten prisoners in the county jail. For three weeks past the prisoner in question has gained one pound per day in avoirdupois, and the officials all gather daily at the weighing of the prisoner. As the latter is serving three months on an O. T. A. charge, wonder is expressed what the end will be.

GRAIN MARKET

Grain markets were very active, covering a wide range between the high and the low in the options. After dropping to 2c. to 3c. below Thursday's close ,a sudden rally forced the market up 4c. to 5c., finally closing 2 1-8c. up on May corn, 3 1-4c. up on July, and 6c. up on September. CATTLE MARKET

Receipts were comparatively light this week, and judging by the action of the market [illegible] of the preceding weeks it might have been expected that prices for cattle would have worked stronger than they have during the week. The week opened with very high prices asking, with the result that [illegible] purchased to hold, [illegible] a little and await developments. Trade was in consequence inclined to drag for awhile. There was very little demand for heavy steers for the export trade, and prices generally seemed to be preparing for a fall. Later the enquiry for good to choice butcher became very active, and soon the tone of the market recovered, and by the middle of the week were a good 25c. higher than Monday's opening prices. Prices remained firm up to the close, for all classes, and particularly for good quality feeders, light stockers, and thin young grass cows.

The export trade on the whole was not as active as in the previous week, though some good prices were paid for choice stock.

Sheep and lambs, receipts high, and prices very firm, going up as high as $20 for choice lambs.

Choice calves also finished strong, and 50 cents to $1 higher.

Competition among the packers for hogs was again very keen, and prices have steadily climbed to higher levels, though it was difficult to get reliable information as to actual prices paid.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards— Total receipts this week, 274 cars, 4,817 cattle, 548 calves, 4,080 hogs and 394 sheep and lambs.

CHILD KNOWS MUSIC OF 200 OPERAS.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Octavius Roy Cohen, Jr., 3-year-old son of Octavius Roy Cohen, author and playwright of Birmingham, Ala., proved before a jury of educators and musical critics that he knows 200 operas by heart. The baby in a formal test identified and lisped the names of opera after opera unerringly, as phonographic selections chosen by the jury were played.

Nicholas Baur, acting superintendent of New Orleans Public schools, headed the examining body, and pronounced the exhibition the most phenomenal in his experience. The 3-year-old child capped his operatic test by identifying a score of operatic selections, beginning with Peer Gynt Suite, when his father tapped the rhythm of the music with a coin on a table.

Memorials of Our Heroes.

A statement on the work of the Imperial War Graves Commission, signed by Mr. Rudyard Kipling, announces that memorials to commemorate the parts borne by particular armies, divisions, or regiments in campaigns and battles, such as, to name only a very few, the Canadians at Ypres, the South Africans at Delville Wood, the Australians at Amiens, the British at the breaking of the Hindenburg line, will be advised upon by a fully representative military committee.

"Sir Frederic Kenyon recommended that in each cemetery there should stand a Cross of Sacrifice and an altar-like Stone of Remembrance and that the headstones of the graves should be of uniform shape and size. Plain headstones, measuring 2 feet 6 inches by 1 foot 3 inches, were, therefore, chosen, upon which the cross or other religious symbol of the dead man's faith could be carved and his regimental badge fully displayed. The regiments have been consulted as to the designs of these badges. In due time, wherever a man may be buried, from East Africa to North Russia, his headstone will carry his regimental badge identifiable the world over.

"The commission feel that relatives should, if they wish, add a short inscription of their own choice. These will be at the relatives' expense, and it has been found necessary to restrict the length of the inscription to 65 letters. Every cemetery will keep registers of the dead buried there.

"It is inevitable that there must be single graves and groups. There is a strong sentiment among all ranks that such scattered graves look lonely; and the instinct of the service demands that those who fell by the wayside should be gathered in to rest with the nearest main body of their companions. That is what the commission, with all due care and reverence, proposes to do."

All letters should be addressed to secretary, Imperial War Graves Commission, Winchester House, St. James' square, S.W. London.

MRS. BALFAME

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON

CHAPTER I.

Mrs. Balfame had made up her mind to commit murder.

As she stared down at the rapt faces of the fifty-odd members of the Friday Club, upturned to the distinguished speaker from New York, whom she, as President, had introduced in those few words she so well knew how to choose, it occurred to her with a faint shock that this momentous resolution had been growing in her essentially refined and amiable mind for months, possibly for years; for she was not an impetuous woman.

While smiling and applauding, patting her large strong hands, freshly gloved in virgin white, at precisely the right moment, as the sound and escharotic speaker laid down the Woman's Law, she permitted herself to wonder if the idea had not burrowed in her subconscious mind—that mental antiquity shop of which she had lately read so much, that she might expound it to the progressive ladies of the Friday Club—for at least half the twenty-two years of her married life.

It was only last night that awakening suddenly she had realized with no further skirmishes and retreats of conscience or principle how she hated the heavy mass of flesh sleeping heavily beside her.

For at least eight years, ever since their fortunes had improved and she had found leisure for the novels and plays of authors well-read in life, she had longed for a room, a separate personal existence, of her own. She was no dreamer, but this exclusive and lady-like apartment often had floated before her mental vision, chastely papered and furnished in a cold pale blue (she had an uneasy instinct that pink and lavender were immoral); and by day it should look like a boudoir. She was too wise to make a verbal assault upon this or any foreign word, for she found the stage, her only guide, strangely casual or contradictory in these minor details; but although her little world found no trouble in discovering what Mrs. Balfame, increasingly knew, what she did not know they suspected so little that they never even discussed her limitations. Handicapped by circumstances early and late she might be, but she had managed to insinuate the belief that she was the superior in all things of the women around her, their born and natural leader.

Mrs. Balfame had never given expression to this desire for a delitescent bedroom, being a woman who thought silently, smoke guardedly, and both paient and philosophical, rarely permitted what she called her imagination to wander, or bitterness to enter her soul.

The Balfames were by no means well enough off, even now, to refurnish the old bedrooms long since denuded by a too economical parent after his children had married and moved away, but a few mornings since she had remarked casually that as the springs of the conjugal bed were sagging she thought she should send it to the auction room and buy two single beds. Last night, lying there in the dark, she had clenched her hands and held her breath as she recalled David Balfame's purple flush, the deliberate manner in which he had set down his thick coffee cup and scrubbed his bristling moustache, then rolled up the stained napkin and pushed it into the ring before replying.

His first vocative expressed all, but he was a politician and used to elaborating his mental processes for the benefit of befuddled intellects. "You'll have them springs mended," he informed his wife who was smiling brilliantly and sweetly across the debris of ham and eggs, salt mackerel and hot breads—"that is if they need it, which I haven't noticed, and I'm some heavier than you. But you'll introduce no more of your damned new-fangled notions into this house. It was good enough for my parents, and it's good enough for us. We lived for fifteen years without art lampshades that hurt my eyes, and rags that you've been runnin' a club when you ain't runnin' to New York. I've had too many cold suppers to suit me;; I've paid bills for 'teas' to that Club and I've put out money for fine clothes for you that I could spend a long sight better at election time. But I've stood all that, for I guess I'm as good a husband as any in God's country; I like to see you well dressed, for you're still a looker—and it's god business, anyhow; and I've never grudged you a hired girl. But there's a limit to every man's patience. I draw a line at two beds. That's all there is to it."

He had made a part of his speech standing, that being his accustomed position when laying down the law, and he now left the room with the heavy country slouch his wife had never been able to reform. He had no authority in walk or bearing, being a man more obstinate than strong, more cunning than firm.

She was thankful that he did not bestow upon her the usual marital kiss; the smell of coffee on his moustache had sickened her faintly ever since she had ceased to love him.

Or begun to hate him? She had wondered, as she lay there inhaling deeply to draw the blood from her head, if she ever had loved him. When a man and a maid are young! He had been a tall slim youth, with red cheeks and bright eyes, the "catch" of the village; his habits were commendable and he would inherit his father's store, his only brother having died a year earlier and his sisters married and moved West. She was pretty, empty-headed, as ill-educated as all girls of her class, but she kept her father's house neatly, she was noted even at sixteen for her pies, and at twenty for the dexterity and taste with which she made her own clothes out of practically nothing. She was by no means the ordinary fool of her age class and nation. But although she was incapable of passion, she had a thin sentimental streak, a youthful desire for a romance, and a cold dislike for an impending stepmother.

David Balfame wooed her over the front gate and won her in the orchard; and the year was in its springtime. It was all as natural and inevitable as the measles and whooping-cough through which she nursed him during the first year of their marriage.

She had been happy with the happiness of youth, ignorance and busy hands; although there had been the common trial and quarrels, they had position when laying down the common trial and quarrels, they had ben quickly forgotten, for she was a woman of a serene and philosophical temperament, moreover, no children came, for which she felt a sort of cold negative gratitude. She liked children, and even attracted them, but she preferred that other women should bear and rear them.

But all that comparative happiness was before the dawning of ambition and the heavier trials that preceded it.

A railroad expanded the sleepy village into a lively town of some three thousand inhabitants, and although that meant wider interests for Mrs. Belfame, and an occasional trip to New York, the more intimate connection with a great city nearly wrecked her husband's business. His father was dead and he had inherited the store which had supplied the village with general merchandise for a generation. But by the time the railroad came he had grown lazy and liked to sit on the sidewalk on fine days, or before the stove in winter, his chair tilted back, talking politics with other gentlemen of comparative leisure. He was popular, for he had a bluff and hospitable manner; he was an authority on politics, and possessed an eloquent if ungrammatical tongue. For a time, as his business dwindled, he merely blasphemed, but just as he was beginning to feel really uneasy, a brother-in-law who had been the chum of his youth arrived from Montana and saved him from extinction and "the old Balfame place" from mortgage.

Mr. Cummack, the brother-in law, turned out the loafers, put Dave into politics, and himself called personally upon every housewife in the community, agreeing to keep the best of all she needed, but none of those articles which served as an excuse for a visit to New York or tempted her to delightful hours with the mail-order catalogue.

Mrs. Balfame detested this bustling common efficient brother-in-law, although at the end of two years, the twelfth of her married life, she was keeping a maid-of-all-work and manicuring her nails. She treated him with an unswerving sweetness a natural quality which later developed into a full flower of graciousness, and even gave him a temperate measure of gratitude. She was a just woman; and it was not long after his advent that she began to realize the ambition latent in her strong character and to enter upon a well defined plan for social leadership.

KODAK SHARES AT PAR

Offered to Employees—Are worth Six Times the Amount

ROCHESTER N.Y., April 5.—George Eastmen, of the Eastmen Kodak Co., has offered 10,000 shares for sale to the older employees at par value of $100. The market value is six times that.

Four Good Lessons to Remember

First—Once your kidneys are affected, chronic complaints are sure to follow—if you don't remove the cause immediately.

Second—You can't neglect kidney or bladder derangements and stay healthy. Putting off will never cure. You must assist Nature.

Third—The symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble—the commonest symptoms—are: Pains in the back and sides, swollen joints, painful urination, brick dust deposits, and constant headaches or dizziness.

Fourth—The sure and safe remedy for all afflictions caused by weak or deranged kidneys is Gin Pills.

Gin Pills have been the means of restoring thousands of chronic sufferers to health and strength again. If you suffer from kidney or bladder troubles—use Gin Pills. They seldom fail to bring relief.

Read what Gin Pills did for Mr. James Stackhouse, of Toronto. Mr. Stackhouse became convinced that he was in for an attack of Kidney trouble. Although subjected to X-ray treatment, the cause could not be located. Finally he was forced to leave his work and go to a hospital. His place was filled by another, as he never expected to go to work again.

Five boxes of Gin Pills put him on his feet again, and to-day he is physically fit again and ready for work.

BROOKLYN INVENTOR PLEADS OWN CASE IN HIGHEST COURT

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 4.—Pleading poverty, which prevented him from employing a lawyer, William F. Brothers, an inventor, of Brooklyn, N.Y., was permitted by the Supreme Court to appear and present personally arguments in proceedings brought by him against the government to recover damages for the alleged use of an unloading device invented by him and used in construction of the Panama Canal.

Mr. Brothers demonstrated the working of his invention by the use of a small model and made an extensive on an appeal from decision of the Court of Claims dismissing the action. Attorney General Palmer appeared in the case on behalf of the government,

"I don't think I can go, Jessie, for I just feel wretched"

"OH, I'm so sorry, for I did so want you to be there."

"I hate to disappoint you, dear, but you know how miserable I have been lately."

"Yes, but I thought you were better."

"So I am some days, and then I just seem to be as bad as ever again. I get so weak that I do not feel able to stir."

"What is the trouble?"

"The doctor says I am anaemic. He says the blood is thin and watery, and I do not get the good of the food I eat. Goodness knows I do not eat much, either, for I have no appetite."

"Why not try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food?"

"Would that help me, do you think?"

"I do not see why it should not. You remember how pale and weak I used to be. Well, it was nothing else than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food that cured me. And I am not looking as though I needed any medicine now, am I?"

"If I could only be strong and healthy like you are, Jessie, I would give anything."

"You never will be unless you try, and I do not think you would be disappointed with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It is not only my case, but there are so many other girls we know who have been benefitted by it."

"Will you get me a box at the drug store, Jessie, and I will start right in to-day? If this will only give me an appetite and make the blood rich and red, so that I can get some strength and color, I will be a happy girl."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is so gentle in action, and yet so potent as a restorative, that it is a great favorite with women of all ages. It seems to be admirably suited to the needs of their delicate nervous systems, and on this account it has come to be universally used as a means of restoring vigor and energy to a rundown, nervous system. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Small Men.

"Papa," said a small boy to his parent the other day, "are not sailors very, very small men?"

"No, my dear," answered the father. "Pray what leads you to suppose that they are so small?"

"Because," replied the young idea smartly, "I read the other day of a German sailor going to sleep on his watch."

Ugly.

"Gee, no!" exclaimed the pretty cash girl, "I wouldn't marry you if you was the last man on earth. I don't want nothin' to do with you. Is that plain English?"

"It's plain enough," said the mortified bookkeeper, "but it isn't English."

THE DEATH ROLL.

How the Nations Suffered In Great Struggle.

That $120,000,000,000 which it is said will be demanded of the Central Powers as indemnity by the Allies somehow does not seem so appalling when one looks at the number of "battle deaths" as Gen. March calls them, suffered by all the belligerents in the course of the war. The American general calculates that 7,354,000 men were killed on the field of battle or died as a result of wounds. How many perished of disease or indirectly as a result of hardships and exposures is not computed, and undoubtedly more millions would have to be added on this acount. It has been calculated, for instance, that the Turks murdered 1,000,000 Armenians. The deaths from disease were also very large, especially in the American army. But considering only the men who were killed on the field of action or died as a result of wounds, we have these figures:

The Allies and the United States.

Russia	1,700,000
France	1,385,300
British	706,700
Italy	460,000
Belgium	102,000
Roumania	100,000
Serbia and Montenegro	100,000
United States	50,000
Total	4,604,000

The Teutonic Alliance.

Germany	1,600,000
Austria-Hungary	800,000
Turkey	250,000
Bulgaria	100,000
Total	2,750,000

In other words, France lost 3½ per cent. of her population, and Germany lost only two per cent., and the Entente losses, on the whole, were almost twice as great as those of the Central Powers. Another way of putting it is to say that before the Central Powers had suffered much more than half the losses of the Allies they threw up their hands. The morale of the latter could stand a much smaller ratio of loss than that of the powers that conquered them. Bulgaria with a loss of only 100,000 was the first to surrender, if we except Russia, whose losses were the greatest of all. If the wounded are estimated at 20,000,000, the figures would be only in proportion to that of the deaths. This is the butcher's bill, and not complete. In view of her population and her low birth rate, the losses of France are by all odds the greatest, and we should bear this in mind when we have a tendency to rebuke France for being implacable with regard to the terms to be imposed on Germany.

School Parliaments.

To teach British children duties and responsibilities of citizenship, it is proposed to establish a school parliament by election in every school of Great Britain, with representative government as the keynote of the idea.

GUARDED BUS ELECTIONS.

Incidents In the Occupation of Town In Germany.

It was in a German beer garden in a rather important town in the Rhine districts occupied by the Canadian Corps, writes a Canadian in Germany. And since the German town centres round its beer gardens it was there I found the best answer to my anxiety about the fraternizing of old-time enemies. I had watched all year, from close up, the organized and unremitting hatred of the Canadian soldier for the fighting Hun. And from the same grand stand seat of war correspondent I had ample proof that the affection of the grey-coated German for the persistent, indefatigable, fearless Canadian was of the same calibre—longer drawn out.

But of the Canadian memory I was not so certain.

The beer garden was the typical German one—a roomy theatre, with large stage in front, cheap chairs that could be turned towards the performance or the glass of beer that once stood on the tables, and a bar extending across the entire rear. The stage was incidental, the chairs a medium only. The bar was the main idea in the old days of German guzzling and community life.

Now it was difficult. The long bar was half closed off, concealing a kitchen where tea and coffee urns stood ready for the evening's business. The seats were neatly arranged, with their faces towards the stage. The stage was a riot of red, white and blue. Indeed, the whole setting was so patriotic as to remind me of early war days when conscription was delayed on behalf of voluntary enlistment and the senses and sentiment were the mediums of appeal.

The manner of metamorphosis required no explanation. A Canadian Y.M.C.A. officer was my guide. When Canadian soldiers began to filter in to the town the Y.M.C.A. arrived with the first consignment. And the very first act of the officer was to ferret out the buildings suitable to his purposes of entertainment. And the beer garden—as in many another German village—supplied one of his most pressing wants. And the second phase of operations was to decorate in the flags and colors of the Allies.

The building seemed empty when I entered. But as we moved down the aisle two solid, silent figures loomed from the gloom — soldiers seated several chairs apart in the very front row.

Grim they sat, with frowning brows and firm chins, their arms folded in that instinctive expression of immovable determination. They scarcely shifted to look at us. There might have been a lieutenant-general up there on the stage, with these his guards. The officer explained.

The beer garden was the largest hall in town. It was also the local symbol of authority. The German elections were crowding. And the mayor had humbly craved of the Y the use of the hall for a pre-election meeting that afternoon. With the promise of dismissal at five in order not to interfere with the regular Y program, consent was given. Later the request—almost a demand—was for a two hours' extension. But the beer garden was the property of the soldiers for the time; and five was insisted upon as the time limit.

Some soldier conceived the idea that the super-decorations of the theatre in the Allied colors might not be completely in accord with the feelings of a German political meeting. He passed it on. It developed into a decision—unofficial—to establish two Canadians of good physique where every movement of the main actors on the stage would be under their supervision.

And there they sat, an hour before opening time, not a whit impatient. I thought I detected something the opposite of impatience in their demeanor. I looked from their set jaws and anticipatory eyes to the stage, where a table was already surrounded with chairs for the political discussion. Across the front, below the footlights, stretched a three-foot strip of red, white and blue. The dingy scenery was camouflaged in flags and colors. A great Union Jack depended from one chandelier on the right stage, and a Stars and Stripes from another chandelier to the left. It was a ridiculously incongruous setting for a political meeting in a country that had preached hate of those colors for four years.

But I knew not a ribbon or strip would be touched. Those grim faces assured me of that. But the flickering glint in their eyes was not explained.

"You'll have a long wait—and a tiresome one," I volunteered. "And you won't know what they're talking about anyway."

A young Ole Bill of the army winked and screwed up the corner of his mouth. "No, it'll be Dutch to us. But"—he paused to give a tug at each coat sleeve, the initial movement of rolling it up—"we'll know if they aren't out of the building by five. And"—he hesitated diplomatically—"here's hoping!"

Appendicitis Operations Not Always Necessary

Internal Bathing Relieves the Cause.

Your physician will tell you that Appendicitis is an inflamed condition of the little sack called the Appendix at the lower right hand corner of the Colon or large intestine. By cleansing this Colon with purified warm water by the "J. B. L. Cascade" this sack is cleansed and the inflammation subsides. Hundreds of operations have been avoided by using the warm water cure for Appendicitis. Mr. Jas. McLaughlin, 91 Evanston street, Winnipeg, writes:—

"I have spent over fifty dollars with doctors trying to cure Appendicitis. Finally the doctor said I must go to the hospital at once for an operation. Your advertisement interested me, I bought a 'J. B. L. Cascade,' which relieved me at once, and am now completely cured. Never felt better in my life; all pain and soreness gone, and I eat and sleep like a boy. I am grateful to Dr. Tyrrell for this wonderful, health-giving invention."

Ninety-five per cent. of all human ills are caused by accumulated waste in the Colon. Internal Bathing with the "J. B. L. Cascade" keeps this large intestine as free from all waste and as clean as nature demands it should be for perfect health. Ask Warne Drug Co., Peterborough, for booklet called "Why Man of To-day is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient." It is free. They will also be leased to show and explain the "J. B. L. Cascade" to you.

Toronto Landmark Destroyed.

One of the old landmarks of Toronto—the Black Horse Hotel—which has stood at the corner of Front and George streets for nearly a century—since 1820—has at last fallen a prey to the ravages of time, and is now being demolished.

Built as a residence in 1820 by George Munro, it later became the leading hotel in the market district. Its southern windows, looking out upon Toronto Bay, would have seen the first long funnelled, paddle-wheel steamers, with much splashing and smoke, making their first voyages on the great lakes and have watched the harbor front grow from a muddy bank to its present industrial importance.

The old tavern has for many years been shorn of its former pride. Owing to its dilapidated condition it has not been used as a hotel for seven years. Chadwick was the name of the last proprietor. John Holderness, who left about 1836, Capt. Cox, Charles Ireson, Wales and Grimblebee, were some of his predecessors. For many years it has been used as a lodging house. It was the property of the Munro estate.

Robertson's Landmarks of Toronto gives the following story of the old house: "Just after the close of the war of 1812, two brothers, Scotchmen by birth, came to York from Niagara, and engaged in business here. Their names were John and George Munro. George, the younger of the brothers, was but a boy of fourteen at the time of commencing his mercantile career." In the spring of 1832 the brothers were contributers to the fund for building two bridges over the Don. About this time or earlier, for George Munro was a very young man at the time, he was married, and changed his residence to a new house, which he built about 1820, at the northeast corner of Front and George streets. The building, which is still standing, and now known as the Black Horse Hotel, has been somewhat altered from its original appearance, and its surroundings have greatly changed.

"The main part of the building does not differ much from the original structure, which was a commodious two-storey frame house painted white, standing about fifteen feet back from Front street. About the Front street residence was a large lot extending halfway back to King street, and about an equal distance towards Frederick street. It was handsomely laid out, planted in part with choice fruit trees and blooming in other parts with flowers. Opposite the house on the Bay shore bank was a piece of ground owned by Mr. Munro and by him enclosed by a fence and planted with shrubbery and nearby a great elm tree about which Indians used to camp.

Mr. Munro was an active partizan in politics, with strongly Conservative tendencies. In 1841 he was elected mayor of Toronto, and while holding that office carried to England Toronto's congratulating address on the birth of the Prince of Wales. During the session of 1844-5 he sat in Parliament for South York.

Rules of the Road.

Lord Montagu of Beaulieu's insistence on the need for international uniformity in the rules of the road, which, he thinks, might come within the sphere of the Peace Conference to inaugurate, has been greeted with lively interest by those associated with automobile traffic, particularly by those who have had the confusing experience of negotiating the rules in different European countries. An interesting climax in this matter would apparently be reached in the event of a tunnel for traffic being constructed between England and France; for the abrupt change from the keep-to-the-left regime of England to the keep-to-the-right of France would develop a situation which neither manufacturers nor drivers of automobiles could face with equanimity. Should any proposed change involve a modification of the English rules of the road, it will probably require all of Lord Montague's powers of persuasion to convert the faithful adherents of the unfailing paradox:

If you go to the left, you're sure to go right;
If you go to the right, you'll go wrong.

A Black Month.

Transvaal papers say that October was a black month for the Union, influenza in the cities and in the black veldt proving more malignant than at any other time. The story of the epidemic forms one of the saddest in the history of the Rand. At least 8,000 whites and 40,000 natives in South Africa had perished of the disease by Nov. 15, but no figures were available for Zululand, large tracts of Transkei, and other native areas where the plague had been raging, and where facilities to cope with it were most inadequate, nor were statistics for Natal anywhere near complete.

Had Some Experience.

"Pardon me," said the army cook, for military chefs are prone to address their underlings courteously, "but I prithee tell me where you learned to peel potatoes so artistically? I observe that you do not cut off the cuticle in great hunks, as, alas, too many do, but loosen a bit of the skin of the tuber and then deftly strip it all off. You must have had much experience in skinning ere entering upon a soldier's life?"

"I did, thank you, sir," replied the accomplished member of the kitchen police. "Before I decided to make the world safe for a democracy I was a country banker."

His Wish.

"I know what I wish I was, mother," Dick said one day, when his big brother had gone away, and the little boy across the street was ill.

"Yes, dear," said his mother. "Perhaps you can be it, Dick. Mother will help you. Is it to play soldier?"

"No, indeed," said Dick, scornfully. "I just wish I was two little dogs, so I could play together."

AUTO-INTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Absolutely Prevents This Dangerous Condition.

The chief cause of poor health is our neglect of the bowels. Waste matter, instead of passing from the lower intestine regularly every day, is allowed to remain there, generating poisons which are absorbed by the blood.

In other words, a person who is habitually constipated, is poisoning himself. We know now that Auto-intoxication, due to non-action of the bowels, is directly responsible for serious Kidney and Bladder Troubles; that it upsets the Stomach, causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Sleeplessness; that chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Pain In The Back, are relieved as soon as the bowels become regular; and that Pimples, Rashes, Eczema and other Skin Affections disappear when "Fruit-a-tives" are taken to correct Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will protect you against Auto-intoxication because this wonderful fruit medicine acts directly on all the eliminating organs.

Chinese Gardeners.

Chinese gardeners sometimes plant statuettes of tiny men firmly in pots, just like real plants, and then train live evergreens to grow up over these statuettes. The vines thus form a kind of robe for the statuette men, their white faces and hands protruding from the green leaves.

As the demand for kikuyu grass in South Africa is increasing the Union Government has issued a pamphlet dealing with its characteristics and advantages as a cattle fodder.

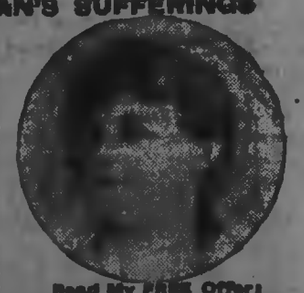
Sometimes the difference between reputation and character is unthinkable.

As long as you are not running the universe why worry about the schedule?

Getting out of life what there is in it without the bitter rind is what might be called the measure of success.

I KNOW A WOMAN'S SUFFERINGS



I am a woman.

What I have suffered is a far better guide than any MAN'S experience gained second-hand.

I know your need for sympathy and health. And the treatment that gave me health and strength, new interest in life, I want to pass on to you, that you, too, may enjoy the priceless boon of health.

Are you unhappy, unfit for your duties? Write and tell me how you feel and I will send you ten days' FREE trial of a home treatment to meet your individual needs, together with references to women in Canada who have passed through your troubles and regained health; or you can secure this FREE treatment for your daughter, sister or mother.

If you suffer from pain in the head, back, or bowels, feeling of weight and dragging down sensations, falling or displacement of internal organs, bladder irritations with frequent urinations, obstinate constipation or piles, pain in the sides regularly or irregularly, bloating, dyspepsia, extreme nervousness, depressed spirits, melancholy, desire to cry, fear of something evil about to happen, creeping feeling up the spine, palpitation, hot flashes, weariness, sallow complexion, with dark circles under the eyes, pain in the left breast or a general feeling that life is not worth living, I invite you to send to-day for my complete ten days' treatment entirely free and postpaid, to prove to yourself that these ailments can be easily and surely overcome at your own home, without the expense of hospital treatment, or the dangers of an operation. Women everywhere are escaping the surgeon's knife by knowing of my simple method of home treatment, and when you have been benefited, my sister, I shall only ask you to pass the good word along to some other sufferer. My home treatment is for all—young or old.

Read My FREE Offer!

To Mothers of Daughters. I will explain simple home treatment which speedily and effectually dispels green-sickness (chlorosis), irregularities, headaches and lassitude in young women, and restores them to plumpness and health. Tell me if you are worried about your daughter. Remember it costs you nothing to give my method of home treatment a complete ten days trial, and if you wish to continue, it costs only a few cents a week to do so, and it does not interfere with one's daily work. Is health worth asking for? Write for the free treatment suited to your needs, and I will send it in plain wrapper by return mail. Cut out this offer, mark the places that tell your feelings, and return to me. Write and ask for the free treatment to-day, as you may not see this offer again. Address:

THE DEATH ROLL.

How the Nations Suffered In Great Struggle.

That $120,000,000,000 which it is said will be demanded of the Central Powers as indemnity by the Allies somehow does not seem so appalling when one looks at the number of "battle deaths" as Gen. March calls them, suffered by all the belligerents in the course of the war. The American general calculates that 7,354,000 men were killed on the field of battle or died as a result of wounds. How many perished of disease or indirectly as a result of hardships and exposures is not computed, and undoubtedly more millions would have to be added on this acount. It has been calculated, for instance, that the Turks murdered 1,000,000 Armenians. The deaths from disease were also very large, especially in the American army. But considering only the men who were killed on the field of action or died as a result of wounds, we have these figures:

The Allies and the United States.

Russia	1,700,000
France	1,385,300
British	706,700
Italy	460,000
Belgium	102,000
Roumania	100,000
Serbia and Montenegro	100,000
United States	50,000
Total	4,604,000

The Teutonic Alliance.

Germany	1,600,000
Austria-Hungary	800,000
Turkey	250,000
Bulgaria	100,000
Total	2,750,000

In other words, France lost 3 ½ per cent. of her population, and Germany lost only two per cent., and the Entente losses, on the whole, were almost twice as great as those of the Central Powers. Another way of putting it is to say that before the Central Powers had suffered much more than half the losses of the Allies they threw up their hands. The morals of the latter could stand a much smaller ratio of loss than that of the powers that conquered them. Bulgaria with a loss of only 100,000 was the first to surrender, if we except Russia, whose losses were the greatest of all. If the wounded are estimated at 20,000,000, the figures would be only in proportion to that of the deaths. This is the butcher's bill, and not complete. In view of her population and her low birth rate, the losses of France are by all odds the greatest, and we should bear this in mind when we have a tendency to rebuke France for being implacable with regard to the terms to be imposed on Germany.

GUARDED MUD ELECTIONS.

Incidents In the Occupation of Town In Germany.

It was in a German beer garden in a rather important town in the Rhine districts occupied by the Canadian Corps, writes a Canadian in Germany. And since the German town centres round its beer gardens it was there I found the best answer to my anxiety about the fraternizing of old-time enemies. I had watched all year, from close-up, the organized and unremitting hatred of the Canadian soldier for the fighting Hun. And from the same grand stand seat of war correspondent I had ample proof that the affection of the grey-coated German for the persistent, indefatigable, fearless Canadian was of the same calibre—longer drawn out.

But of the Canadian memory I was not so certain.

The beer garden was the typical German one—a roomy theatre, with large stage in front, cheap chairs that could be turned towards the performance or the glass of beer that once stood on the tables, and a bar extending across the entire rear. The stage was incidental, the chairs a medium only. The bar was the main idea in the old days of German guzzling and community life.

Now it was difficult. The long bar was half closed off, concealing a kitchen where tea and coffee urns stood ready for the evening's business. The seats were neatly arranged, with their faces towards the stage. The stage was a riot of red, white and blue. Indeed, the whole setting was so patriotic as to remind me of early war days when conscription was delayed on behalf of voluntary enlistment and the senses and sentiment were the mediums of appeal.

The manner of metamorphosis required no explanation. A Canadian Y.M.C.A. officer was my guide. When Canadian soldiers began to filter in to the town the Y.M.C.A. arrived with the first consignment. And the very first act of the officer was to ferret out the buildings suitable to his purposes of entertainment. And the beer garden—as in many another German village—supplied one of his most pressing wants. And the second phase of operations was to decorate in the flags and colors of the Allies.

The building seemed empty when I entered. But as we moved down the aisle two solid, silent figures loomed from the gloom — soldiers seated several chairs apart in the very front row.

Grim they sat, with frowning brows and firm chins, their arms folded in that instinctive expression of immovable determination. They scarcely shifted to look at us. There might have been a lieutenant-general up there on the stage, with these his guards. The officer explained.

The beer garden was the largest hall in town. It was also the local symbol of authority. The German elections were crowding. And the mayor had humbly craved of the Y the use of the hall for a pre-election meeting that afternoon. With the promise of dismissal at five in order not to interfere with the regular Y program, consent was given. Later the request—almost a demand—was for a two hours' extension. But the beer garden was the property of the soldiers for the time; and five was insisted upon as the time limit.

Some soldier conceived the idea that the super-decorations of the theatre in the Allied colors might not be completely in accord with the feelings of a German political meeting. He passed it on. It developed into a decision—unofficial—to establish two Canadians of good physique where every movement of the main actors on the stage would be under their supervision.

And there they sat, an hour before opening time, not a whit impatient. I thought I detected something the opposite of impatience in their demeanor. I looked from their set jaws and anticipatory eyes to the stage, where a table was already surrounded with chairs for the political discussion. Across the front, below the footlights, stretched a three-foot strip of red, white and blue. The dingy scenery was camouflaged in flags and colors. A great Union Jack depended from one chandelier on the right stage, and a Stars and Stripes from another chandelier to the left. It was a ridiculously incongruous setting for a political meeting in a country that had preached hate of those colors for four years.

But I knew not a ribbon or strip would be touched. Those grim faces assured me of that. But the flickering glint in their eyes was not explained.

"You'll have a long wait—and a tiresome one," I volunteered. "And you won't know what they're talking about anyway."

A young Ole Bill of the army winked and screwed up the corner of his mouth. "No, it'll be Dutch to us. But"—he paused to give a tug at each coat sleeve, the initial movement of rolling it up—"we'll know if they aren't out of the building by five. And"—he hesitated diplomatically—"here's hoping!"

Appendicitis Operations Not Always Necessary

Internal Bathing Relieves the Cause.

Your physician will tell you that Appendicitis is an inflamed condition of the little sack called the Appendix at the lower right hand corner of the Colon or large intestine. By cleansing this Colon with purified warm water by the "J. B. L. Cascade" this sack is cleansed and the inflammation subsides. Hundreds of operations have been avoided by using the warm water cure for Appendicitis. Mr. Jas. McLaughlin, 91 Evanston street, Winnipeg, writes:—

"I have spent over fifty dollars with doctors trying to cure Appendicitis. Finally the doctor said I must go to the hospital at once for an operation. Your advertisement interested me. I bought a 'J. B. L. Cascade,' which relieved me at once, and am now completely cured. Never felt better in my life; all pain and soreness gone, and I eat and sleep like a boy. I am grateful to Dr. Tyrrell for this wonderful health-giving invention."

Ninety-five per cent. of all human ills are caused by accumulated waste in the Colon. Internal Bathing with the "J. B. L. Cascade" keeps this large intestine as free from all waste and as clean as nature demands it should be for perfect health. Ask Warne Drug Co., Peterborough, for booklet called "Why Man of To-day is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient." It is free. They will also be leased to show and explain the "J. B. L. Cascade" to you.

Toronto Landmark Destroyed.

One of the old landmarks of Toronto—the Black Horse Hotel—which has stood at the corner of Front and George streets for nearly a century—since 1820—has at last fallen a prey to the ravages of time, and is now being demolished.

Built as a residence in 1820 by George Munro, it later became the leading hotel in the market district. Its southern windows, looking out upon Toronto Bay, would have seen the first long funnelled, paddle-wheel steamers, with much splashing and smoke, making their first voyages on the great lakes and have watched the harbor front grow from a muddy bank to its present industrial importance.

The old tavern has for many years been shorn of its former pride. Owing to its dilapidated condition it has not been used as a hotel for seven years. Chadwick was the name of the last proprietor. John Holderness, who left about 1886, Capt. Cox, Charles Ireson, Wales and Grimbleber, were some of his predecessors. For many years it has been used as a lodging house. It was the property of the Munro estate.

Robertson's Landmarks of Toronto gives the following story of the old house: "Just after the close of the war of 1812, two brothers, Scotchmen by birth, came to York from Niagara, and engaged in business here. Their names were John and George Munro. George, the youngest of the brothers, was but a boy of fourteen at the time of commencing his mercantile career." In the spring of 1822 the brothers were contributers to the fund for building two bridges over the Don. About this time or earlier, for George Munro was a very young man at the time, he was married, and changed his residence to a new house, which he built about 1820, at the northeast corner of Front and George streets. The building, which is still standing, and now known as the Black Horse Hotel, has been somewhat altered from its original appearance, and its surroundings have greatly changed.

"The main part of the building does not differ much from the original structure, which was a commodious two-storey frame house painted white, standing about fifteen feet back from Front street. About the Front street residence was a large lot extending halfway back to King street, and about an equal distance towards Frederick street. It was handsomely laid out, planted in part with choice fruit trees and blooming in other parts with flowers. Opposite the house on the Bay shore bank was a piece of ground owned by Mr. Munro and by him enclosed by a fence and planted with shrubbery and nearby a great elm tree about which Indians used to camp."

Mr. Munro was an active partisan in politics, with strongly Conservative tendencies. In 1841 he was elected mayor of Toronto, and while holding that office carried to England Toronto's congratulating address on the birth of the Prince of Wales. During the session of 1844-1845 he sat in Parliament for South York.

Rules of the Road.

Lord Montagu of Beaulieu's insistence on the need for international uniformity in the rules of the road, which, he thinks, might come within the sphere of the Peace Conference to inaugurate, has been greeted with lively interest by those associated with automobile traffic, particularly by those who have had the confusing experience of negotiating the rules in different European countries. An interesting climax in this matter would apparently be reached in the event of a tunnel for traffic being constructed between England and France; for the abrupt change from the keep-to-the-left regime of England to the keep-to-the-right of France would develop a situation which neither manufacturers nor drivers of automobiles could face with equanimity. Should any proposed change involve a modification of the English rules of the road, it will probably require all of Lord Montague's powers of persuasion to convert the faithful adherents of the unfailing paradox:

If you go to the left, you're sure to go right;
If you go to the right, you'll go wrong.

A Black Month.

Transvaal papers say that October was a black month for the Union, influenza in the cities and in the black veldt proving more malignant than at any other time. The story of the epidemic forms one of the saddest in the history of the Rand. At least 2,000 whites and 49,000 natives in South Africa had perished of the disease by Nov. 15, but no figures were available for Zululand, large tracts of Transkei, and other native areas where the plague had been raging, and where facilities to cope with it were most inadequate, nor were statistics for Natal anywhere near complete.

Had Some Experience.

"Pardon me," said the army cook, for military chefs are prone to address their underlings courteously, "but I prithee tell me where you learned to peel potatoes so artistically? I observe that you do not cut off the cuticle in great hunks, as, alas, too many do, but loosen a bit of the skin of the tuber and then deftly strip it all off. You must have had much experience in skinning ere entering upon a soldier's life?"

"I did, thank you, sir," replied the accomplished member of the kitchen police. "Before I decided to make the world safe for a democracy I was a country banker."

His Wish.

"I know what I wish I was, mother," Dick said one day, when his big brother had gone away, and the little boy across the street was ill.

"Yes, dear," said his mother. "Perhaps you can be it, Dick. Mother will help you. Is it to play soldier?"

"No, indeed," said Dick, scornfully. "I just wish I was two little dogs, so I could play together."

AUTO-INTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Absolutely Prevents This Dangerous Condition.

The chief cause of poor health is our neglect of the bowels. Waste matter, instead of passing from the lower intestine regularly every day, is allowed to remain there, generating poisons which are absorbed by the blood.

In other words, a person who is habitually constipated, is poisoning himself. We know now that Auto-intoxication, due to non-action of the bowels, is directly responsible for serious Kidney and Bladder Troubles; that it upsets the Stomach, causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Sleeplessness; that chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Pain In The Back, are relieved as soon as the bowels become regular; and that Pimples, Rashes, Eczema and other Skin Affections disappear when "Fruit-a-tives" are taken to correct Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will protect you against Auto-intoxication because this wonderful fruit medicine acts directly on all the eliminating organs.

How the Wright Brothers Made Their First Airship And Gave Wings to Humans

IT is just about fifteen years ago that the Wright Brothers made their first successful flight in an airplane, and now people are talking about flying across the Atlantic. Machines have been built in the last year capable of a speed of about three miles a minute; an aviator has risen 28,900 feet in the air, and we have airplanes capable of lifting fifteen tons. The single flight record is 24 hours as compared with the first 59 seconds' flight of Wilbur Wright. It is doubtful if in the history of invention there has been any such record of progress in an equal time. In view of the thousands of lives that have been lost in airplane crashes it is worth noting that Wilbur Wright lived to succumb years later to typhoid, never having had an accident, and that his brother Orville still survives and bids fair to reach a ripe old age. He was in one accident, in which he suffered a broken leg, his companion, Lieut. Selfridge, losing his life and becoming the first victim of an airplane disaster.

It is said that the interest of the Wright Brothers in flying was first aroused when their father presented them with a top called a helicoptre, a fragile thing that would fly for a short distance. The plaything naturally did not long survive, but its wonders never faded from the minds of the boys, though years were to intervene before they began the serious study of the flying problem. At school in Dayton, Ohio, they are said to have taken little interest in the literary or artistic branches of their study, but early showed themselves possessed of a strong analytical faculty and were keen on mathematics. Their school studies were cut short, however, and they opened a small bicycle repair shop, which they later developed into a modest little factory. Here besides making a comfortable living they developed their mechanical skill.

However, the notion at last got itself expressed somehow, and they set to work in their spare time with the conviction that in the development of the idea of the gliding plane lay the secret of ultimate success. Their first model, a sort of improved kite, gave them reason to believe that they were on the right track, and after a couple of experiments they built a bigger model on the same principle. Model followed model, each a little bigger than its predecessor, and each of them adding to the enthusiasm of the young inventors. Then came the time when they had spent about all their money, without, of course, having received a dollar in return. It became necessary that they should either give up the fascinating pursuit or raise more capital. They appealed to their father, a retired bishop of the United Brethren Church, whose sole property consisted of a small farm in Iowa, and he, without a moment's hesitation, sold it and gave his sons the necessary cash.

With the first machine built with these funds they moved to the sand dunes of North Carolina, there to continue in more favorable circumstances the investigations that they had begun in Ohio.

For some time thereafter they contented themselves with gliding down the hills, against the wind, and found it was easy to make flights of several hundred yards in this way without danger or difficulty. In 1903 they built their first motor. It weighed 750 pounds, but here again they received a check. They had supposed that there were in existence tables by which they could calculate from their own knowledge of air pressure the speed at which it would be necessary for the propellers to spin in order to drive the machine. They learned that there were no such tables, but only a set of antiquated empirical formulae. Here again they had to make their own experiments and rely on their own observations to give them what they required. By this time they had gone so far that it was impossible to discourage them, and so they persevered until, on Dec. 17, 1903, they produced a machine which rose from the ground by means of its own power, made a short circle and alighted safely. It was nearly two years later before their machine was capable of flying six miles. This accomplished, the Wrights had all the capital they required at their disposal. They were on the highway to fame and fortune, and never afterward were they obliged to look back.

SEWERS FOR NEWMARKET

Town May Have a System Installed at a Cost of $100,000

NEWMARKET, Ont., April 3.—E. A. James submitted estimates for a complete sewage system at a special meeting of the Town Council. To install a line of sewers on every street, storm sewers on Main street and a sewerage disposal plant he estimated would cost the town about $100,000. The Finance Committee were ordered to look into the matter.

CROSS, FEVERISH CHILD IS BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! See if tongue is coated, breath hot or stomach sour.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

FIRE IN WATER.

Newest Idea For Making Steam and Wasting No Heat.

Fire in the middle of a tank of water instead of under a boiler is a new scheme in making steam for an engine. The idea is to save heat ordinarily wasted, for, with the fire in the middle of the water, every bit of the heat must work to heat the water, as there are no side paths by which it can escape.

Keeping a fire blazing when practically surrounded by water is a problem that has been successfully solved. Gas or oil properly mixed with air feeds the fire. To start the flame the tank is first emptied and the vapor fuel forced in through a pipe that ends in a nozzle pointed downward. The vapor is lighted, making a roaring torch flame shooting downward in the middle of the tank. Then the tank is partly filled with water until the surface of the water is well above the nozzle, entirely covering the flame.

The vapor fuel, of course, must be forced in at some pressure in order to prevent the water from putting the fire out. The water is soon boiling violently, making steam for running the engine. The steam, mixed with gas from the burning fuel, is led into a separate tank, which is a sort of storage bin for the steam.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Sun and the Weather.

Neither astronomers nor meteorologists are likely to take seriously the prediction of a French scientist that the recent renewal of sun spot activity will result in a long period of dry weather covering seventeen years. "The direct consequence of our dependence on the sun," he says, "is that seventeen years of dryness are followed by as many wet years." Many attempts have been made to discover any association between sun spot cycles and weather cycles, but as yet without success. There are three fairly well defined sun spot cycles, embracing four, eleven and thirty-three years, but no similar weather periods are known. During the last seventy years the Greenwich records of sun spots and rainfall show no relation, there being no correspondence between the two phenomena.—Westminster Gazette.

Paint Alarms.

Fire alarm paint is coming into use abroad. At ordinary temperatures the paint is light red, but when heated it becomes darker. Long before it reaches the temperature of boiling water it becomes black. On cooling it returns to its original shade. The principal use found for it is in painting machinery parts that are liable to overheating. An attendant needs only to glance at the machinery occasionally to know whether it is excessively hot. It has, however, another application—to give warning of threatened fire.—Saturday Evening Post.

A French Wonder.

The police force of the Ninth Paris Arrondissement boasts a policeman named Costy, whose powers of calculation are attracting the attention of the scientific world. The moment he hears a spoken phrase he is able to tell the number of letters it contains. He takes no time for reflection and says he does not even need to think, the calculation being automatic.

He's starting right

Dad knows it. For hasn't he vivid memories of other times, before the eventful day when he bought his cherished AutoStrop Razor? So he is happy to find that his boy won't have to put up with what he went through—dull blades tingling face, half removed stubble—these are the things that make dad wince as he thinks of them. But happily all that is past—to stay.

And now for the boy there is only cleanliness and comfort, the sense of physical well being that follow a cool, clean, satiny shave such as only an AutoStrop Razor can give. This and the fact, that the AutoStrop Razor sharpens its own blades, and is not taken apart for stropping or cleaning, has led thousands of dads everywhere to recommend the AutoStrop Razor to their sons.

A HOT SPOT Chalmers wrings the power from gas

AS any one knows there is just so much power in a gallon of gas; and the great trick in a gas engine is to get all the power out and convert it into mileage.

Yet do you know how little power actually is taken out of gas by the average car? And how much power goes out the exhaust?

Ask any motor car engineer.

A Chalmers engine simply wrings power out of gas. Its famous Hot Spot "cracks up" the gas, just as constant chewing of food prepares it for good digestion before swallowing.

To get power out of gas the gas has got to be "cracked up." Then it has got to be placed into the cylinders in a "dry" condition. This the great Ram's-horn does to a work of engineering art.

You can tell how true this is the minute your foot touches the accelerator button of a present day Chalmers and you get the feel of that throbless, frictionless power that means so much to your peace of mind, your tires, your bank balance and your self satisfaction.

MYSTERIOUS ISLANDS.

Ruins Which the Historians Cannot Explain.

Whatever the political future of the Caroline Islands, which Japan seized from Germany, they are bound to be objects of scientific interest for generations to come.

Who built the massive stone structures which give evidence of a high degree of civilization at some prehistoric time?

What was the origin of the stone currency, some "coins" of which weigh five tons?

These are but two of the many questions which these Pacific islands of mystery present.

The stone ruins extend from Ponape, an island toward the east of the group, to Yap, on the west. On Yap are great stone terraces, embankments and roads, composed of neatly laid stone blocks, stone graves, stone platforms, and enormous chambers resembling council lodges with gables and tall pillars, frequently carved. Ponape discloses the "Pacific Venice." There the ruins are partly submerged. Apparently they once stood on an island city, unless their site was connected with other islands before a terrific upheaval inundated them. What remains to-day is more than half a hundred rectangular walled islets, projecting above the waters of a lagoon. There is an outer lagoon, separated by a breakwater three miles long. In all this construction huge basalt blocks were used. Apparently they were untouched by iron tools.

Recent study has confirmed the belief that these mighty megalithic monuments antedate the present native population of the Carolines.

Origin of the unique stone coinage is not known. Shell money seems to have supplanted the unwieldly stone discs for "small change" long before the white man arrived. The stone "money" is made from limestone or calcite. It probably was employed for primitive banking rather than for general circulation. Its security from theft was assured by its weight. Specimens are found piled about the homes of native chieftains.

Including reefs not inhabited, the Caroline Islands number more than 500. Of the total land area of 390 square miles, 207 square miles is comprised in Ponape, Yap, Kusaie and Hogolu, or Truk. In 1911 the total population was about 55,000, and of these fewer than 400 were Europeans.

The islands extend for about 1,000 miles, east and west. They lie more than 1,500 miles to the east of the Philippines, and about 1,000 miles north of New Guinea.

POLICE SEEK HUSBAND OF WOMAN SLAIN WITH HAMMER

NEW YORK, April 4.—Following the finding of the body of Mrs. Narcie Neuzo, beaten to death with a hammer in her home on the top floor of No. 305 East 106th street, the police sent out a general alarm for the woman's husband, Antonio Neuzo forty-two years old, employed in a laundry at No. 333 East 105th street. The four children of the household were set to the Children's Society.

According to Frank Caruso, the thirteen-year old son, his step-father had threatened his mother for more than two months. The boy was with his mother until nearly three o'clock yesterday, when he went to play outside. He did not see his father come home, but neighbors did. At five o'clock the boy went upstairs but found the doors locked. He went to the home of friends and met the other children of the family.

The children obtained entrance to their own home by climbing the fire escape. There they found the body of their mother. An oil painting of the father had been cut out of its frame

A great help in Cooking

One of the most remarkable features of OXO CUBES is the economy they effect in cooking. They are an excellent substitute for meat in soups and savouries. They prevent waste and oddments can be served in many appetising ways by their use

Then contrast the old-fashioned cumbersome way of cooking with the quick, convenient OXO CUBE way. Think of the time saved—the material saved—the fuel saved—and then reckon up that in dollars and cents. But that is not all. OXO increases nutrition—it makes every dish more wholesome and digestible.

THEY ACTED IN TIME

During 1917, twenty men all hale and hearty insured their lives in the Sun Life of Canada. All paid the first premium, none lived to pay the second.

They paid a total of $5078.26 and their beneficiaries received $74,218.60.

The records for 1918, owing to the ravages of the "Flu" will show the above record repeated many times, and all such acted in time.

What are you going to do about it? Act in time or be forever too late.

The Sun Life of Canada paid these claims willingly and promptly and will do the same for your loved ones if you act in time.

WHEN WAR COMES

How the Nations Sever Their Diplomatic Relations.

PASSPORTS TO AMBASSADORS

The Formal Etiquette That Governs This Ceremony and the Issuance of Safe Conduct Papers—Hurry and Confusion of Enforced Departure.

"The ambassador has been presented with his passports and has left the country."

Behind this curt formula, which indicates the departure of an ambassador from the country to which he is accredited on the rupture of diplomatic relations, lies a picturesque, significant proceeding with which few of the public can be conversant.

When a foreign country declares war it is usual for its representative formally to present this declaration, the terms of which are received by wire from the foreign minister, under whose orders he acts, and then to ask for his passport, or safe conduct papers, which are furnished him by the foreign office of the nation whose honored guest he has been. On the other hand, if the initiative is taken by the country to which he is accredited his passport is sent to him by special messenger.

An ambassador is the personal representative of his sovereign, and the responsibility rests with the country among whose people he has been staying to insure him a safe passage out of its boundaries.

If the ambassador has held his position long and is on terms of great cordiality with the foreign minister he generally calls to express his sorrow at the unfortunate turn of events and to take a friendly farewell; and occasions have been known when such leave taking has been of the most painful character and associated with tears.

A diplomat is not generally considered an emotional character, but human nature sometimes will break through even the bounds of iron restraint, and on a delicate occasion, like an ambassador's recall, the final parting scene with a minister whom he has probably grown both to love and admire, is of a most affecting description.

When an envoy completes his term of appointment in times of peace, it is customary for him to have a farewell audience of the monarch, when there is a delightful exchange of compliments, but this ceremony is dispensed with when his recall either means war or is a prelude to war. He forfeits then all the official courtesies due to an ambassador, and the handing him of his passports and the insuring of his safe passage out of the country finish his connection officially with the nation.

The time in which an ambassador is allowed to make his preparations for departure depends to some extent on his own convenience and the temper of the nation with which his own nation is at war. Twenty-four to forty-eight hours may be taken as the period which elapses between his recall and his departure, and his safety meanwhile is secured by precautions taken by the civil authorities. During this time papers of importance, which have not already been delivered into the hands of his government, are destroyed to prevent them miscarrying during the journey home, or because it is deemed more prudent that they should be consigned to the flames rather than be taken away.

Although all the messages from his country to an ambassador are in code, it is hardly necessary to say that if sufficient time be allowed to study a document in code it can easily be translated; hence the advisability of these extreme precautions.

The departing envoy arranges with the representative of a neutral power to take over such duties as are transferable and then, with the officials of the embassy and the members of his family, entrains in a special train placed at his disposal by the government whose country he is quitting. At the port of embarkation a special vessel to convey him and his staff is also provided.

It is not absolutely necessary for him to take his wife and family with him, but this is usually done, for it is found they prefer to make the journey homeward at the same time, not only for company's sake, but because the temper of the people might make any delay imprudent.

Before he leaves he usually sends autograph letters of farewell to intimate friends and letters acknowledging the courtesy shown him by foreign office officials. The removal from the embassy of the arms of his country, the flag and the official name plate are external signs of an ambassador's enforced departure.

It can be imagined what a miserable business it is for an envoy of a foreign country abruptly to bring his mission to an end, to the sound, as it were, of guns, and for him to contrast the hearty welcome of his arrival with the unpleasant and menacing looks on his departure.

However well he may be prepared in advance for quitting the country by sending his personal luggage and papers in advance, it is in a state of confusion at the end that he leaves, so hurriedly has he to complete his arrangements, and, brave man though he may be, he must always have some anxieties as to the safety of those near and dear to him until he is well out of the country.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

BURGLAR KEPT BOOKS.

Unique Criminal Was Killed in the Western States.

Police say the famed Raffles never dreamed of scientific burglary reduced to the system that Paul Weggen, a former police chief had perfected to loot mansions of the wealthy in Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis and Pacific Coast cities of thousands of dollars' worth of goods. Weggen was killed in a hand-to-hand fight with a policeman in Portland, Ore., the other day, and his home revealed the secrets of years of successful robbery in the West and Northwest.

Ten years ago the women's clubs of Parsons, Kan., gave Weggen a medal. He represented the city in all patriotic and civic shows. He was the town's hero. He was known throughout Southeastern Kansas as the premier police chief. He was a fearless enemy of the underworld, the police thought. He rode his bicycle by night into the nests of crime and arrested violators of the law as they had never been arrested before. He was quick with his revolver and shot three men, disabling them all, when they attempted to overpower him in one of these one-man raids. Once a negro bit off one of Weggen's fingers, and after he got his hand loose he drew his revolver and shot down the attacker.

Then one day Parsons awoke to find some detectives from Kansas City had accused Weggen of instigating the robbery of the city's biggest dry goods store. Weggan fled. The sleuths followed him and arrested him. He was convicted of the crime in Parsons and led through the city handcuffed. When he served three years at Lansing the business men of Parsons asked for a pardon for him. It was granted. A short time later he was sentenced to 25 years for leaping on the running board of Howard J. Vrooman's motor car on Cliff drive and relieving Vrooman of a $250 watch.

Weggen was sent to the penitentiary at Jefferson City and became a trusty in the light plant. November 7 last he threw the light plant out of commission and escaped in the darkness.

When Weggen was killed in Portland the other day the police found more than $5,000 worth of goods, believed to have been stolen in Minneapolis, in his home, and with it his unique bookkeeping system.

A burglar's calendar, or "tip book," giving the dates when rich citizens would be away from home, formed part of his equipment. By glancing through it he could map out a program of comparatively safe looting for weeks in advance. He kept a complete set of books to aid him in his profession, according to the police. Society items were scanned to provide items for his list of "prospects," the police say. Each paragraph telling of a trip or out-of-town visit was carefully registered in a ledger.

After the robbery the profits were entered in another book, with such information concerning the job as might be of value later, the police say. At the end of a year he could compute with ease the statement of his "business."

But most useful of all his adopted business methods was the "tip book." Here are some of the items from it, referring to Minneapolis: Mrs. C. C. Webber, out of town; Luther H. Farrington, going to California Monday; Mrs. Marion Le Roy Burton, out of town, won't be back for a few days; Mrs. Julius A. Pomeroy, will leave Wednesday or Thursday; Fred B. Wells, probably will be out of town last of week; Mr. and Mrs. James D. Fullerton, ought to get away Saturday for New York.

In the house Weggen rented at Portland was found jewelry, silverware, rare Oriental rugs, fine wools and silks, valuable antiques and costly women's wearing apparel.

Submarines.

In spite of the fact that the British have some steam-driven 2,700-ton submarines, capable of a surface speed of from twenty-three to twenty-five knots, the submarine, as a weapon of war, is too slow and too blind when it is submerged to be considered a serious weapon of naval warfare. When it can see, electrically, to a distance of ten to fifteen miles, while it is submerged so deeply as to be invisible to the air scout, and when it can steam twenty knots submerged it will dominate the naval situation.—Scientific American.

They Had Forgotten Something.

They had been dining in state in the dining car. Husband, who is a teacher of English, was glad that little daughter had behaved so perfectly. Mother also was in a happy frame of mind. There were numerous other diners in the car and the parents were proud of their child. Not a single thing had happened to mar the serenity of the occasion. Finally the meal was over and they started to leave the car. Their way took them past all the other tables. Suddenly the little girl felt impelled to ask a question. "Mother," she called in a shrill voice, "aren't we going to wash the dishes?"

Beauty Hides a Multitude of Virtues in the Maxwell

THIS time beauty conceals the virtues—not the "sins." For the new "garments" of the April Maxwell are severely pretty, simple, modern, and the kind that make you want to possess one.

But underneath this "robe of beauty" you'll find a sound, rugged, compact, everlastingly-on-the-job chassis that now has a record manufacturing run of 300,000—all alike.

For in 5 years that number of chasses have come out of the 8 great Maxwell plants—each built on the same pattern; each one better than the last.

To date more than 1000 refinements, big and little, have been made in the Maxwell. The plan is to improve and improve—but not to change in any radical way the original chassis.

Thus you'll understand why a Maxwell never quits running; never grows wobbly and loose with age; never forces the garage man to send you a staggering bill for mechanical treatment.

Now you get a far better Maxwell than ever before. Which would be sufficient for the average buyer. But more than that you're getting a Maxwell that the touch of artistic magic has made into a car of rare beauty.

It doesn't take an art critic to pass judgment on the beauty of an April Maxwell. Anyone with fair eyesight gets it in a jiffy.

SAVED WORLD FROM GERMANY

Great Claim Is Made for Lord Northcliffe.

HE IS TAKING A HOLIDAY

Outstanding Figure In Journalism In Our Day and Generation Is the Proprietor of the London Times —Played an Important Part In British Politics Before and During the War.

COMMENTING on the retirement of Lord Northcliffe from the management of the score or more newspapers and periodicals which he owns, Col. George Harvey, one of the most brilliant of American publicists, expresses the opinion that Northcliffe cannot really retire. "He will die with his boots on," says Harvey. He also expresses the opinion that to Northcliffe and the London Times the world owes the fact that Germany was defeated. Northcliffe was aware of the German peril. In 1912, in the course of a conversation with Harvey, he predicted that there would be war with Germany within three years. In 1915 he said that the war was not being won, and that it would be lost unless Lloyd George could be put in Asquith's place. He said that Lloyd George was the one man in England for the tremendous task. Those who believe that the war was being lost under Asquith and that the tide was turned by the Coalition Government must admit that Harvey's tribute to Northcliffe and the Times is justified, for to Northcliffe and the Times was due the downfall of Asquith.

Lord Northcliffe is easily the outstanding figure in the journalism of this generation. He started with nothing, and in little more than thirty years made himself many times a millionaire — in pounds sterling — won for himself a peerage, and another for his brother, secured control of the most important newspaper in the world, the London Times, which he had the rare judgment not to either debase or uptight, and bought up a score of other papers and periodicals. He has made and unmade Governments, and altered the policy of the war. It is not so long ago when Northcliffe was the best hated man in England. This was when he was attacking Lord Kitchener for sending shrapnel instead of high explosive shell to the front. Kitchener was the British idol. He had been made Secretary of War largely at Northcliffe's behest. Now he was being accused of imperilling the British army because of his failure to understand that shrapnel was useful only for use against troops advancing in the open. Northcliffe was burnt in effigy in a hundred English towns.

A veteran journalist who worked on one of the Northcliffe papers for years and came often into contact with Northcliffe, says that he was the best employer a newspaper worker ever had—if the newspaper worker had the goods. Since Northcliffe entered the field of daily journalism in London, some twenty odd years ago the wages of writers have doubled, largely because Northcliffe paid large salaries to attract the men he wanted. It used to be said of him, as it has been said of his American counterfeit, Hearst, that he lured men by high wages, squeezed them dry in a few months and then tossed them aside. To this it may be said that men are not squeezed dry of ideas in a few months. Thomas Marlowe, editor of the Daily Mail, who succeeds Northcliffe as chairman of his various publishing interests, has been editor of the Mail for twenty years. He evidently was not tossed aside.

Northcliffe, he tells us, in the New York Sun, was always available to the men who worked for him. He encouraged them to make suggestions. Those who had good ideas were generously rewarded. If they were ill they were sent on long voyages until they recovered. Money was no object. He used often to stop his reporters and editors and question them. One young fellow who had been with him for three months was questioned one day on the stairs as to how he liked his job. He said everything was fine, he was perfectly contented and happy. "How much are you earning?" asked Northcliffe. "Five pounds a week," was the answer. "Then you are not the man for me," was the retort. "I don't want any member of my staff to be happy and contented with five pounds a week."

HALF FALSE JEWELS.

How One Diamond Makes Two Each as Big as the Original.

The lapidary was splitting a diamond. He leaned forward with intent brows. His tiny machine buzzed like a bee. A delicate and shining dust arose.

Then suddenly everything was stilled, and the diamond, split in halves, lay in the lapidary's white, thin hand.

"Out of one diamond," he said, "I am going to make two, and each of these two will be as big and brilliant as the original one was."

As he scraped up the glittering dust he explained:

"First I will make in paste an exact duplicate of each of these two halves. Then I will join to the bottom of each genuine half its artificial complement, making the junction so carefully that no one will be able to perceive it. Finally I will mount these two half false and half genuine stones. Each then will appear to be altogether genuine. Their paste foundations will not detract in any way from their brilliance. The owner of the big diamond will have two big diamonds.

"The making of fake jewels," the lapidary said, "is an interesting study. Do you know what the best fake pearls are made of? They are made of fish scales—silvery and iridescent fish scales pasted on the inside of balls of glass. The fish these scales come from is called in France the ablette and in England the bleak. It is smaller than a minnow. Its scales must be picked off by hand, and only a small portion of them can be used. It takes 18,000 ablettes, or bleaks, to yield a pound of scales."

Dug His Own Grave.

A gravedigger named James Hambleton was buried alive in a grave at St. Stephen's church yard, Audenshaw, Ashton-under-Lyne, the other day. He had been digging a grave and was getting out when he fell backward and a large portion of the sides collapsed upon him. A conductor on a passing tramcar who saw the man's legs in the air ran to the spot and found the gravedigger buried headforemost. The man had ceased to struggle and was dead when extricated.—London Times

Timber Survey Urged.

At the conference of the Canadian Forestry Association held in Montreal, it was decided to ask the Dominion Government to use the aerial resources at its disposal for the protection and observation of the forests of the country. It was also resolved that the association urge upon the proper governmental authorities to provide adequate financial assistance, and clothe the Commission of Conservation with the necessary authority to make an accurate survey of all standing timber in Canada, showing the various kinds of lumber and its quality, location and accessibility, together with available means of transporting it to the nearest market; also a report of all cut-over lands which are suitable only for forest growth, with the extent and location. This information, it was declared, would be of the utmost value, not only to lumber operators, but to the Dominion and Provincial Governments, enabling them to develop to the full extent a permanent forest policy which would have the effect of conserving the great natural resources contained in Canada's forests.

Brig.-Gen. J. B. White, D.S.O., gave a review of the work of the Canadian Forestry Corps in France and expressed the hope that Canada would now go into the work of tree planting and reafforestation in earnest. As to the utilisation of timber, Gen. White said the Germans had made full use of the wood in the lands they had occupied. All through the occupied territory of Northern France they had installed sawmills, and in one forest alone 11 mills had been established, which had cut up the forests and sent 30,000,000 feet of timber to Germany.

BOEHM A MASTER SPY

HE NOW AWAITS DEATH IN TOWER OF LONDON.

Men and Women Who Assisted Him In the United States Find Themselves In Trouble on Account of His Criminal Activities—Story of How British Authorities Captured Their Man.

SIGNING of the armistice on November 11 did not end the hunt for spies in the Allied countries, as we are reminded by a report of the indictment of two men in New York on a charge of aiding Capt. Hans W. Boehm, one of the most notorious of German spies. Boehm is now under sentence of death in the Tower of London, as he has been since the summer of 1916, and it is said that the reason for delaying the execution is a desire to hunt down all the chief spy's associates. The men indicted in New York are Carl T. Thomas and Max Wyner. It seems likely that others will be indicted, among them a woman named Buesem, who appears to have been one of the chief conspirators in furnishing Boehm with passports. Armed with forged credentials he made two or three visits to Germany in 1915, and it is said that before sailing on each occasion he had an interview with Count Bernstorff. He is also said to have received $65,000 from Captain von Papen, which he distributed in fomenting labor troubles at factories making munitions for the Allies. In Germany he made reports to von Jagow. All his activities and the activities of his confederates took place at a time when the United States was a neutral.

Capt. Boehm, of the German army, and specially detailed for espionage in the United States, landed on August 1, 1914, a circumstance that adds to the overwhelming weight of evidence which proves that Germany took it for granted that Great Britain would enter the war, and that there would be a tremendous manufacture of munitions in the United States for the Allies. He went to Portland, Ore., where he was the manager of several clubs, and helped organize a bomb squad. Subsequently he made three trips to Germany and returned unsuspected. After his third trip he incautiously let drop a remark which indicated that he was or had been an officer in the German army. Whether he made the confession to a British agent or to someone who told a British agent, the fact was immediately reported to the British Embassy a Washington, and a close watch was set upon Capt. Boehm. Shortly afterwards, in the summer of 1916, he set out on the voyage that was destined to be his last. He sailed on a Cunarder which arrived at Falmouth on June 26. British police came aboard, and when they left took Capt. Boehm with them. The next day he was arraigned before a court-martial was shortly afterward condemned to death, and has been lying under sentence ever since.

Boehm's confederates in the United States, so far as is known, are Carl Thomas and Max A. Wyner, the former being employed on the staff of a German-American newspaper, presumably one of Hearst's string. In the fall of 1915 the former introduced Boehm to a Mrs. Jelke Thrasher, a German by birth, who had been recently divorced from her American husband, thus losing her American citizenship. This woman, by the way, is now in custody at Ellis Island. At that time she was living in considerable style at a New York apartment house, and soon after the introduction Boehm, under the name of Blake, also took up his residence in the apartment. It is now contended that Mrs. Thrasher received Boehm into her home for the purpose of establishing his American citizenship. She wrote to officials in Georgia to learn the place and date of her husband's birth, the pair not having been married long enough to get very well acquainted. These letters are in the hands of the American Government, and are likely to make things awkward for the lady.

The object of the letters was to secure data which would aid Boehm in the impersonation of her former husband. Armed with this information, Boehm made application for a passport in Thrasher's name. Accompanying his application was an affidavit from Wyner to the effect that he had known Boehm or Thrasher for ten years and knew that he was an American citizen. Whether Wyner made this false affidavit out of love of the Fatherland or for a sum of cash in hand is not clear, he will presently have the privilege of explaining. At any rate the passport was issued and Boehm, under the name of Thrasher, set sail as previously mentioned, only to be taken off the boat at Falmouth. He was most indignant at his arrest and demanded that the British Government should communicate immediately with his wife in New York or with officials in his native Georgian city who would establish his identity. He explained that he had been away from Georgia for some years, but was sure that he would be remembered, and he asked the officers to make certain to mention the fact that he wore glasses.

Now it appears that Mr. Thrasher had worn glasses from boyhood, having an incurable astigmatism. This fact was established by the British Secret Service, which also established the fact that the glasses worn by the prisoner were of a different character and made only for occasional use. Thrasher would have been blinded by Boehm's glasses, and Boehm would have been blinded by Thrasher's glasses. Apart from this error, Boehm had no chance, since he had been under surveillance for months. While the investigation was in progress Mrs. Thrasher was married to Karl Buesem, a German, and when the United States entered the war she was among the thousands rounded up and interned as dangerous.

It's awfully hard for a woman to manage her house to the satisfaction of the hired girl.

THE CRIME WAVE.

How About the War-made Criminal? —How Shall We Solve Problem?

Apropos of the crime wave now spreading over the world it is interesting to read what the London Lancet has to say in a recent number on the post-war problem of psychopathic criminals and the importance of adopting a suitable form of treatment in dealing with subjects coming under this heading:

"Large numbers of men will be returning to this country or will be coming out of the military hospitals while still suffering in some degree from mental and nervous disabilities brought about by the unexampled stresses of modern warfare. It may be anticipated with a fair measure of assurance that in many cases the mental enfeeblement of these invalids will be manifested by disorders of conduct of more or less gravity, bringing them into conflict with the law; and several instances of this kind have, in fact, come before the criminal courts within the last few weeks. Public opinion will not tolerate the treatment of these war victims by the indiscriminate methods which have been applied to the general mass of law-breakers. The demand will certainly be made that in every such case full consideration should be given to the mental condition of the offender, and that he shall be dealt with on curative lines adapted to his individual needs, and not merely by the stereotyped punitive and repressive measures which up to the present have been the sole resource of the law. To satisfy this demand, which can obviously be urged with no less force in regard to other categories of psychopathic delinquents, it will be necessary to introduce an entirely new spirit into the system of procedure in criminal cases and to recognize to a far greater extent than in the past the importance of the help which the expert in morbid psychology can give in the administration of justice."

Black Huns In Africa.

When von Lettow, the Hun commandant in East Africa, surrendered with his blacks, one heard frequent comments on the wonderful influence he must have exercised to keep these men in the field so long.

Let us look at the facts:

The German Askari has been taught to believe that he is a superman. Everyone must work for him: he is, or was, the salt of the earth.

He is not, as is generally supposed, recruited from the remnants of bands of raiders and marauders, legacies from the early troubled days when Arab slave traders and predatory war chiefs held undisputed sway in Central Africa, although it is a fact that survivors of these bands might still have been found in the German African army.

He is recruited from tribes once warlike, still preserving warlike instincts kept well under by the German iron-shod heel.

Go back to pre-war days, and follow one of these gentry into a village inhabited by his own tribe.

He calls on the headman, a man to whom he would, before he became an Askari, have had to pay every respect.

"Give me a hut!" he orders. "Put my loads in it! See to it that wood and water are provided, my bed made comfortable; and, oh, by the way, supply food and bring a couple of fowls."

The chief complies, but it is ten to one he does not please the Askari, who is "on the make" and fines him a couple of rupees.

The headman remonstrates and mumbles something about a visit to the German post to lodge a complaint.

"All right! You go to the post—you just go. If you do, it is little satisfaction you will get; certainly not your two rupees back. What you will get, my friend, if I hear anything about your lodging a complaint to the German commandant, is a shot through the stomach the next time I meet you in the bush."

Next morning the Askari finds himself the richer by a couple of fowls, many pounds of flour, and probably a goat, all supplied free, and in fear, by the tribesmen.

Or there is an extra load. He calls the headman: "See to my loads and supply carriers—come, hurry up, you ——"

The headman hurries up accordingly, for he is glad to see the Askari's back, into which he would, if he dared, plunge his spear.

The war has come and is over. All along the Askari, who is well aware of the difference between the German and British systems, knew his only hope was personified in von Lettow — the British would never employ his kind, or at least tolerate his methods. What a welcome awaits him, should he return home shorn of his power, from the poor wretch he has oppressed.

Can you follow his line of reasoning. Therein lies the true explanation of von Lettow's so-called influence over the black Askari.

The Best Habit In The World is the habit of health. The way to get it is to train your bowels, through the liver, to act naturally, at a fixed time, every day.

Take one pill regularly (more only if necessary) until you succeed. Then you can stop taking them, without trouble or annoyance.

This has been the good-health rule for 50 years.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

SAY BACKACHE IS A SIGN YOU HAVE BEEN EATING TOO MUCH MEAT, WHICH FORMS URIC ACID

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive cannot injure, and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

NEW HEALTH AND STRENGTH FOR WEAK GIRLS AND WOMEN

WEAK, WATERY BLOOD RESPONSIBLE FOR MOST OF THE ILLS FROM WHICH GIRLS AND WOMEN SUFFER.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make New, Rich Red Blood and Through This New Blood Restore to Health Weak, Despondent Sufferers.

If every young girl and every woman would realize that the majority of common diseases are due to weak, watery, impoverished blood, and that in this condition health can only be regained by enriching the blood, there would be fewer pallid faces, and nervous, breathless folk in the land. Thin blood means starved nerves, weakened digestion, functional troubles, headaches, heart palpitation, and a feeling of extreme weakness at the least exertion. It has been proven in thousands of cases that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine in the world for renewing the blood and strengthening the nerves. That given a fair trial they fill the arteries and veins with new, rich, red blood that means good health, and even life itself; that they make weak, despondent people bright, active and strong.

CONSTANT HEADACHES.

Mrs. E. C. Taylor, Ascot Ave., Toronto, says: "A few years ago I was so run down with anaemia that I could scarcely walk about the house, and was not able to leave it. I had no color; I was constantly troubled with headaches, dizzy spells and general disinclination to move about or do anything. I tried many medicines, but none helped me and my friends thought that I was in a decline. One day a friend who was in to see me asked if I had tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had often heard of this medicine, but had not used it, so I determined to give it a trial. I certainly got a pleasant surprise for after using two boxes I could feel an improvement in my condition. Continuing the use of these pills I began to regain my health, the headaches and the dizzy spells were disappearing and I began to gain in weight. People began to inquire what I was taking and I was not slow to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the credit. I took the pills for less than two months and completely regained my old-time strength and health. I hope my experience may convince some doubting person as to the great merit of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as I have cause to be a firm champion of them."

COULD SCARCELY WALK.

Miss Hannah Hamilton, Everett, Ont., says: "After an attack of la grippe I was so run down and anaemic that I could scarcely walk. I had no color, no appetite, and constant headaches. The medicine I was taking was doing me no good and I had almost lost hope of getting better. I was asked to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and it was not long until I could feel that they were helping me and after taking them for a couple of months I was completely cured. I now never fail to recommend these Pills to anyone needing a blood builder."

ALWAYS FELT TIRED.

Miss A. Sternburg, Haileybury Road, New Liskeard, Ont., says: "I have much reason to be grateful to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as they restored me to health, if indeed they did not save my life. In 1914 I began to feel run down and the doctor who was called in said that mine was a bad case of anaemia. I lost flesh always felt tired, and I got so nervous that I could scarcely hold a cup to take a drink. My heart would flutter alarmingly. The doctor did not seem to be able to help me at all and my family and friends all thought that I was in a decline and could not recover. I was in bed for some weeks when an aunt came to see me and urged that I try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My father got a supply and by the time I had taken three boxes there was a noticeable improvement and from that on I steadily progressed toward recovery. I continued using the pills for some time longer and they restored me to my old time health and strength. I shall never cease to praise this medicine and to urge all weak run-down girls to give it a fair trial as I have proved in my own case their great merit."

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Mrs. Alex. Giffis, Glenville, N. S., says: "I cannot praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly. They are really a wonderful medicine. I was very much run down, suffered from frequent dizzy spells and had an almost constant severe pain in the back. My home work was a source of dread; I felt so weak and life held but little enjoyment. Then I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the result was almost marvellous. They made me feel like a new woman and fully restored my health. I would urge every weak woman to give these pills a fair trial."

GAINED FORTY POUNDS.

Mrs. N. E. Tompsett, Ottawa, Ont., writes: "For several years I suffered terribly from nervous debility, and was scarcely able to do a thing. During that time I consulted several doctors, and many medicines without getting any help, and I began to think that I would never get better. One day I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advertised and I thought I would try them. After taking four bottles I was much better but I continued using the pills for several months when I was again in the best of health. When I began taking the pills I weighed only 100 pounds. While under their use with my renewed health I now weigh 140. I recommend Dr. William's Pink Pills to every one whom I know to be ailing."

PALE AND BLOODLESS.

Miss Dorina Bastien, St. Jerome, Que., says: "For over a year my health was gradually failing, my blood had seemed almost to have turned to water, my cheeks were pale, my lips bloodless, and the slightest exertion made me breathless. I suffered frequently from severe headaches; my appetite failed, and my friends feared I was going into consumption. I had been doctoring but did not derive any benefit and finally I had to give up my work and return home. It was at this stage that a friend brought me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and urged me to try them. By the time that the box was used I thought they were helping me and decided to continue using the pills. I took a half dozen boxes more, when my strength had completely returned, my appetite was restored, my color returned, headaches had disappeared, and I was feeling better than I had been for years. I would urge every weak and ailing girl to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

Do not be persuaded to take a substitute. See that the full trade mark name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," is printed on the wrapper around the box. If you cannot get these Pills through your dealer they will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HANDWRITING EXPERTS TO EXAMINE MRS. WILKINS' WILLS

MINEOLA, L.I., April 4. — Handwriting experts will be asked by the Nassau county authorities to compare the signature of Mrs. Julia Wilkins, which appears on her will recently filed in Manhattan and is admitted genuine, with the signature on her so-called second will, which does not bear the signature of witnesses and was taken by Dr. Walter Keene Wilkins to his attorney, Lewis, G. Friess.

Miss Audrey Munson, motion picture actress, and her mother, both of whom lived for a time at the Wilkins house at No. 164 West Sixty-fifth street, Manhattan, have been located in Toronto and they are expected here. It is believed they had opportunity to notice the attitude of Dr. and Mrs. Wilkins oward each other.

Dr. Wilkins spends much time writing in his cell in the county jail. He is declared to be preparing his story of the murder of his wife, with surrounding circumstances, for his attorneys.

BIG JOHN CANADIEN.

Famous Old Lacrosse Player a Picturesque Indian.

Big John Canadien is dead. The famous Caughnawaga Indian who used to run the Lachine Rapids on New Year's Day in a canoe dropped dead at his home a few weeks ago. He was 78 years of age.

John Baptiste Canadien—his real name—took his canoe through the wild rapids on five different occasions and many a log raft beside. In addition he at one time piloted the steamers through the swirling waters.

It was in 1884 that John Baptiste Canadien did his "bit" for the Empire. Lord Wolseley was conducting his second campaign against the Dervishes and bending every effort to relieve Gen. Gordon in Khartoum. Everything was on the side of the enemy—the torrid Egyptian sun, the sand, his simple needs, which gave him increased mobility, his knowledge of routes and watering places. Passage up the Nile seemed to promise the greatest success, but the cataracts offered a problem. Skilled boatmen were required, and it was with the picked Canadian voyageurs that "Big John," went overseas. Eighty-one boatmen went to Egypt and toiled under the grilling sun of the Soudan in an effort to take troops and supplies up the Nile. Though their services did not bring the campaign to a successful conclusion, both Houses of the Imperial Parliament acknowledged their services by formal resolution, and commanding officers warmly commended them. By a strange fate a man born in Montreal was to succeed where others had failed—Sir Percy Girouard, K.C.M.G., D.S.O., R.E., who built the railway across the desert which carried Sir Herbert Kitchener and his troops in triumph to Khartoum.

Later he went to Europe with the Caughnawaga lacrosse team and was presented to Queen Victoria. He returned the same summer to the little home where he was born and there he lived until the end came.

The last time he ran the rapids was in 1901, when the present King, then the Duke of Cornwallis and York, visited Canada.

The old man's home was rugged and weathered, like himself. It was built nearly one hundred years ago. Big John, as his family grew too large for the one room, which comprises the ground floor, added a floor, added a story. "But these old beams are the same." On the walls were pictures of Big John in the glory of his Indian costume; another as a lacrosse player, recalling his trip to England as a captain of a team which played before Queen Victoria, and a signed photograph, which Her Majesty gave him.

WAS JUST VISITING

"Yank's" Presence in Confederate Lines Explained.

In View of His Extremely Unconventional "Uniform" He Could Hardly Be Charged With Spying, as Gen. Gordon Quickly Saw.

In his "Reminiscences of the Civil War," General Gordon relates that while the two hostile armies were confronting each other on the Rapidan, the Confederate and the Union pickets became so very "chummy" that the commanding generals were apprehensive lest important military information might leak out.

An almost continuous exchange of tobacco for coffee was going on between "Yanks" and "Johnnies," also much exchanging of newspapers. When the river was so deep that the soldiers could not wade across, they rigged miniature boats and rafts loaded with whatever they wished to trade and sent them over as the breeze favored. The consignees on both sides scrupulously respected these small argosies, and always sent back a fair equivalent. The men not only conversed across the river, but "visited" back and forth for an hour or two at a time. The officers began to fear that they might become too friendly to fight with proper energy; and at last General Lee instructed General Gordon to put a stop to it.

Mounting his horse, the general started to ride along the river front, and almost immediately came upon a Confederate outpost, where his sudden appearance seemed to create an unusual degree of excitement and stir.

"What's going on here?" demanded the general.

"Nothing at all, sir!" cried one of the soldiers eagerly; while another attempted to explain that the confusion was owing to their haste to "present arms" to him.

General Gordon was satisfied that this was a subterfuge, but he could see nothing amiss, and had turned to ride away when he saw some tall weeds on the river bank begin to shake.

"What's in those weeds?" he asked, wheeling his horse.

"Nothing at all, sir!" cried a chorus of voices.

"Break down the weeds!"

Very reluctantly one of the men did so—and there lay a large, red-headed "Yank" in puris naturalibus, having evidently but that minute swum across the river.

"Where do you belong?" the general asked him severely.

"Over yonder, general," replied the Yankee, with a wave of his arm across the river and an inscrutable grimace.

"What are you doing here?"

"Jest a little friendly visit to the boys, general."

"Don't you know that there's a war raging in this country?"

"Yes, sir; but 'tain't ragin' today," was the quaint reply; and the ring of listening "Johnnies" grinned broadly. Something had to be done to preserve dignity and to enforce orders.

"Have you anything to say why I should not have you shot as a spy?" demanded the general sternly. "Is that your uniform?"

"Wal, general, it's the uniform my mother gave me," came from the weeds in a drawl so irresistible that the "Johnnies" shouted.

Quickly perceiving that this was a case where it was necessary to treat the matter as a joke or else to mete out extreme severity, General Gordon chose the former alternative.

"Look here," said he; "if I let you go back to your own lines this time, will you—"

It was unnecessary to finish the sentence. With a spring to his feet the "Yank" dived off the river bank; immediately his red head was seen parting the water rapidly in the direction of the other shore.—Youth's Companion.

The Bridegroom.

In a lesson on the significance of colors a Sunday school teacher used as an illustration the wearing of white by brides, a wedding, he explained, being an occasion of joy and happiness. He had previously told the class that black signified grief and mourning which accounted for the question asked by one of the little boys. "Then why?" said the little chap, "does a bridegroom always wear black?"

H. R. Guggenheimer Divorced by Actress, Is to Wed Again

Miss Gwendolyn R. Wormser To Be Married to Man Who First Wedded Miss Janet Beecher.

NEW YORK, April 4.— Mr. Harry R. Guggenheimer, thirty-nine years old, of No. 923 Fifth avenue, son of Mrs. Guggenheimer and the late Randolph Guggenheimer, obtained a license to marry Miss Gwendolyn R. Wormser, twenty-six years old, of No. 45 East Eighty-second street, daughter of the late Mr. Maurice S. Wormser, a Wall street banker, who died ten years ago.

Announcement of their approaching wedding reveals the fact that Mr. Guggenheimer had been divorced from Miss Janet Beecher, a well-known actress.

The divorce proceeding came before Justice Tompkins in Nyack, N.Y., last December when the plaintiff's attorney requested the court to confirm the report of a referee.

Miss Beecher was married to Mr. Guggenheimer July 3, 1913. Two years later they separated. He is a brother of Mr. Charles Guggenheimer of the law firm of Guggenheimer, Untermeyer and Marshall. His late father was the first president of the Borough of Manhattan.

Nearly all Teas "Look" alike to the consumer but there is a vast difference in looks, and tastes, and this is fully understood and recognized by Tea Experts, who base their market values alone upon the drawing qualities.

"SALADA"

Teas are full of rich drawing deliciousness being therefore very economical in use, as while not only pleasing to the tastes of all, they go farther in infusion.

This is being demonstrated in millions of Tea-Pots daily.

TWO MEALS PER DAY

No Murmur from Twelve Thousand on Leviathan

NEW YORK, April 3.—The largest number of persons ever carried across the Atlantic ocean on a single ship arrived here from overseas yesterday aboard the steamship Leviathan, formerly the German liner Vaterland. One of ten troopships due yesterday with more than 26,000 returning American soldiers, the Leviathan had a total of 14,416 souls aboard. Of these 12,274 were troops. In order to accommodate this unprecedented number of passengers, the troops aboard received only two meals a day, but there were no complaints.

GRAY DORT

Ask—and be Convinced

FOR three years we have been telling the motorists of Canada what we knew about the Gray Dort—we who created and built it.

Thousands were convinced—and bought Gray Dorts as fast as they became available.

Thousands were sceptical—rode in Gray Dorts and are now our enthusiastic friends.

To those who still doubt, we say—talk to a Gray Dort owner and be convinced.

Ask him about the motor—that puts at your command a smooth, quiet flow of real power—instantly. Ask him about the comfort of this generously-large light car. Ask him about equipment—about economy of tires, gasoline. And the longer he has had his Gray Dort, the more enthusiastic he will be.

The touring car is $1245; the Gray Dort Special—the car with added refinements and extra equipment, is $125 extra; there are also a coupe, and a sedan. All prices f.o.b. Chatham and are subject to change without notice.

"Wide Open" Referendum On Liquor Question Announced

People of Province Will Have An Opportunity in September of Voting on Four Different Propositions—Hon. T. W. McGarry's Prediction Verified by the Details of the Referendum as Semi-Officially Announced.

TO BE SUBMITTED IN SEPTEMBER

TORONTO, April 5. — The details of the referendum that is to be taken in regard to the liquor question in September next, are indicated to-day by members of Ontario Government. As has been foreshadowed by what has leaked out of the several conferences that the government has held on the subject there will be four alternatives on which the people of the province will have a chance to express their opinion. It was the original intention to merely ask for a vote on whether or not the Ontario Temperance Act should be repealed, but the Government has yielded to the pressure of those members who are not so firmly wedded to the principles of prohibition as Sir William Hearst, and has given, as Hon. T. W. M. Garry prophesied a short time ago, a wide open referendum. Here are the four alternatives:

1.—The repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act.

2.—The sale of light beer in sealed packages under Government control.

3.—The sale of light beer over the bar.

4.—The restricted sale of spirituous liquors generally under Government control.

While the submission of the four questions leaves room for a good deal of uncertainty about the real state of public opinion it is said that the government has found a way out, and that it is the simple expedient of requiring every elector to mark his ballot yes and no on every question. If this plan has been adopted it would record public in an effective and entirely unique way and with a certainty impossible if the elector had to make a single choice.

The reported scope of the referendum is generally as expected except that it is said there will be no reference in it to wine, though beer and wine have been linked together in all discussion of the subject.

So far as the beer is concerned it is generally understood that the proposal is to allow (if the people so vote) the sale of light beer of about two and one-half per cent. alcohol, equivalent to slightly under 5 per cent. proof spirits. This would meet the demands of the labor organizations without bringing back the stronger beer of the old days.

Another concession said to be intended for the workmen is the chance of getting this light beer sold over the bars of standard hotels.

The sale of all liquors under government control, should the verdict point that way, would involve the building up of a big organization, but it is said that the government will be ready for that eventuality. Such a system would of courseab sorb the present system of dispensing liquor through vendors.

The bill will probably be ready for the House on Tuesday. It is not likely that the polling date will be definitely fixed, that being left for proclamation.

GERMANY DOES NOT SEEM TO WANT VERY MUCH!

COBLENZ, April 5. — Information was said to be in possession of the American army officials here to-day that Foreign Minister Brockdorff-Rantzaw proposes to insist on the following principles for Germany:

A negotiated peace.

The union of Germany with Austria.

The admission of Germany to the League of Nations on a basis of equality.

The return of the German colonies, or their value deducted from the indemnities.

A referendum for Alsace Lorraine.

It was also reported that there is less opposition in Germany giving up Danzig, the Saar basin, Upper Silesia, Malmedy and North Schleswig.

LOCAL CONSTABLE BADLY MAULED IN MAKING ARREST

P. C. Boyd Victim of Assault—Indian River Residents Knocked Him Down and Jumped on His Face With Their Boots, It is Stated.

BOTH ARE IN COURT

Constable Daniel Boyd of the city police force was cowardly assaulted last night at 11.30 by two men, Daniel Gooley and his brother, Joe Gooley. Both men give their address as Indian River. A dance was being held at a residence on George street last night and the two brothers, who it is stated were the worse for liquor and not invited to the dance attempted to gain entrance. A call was sent into the police station and P. C. Boyd arrived on the scene. He saw three men on the sidewalk in front of the house one being the owner of the house and the other two the Gooley brothers. A heated argument was taking place. The constable ordered them to keep quiet and asked them where they obtained their liquor.

"None of your d— business," returned one of the men.

Fictitious names were given to the constable and they were ordered to come to the police station but they ... In the meantime things up a position behind the constable and at this juncture in the conversation dealt the policeman a blow with his fist on the back of the head. The blow knocked Boyd against the other brother. P. C. Boyd dazed by the cowardly attack fell on the pavement his head hitting the pavment. Joe Gooley, it is said by the police, then jumped on Boyd's face with both feet and had it not been for the fact that his boots were soled with Neolin the constable's face would have ben severely ut. As it is his face is terribly swollen on the left side just above the eye and also the chin.

Both men then started to run but their speed was not of the championship brand and Joe was caught by P. C. Boyd after a chase of only half a block. Dan Gooley escaped for the time being. Early this morning Patrol Sergt. Deannard and P. C. Boyd apprehended Dan in a Hunter street hotel but the prisoner denied all knowledge of the fracas. He afterwards admitted that he was the man when identified by P.C. Boyd. A charge of assaulting the police when in discharge of their duty has been laid by the police against the two brothers. The maximum penalty on this charge is two year's imprisonment without the option of a time.

Both men appeared before Magistrate Dumble in police court this morning, and three charges were preferred against them, assaulting the police, being drunk and disorderly, and having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling. On the first charge both men pleaded guilty and were fined $20 and costs each, amounting to $60.20. On the charge of being drunk and disorderly both men refused to say where they obtained the liquor and were remanded for a week. They enlisted here with the 93rd Battalion and received their discharge last February.

ITALIANS ARE SERIOUS OVER THE FIUME QUESTION

Emphasize the Fact That 28,000 Out of the City's 50,000 Inhabitants Are Italians and Threaten to Withdraw If They Do Not Gain Their Point.

"BIG FOUR" AT WORK

By Fred S. Ferguson.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, April 5.— The "Big Four" resumed its sessions to-day in a room adjoining that occupied by President Wilson in Paris "White House."

The President, who is suffering from a severe cold, is still confined to his bed by Rear Admiral Grayson's orders. Col. House represented him on the "Big Four," which held its meeting in the President's residence in the interests of economy and time. His colleagues theory was that if any points came up on which his advice was needed, he could be easily consulted.

A new resolution adopted by the "Big Four" became effective to-day. This provides that all delegates shall turn in completed subjects intended for incorporation in the peace treaty to the Control committee. Premier Clemenceau instructed the French to follow this course, which others already had informally embraced, so that the framework of the ... may be constantly under construction.

Italian agents furnished a diversion to the usual routine yesterday by scampering over Paris and making sure that everybody knew the Italian delegation would go home Monday unless they got Fiume. This fact compels the statement that the Italians were the only ones excited by the announcement It is also a fact that the peace delegates have been thoroughly impressed with the idea that Italy must have Fiume, the alternatives made ranging from the overthrow of the Orlando government to outright revolution.

It can be stated on high authority, however, that no one in a real position to speak ever told the "Big Ten," the "Big Four" or any other body of delegates that the Italians would withdraw from the conference. In the past it has been pointed out that Italy has hardly been sufficiently independent, financially and economically, to withdraw, and that such a course could scarcely be regarded as politic.

There is no doubt that the Italians regard the Fiume question very seriously. They emphasized the fact that 28,000 of the city's 50,000 inhabitants are Italians. They also refuse to negotiate in any way with the Jugo-Slavs, still regarding them as enemies.

Long Session of Board of Works Made Progress But No Bridge Decision

Session Ended After Midnight—Endeavoured to Secure a Working Basis in Their Deliberations for a Guaranteed Lump Sum Bid.

HOW THE DISCUSSION WAGED

Last night the Board of Works wrestled with the Hunter Street Bridge tenders from eight until nearly one o'clock. Every member was present, and in various expressions they showed they were possessed of the seriousness of the deliberations which they were striving to reduce to the form of a report to the Council. From that standpoint of actual concrete accomplishment the long fatiguing session wasn't much of a success; otherwise there was considerable progress in the imparting of complete information of all the tenders to the members of the Board. City Engineer Parsons had presented them with succinct abridgments of the entire thirteen tenders stripped of unessential verbiage. In short, the main details of each bid were set out in a lucid tabulation that was readily understood.

After disposing of preliminary routine business regarding trees and lights and other banalities, Ald. Phelan broke into the bridge question, and for a time the members talked all around it. They were verbally sparring for an opening, and gradually they turned hopefully to the consideration of Ald. McIntyre's modest proposal that the committee take a show of hands as to whether they favoured the cost plus bids or those based on the bulk or lump sum basis.

This suggestion diverted the discussion to the effect upon the remaining bids if the committee decided to deal with the lump sum tenders only. Ald. McIntyre said that it was only a tentative choice, and would not be fixed irrevocably by a resolution.

Ald. Hamilton favoured this idea, remarking that the Board had to uncover something definite to work on.

Ald. McIntyre—I've been talking to a lot of men and they all think we would be foolish to go into this thing without knowing where we're at. If we decide on the lump sum price the contractor will take all the risk, but the other way, the cost plus, the city takes all the risk.

Making Headway.

The Board showed its preference for the lump sum tenders, and having made that step they fell in with Ald. Turner's recommendation that the high bids and others, that for valid reasons were inadmissable, be eliminated.

Another Problem.

Six or seven tenders were discarded by this stroke; then the Board began trimming the plans of the bridge to fit the appropriation to the estimated or guaranteed cost. They eventually agreed to lop off the sidewalks on the loose fill, the granite facing and masonry, and the terra cotta panels, and also to shorten the earth approaches, and to reduce the width by nine feet. Even the four lamp posts were tumbled off the parapet at one stage, but somebody pleaded for this wee small voice of art. The Board felt satisfied that with these curtailments the contractors should be prepared to cut down their prices from $30,000 to $50,000; something like that hope was in their mind.

Ald. Murray remonstrated that there would soon be nothing left of the bridge if the Board continued its paring.

The next step was to call in the five or six contractors and put it up to them whether they would quote their cost plus bids as lump sum tenders. Mr. Ed. Conroy alone of those heard would guarantee his price. Others replied that the labour market was too uncertain for them to take the chance upon the possible changes in a period of two years. John O'Toole, of Ottawa, was called by telephone, the connection being put through and the conversation concluded in less time than it took some of the contractors to walk from the Empress to the City Hall. He refused to change his bid. The Russell & Townsend Company good humouredly declared that they could not entertain the Board's suggestion. Concrete Constructors, Limited, likewise rejected the idea, but there were several other companies whose tenders remained on Ald. Turner's list, whose representatives had left the city.

That was the stage of the night's work when the reporters left, and afterwards it was learned that the meeting had been inconclusive, but perhaps more fruitful than appeared on the surface. It is hardly likely that a report will be presented to the Council at Monday night's regular meeting with any definite recommendation, and without some determined, confident action the alternative propositions may reappear after a week's silence, during which they have probably been biding their time for an opportune entry.

CANADA OPENS HER PURSE FOR BENEFIT OF UNITED STATES

Spent Nearly $58,000,000 in January Alone for American Goods —British Dominions Are Among Uncle Sam's Best Customers.

OVER BILLION A YEAR

WASHINGTON, April 5. — British colonies are helping to keep America among the leading nations in the world race for foreign trade.

Spending more than one billion dollars a year on goods made in America, according to the United States Commerce Department reports, the British dependencies are paying into the pockets of American concerns nearly one-sixth of $20,000,000 that is flowing in daily to the United States from foreign customers.

Trade experts do not couple these figures however with statements made in the British House of Commons by T. P. O'Connor that strong anti-British feeling is developing in the dominions. American experts believe it is normal trade development and will be continued.

It required more than $3,000,000 daily during January to satisfy the demands of the British Dominions for American goods. A larger amount was paid American merchants by the British colonies in February.

Canada spread her purse wide open in January to spend nearly $58,000,000 across the border. Of this more than $5,000,000 was in iron and steel products, and $3,000,000 in raw cotton.

Some other British possessions and their average monthly purchases are; East Indies, $4,300,000; West Indies, $2,000,000; Africa, $6,700,000; Newfoundland and Labrador, $287,000; ... Guiana, $200,000; Orfordsh, ... Egypt, $750,000.

"Flo-Flo" To-night At the Grand

There Will Be a Record Crowd to See This Musical Pageant.

John Cort's hilarious, musical pageant of beauty, wit, and fashion, entitled "Flo Flo," which delighted smart New York at the Cort Theatre all last season, will be the offering at The Grand to-night.

The "Perfect 36" chorus of the show which Broadway has dubbed Mr. Cort's "war-bride" production, is credited with being the only comedy chorus ever seen on a New York stage. Its eccentric dancing never fails to please, and is an effective background for the work of a star cast.

"Flo Flo," a pulchritudinous though vampirish corset model, gives the show its title. A dash of international match-making is contributed by a scheming mother, a fake count and an heiress. Silvio Hein has given a score in his happiest vein.

The notable cast includes: Louise Kelly, Jere Delaney, Carl L. George, William Cummings, Rose Southern, Mildred Beverly, Agustus Buell, Rhea Norton, William Burton Burns, Edward Lynn and the "Perfect 36" chorus, added to which is an augmented orchestra.

DOMINION Express Money Orders are on sale in five thousand offices throughout Canada.

Prompt Suppressive Measures in Germany

By Frank J. Taylor.)

BERLIN, April 4.—Prompt, suppres... have so far prevented any violence in connection with the strikes here.

The renowned Augusta regiment was surprised and disarmed by government troops yesterday afternoon. It was reported the Augustans planned to join the Spartacans. They offered resistance.

The general strike continues and reports have been received of occasional clashes between workers and soldiers. Several persons were killed or injured in riots at Easlingen.

HOPES FOR GRANT

Ald. McIntyre Informed That Hydro Commission Might Contribute To Bridge.

Ald. McIntyre told the Board of Works last night that he had been assured on good authority that the city could obtain a grant from the Hydro Electric Commission toward the cost of the Hunter street bridge. Mayor Duncan apparently doubted the intimation, saying that the Council had asked Sir Adam Beck for financial assistance in this work, but had been refused.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, APRIL 5TH, 1919.

THE BOARD OF TRADE

"What good has the Board of Trade ever done Peterboro?" was the query, propounded by a somewhat pessimistic citizen to the Examiner yesterday. The question carried with it the implication that the Board had never done anything for Peterboro and the belief that it never would.

"What have you ever done for the Board of Trade?" was the Examiner's way of answering, and the citizen was forced to admit that he had never been a member of the Board and had never tried to assist in its work in any manner whatever.

The two questions, considered together furnish a reason why the Board of Trade in the past has not been able to accomplish everything that its officers have set out to do. They have found themselves up against the apparently unsurmountable wall of indifference on the part of the majority of citizens. People did not interest themselves in the activities of the Board. Bound up in their own selfish interests, blind to their responsibility as citizens to do what they could to advance the interests of Peterboro, unsympathetic to anything that did not belong to their own narrow circles, they have allowed the work of the Board to be carried on by a few public-spirited residents. No wonder the Board of Trade has not been able to carry out all that its leaders have from time to time planned. The wonder is that the Board was able to survive, and to pass through the period of indifference and into its present healthy condition.

Fortunately the prospects before the organization are such as to indicate a wonderful increase in popular interest. People have begun to realize the possibilities that lie before a well-organized Board of Trade and to realize also that they have a responsibility in connection with its work. The attendance of the annual meeting was the largest in the Board's history, the membership is growing steadily, headquarters have been opened and the Board is a live going concern that has every prospect of success.

THE W.C.T.U. BOOMERANG

The interference by returned soldiers with the W.C.T.U.'s tag day in Toronto yesterday which finally resulted in the police advising the collectors to retire from the streets is to be regretted, but hardly to be wondered at. It is the direct result of the effort made by some of the leaders of the Women's Christian Temperance Union last year to prevent the sending of cigarettes and tobacco to Canada's troops overseas. The attempt to shut off Tommy's supply of smokes was an injudicious and foolish action that was bitterly resented by the soldiers and by all those at home who understood the solace that the boys over there found in tobacco.

Yesterday's campaign was to assist in enlarging Willard Hall, the W.C.T.U. hostelry in Toronto which provides comfortable quarters for many working girls. It was a splendid cause and one that would under other circumstances have commended itself to and been supported by the returned soldiers. The recollection of the desire on the part of some of the heads of the W.C.T.U. to do away with the sending of tobacco overseas, however, was still fresh in the minds of the men who would have suffered had the attempt succeeded and the merit of the cause for which the tag day was being held was lost sight of. Thus the anti-tobacco agitation of last year proved a boomerang that practically ruined the campaign for the opposition was so strong that the collectors had to be called in and not a tag was sold after 1 o'clock. It was an unfortunate ending to an effort that should have been a success, but without condoning the action of the men whose interference prevented the completion of the drive, it may be pointed out the W.C.T.U. does not need to go outside of its own membership to find those who were chiefly responsible for the fiasco of yesterday.

THE MOTOR SHOW

All preparations have been completed for Peterboro's big Motor Show in the Armouries next week and friends of the Peterboro Health Association for whose benefit the affair will be held, will be glad to learn that there is every prospect of success. The work of the Health Association will benefit according to the profits that are realized at the Motor Show and for that reason a splendid patronage should be given the big event. No organization in Peterboro deserves more support from the citizens than the Health Association, which has been a power for good in the community from the day of its inception. Composed as it is of public-spirited citizens, whose only aim has been to improve the health condition of the city and to assist the unfortunate residents who are financially unable to secure for themselves proper care and nourishment when they are ill the Association has faithfully carried out the aims and objects for which it was founded. It has not been given the financial support that the merit of its work has deserved which makes it all the more desirable that the coming Motor Show should be enthusiastically patronized. In other years the proceeds of the show have been devoted to the work of the Red Cross and a substantial sum has been raised on each occasion. This year the attendance and the proceds should be larger than ever.

AN INJUSTICE

One of the matters that is come up for discussion at the next meeting of the Peterboro Branch of the Great War Veterans Association is a resolution protesting against the injustice of the Government's policy in regards to the transportation back to Canada of the wives and dependents of Canadian soldiers. The system in vogue now, is that these dependents are being brought home at the country's expense, while in the case of those who have paid their own transportation since the armistice was signed will be given a refund. With this course as far as it goes there is no complaint but the injustice of the system lies in the fact, that the Canadian women and children, who came home before November 11th, of last year, are according to the Government's decision not entitled to this refund. The Veterans will press to have the provision made retroactive The women who returned to Canada when the food scarcity became felt in the old country and when the Canadian authorities urged the dependents of Canada's soldiers to relieve the situation by going home, should surely not be penalized for their compliance with the request especially in face of the fact that the other Canadian women, who refused to pay any attention to the warning of the authorities and, regardless of the added strained their presence in England placed on the food resources, remained in the old land until after the armistice was signed, have been repatriated at the expense of the people of Canada.

THE NATIONAL ANTHEM.

Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer has introduced a bill into the Legislature that makes the playing of the National Anthem compulsory at the close of every theatre performance. The measure does not go far enough: it should include penalties for those who do not pay proper respect to the Anthem, when it is being played. Too often, "God Save the King" is a signal for a rush to get out of the theatre, or to put on overcoats. Seldom do we see an audience stand respectfully at attention until the last strains of the Anthem have been played. It is true that during the war there was a vast improvement in the attitude of Peterboro assemblages towards "God Save the King," but already our people seem to be getting back to their old ways and the commencement of the National Anthem is regarded only as signifying that the performance is over. Mr. McGarry's bill might have been amplified to make it compulsory for audiences to rise to their feet and to stand quietly in their places until the end of the national air and to designate the failure to do as disorderly conduct carrying with it the danger of a fine. It would appear as if this is perhaps the only way that respect for "God Save the King" can be instilled into the minds of some of the people who visit our theatres.

Trap To Intercept Yarn Thrown Into Bonner-Worth Sewer

Ald. Phelan and City Engineer Parsons were instructed by the Board of Works last night, to interview the management of the Bonner-Worth company with respect to the installing of a special intercepting sewer trap in connection to their factory to prevent the further blocking of the sewer by waste yarn. Mr. Parsons stated that Street Commissioner Evans had found that certain obstructions in the sewers in the west end were caused by this yarn which some employees persisted in throwing into the sewer, despite the company's requests and warnings to discontinue the practice. Ald. Phelan stated that when this matter had been called to his attention he asked the Engineer to report on it, and Mr. Parsons recommended a special trap in the factory's connection.

Trees To Be Removed

Permission for the removal of trees was granted as follows: Walter Scott, Charlotte street, four trees; Payne, 213 Carlisle avenue, three trees; James Haggart, one tree on north side of Lansdowne street, west of Lock street.

The Bell Telephone Company's request for permission to erect poles on King street west; Patterson street; Thompson avenue; Park street, etc, a total of ten poles, was granted.

City Engineer Parsons explained that the company was removing its wires from electric light poles.

Red Cross Relief Train Leaves Warsaw

Longest Train Ever Sent Out of Warsaw Leaves for "Bug Region"—the Equipment.

Canadian Press:

WARSAW, April 5.—A train consisting of sixty cars, the longest ever sent out of Warsaw, left to-day with two million dollars worth of relief supplies. Aboard the train were fifty physicians and a number of nurses and sanitary workers from the Red Cross societies, destined for a vast territory east of the River Bug, where there is great suffering and destitution, due to hunger and the prevalence of typhus.

The feature of the train's equipment is 400 miles of telephone wire with which to establish constant communication with headquarters at Warsaw and with other units.

The train also carries six field kitchens, a disinfecting plant and apparatus for the destruction of vermin.

Yeotes Brothers' License Approved By Fire Committee

"No action" was the Finance Committee's disposition last night of a resolution from the Trades and Labor Council urging that Yeotes Bros. be refused a renewal of their pool license.

"I always thought they ran a good shop," remarked Ald. Phelan.

"They're very decent little chaps," added Ald. Hamilton.

"I never saw anything wrong with them," said Ald. Morrison.

Ald. Phelan moved, seconded by Ald. Hamilton that no action be taken. Carried.

For Sick Children

Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald. Morrison, that the $25 grant for the Sick Children's Hospital, as provided in the estimates, be paid. Carried.

Ald. Taylor, chairman, reported that the city's credit with the Bank of Toronto had been secured at the same amount as last year.

Engineer's Fee

Mr. Frank Barber's account for $3,000, certified by Ald. Phelan, was passed. It is the balance of his total fee of $4,000 for the plans and specifications of the Hunter Street Bridge.

Two accounts rendered by Dr. Wood for attending persons to whom he evidently was under the impression he was called by the police were returned by the Committee for deliverance to the one time patients.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eye two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very reliable remedy. Its combined ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in the home."

Conditions in Peterboro Show An Improvement

Prospects for placing men in the factories are looking brighter at the Labour Bureau this week and industrial conditions are beginning to look up according to reports brought to the officials in charge of the local branch. In every case even when the factory is not as yet running on full time the manfacturers are co-operating with the Bureau in the work of placing any applicants and notify the officials directly there is any prospect of a vacancy. In every case of vacancies the preference is given to a returned man.

The Figures

From March 29th to April 3rd of fifty-three applications for work twenty were placed. Twenty-seven vacancies were reported. In the returned soldiers department from March 28th to April 4th of thirty-four applications twenty-one men were placed. In addition to this eight applied for vocational training and six of these applications have already been filled. "The returned men are beginning to realize the oportunity offered in the Vocational training," Captain Morrison said to-day.

One Woman.

One woman only applied for work at the Bureau this week.

Trouble Over a Partnership

The case of George G. Perrin vs. Thos. W. Lumley before His Honor Judge Huycke as Special Referee of the Supreme Court of Ontario commenced yesterday at the Court House. The plaintiff sues for a settlement of a butcher and grocer business carried on as in partnership in 1913 and 1914. The defendant alleges secret profits made by the plaintiff in the droving business. Mr. Joseph Wearing is acting for the plaintiff and Mr. G. N. Gordon for the defendant.

Change in the Grocery Market

MARKET IS SETTLING DOWN TO A BETTER POSITION

"Canadian Grocer" says the grocery market generally are settling down to a much better position. Business is generally reported as exceptionally good, a return indeed to the general conditions that prevailed before the coming of peace introduced some uncertainty into trading conditions. The buying movement is steady, retailers evidently having pretty well cleaned up their accumulations and coming on the market again to replace their stocks as required. This condition of affairs is producing a business situation brighter than it has been for some months past.

The changes in the Toronto market this week are more noticeable in the produce section than in the general grocery markets; butter still remains very high and shows no indication of any declines. Stocks are light and export buying heavy. There has been a surprising decline in the export in eggs during the week, but despite that fact the prices have advanced, local demand and the movement into storage being sufficient to account for all supplies available.

BOLSHEVIK ATTACK IN NORTH RUSSIA.

LONDON, April 4.—The Bolsheviki delivered an attack on the Archangel front without artillery preparation during the last 48 hours, but were beaten off with a fair amount of losses.

The Allied losses were slight. The attack occurred at Bolshoia Opera.

Keep the Bowels Regular and You Won't Be Sick

If the bowels do not move regularly they will sooner or later become constipated, and constipation is productive of more ill-health than almost any other trouble.

The sole cause of constipation is an inactive liver, and unless the liver is kept active, you may be sure that headaches, piles, heartburn, biliousness, jaundice, floating specks before the eyes, and many other troubles will follow the wrong action of this one of the most important organs of the body.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will regulate the bowels so that you will have a free and easy motion every day, and one pill a night for thirty days will cure the worst cases of constipation.

They do this by acting directly on the liver and making the bile pass through the bowels instead of allowing it to get into the blood, thus causing many stomach and bowel troubles.

Mrs. Jos. Labrec, Louise Apts., Calgary, Alta., writes:—"I have been troubled with constipation for the last two years. I have tried numerous treatments, but have never been relieved by anything until I used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills which are helping me wonderfully."

We do not claim that Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are a "cure-all," but we do claim that there is nothing better for a sluggish liver.

TO TRY WOMAN ACCUSED OF BEING COMMON SCOLD

NEW YORK, April 5.—Mrs. Hildegard S. Fuller, of Millburn township, N.J., will have to stand trial as a "common scold." Judge William P. Martin, in the Court of Common Pleas in Newark, denied the motion of Frank M. McDermit to have the indictment against the woman quashed. A date for trial will be set next Monday by the court.

In denying the motion the Court referred to the case of a woman indicted in Camden county for a similar offence. The case was that of the State vs. Baker. The Court of Errors and Appeals reversed the conviction found in the lower court, but upheld the indictment and ordered a new trial, because of errors in the Judge's charge.

Peterboro Has Large Amount of Exemptions

A Comparison Prepared by Assessment Commissioner Forman.

According to a comparison of assessment of twenty-four cities in the province covering the year 1918, Peterborough has nearly three million dollars worth of exemptions. The comparison was prepared by Assessment Commissioner Forman, of Toronto. The figures for Peterborough for the past year follow:

Total assessment, $13,005,806, real property exempt by statute $2,448,345, other exemptions $2,782,350, rate of taxation in mills 36.40, population 20,904, area of city in acres 2,821.

The tax rate for the present year is 31 mills.

City Paid Hospital Account for Boy

When the city plays the Good Samaritan to some of its unfortunate citizens, paying the hospital accounts of indigents, providing for the special instruction of boys sent to homes of correction and dispensing food and fuel to the poor, the public rarely learns of the benefactions it indirectly performs. Last night at the Board of Works meeting, Mayor Duncan conveyed the thanks of a ratepayer whose young son underwent treatment recently at the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, for a disease of the leg. The bill was paid by the city, for six week fors more, and the father told the Mayor that the boy had returned home greatly improved and benefitted. Because of other illness in the family and straitened circumstances, the father was unable to provide the special care this boy received. It is only one of occassional cases the Councils eleemosynary aid reaches with good results, and which for obvious reasons are not made public.

Why Spring Brings Out Freckles and Eruptions

The sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines at this season is attributed by scientists to the "actinic ray," which is unusually active during the spring months. Where the skin is so affected by this influence, if one will procure an ounce of common mercolized wax at any drug store, apply a little of it before retiring, like cold cream, she can easily overcome the trouble. When the wax is washed off next morning, minute flaky skin particles come with it. The entire outer cuticle is removed in this way in a week or two, with all its defects.

No bleach could so effectually remove freckles or blemishes. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking. No pain or inconvenience accompanies this simple treatment.

Corns Are Like Knots.

Year by year they grow harder, and incidentally more painful. Why suffer when you can be cured for 25c spent in Putnam's Corn Extractor? Fifty years in use, and guaranteed to cure. Use Putnam's Extractor; 25c at all dealers.

WHAT CAUSES PYORRHEA

(Contributed By Request)

So much is being said these days, about the diseases of the body arising directly or indirectly from Pyorrhea, that many people are becoming much concerned about the disease, its prevention and cures. In this article we propose to deal only with the cause.

Pyorrhea is an inflamation of the gum tissue surrounding the teeth, which results in the absorbtion of that tissue, as well as the soft bony tissue which holds the teeth firmly in the jaw. The teeth become loosened and are very sensitive to change of temperature, become sore to bite upon, are bathed in pus, and either drop out themselves or have to be extracted by the dentist. When the teeth are removed the disease ceases.

Th first indication of Pyorrhea is a slight inflamation around the gum line of the tooth. This is caused in most cases by a deposit of tartar, which comes from saliva, and adheres to the teeth, particle by particle, and whose outer surface under the micriscope is seen to be very rough and irregular. There is also a deposit from the blood called serumal deposit that is still more irritating and adheres to the tooth usually a little farther up under the free margin of the gum. Then there is a condition by which the gums seem to recede without any apparent inflamation, just a creeping back gradually, exposing the roots of the teeth.

Without going into technical explanations as to why these deposits are left on the teeth, and which cause, by the way, is yet in a very unsettled state even among the profession, suffice it to say that the greatest cause is neglect on the part of the patient. The paient fails to use the tooth brush with sufficient vigor and in most cases in a very hurried manner. The Japanese, who are said to have the finest teeth of any race, spend at least ten minutes at each brushing. If the average person will time himself, he will be surprised to find just how long five minutes with a tooth brush really is. The gums should always be brushed toward the teeth giving the brush a rolling motion, the use of a good tooth paste is desirable and a thorough examination at least every six months by a dentist. The vast majority of dentists have much better success in preventing Pyorrhea than in curing it.

New Board of Trade Rooms Formally Opened This Week

Layout of New Quarters Adaptable for Any Public Gathering—Available for Meetings.

The new Board of Trade rooms this week, headquarters for meetings of any societies or organizations interested in the advancement of the city, have been permanently established and will probably take the place of the Council Chamber which had been formerly borrowed for such meetings. Located as they are in the centre of the city, at the corner of Simcoe and George Streets, in the Bradburn Building, the rooms are ideally situated and are within a few seconds' walk of all the business section of the city.

The lay out of the rooms makes them particularly adaptable for any public gathering. At the entrance information as to any of the officers, or any business of the Board, may be obtained from officials in charge, who are on the job from nine until five every day. Off this room to the right a splendidly furnished committee-room has been furnished along up-to-date lines for the holding of any committee meetings. Mr. Ryerson Ritchie, a voluntary worker in the interests of the Board, is at present established in a comfortable office finished like the rest of the suite in buff coloured woodwork and wall paper.

Public Meetings.

The Council room, which will be used for the public meetings, is a spacious one, thirty-five by twenty-five feet in dimensions, and will, when finished, have one long board table in the centre and comfortable arm-chairs. The room will comfortably accommodate one-hundred and fifty people, or at a pinch, a large number.

Substantial Furnishing.

The aim of the furnishing committee to have the rooms comfortably attractive and up-to-date has been accomplished in every room, and all present a most substantial appearance which could not fail to establish a feeling of confidence in the Board in the mind of any visitor. While there is no evidence of extravagance, the handsome quartered oak and mahogany desks present an air of stability, while the artistic side has not been neglected in the choice of the rugs and pictures. The pictures in the Council room are very handsome, while a large and valuable Union Jack gives the desired patriotic finish.

Open for Meetings.

The officers of the Board of Trade have announced that any public meeting may be held in their rooms on application to the secretary.

Vaudeville Pictures at the Grand Monday, Tuesday & Wednesday

In order to meet the public demand for a little better class of vaudeville and pictures, the first half of every week will be devoted to three or more high-class vaudeville acts and first run feature pictures. The vaudeville acts for Monday will come direct from Shea's Theatre in Buffalo and Toronto, headed by the famous Gabby Bros. and Clark, talkative manipulators of hats and clubs; Archer and Carr in a comedy skit, entitled, "Love Me, Love My Dog," and Marlo and Duffy, clever comedy artists on the horizontal bar.

The feature picture will be Geraldine Farrar in "Shadows," a drama of eastern days and Alaskan nights. Also Fatty Arbuckle, in "Fatty's Indian Sweetheart," one of the best Arbuckle comedies, and the Grand Screen Magazine, "The World Before Your Eyes."

Seats can be reserved in advance for the evening performances or by telephone, which will be held until 7.30 evening of performance.

To those who find it an inconvenience to attend the evening performances there will be a matinee daily at 2.30. Avoid the crowds. Attend the matinees if possible.

Butter May Go to One Dollar a Pound in Peterboro

New Zealand Butter Brought 55c in This City—"Why is Oleo So High?" Say Women Who Have to Use Substitutes—Local Housekeepers Threaten to Boycott.

While the farmers' wives promised the urbanites at the market some six weeks ago that their high prices for butter would certainly come down in the middle of March, as yet the prices continue to be beyond the reach of many who have to resort to the use of substitutes. The city dealers say they cannot do anything to combat the high prices and to-day asked as high as 65c a pound.

"We are getting our creamery from Walkerton," a Peterboro grocer stated, "and we are paying 62 cents wholesale with the express in addition. Butter, both creamery and dairy, is scarce."

So irate are the city people at the continued high prices asked that the women hope to work through the organizations in securing a boycott of butter in the hopes of bringing the prices into something like normal channels.

IN OTHER CITIES.

A Collingwood grocer is selling creamery at 65c a pound, and this butter comes from Toronto. How is it that a man in a town a hundred miles away from Toronto, though he did pay a little less than he perhaps would to-day, can sell Toronto butter at that price, after transportation charges have been paid, when local prices go as high as 75c.

Dairy, scarce at Collingwood, as elsewhere, is selling at 60c a pound.

Butter at Hamilton, only 40 miles from Toronto, is selling at from 60c to 65c. It is anticipated the price will go up to 70c. The shortage because of heavy exports, is being felt there as well as at other points in Ontario.

The lowest wholesale price at Hamilton to-day is 62c. The creameries, one Hamilton dealer declared, were all solid in advancing the price.

At Woodstock, which is in the heart of a dairy country, creamery butter is selling at 64c retail to-day, though on Saturday it was on the market a 58c. There is a scarcity there also. Incidentally absolutely fresh eggs are to be had there at 38c and 40c a dozen.

In Whitby.

"I have some dairy butter coming in for which I will have to charge 60c. It cost me 56c," said a Whitby grocer. "Creamery is 65c retail and 61¾c wholesale. His dairy butter comes from Uxbridge, while the creamery is obtained from the big Toronto abattoirs.

"Their representatives come in every week," he added.

It is learned that a thousand pounds of New Zealand butter came into Toronto two weeks ago. This the wholesalers bought at 55c a pound. We do not know whether or not this is now being disguised as 70c butter.

That there is little hope of relief in sight is seen in the following despatch received from Ottawa:

Foresee Raise.

Ottawa, April 3. — The possibility of butter going to almost a dollar a pound is foreseen in some exporting circles, and over the price which already obtains much unrest is noted. There are many inquiries as to the underlying causes.

J. A. Ruddick, Dairy Commissioner, said that there is only two weeks' supply in storage in the country at present. The embargoes on trade, and the restrictions on shipping being off, it is an easy matter to ship it, and the demand is abnormal. Not only is Great Britain after Canadian butter, but also Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland. They quote very high prices. In these countries shortage of feed reduces their butter production, while the oils from which oleo is made cannot readily be had, so they are not making that substitute. The result is that the earth is being scoured for butter and a lot of what was in storage in Canada is going forward. "People don't realize," said Prof. Ruddick, "that the world's market and not local conditions governs the price. If we were producing ten times as much butter as we are now this governing factor would not be changed."

It looks as if butter substitutes would have to be looked to if our butter is continued to be rushed over seas.

But women who lead the campaign for oleo are now saying: "If we have to pay 40c and upword for oleo we think the government should investigate why London sells it now at 20c. If the British government can fix retail prices why can not ours"

Miss Gilespie of the Robert Fair Co., Ltd., has just returned from attending the wholesale millinery markets and resumed her duties in the millinery department to-day.

Mr. A. Collins of Mount Forest, is in the city visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Collins, McDonnel street.

Mrs. Clare Winslow, Ida, is in the city, visiting Miss Calcutt, East City.

"MICKEY"

One of the main charming features in "Mickey" to be shown at The Grand Opera House on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with a matinee daily, is a pet squirrel who will go straight to the hearts of all the children. And "children" serves as a good alibi for Ma and Pa, for most of these things that are "for children" are like the top railroad which little Johnny gets for Christmas and never gets a chance to play with because his father has it all day.

The squirrel does a comedy scene with a pet bulldog that is delightfully natural. Mickey's bull terrier makes one dive for the squirrel and Brer Squirrel stands not on the order of his going. He beats it for dear life. Mickey wears boys' clothes during the first part of the play, and the squirrel sprints up her trouser leg.

The hero tries to save the lady from the squirming squirrel, and his gallant efforts look very peculiar to Mickey's foster father, who hostens up bent on murder and sudden death. And then he sees the squirrel and joins the rescue party.

And, by the way, Mickey ought to get the Iron Cross for her courage. Pshaw! Any girl might lead any army like Jeanne d'Arc, or just save children in burning houses, or jump off cliffs, or any little thing like that. But to let a rat or a squirrel run up your clothes! Oooooo! If there was a call for volunteers to save the country by letting rats up up dresses, the only answer would be a yell fading away in the distance.

It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Y.M.C.A. Circus Splendid Success

Clever Gymnastic Work was Demonstrated by the Various Classes.

The Y. M. C. A. Circus was repeated in the Grand Opera House last night, and was a complete success. The house was crowded and every minute of the performance was enjoyed to the utmost.

The ukelele was a special feature and demonstrated the fact that not all specialists in this line come from Hawaii

The gymnastic work of the different classes was heartily applauded and the stunts of Tom and Russell Pogue on the high bars were wonderful.

The Orchestra.

Took Severe Cold ON HIS LUNGS

COUGHED PHLEGM and BLOOD.

On the first appearance of a cough or cold, do not neglect it, but get rid of it at once before it has a chance to grow worse, and gets settled on the lungs, causing bronchitis, pneumonia and other serious lung troubles.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will cure the cough or cold on its first inception and perhaps save you years of suffering.

Mr. G. F. Stratychuk, Canora, Sask., writes: "Last winter I took a most severe cold on my lungs and was coughing up phlegm and blood most of the time. I had the cough for over two months, and took a great deal of different medicines, but found no relief from them. At last a friend advised me to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I did, and it gave me great relief in a very short time, and to-day I am enjoying good health again."

The marvellous results that Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has achieved in its cures of coughs and colds has caused many so-called "pine" preparations to be put on the market, which do not contain any pine whatever. See that you get the genuine when you ask for it.

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE LIGHT FOUR

Seating Capacity—The roomiest 5-passenger car of its light weight and wheel base on the market.

Motor—Four Cylinders, cast en bloc, 3½ x 5 inches with refined manifold intake and "hot spot." Very economical in the use of gasoline.

Lubrication—Splash and positive distribution.

Cooling System—Centrifugal force pump far better than the Syphon system used in the average Light Four.

Electric System—Two-unit Studebaker-Wagner—the same as that used on the high-priced cars.

Ignition System—Generator-Storage with Remy coil and distributor. Ignition switch locked with Yale lock.

Electric Lights—Large headlights with diffusing lenses, two degrees of dimming; head-lamps mounted on the fenders, speedometer light and tail light controlled by switches on dash.

Transmission—Intermediate, separate unit—same construction as that standardized by Military use.

Rear Axle—Improved semi-floating, spiral bevel gear drive, full Timken bearing equipment.

Springs—Extra long semi-elliptic. Rear springs 50½ inches x 2—very few cars of this wheel base have this length of spring.

Drive—Hotchkiss through rear springs.

Tires—32 x 3½; Safety Tread on rear.

Fenders—Pressed steel, designed for this model.

Brakes—Extra large 14-inch brake drums.

Upholstery—Genuine leather, French plaited.

Top—Leatherized one-man type. Curtains open with doors.

Equipment—Complete and high grade.

Color—Dark Studebaker Blue.

Famous Banker Now A Bookkeeper

Famous Hungarian Financier Offers His Service to the Government.

Canadian Press:

BUDAPEST, April 5 — Simon Strauss, a former director-General of the great Magyar Bank, and one of the best known financiers of Hungary, has offered his services to the new Government and has been accepted as a book-keeper. He is now working in a bank under the supervision of a communist.

Strauss began his banking career in a humble way and worked his way upward to the position of director-general by unremitting zeal.

He was, perhaps, the most popular man in Hungary, being always interested in charity and doing much for the poor.

Murder of Shepherd Boy In Cuba is Attributed to the Practices of Witch Doctors

Cities and Countryside Shocked by Crime Perpetrated by Sect That Believes the Human Heart is a Cure for All Bodily Ills.

HAVANA, Cuba, April 5.—All Cuba is shocked by the murder of a little boy shepherd of the Agramonte district, whose heart was removed, in the general opinion of the authorities, by "witch doctors," who hold the belief that meat of the human heart is a cure-all. Cuban mothers are guarding their children with extreme vigilance. The whole countryside is alarmed and residents of cities appalled, shocked by reports of the outrage.

Marcello Lopez, nine years of age, was a shepherd on the estate Lengua de Pajaros, "Language of the Birds." A few days ago his father, Juan Lopez, reported that the boy was missing. His sheep had scattered and strayed.

Neighbours joined in a search for the boy, which lasted through the night and morning.

Then his body was found concealed in the weeds beneath a canopy of green brush. The body was mutilated to an extent that evidenced an attack more violent than necessary to kill. A physician was summoned from a distant community. He performed a thorough autopsy. He found the heart missing. It had been torn out through a crude incision.

Existence of a cult of "witch doctors" who believe the human heart possesses power to heal all ills of the body has been reported in Cuba for a long time, but was discredited by many. The "witch doctors" thrive on the ignorant and superstitious labourers.

Here is a translation of a report of the tragedy in a Cuban newspaper:

"As soon as the character of the wounds was known it became evident to them (the searchers) that the poor little shepherd had been the victim of the witches, of those who with the heart of a child make their remedies, believing them the panacea for the most unconquerable infirmities, for misfortunes most cruel and those that appear most incurable.

"To whom, then, but to the witches can be attributed this crime? Because of this the whole community of Avramonte has clamoured since yesterday to punish the murderer or murderers. For this all the country is rising a new cry of horror and of fury against this new exploit of the satanic and stupid sect of the witches."

Situation is Worse

Conditions in Russia Not Favourable to the Allies.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, April 5.—The situation in Northern Russia has recently become distinctly worse from an Allied viewpoint, mainly owing to a shortage of food, according to despatches.

It is not feared that military reasons will compel the Allies to evacuate Odessa, but there is a possibility, it is said, that the city will become so short of food that it will be unable to support an occupying force.

Important developments on the Murmansk front in Northern Russia may be expected in a few days owing to a threatened defection of Finnish troops, according to the Mail. It is said that it was to meet this danger that American detachments were sent on two cruisers, which will reach Murmansk early next week.

"God Save the King" End Each Performance

TORONTO, April 5.—Compulsory playing of the National Anthem at the close of every theatre performance, and the appointment of a matron to supervise the conduct of children and all adults towards children, are provisions contained in a bill introduced in the Legislature yesterday afternoon, by Hon. T. McGarry The bill also authorizes the Provincial Treasurer to appoint temporary members to the Ontario Board of Motion Picture Censors, and gives municipal council power to prohibit 200 feet of a church. The bill received first reading.

"It is always better to refuse the pleading voice of th emember for North Bruce," said Premier Hearst. When William McDonald asked for permission to introduce a bill amending the Municipal Act. The time limit for the introduction of such bills has expired, and the consent of the House is now necessary before they can be accepted. The House gave consent.

Standard Time In County Clerk's Office

The clock in County Clerk Elliott's office remains true to farmers or standard time. It scorns to save daylight, and when members of the County Council assembled this morning they found their timepieces synchronizing with at least one city clock. In a sense it was a breath of the countryside, and evidently it is the intention of the county officials, at least the Clerk, to adhere to the time and the spirit of the farmers. Reeves and deputies of the southern townships, together with the village reeves, held a special good roads meeting, and this afternoon had an engagement with the Board of Works to pursue the same question in its possible interest to the city. The County Clerk's clock ignored last year's daylight saving. It followed "God's time and not Mayor Duncan's," as some of the farmers have derided the city idea.

THREE DIE IN FALL WHEN SHIPYARD DERRICK SNAPS

NEW YORK April 5.—Two workmen were instantly killed and a third died as the result of an accident in the yards of the Standard Shipbuilding Corporation at Shooters Island, Richmond Borough, yesterday.

The dead are Edward Fox, twenty-two years old, of No. 47 Union avenue, Mariners Harbor; Arthur Barvey, thirty-eight years old, of No. 1,117 Fulton avenue, the Bronx, and George Masterson, twenty-two years old, of No. 25 Spruce street, Yonkers N.Y.

The three men were riding on the arm of a giant crane, when a stiff knee of the big derrick snapped as the crane was directly over the hatch of a steamship at one of the company's piers.

Garvey and Fox were thrown forty feet into the hold and were dead when removed. Masterson, in falling, struck against the side of the hatch, suffering fractures of the leg and of the spine and other injuries. He died in the Staten Island Hospital, Tompkinsville.

Mrs. Greenslade's Junior Pupils Gave Recital

In the Greene Music Store last night an evening of unusual interest to all music lovers particularly those interested in the work of the little tots was presented in the elementary and primary recital of the tiny pupils of Mrs. W. Greenslade and Miss Norma Moore, the latter who is a graduate trained under the skilful direction of Mrs. Greenslade. The performers all of whom ranged from seven to nine years, proved their splendid training and real talent by the program presented, which was a revelation to the large audience who attended. Most of the little ones at the piano were not able to touch the floor with their feet but were quite able to play charming little selections and display considerable mastery over the more difficult pieces.

Pupils of Miss N. Moore

AGAIN SEARCH WILKIN'S HOME FOR MURDER EVIDENCE

MINEOLA, L. I., April 5.—District Attorney Weeks spent the afternoon in the home of Dr. Walter K. Wilkins at Long Beach, in company with Dr. Otto Schultz of the City of New York, in search of evidence to be used in the trial of Dr. Wilkins, who is accused of the murder of his wife. At several places, it was said blood spots were found.

The pocket knidves foun in the Sixty-fifth street house also will be examined by a chemist.

AMERICAN COLONEL GIVES FREE ADVICE TO RHEUMATICS

Says It's Sheer Folly for Anyone to Suffer These Days

Rheumatism can't be cured so long as your system is weak and run down.

You must first build up and get strength to fight off the disease.

Ferrozone cures because it builds up, because it renews the blood and dissolves the Uric Acid and the poisons that cause rheumatism.

It is proved right here that Ferrozone does cure.

Col. H. M. Ruse, of Edwards, St. Lawrence Co., one of the fine old heroes of the Civil War, was completely restored by Ferrozone. Read his statement:

"I couldn't get around without a cane, and then only with difficulty.

"Rheumatism took complete control of my limbs.

"Suffering was more intense than hardships on the battlefield.

"When my doctor had done his best, I got Ferrozone.

"Then came a quick change.

"Ferrozone gave me comfort at once, eased the pain and took the stiffness out of my muscles.

"I am well to-day. Ferrozone cured me completely. I can jump and run like I did forty years ago."

Be sensible about your case. If your present medicine is useless, give it up.

Don't experiment again. Ferrozone is known on all sides to be a cure that does cure. Why not get a supply to-day. The sooner you begin Ferrozone the quicker you'll get well. Price 50c. per box or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Canadian Troops On Murman Coast

Churchill Promises Relief and That Long Service Men Will be Transported Home.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, April 5. — Winston Churchill, Secretary of State for War, yesterday sent a telegram in his own name to the British troops in Northern Russia, says the Mail, promising that they would be supported and relieved at the earliest possible moment, and that the men, who have been there for months, will be brought home as soon as other troops arrive to take their places. There are some Canadians in the region.

The men for the relieving force have already been provisionally selected, and lectures have been given on the Russian situation.

CATARRH COLDS BRONCHITIS

CURED WITHOUT DRUGS

It is really impossible to treat Catarrh, unless by inhaling the soothing germ - killing vapor of Catarrhozone. Its rich fragrant essences are breathed from the inhaler to every sore, diseased spot in the breathing organs. Not a single germ can escape the healing fumes of Catarrhozone which acts on the infected linings of the nose and throat just as an ointment would act on a cut finger. You see Catarrhozone soothes, cleanses, heals. It cannot fail to reach and cure Catarrh; it's simply a wonder on weak throats bronchial coughs, deafness, buzzing ears and all other symptoms of Catarrhal cold.

Get Catarrhozone to-day. Complete outfit costs $1.00 and is sufficient for three months use. Smaller sizes 50c, all dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont., Canada.

Brilliant Artists Win New Laurels In Farrar Pictures

Milton Sills, Tom Santschi and Other Notables Support Diva in "Shadows."

The very cream of available players is found in the cast supporting Geraldine Farrar in "Shadows," at The Grand Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In this production, as with "The Turn of The Wheel" and "The Hell Cat," Goldwyn executives have spared nothing to obtain the ideal exponent of each role. While the number of principals is not large, those chief among the diva's associates are favourites with the motion picture public. And the ensemble scenes are large.

Milton Sills again leads the roster. This admirable artist needs no introduction. His service in several of David Belasco's Broadway productions and also in scores of motion picture productions of magnitude and importance have made him a drawing card for the star lucky enough to enlist his support. His acting in "The Hell Cat" is fresh in the minds of everyone who saw that Goldwyn Picture.

And there is Tom Santschi. Given a role nothing like his opportuntiy in Miss Farrar's "The Hell Cat," he triumphs as completely. Fourteen years before the screen public, since the earliest inception of motion picture acting, Santschi has the poise and finesse of the veteran artist.

Fred. Truesdell makes his first appearance in Goldwyn Pictures, aiding Miss Farrar in some of her tensest scenes in "Shadows." An interesting bit of stage history is found in the fact that he originated the role of the half-back hero of George Ade's "The College Widow" when that play swept the country some years ago.

In the Alaskan episode in "Shadows" Charles Slattery is the star's vis-a-vis in several vital moments and acquits himself well. Jean Armour, an actress of reputation, is consent to play a small part with the Goldwyn star, and Robert Harvey rounds out the cast, not forgetting, of course, George Smith, who plays the juvenile role of Miss Farrar's child with much unconsciousness and boyish appeal.

BANQUET FOR CHURCH LEAGUE HOCKEY TEAMS

In George Stree: Sunday School on Friday, April 11th.

On Friday evening, April 11, 1919, at 6.30 p.m., the teachers and officers of the George street Methodist Sunday school are giving a complimentary banquet to the members of the Church League hockey teams. Invitations have been sent to the managers of the teams and it is expected that every player will be present, as well as their Pastors and Sunday School Superintendents. The silver cup, which was won by George street team, will be presented by the President of the Ministerial Association.

"Week of Music" Is Planned For Peterboro

Tentative plans for Peterboro's share in the National Week of Music were formed last evening in the new Board of Trade rooms when the musicians of the city met the dealers to discuss ways and means of comemorating Peace Year.

In opening the meeting Mr. Whitehouse, who attended the meeting of the Music Trades Convention in Toronto recently, said that the conference had decided that the musicians should do something definite toward comemorating the Peace Year and had decided upon the idea of setting Easter week apart as a National Week of Music for this purpose. Following this resolution the meeting last evening was called to confer with the Peterboro musicians as to the best way to carry out this idea in the city. The dealers themselves have recided to loan machines to the different institutions for the week and to decorate their windows in fitting fashion. He suggested that the musicians might work out part of their end of the celebration in the way Toronto is to employ by having a school competition. He suggested that fifty pupils picked from each school, public and separate, should be trained and each school put on a concert in the Armouries and at the end of the week repeat each programme befor judges. To the school judged as best a shield would be presented to be held until the following year when the National Week Music will be repeated and the shield again competed for. This idea had been heartily endorsed by the Board of Education.

No Question of Finance

Mr. Mendel Greene explained that the National Music Week was being forwarded by the dealers with no idea of dollars and cents. The whole affair is being conducted on sentimental lines. He assured themusicians that the dealers would stand behind them in any project for celebraing the week in any way, either in activity or financially. He suggested that a Church and Hospital Committee should be formed.

Lengthy Discussion.

After a lengthy discussion of ways and means of carrying out the idea of the school competition it was decided by the musicians unanimously that they should get together and forward the idea o the best of their power. It was thought that to give each school an equal chance in the competition three songs should be chosen for them to practice on and arrangements will be made for their equal training. Miss Rannie will be consulted with to secure her advice as to the best way of working out the plan for training the children.

Mr. R. J. Devey was unanimously elected chairman of the commtitee to look after the National Week of Music, Mrs. R. Gliddon, secretary.

Mr. Renwick was elected chairman of the School Committee, Mrs. Devey chairman of the Hospital Committee which will embrace ill public institutions. The Church Committee which will arrange for each denomination to hold special recitals of spiritual music will be composed of the organists of the city.

Mr. Walter Stocker and Dr. C. H Amys were apointed as a Band Committee to look after the work of interesting the bands of the city with the hopes of their co-operation in the scheme and of having perhaps a massed band concert.

The Shield.

The shield which will be presented is a very handsome oak one with brass plates upon which to inscribe the name of the school winning it each year.

RED BIRD
BICYCLES

The price you pay for a bicycle is worth your consideration.

You Get Just What You Pay For

A high-grade bicycle, that sells at a few dollars more than a cheap bicycle, is worth a whole lot more to you than the cheap bicycle.

RIDE A BRANTFORD RED BIRD

You Cannot Buy Gold Dollars for Fifty Cents

So it is with a Bicycle. BRANTFORD BICYCLES are made up to a standard—not down to a price.

Made in Canada—you know it. Why experiment with cheap bicycles brought in from another country?

The fact that you can buy bicycles for a few dollars less than you pay for a BRANTFORD is no sign that you can buy bicycles cheap. It only shows that you buy cheap bicycles. There is a difference.

Three Lives Lost in Fire

Canadian Press:

BRANTFORD, Ont., Apr. 5.—Geo. Wisson, a returned soldier and bachelor, aged 34, his sister, Mrs. J. Wark, and her infant child, were burned to death in Wisson's little dwelling at Simcoe, Ont., about midnight. The flames had licked up the three rooms in the place before it was got under control. Firemen found the remains of Wisson between the bed and a keg supposed to have contained hard cider. The other bodies were in the kitchen.

The public will be interested to learn that the "Women Teachers' Guild" purpose holding a concert in the Grand Opera House on the evening of May 30. The programme will be of an interesting character, as it will consist of choruses and part songs, physical training and drills presented entirely by pupils and teachers of the city schools.

It has been the custom of the Guild during the past four years to raise funds for patriotic and charitable purposes, and the proceeds of the above concert will be devoted to the same objects.

OBITUARY

MR. PETER DRUMMOND.

The death occurred last night at his home in Keene of Mr. Peter Drummond in his 65th year. He was one of the best known residents of Otonabee Township. He leaves to mourn his loss a widow, two daughters, Mrs. Henry Weir, of Otonabee, and Mrs. Fred Taylor, of Saskatchewan, and two sons, Harry D. and William A., both of Otonabee.

The funeral will take place from the Presbyterian Church, Keene, on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock to Keene Cemetery. Rev. Mr. McEachern, of Keene, will officiate.

MR. FRED. RAY.

The death occurred at Nicholls Hospital at 6 o'clock this morning of Mr. Frederick J. Ray, 64 years of age, brother of Mr. Samuel Ray, corner of Antrim and Water Streets.

He leaves four brothers to mourn his loss: Samuel of Peterborough, Charles of Toronto, Hugh of Manitoba, and George of British Columbia.

Service will be held at the home of his brother, Mr. Samuel Ray, 687 Water Street, to-morrow evening at 8.45. Interment will take place in Whitby on Monday, the train leaving here on Monday morning at 8.30.

FRED RAY.

The death took place this morning at Nicholls Hospital, of Mr. Fred Ray, after a short illness from influenza, followed by pneumonia.

The deceased, who was 64 years of age, came to Peterborough some years ago, and has been connected with the tobacco business conducted by his brother, Mr. Sam Ray, all that time, with the exception of six years when he lived in the west.

He was a quiet, unassuming man, and well liked by all those with whom he came in contact. He was a great reader, and when the Y.M.C.A. had its debating clubs, was one of its most prominent members. He was unmarried.

Service will be held Sunday evening at 8.30 o'clock at the residence of his brother, Mr. Sam Ray, 687 Water street, and the remains will be taken to Whitby on Monday for burial in Thornton's cemetery, the birthplace of the deceased.

RESTORE THE NATURAL SIGHT

Voice of The People

Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Noticing in your paper last night that I was reported as being present at the meeting to consider the dairy business as affecting producers and consumers, and that I represented the Trades Council on that occasion, this letter is to say that I was neither present at the meeting nor had the Trades Council any invitation to send a representative.

Yours faithfully,
A. J. BOLWELL.

To the Examiner,

Dear Sir:—Kindly allow me space in to-day's issue for the following remarks and oblige. I have heard a great deal since I returned from active service in France and Belgium, about what the G.W.V.A. has been doing for the returned soldiers. I was also led to believe that they organized for the sole purpose of banding together, and to see that their returning comrades got a just and square deal. The above does not fall in line with the way I was treated the other evening when I had an appointment to meet one of my comrades at the War Veterans Club Rooms. I thought it was alright when there was no meeting on, but to my surprise I was told that the club rooms were only for the members of the G.W.V.A.. I do not wish to flatter myself nether do I look for any favors, but I do wish to state that it is a fact that the public helps to maintain the club rooms and I myself have contributed to the same, as I did when I went with the boys and stood shoulder to shoulder on the battle fields, did my bit, received several wounds; therefore I claim to be as much of an hero as those who never saw the shell-torn fields of Europe, and who seem to have the most to say. If I were good enough to fight with my comrades, surely I am good enough to associate with my comrades in civil life,

Yours Sincerely
Private.

BLIND MUSICIAN DEAD

BRANTFORD, April 5.—The death was reported here of James McQuinn, Brantford's blind musician, who followed his vocation for over forty years in this community. He was organist at St. Ball's Church for fifteen years, and was widely known as a teacher throughout the district. He had been blind since childhood, and died in his fifty-sixth year. A grown up family survive.

DIED.

RAY.—At Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, Saturday, April 5th, Fred Ray, in his 64th year.

Service will be held at the residence of his brother, Mr. Samuel Ray, 687 Water street, Sunday evening, April 6th, at 8.30 o'clock. Burial at Whitby, Ont., Monday, April 7th.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of wee Sandy, the dearly beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. William Herd, who died at the Isolation Hospital, 6th April, 1916, aged 7 years:

He is gone but not forgotten,
And as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near.
To memory ever dear.

Machine Gun Fire "Nudged" Physician Succoring Wounded

NEW YORK, April 5.—How a sixty-three-year-old medical officer, Dr. William McIlwain, braved heavy machine gun fire to minister to wounded and dying on a French battle field was related by officers of the Seventy-seventh division at the Headquarters of the divisions' advance party, in the Biltmore Hotel.

Captain McIlwain, then acting commander of the medical staff of the Second battalion, 308th infantry, is known overseas as "the fighting doctor of Bone Wolf, Okla."

In the "mopping up" process of the American forces in front of Bazoches on August 27 last, Captain McIlwain attended the wounded, carrying an overcoat over on arm and a sack of bandages over the other. Machine gun bullets tore through his bag of bandages and ripped his overcoat. In telling about the incident after the fight, officers declare that the captain drawled out that he thought some one was nudging him and looked down to see his bandage bag swinging back and forth as it was being hit with a stream of machine gun bullets.

"He might have been strolling down Broadway for all the notice he gave those bullets," said one officer of the Seventy-seventh. "For his age he was one of the gamest officers in the division." At Vexilly his famous overcoat disappeared with a poilu.

An informal discussion of matters in connection with the Seventy-sixth division parade up Fifth avenue in May took place yesterday at a luncheon at the Downtown Association, No. 60 Pine street. Attending the luncheon, which was given by Major Archibald G. Thacher, were the Rev. Mr. William T Manning, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Seventy-seventh Division Home Auxiliary Association; Lieutenant-Colonel Douglas Campbell, Lieut-Colonel Charles W. Whittlesey, Cleveland H. Dodge, Stephen H. Olin, S. R. Bertron, Majors S. Fullerton Weaver, Allen L. Lindley, Delancey Jay, Kenneth Budd and John Prentice, and Captains Beverly Robinson and James W. Barney.

Many cabled despatches already have been sent to France in an effort to find members of the division whose names do not appear in the official roster just received at headquarters. It was learned that there are eight thousand Jewish men in the division insteadof fourteen thousand, as previously announced.

Officers of the Home Auxiliary of the Seventy-seventh at a meeting in the Hotel Astor announced that $16,000 had been subscribed to build a clubhouse out of the old Astor Library and to provide work for the men. Dr. Manning presided.

It Requires More Skill to Train the Owner Than the Horses On Which He Pays the Bills

(By W. H. Gocher.)

One day John Splan, when in a philosophical mood, said that it required more skill to train an owner than the horses on which he was paying the bills. Of all drivers Splain was in a better position to give a correct opinion on horse owners than any man that ever sat in a sulky. In his day he had all kinds from Eph Simmons to L. V. Harkness, from Jerry Monroe to General Caldwell, and from Dan DeNoyelle to C. F. Emery.

As Splan was rather careless in his business methods, especially during the racing season, owners experienced considerable difficulty in making settlements with him, but if they did not bother him he always saw that some day they had a chance to balance all of their expenses by landing a coup at attractive odds if they were willing to take a chance in the betting ring.

Enough to Winter On.

At one time Splan trained an attractive mare for an Englishman. She was in his stable for two or three years and he never seemed to be doing anything with her. Finally it was decided to give her the grand preparation, but instead of the work beginning in the spring, it was started in July. She was ready in September and started at the Cleveland fall meeting. No one, however, supposed that she would be turned loose at that time of year, so the wise men backed what they considered the choice, while this good old trotter was sold for a trifle in the field. Some one had to buy them, and when she won, Splan gathered in enough to winter on. As for the owner—well, he had the same chance.

In order to remain on the turf, there are three things that an owner must have. The first item is a horse. If it is one of the Joe Patchen or R. T. C. kind, he can out out the other two. If it is a flash or apt to show the white feather when pinched, he must have the other two. They are patience and the means to settle, if the outfit slips a cog and it usually does. If there were no jolts in racing, there would be no thrills. If all the joy was in one outfit, there would be no field buyers.

Fortune Favours the Bold.

While there are horse owners who believe that fortune favours the bold, the average man, who has been to the mill a few times, will tell you that the gentleman with the latest information can trim the bold boy to a frazzle. None but children and fair maidens believe that all of the starters are out to win. While it would make merry racing, what would become of the helper, who never fails to collect, the weak-kneed individual who is afraid of a mark, to say nothing of the man who is legging one up for a killing at the next town? Each of these has a part to play in every race and while all of them think that they are pulling the wool over the eyes of the judges, they usually find when they cut loose that they have drawn a blank.

Owners who race horses for the love of the sport and who take good and bad fortune with a smile are the men who are a credit to the turf. There are times it is true when they are forced to mingle with those that are just the reverse, but public opinion and the strong arm of the racing officials are constantly putting the latter on the shelf. One day Senator Bailey declared that the "cheater must go." He did not say where, however, and after a few years' experience one is prone to admit that he is more apt to drift towards the betting ring than the gate. What he gets there is his own business, but what he does with it is another matter.

No Profiteering: No Poverty

By KEBLE HOWARD

Poverty is an anachronism. In the world which we are trying to get for ourselves, and are determined to get for ourselves, there must be no poverty. In a universe which is capable of providing for the needs of a population far greater than the millions already on earth, it is ridiculous, and worse, that any section of society should be in want of daily necessities.

For that is the true meaning of poverty. Poverty does not mean that you cannot afford to buy books or go to the "Pictures," or take a brief holiday by the sea. Poverty is a far more desperate condition than that. The poverty-stricken person is in actual daily need of food, of clothing, of warmth, of artificial light. It means just that and all that to be really poor. And that is the condition of things which must come to an end. No man, living has a right to happiness until that barbarous state of things has been wiped out for good and all.

Well, how are you going to wipe it out? The poor, and many who are not so good, naturally clamour for an increase in the rate of pay. They find that articles of food and of clothing are beyond their means, and they think that if their wages were increased they would be able to buy these articles.

But would they? That is just the difficulty. When a bicycle squeaks, the rough-and-ready owner pours more oil into the works. The squeaking stops for the moment, but is presently worse than ever.

The bearings have become more and more clogged. The wise owner takes the part to pieces, cleans it thoroughly, and then adds a sufficiency of oil.

Syndicates' Evil Work.

If wages were trebled, for how long would the poor be able to buy everything at present beyond their means? I will tell you. For just so long as it took the profiteer to rearrange his prices. Prices are not arranged by the people who sell the goods to you over the counter, or even by the man who owns the ship. You must look deeper into the matter than that. Prices are arranged by syndicates and "rings" who are big enough and powerful enough to play hopscotch with the market according to their own sweet will. That is why the very poor cannot afford the necessities of life.

So this must be stopped. We cannot tolerate it any longer. We are not going to have the food of the people and the clothing of the people gambled with for the benefit of a ring of millionaires. God did not put food on this earth to make a few men so rich that they smell unhealthy of gold, and ooze fatness as they waddle about the world. Food was put there for the benefit of all in equal proportion. If a man wants to get rich, let him get rich on luxuries. There is not much objection to that. But let him keep his hands off the necessities of daily life.

It is natural that prices should be high after four and a half years of war. We know that. We are not unreasonable about that. But they must not remain high. The cost of living has got to be reduced—very greatly reduced. And my humble suggestion for reducing it is this: let the people have the four necessities—food, clothing, lighting, and warmth—at cost price. Let us know what these things cost for producer, the rock-bottom price, honestly got at and approved by the trusted leaders of the people, and then supply them to us at that price, and not a penny more.

How is it to be done?

State Must Take Control.

By the State, of course. There must be an end to all this intriguing, and whispering, and sticking of heads together to inflate the cost of necessities. The State must take over the whole business of feeding the people clothing the people, warming the people, and lighting the people.

Take, for example, the loaf. The State must take over the whole business of providing the corn, of milling of bread-making, and of distribution. The farmer and the labourer will not suffer. The farmer will be wanted to supervise the labourer, and the labourer will be wanted to prepare the soil, and sow the grain, and reap the corn.

The war made the farmer rich, but has he any guarantee that he will remain rich? For decades we have heard pitiful stories from the farmer of his struggles to make ends meet. Those struggles will be over. He will be working for the State, and the State will reward him according to his industry and ability.

That is just an instance. There is nothing complicated about it—not one-tenth so complicated as shipping a vast army to France and the East and keeping it fed and supplied with munitions. The men who organized that gigantic feat will soon get State production of bread into going order.

And the State will not be out for profit. That is the point. The State will pay a fair wage all round in proportion to the status and value and industry of the man it employs; but it will not be out for profit. The millions that have been made out of corn in the past, only to be poured into the banks of the millionaires, will come back to the people in the shape of good, cheap bread.

The State will do the same with meat, with butter, with eggs, with fruit, with jam, with bacon, and the rest. All these commodities are at present just double their pre-war price. And, under the old system, they will remain at double the price until the increase of wages all round comes into operation, and then—up will go the prices once more.

Where will the lead us? Why, to national bankruptcy. A child can see that. If we want to lose all the benefits for which our young men died, let us continue to produce the necessities of life in the old, haphazard, piecemeal, muddling way. If we want to sink lower and lower among the nations of the earth, let us allow profiteers to dictate the terms upon which we may procure the things that our bodies must have or perish.

On the other hand, give the people these things at cost price, and strikes, labour unrest, dissatisfaction, class strife will vanish from these islands. It is not money the people really want; it is the means of getting food, and clothing, and warmth, and light for their children and for themselves. They know that there is an abundance of these things somewhere or another, and they mean to have them.

But don't clog the bicycle with useless oil. Clean it.

Cameras Were Banned at Front

Even Innocent Photos Might Reveal Information to Enemy—Some Soldiers Kept Cameras Nevertheless.

One of the most disappointing things to Canadians at the front was the ban upon cameras which prevented them from having snaps of themselves taken at war and sent to the folks at home. Thus, priceless little souvenirs showing them in the trenches and depicting their rest billets in French and Belgian villages to their friends and relatives in Canada were denied them.

When the first Canucks reached the front cameras, if not encouraged, were at least tolerated, but a few months later an order came out demanding that every camera be turned in. Commanders of each unit were required to collect the cameras and to make periodical reports to headquarters.

Court-Martial Offence.

Possession of a camera was made a court-martial offence which increased in gravity as the months passed For, innocent as was the average snapshot, some if discovered upon a captured man, would certainly have given the enemy valuable information about our positions. Strangely enough, though the British laid such stress upon this, the French and Belgians allowed men to use cameras at will.

Used on the Sly.

He was a daring man who disobeyed the order to turn over his camera. Notwithstanding, a few cameras were used clandestinely, right through the war, and the pictures the lenses of these pocket recorders chronicled are doubtless highly prized by their owners. Though latterly the official photographers were very active, the photos they took lacked the intimacy of the private snaps taken at great risk of private individuals.

Now that the war is well over it seems likely that a number of these photos, taken without the knowledge or consent of the army authorities will see the light of day. Some few which were obviously taken on the sly have already appeared in newspapers, books and periodicals.

MAY USE FOE LANGUAGES

But Only When the Printed Matter Is Not Objectionable

OTTAWA, April 5.—Under the former order-in-council all periodical publications printed in enemy languages were forbidden admission into or the circulation in Canada except under license. In future, according to the new order-in-council, periodical literature will be placed on an equality with books which contain no objectionable matter, and if they are exclusively of a literary, scientific, legal, religious or artistic character, they will be permitted to be printed in or imported into Canada. All such publications, however, are to be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State, and provision is made in the order-in-council for the transmission to the chief press censor of samples of all enemy language publications printed in or imported into Canada before their circulation.

THE CIGARETTE IN IOWA.

Plea for a Law That could be Enforced and be Useful.

The cigarette is sweeping along. A majority of men who smoke, smoke cigarettes. This form of smoking has been considered a great evil and an effort has been made in Iowa to suppress it. At the present time the sale or the giving away of cigarettes to any one, young or old, is prohibited. Yet the sale of cigarettes in Iowa to any one, young or old, is practically universal.

A proposition is now pending in the Thirty-eighth general assembly to license the sale of cigarettes to men above 21 years of age and then to attempt to prohibit the sale of cigarettes to minors entirely. The case is far enough along in Iowa to make it evident that the cigarette is too thoroughly established to be totally prohibited. The cigarette is regarded as a nuisance by those who do not smoke, and it must be a regular joy to those who do, inasmuch as they stick to it under all circumstances, and at all times and places. However big a nuisance it may be it is not a nuisance to the majority.

The present Iowa law is a failure and it is entirely rational to try something else. If cigarettes can be kept from the boys that would be a great achievement. And if a change in the law will induce all the adult cigarette smokers to aid in the suppression of the habit among boys, it will be a victory.—Des Moines Capital.

FIND MAN IN BED BESIDE ROOMMATE DEAD 3 WEEKS

NEW YORK, April 5.—Michael Palladino, owner of the tenement at No. 354 East 114th street entered a room on the fourth floor of the building. Palladino intending to notify the two men who occupied the room to move to a lower floor. When he found the door locked, he opened it with a pass key and stepping inside, discovered James Soirge, forty-five years old, dead in bed, and beside him, in a stupor, his roommate, Raphaello Spinano.

Soirge had been dead for at least two weeks, according to Dr. Tannert, of the Harlem Hospital. No coherent statement could be obtained from Spinano. Spinano was removed to Harlem Hospital under arrest on a technical charge of homicide. An autopsy was performed last night.

The police believe Soirge died of disease, which also attacked Spinano and left him powerless to help himself or to summon assistance.

Why Can't I Get to Sleep?

Thousands of people all over the country ask this question but still continue to toss night after night on a sleepless bed and it is impossible for them to get a full night's rest or freshing sleep.

Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease, has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system that it cannot be quietened except by the pernicious use of opiates or narcotics. Or again, you have heart palpitation, and sensation sinking, a feeling you are going to die, or perhaps you wake up in your sleep feeling as though you were about to choke or smother, and the only way that you can get relief is to sit up in bed.

To all who suffer in this way, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills offer an inestimable boon. They bring back the much needed night's rest by improving the tone of the nerves, strengthen the heart, enriching the blood and making the whole organization act in harmony—then you sleep as peaceful as a child.

Mrs. James Latimer, 39 Leinster St., St. John, N. B., writes: "At night I could not sleep. I had to sit up in bed, my heart beat so fast and when I walked up stairs I would get all out of breath. A friend recommended Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after using two boxes I can sleep all night, and am not out of breath after walking."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MR. CLEMENCEAU TO WEAR BULLET PIERCED OVERCOAT; NEW ONE TOO EXPENSIVE

PARIS, April 5.—"White clothes are so expensive I am not going to indulge in the luxury of a new overcoat just because a fool shot a few holes in my old coat," Premier Clemenceau is reported to have said.

The "Tiger's" jacket and overcoat, both showing bullet holes were pieces of evidence that had to be reproduced at the trial of his would-be murderer, Emile Gottin. Mr. Clemenceau, however, happens to be particularly fond of those garments, and he asked Mr. Ignace, Under Secretary of State for War, to let him have them back quickly.

She found it all astonishingly easy. Of course she never had met, probably never would meet the really wealthy families that owned large estates in the country and haughtily entertained one another when not entertaining equally exclusive New Yorkers. But Mrs. Baltame did not waste time in envy of these people; there were old families in her own and neighboring villages, proud of three or four generations on the same farm, well-to-do, but easy-going democrats, and when not so old as to be "moss-backs," hospitable to new notions. Many, indeed, had built new homes in the expanding village, which bade fair to embrace choice bits of the farms.

Mrs. Balfame always had dominated these life-long neighbors and associates, and the gradual newcomers were quick to recognise her power and her superior mind; to realize that not to know Mrs. Balfame was to be a commuter and no more. Everything helped her. Even the substantial house, inherited from her father-in-law, and still surrounded by four acres of land, stood at the head of the original street of the village, a long wide street so thickly planted with maples as old as the farms that from spring until Christmas the soft leafy boughs interlaced overhead. She had a subtle but iron will, and a quite commonplace personality disguised by the cold, sweet, stately and gracious manner so much admired by women; and she was quite unhampered by the least of that originality of waywardness which antagonizes the orthodox. Moreover, she dressed her tall slender figure with unerring taste. Of course she was obliged to wear her smart tailored suits for two years, but they always looked new and were worn with an air that quite doubled their not insignificant price. By women she was thought very beautiful, but men, for the most part, passed her by.

For eight years now, Mrs. Balfame had been the acknowledged leader of Elsinore. It was she who had founded the Friday Club, at first for general cultivation of mind, of late to study the obsessing subject of Woman. She cared not a straw for the privilege of voting; in fact, she thought it would be an extremely unladylike thing to do; but a leader must always to be at the head of the procession, while discriminating betwixt fad and fashion.

It was she who had established a connection with a respectable club in New York; it was she who had inveigled the substantial well-dressed and radical personage on the rostrum beside her to come over and homilize on the subject of "The European War v.s. Woman."

The visitor had proved to her own satisfaction and that of the major part of her audience that the bomb who had precipitated the war had been made in Germany. She was proceeding complacently, despite the hisses of several members with German forebears, and the President had just exchanged a glance of amusement with a moderate neutral, who believed that Russia's desire to thaw out her icy feet in warm water was at the bottom of the mischief, when —spurred perhaps by a biting allusion to the atrocities engaging the press at he moment—the idea of murder took definite form in that clear unvisionary brain so justly admired by the ladies Elsinore.

Mrs. Balfame's pure profile, the purer for the still smooth contours and white skin of the face itself, the stately setting of the head, was turned toward the audience below the platform, and one admiring young member who attended an art class in New York was sketching it as a study in St. Cecelias, when those six leters of fire rose smoking from the battle fields of Europe and took Mrs. Baltame's consciousness by assault; six dark and murky letters but with no vagueness of outline.

The first faint shock of surprise over, as well as the few moments of retrospect, she asked herself calmly: "Why not?" Over there men were being torn and shot to pieces by wholesale, joking across the trenches in their intervals of rest, to kill again when the signal was given with as little compunction as she herself had often aimed at a target, or wrung a chicken that had fed from her hand. And these were men, the makers of law, the self-elected rulers of the world.

Mrs. Baltame had respected men mightily in her youth. Even now, although she both despised and hated her husband, she responded femininely to a fine specimen of manhood with good manners and something to talk about save politics and business. But these were few and infrequent in Brabant County. The only man she had met for years who interested her in the least was Dwight Rush, also a scion of one of the old farm families.

Rush had ben educated in the law at a northwestern university, but after a few years of practice in Wisconsin had accepted an offer to enter the most respectable law firm in his native township. He had been employed several times by David Ballame, who had brought him home informally to supper perhaps once a fortnight during the last six months. But, although Mrs. Balfame frankly enjoyed his society and his evident admiration for a beauty she knew had little attraction for his sex, she had all a conventional woman's dislike for irregularities, however innocent; and she had snubbed Mr. Rush's desire to "drop in of an afternoon."

He barely flitted through her mind when she asked herself what man's civilization amount to, anyway, and why should women respect it? And, compared with the stupendous slaughter in Europe, a slaughter that would seem to be one of the periodicities of the world, since it is the composite expression of the individual male's desire to fight somebody just so often—what, in comparison with such a monstrous crime, would be the offence of making way with one obnoxious husband?

Something over two years ago—when liquor began to put a fiery edge upon Mr. Balfame's temper—Mrs. Balfame had considered the question of divorse; but after several weks of cool calculation and the exercise of her forethought upon the inevitable social consequences, she had put the idea definitely aside. It was incompatible with her plan of life. Only rich women, or women that were insignificant in great cities or who possessed conquering gifts, or who were so advanced as to be indifferent, could afford the luxury of divorce. Her world was the eastern division of Brabant County, and while it prided itself upon its progressiveness, and even—among the younger women—had a gay set, and although suppressed scandals slid about like slimy monsters in a marsh, iths foundations were inherited from old Puritan stock, and it fairly reeked with ancient prejudices.

It was a typical middle-class community with traditions, some of its blood too old, and made up of common human ingredients in varying proportions. Mrs. Balfame, enlightened by much reading and many matinees, applied the word bourgeois to Elsinore with secret scorn, but with a sigh; conscious that all its prejudices were hers and that not for an instant could she continue to be its leader were she a divorced woman.

Mrs. Balfame indulged no dreams of sudden wealth. Elsinore was her world, and on the whole she was content, realising that life had not equipped her to lead the society of New York City. She liked to shop on Fifth Avenue—long since had she politely forgotten the mobs of Sixth —to occupy an orchestra chair with a friend at a matinee, and take tea or chocolate at the fashionable retreats for such dissipations before returning to provincial Elsinore. There was a tacit agreement between herself and her husband that he should dine with his political friends in a certain restaurant behind a bar in Dobton, the county seat, on the Wednesday or Thursday evenings when she found it impossible to return to Elsinore before seven o'clock, an arrangement which he secretly approved of but invariably entered a protest against by coming home at two in the morning extremely drunk.

He never attended the theatre with her, his preference being for vaudeville or a screaming musical comedy, for both of which abnormalities she had a profound contempt. She saw only the "best plays" herself, her choice being guided not so much by newspaper approval as by length of run. It must be confessed that in the eight or nine years of her comparative emancipation from the grinding duties of the home she had earned a good deal of life from the plays she saw. On the whole, however, she preferred sound American drama, particularly when it dealt with Society; for the advanced (or decadent?) pictures of life as presented in the imported drama, she had only a mild contempt; her first curiosity satisfied, she thanked God that she was a plain American.

Such was Mrs. Balfame when she made up her mind to remove David Balfame, superfluous husband. She was quite content to reign in Elsinore, to live out her life there, but as a dignified and irreproachable and well-to-do widow. Divorce being out of the question, there was but one way to get rid of him: his years were but forty-four, and although he "blew up" with increasing frequency, to use his own choice vernacular, he was as healthy as an ox, and the town drunkard was rising eighty.

Mrs. Balfame's friend, Dr. Anna Steuer, was now replying to the lady from New York. After reminding the Club that the President of the United States had requested his docile subjects to curb their passions and flaunt their neutrality, Dr. Steuer proceeded to demolish the anti-German attitude of the guests by reciting the long list of industrial, economic and scientific contributions to civilisation which had distinguished the German Empire since the federation of its states.

Dr. Steuer was of Dutch descent, and her gifts were not forensic, but the key-note of her character was an intense and passionate loyalty. She had spent some of the most impressionable years of her life in the German clinics, and she cherished a romantic affection for a country whose natural and historic beauties no man will deny. She had steadfastly refused to read the "other side," pinning her faith to all that was best in the country of her youthful dreams. In consequence, her discourse, while informing, was somewhat beside her point; and had it not been for the deep love borne her by almost every one present, there would have been a polite but firm demand to give place.

Mrs. Balfame was smiling encouragement when her musings took a sudden and arbitrary twist. Being a person who never acted on impulse, her decisions, after due process of thought, were commonly irrevocable. The moment she had made up her mind to pass her husband on, she had committed herself to the act; and, even before Dr. Anna Steuer had claimed her superficial attention, had already erected the question, How?

Mrs. Balfame was a woman who rarely bungled anything, and murder, she well know, was the last of all acts to bungle, did the perpetrator desire to enjoy the freedom of his act. Being refined to her marrow, she shrank from all forms of brutality, and rarely, if ever, read the details of crime in the newspapers. The sight of blood disgusted her, although it did not turn her faint. She kept a pistol in her bedroom; burglars, particularly of late, had entered a large number of houses in Brabant County; but nothing would have horrified her more than to empty its contents into the worst of criminals.

1,535,471 OF 3,670,888 IN U.S. ARMY RELEASED

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 5.—Figures made public here by the War Department show that from the signing of the armistice to March 26, 1,535,471 of the 3,670,888 officers and men under arms when the war ended had been discharged from the service.

Since the end of hostilities 573,474 officers and men had left France to March 6 and of this number 502,830 had arrived in the United States. This left 1,409,789 soldiers overseas. The total under arms in this country on March 25 was 603,178.

Enlistments in the army since February 28, when voluntary recruiting was resumed were 1,533 to March 26. Of these 783 enlisted for one year, 714 for three years and 36 for lenght of service not reported.

How Dominion Rubber System Belting Service Helps Belt Users

For more than fifty years we have specialized in the making of belting and the solving of problems in transmitting power and conveying materials economically.

We maintain a staff of belting experts for the sole purpose of helping Canadian Manufacturers to "speed up" production by cutting belting costs and eliminating power wastage.

These experts will, without charge, analyze your transmission and conveying equipment in its entirety and will recommend changes only where they are necessary to increase the efficiency of that equipment.

You are under no obligation to us in availing yourself of this service—the only return that we request is that you purchase Dominion Rubber System Belting when you have been convinced that the changes recommended by our engineer will be beneficial.

This special service is available through any of our branches.

Phone, wire or write the one nearest to you and let us prove to you that the kind of service we have given to Canada's largest industries and the kind we want to give to you, means more than just selling better belts.

Puccini's LION BRAND Maccaroni

No Other Maccaroni Like It!

THE name of Puccini has long been identified with high-class Maccaroni. Generations of Puccinis, in sunny Italy, have been engaged in its production.

In our Canadian factory, where "Lion Brand" Maccaroni is made in the Italian way, under the direct supervision of Mr. A. Puccini himself, is a Medal and Diploma of Merit, awarded by the Italian Government for the excellence of this Canadian-made Maccaroni.

Insist upon Puccini's "Lion Brand." You will never again be satisfied with any other make.

Alberta Soldiers.

The Invalided Soldiers' Commission is making an industrial survey of the Province of Alberta for the purpose of finding opportunities to train returned soldiers in the various industries at the expense of the Government. The usual pay allowances will be given men taking this training, but it is part of the agreement that when the period of training is over, the men are to be absorbed into the permanent employment of the firms with which they had been trained. Forty Edmonton firms have agreed to co-operate with the commission, and in the province at large 50 men have been placed on the basis indicated.

About 60 men are attending the new agricultural classes opened at the University of Alberta. Others are taking special courses, while it is estimated that at least 75 men will have enrolled in the retraining schools recently established in Edmonton, before the end of the year. Men are coming from as far as Halifax on the Atlantic coast, and Vancouver on the Pacific coast to attend the vocational classes in Alberta. Classes in agriculture, farm mechanics and tractor work are in special favor.

The Provincial Government and departments of education and municipal affairs are showing practical interest and have promised co-operation in the work. Arrangements have been made with the Department of Education whereby any man suited for teaching school, who has passed the eleventh grade and one year in high school, may be sent to the normal school for an eight-month course.

The Minister of Municipalities has approved a special course under the commercial department of the vocational schools for preparing soldiers to undertake the secretaryship of rural municipalities.

A GLUTTON FOR GOLD.

Bokhara's Ameer Has the Largest Private Hoard in the World.

The largest private hoard in the world is probably that owned by the ameer of Bokhara, the Russian vassal state in central Asia. According to the Turkestanskive Kraj, the ameer possesses in his stronghold a vault completely filled with gold bars and coined gold.

Some years ago the ameer had another vault built to hold his savings, and the new storehouse is now almost full. There is at the Bokharan court an enormous cash book, which has served for generations and in which all revenues and expenditures are supposed to be put down, but also for generations it has never been checked with the "cash in hand."

Grafting is the easiest thing in the world at Bokhara. The ameer's officials draw no salary. They are appointed on the understanding that they must keep themselves on what they can make out of their various offices. There is no budget, and the largest permanent charge on the ameer's income is one of $15,000 annually for a local hospital. Then there is a small contribution toward the upkeep of the Russian police in the protectorate and the maintenance of the Bokharan "army," which has shrunk to a mere bodyguard.

The ameer's annual savings, it is calculated, amount to more than $8,000,000 a year. He is by traditional usage compelled to send every year a number of valuable "presents" to the Russian authorities at Samarkand and Tashkent. These presents consist of carpets, silks and the like, which are immediately sold by the recipients to native traders, from whom the ameer as regularly buys them back at fixed prices, to be stored up and to serve again as "presents" the following year. —St. Petersburg Cor. New York Sun.

Expand Air School.

An appropriation of $1,200,000 is expected to the available for the building program to permit the expansion of St. Paul Aviation Mechanics' Training school to twice its present capacity of 5,000 men. The war department already has appropriated $300,000 to prepare the school for the winter by installation of heating plants and remodeling of buildings.

MANY STILL MISSING

FATE OF SOLDIERS CAN NEVER BE CERTAIN.

All Trace of Men Has Been Lost In Numerous Instances and There Are Now Tragic Instances and Mysterious Disappearances That Will Never Be Satisfactorily Explained—The Fate of the Karl of Erne.

PERHAPS the saddest of all the reports that come from the battlefield is that of "missing." Those for whom is records the fate of a dear one have their misery long drawn out, an aching pain that is less merciful than the swift stab that announces a death in action. In this war there are thousands of soldiers whose fate can only be guessed at. They were seen going into action and then all trace of them was lost. Germany has announced that she has no secret prison camps, and that every allied prisoner who is able to leave the country has been sent home. This in a measure—but only in a measure, since the word of no German is relied on—relieves the fears or puts an end to the suspense of thousands who believed that those near to them who had been reported missing might eventually be found hidden out of sight in some remote fortress. In France no fewer than 314,000 officers and men have been listed as "missing"; in the British army the number is almost 360,000.

Hope will not completely die in the breasts of those who recall the fact that many years after the Franco-Prussian War, in some cases fifteen years, French soldiers who had been mourned as dead returned to their homes. They had been captives when the war ended, but for some petty breach of discipline had been cruelly sentenced to imprisonment. In that war, of course, Germany was the all-powerful conqueror, and could do almost as she pleased with the unfortunate Frenchmen in her hands. To-day she would hardly dare to play any such tricks. It has often happened that men are missing in action and remain missing for years because of some accident that befalls them, such as the temporary or indeed permanent loss of memory or of reason. It is quite probable that there will be found an unusually large number thus incapacitated in the present war on account of the terrific effect of artillery upon the nerves.

However, it has been announced that the commissions of the Allies will make a thorough search of every hole and corner in Germany in which prisoners might be concealed. Nothing is taken for granted, for it is recalled by Cunliffe Owen that at the Treaty of Frankfort the German Government pledged its word that all French prisoners taken in the war of 1870-1 had been sent home. German savagery has never revealed itself more starkly than in the German policy with regard to prisoners in this war. Germany consistently refused to give the Allies information about Allied prisoners that was volunteered about German prisoners. In some cases searching and specific enquiries were made, all knowledge of the fate of the missing men was denied. For example, Lord Farnham, who had figured among the dead for more than a year, turned up the other day, having been released from a German prison camp. When he was reported missing enquiries were made through King Alfonso and the Vatican, but nothing could be learned of his fate. It now transpires that he spent the time in a pestilential prison camp.

A remarkable case of disappearance is that of the Earl of Erne, who was a favorite equerry of King George, and as such well known to the Kaiser. He was also a man of striking appearance, standing six feet four inches. One morning in the retreat from Mons he rode back along the road to bring in a group of men whom he supposed to belong to his own regiment. He was seen to ride up to them and then the group closed round. Not a shot was fired, but Lord Erne was never seen or heard of again, though the most diligent search was made and requests for information laid before the Kaiser. His death has now been judicially assumed in England. Several other British officers of title and great estates have been listed with the missing, and judicial decisions have been necessary to permit their presumptive heirs to take their places. There may be some of the missing perhaps who have chosen to disappear for one or other of a dozen reasons that might suggest themselves. War offers great opportunities to those who seek this solution to problems of life that otherwise appear insoluble to them.

A remarkable case is that of Frederick Fermor-Hesketh, son of Sir Thomas Fermor-Hesketh. Early on Sunday morning he crossed from Holyhead to Kingston, and there vanished as though the earth had swallowed him. He was a young man of unusual stature and grace, and his father spent a fortune in an effort to solve the mystery of his fate, but it remains to this day a mystery. It is also worth recalling that the present Earl of Aberdeen owes his title and estates to the fact that his elder brother, the seventh earl, disappeared in 1863, and was last heard of as a sailor before the mast bound from Boston to Melbourne. A similar break in the succession some fifty years or so ago, when Lord Edward St. Maur vanished in India, diverted the title and great estates of the Dukes of Somerset to the father of the present duke. Many years later a man turned up in England claiming to be the missing peer, but he turned out to be a fraud.

They Disagreed.

"This dictionary of yours ain't any good," said the father, looking over his schoolboy son's books.

"What's wrong with it, father?"

"Why, it spells most every word different from the way I spell it!"

CHIVALRY IN THE TRENCHES

How Suffering Tommy, Deemed to Early Death, Attempted to Give His Blanket to Yank Comrade.

"Yank, I'm only twenty-eight, but I'm an old man," said an English Tommy just before we turned into our sleeping rolls on the coldest night that I had experienced. And his awful cough, the result of being gassed early in the war, when they had no masks, added fatal testimony to his statement.

All night long he coughed. About midnight I awoke shivering. From his coughing I knew that he was awake, I said: "Tommy, I never was so cold in my life," and then in a few minutes I was asleep again.

An hour later I was again awakened by his violent coughing. To my surprise I seemed to be warm and wondered if the wind had suddenly changed, but from its constant whistling I knew it had not. I reached out and felt two extra blankets on me. I suspected whence they had come by that violent coughing.

I got up and carried them back to where he lay, saying: "Tommy, did you put these blankets on me?" He replied: "Yes, Yank, you said you were cold."

"But what about you?"

"Oh, me? I'm used to it."

"Well, all I got to say is, thank you; but if you ever do that trick again I'll throw you out of the window in the snow and let you freeze to death." And then I put them back on his shivering, gassed body.—William L. Stidger in Association Men.

INDIAN IS LEARNING RAPIDLY

Beginning After Many Years to See That the Ways of the White Man are Good.

In the old days he depended upon the wild deer and the buffalo for food. He lived in a smoky wigwam or tepee, and when anyone died there, he burned it or moved away to keep the ghost of the departed from haunting him.

In the old days he fought against the white men and collected paleface scalps. Then he called upon his medicine man to cast spells over the missionary and drive him away.

Today he is learning to farm and raise cattle. He builds a house like the white man's with floors and a cellar for vegetables, and sometimes a corrugated iron roof. In case of a death in the new cabin he does not burn it, but uses the white man's disinfectants to fumigate the place.

Now he is beginning to understand what the "White Father" in Washington is trying to do for him. He has sent his full quota to our army in France, and four-fifths of the number have been volunteers. He has subscribed nearly $7,000,000 to the Liberty loans. Three times out of four he sends his children to school. Now forts are disappearing, and churches are taking their place.

The Indian is beginning to "think white."—Thomas C. Moffat, in World Outlook.

Drew Caricatures.

One of Princess Patricia's pet hobbies used to be sketching caricatures of members of the royal household. She was particularly clever at these. The billiard room at Bayshot Park, the country home of the Connaughts, has its walls covered with these humorous drawings. One of these, entitled "He was hungry," presents a likeness of the late King Edward rising from the table with a very broad smile of satisfaction on his face. Another, "The Charge of the (not too) Light Brigade," shows the late King, Prince Christian and the late Duke of Fife descending the steps of Marlborough House with formidable umbrellas in their clutches. Her sense of humor is one of the delightful things about her. In addition to her caricatures the princess had a very decided talent for painting. On several occasions during her stay in Canada her paintings were hung in the Art Galleries when exhibitions were on.

Mr. Wilson a Punishment For Some National Sin, Is View of Colonel Watterson

President's "Mediocre Mind and Colossal Vanity" Will Result in Setting Europe Afire by Midsummer, Editor Declares—"His Mission to Make Trouble Wherever He Appears."

MIAMI, Fla., April 5. — In response to an inquiry, "What of the President's continuous performance in Europe?" Mr. Henry Watterson, detained in Miami by a recent indisposition, replied: "I think that events helped along by the President himself, will verify my forecast that he is not merely a candidate for a third term in the White House but that for a nomination to such he holds all the winning cards in his hands."

"You mean that he controls the democratic machine?"

"Why, yes," he answered, "if you care to put it that way. The democratic party, so called, he long ago abolished, having previously much debauched it. Nothing of it survives, except the tattered label, and he holds that betwixt his thumb and forefingers. I am inclined to believe, however, that he has eliminated the United States from his immediate activities as an established conquest and is now giving his mighty thought to the sublimation of the world."

"That suggestion, Mr. Watterson," interjected the reporter, "would seem to require elaboration, if not explanation."

"Mr. Wilson," the editor resumed, "like most of those whose ambitions outrun their talents, has become the victim of the contingencies he has himself raised up. He has been caught by the foreign lure. He sails the blue of the empyrian. The scion of a race of religious fanatics and rustic scholars, his commonplace mind grew to be overtrained, and he reached manhood already a dangerous intellectual adventurer.

"Such characters seem strangely favoured by fortune. The powers of evil delight in exploiting them. Within less than a decade, advanced from a university professor to the chief magistracy, Woodrow Wilson has so thrust himself into the affairs of his own land, and other lands, as to be at this moment the most conspicuous figure at the forefront.

"A virtuous, right-minded man thus situate would emulate the humility of a Washington and the humanity of a Lincoln. Mr. Wilson sees nothing but himself and his personal exaltation—lives for nothing except his own advantage — seeks nothing save power and authority, the concrete things of rulership represented by the regal splendours and feudal glories, which though somewhat frazzled and fading, still go on about him. He is too clever not to set up for a prophet. Thus the League of Peace and the Religion of the Uplift. The once famous faker, the 'immortal J. N.' as he called himself, must turn over with envy in his grave and the bones of Mother Eddy grow sick with the thought of lost opportunities."

"Don't you think, Mr. Watterson," I asked, "that Mr. Wilson is doing more good than harm on the other side?"

"If I were phrase making or word splitting," he replied, "I might say that he deserves impeachment for going at all. It is the old story of meddle and muddle. The world is always full of it. As a consequence of his maladroit tinkering Europe will find itself the middle of the coming summer in flames. Then we shall have him home again urging intervention. It has been his mission in life to make trouble wherever he appeared. When the great Jehovah interjected such a sinister spirit into our affairs it must have been to punish us for our manifold delinquencies as a nation and a people.

"We should steer clear of European complications. Never has there been a time when the admonitions of Washington, Jefferson and Monroe carried greater weight. Mr. Wilson's mediocre mind and colossal vanity have already carried him far to sea. It is ours to look to it that he does not carry the country to the shipwreck of its institutions."

Easily Procured.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

The Fly Menace.

It is said that the fly serves no good purpose. It is a mistake. He performs two very good services. He teaches the teachable to clean up and keep clean, and he kills off the others—that is, he assiduously works to cause a survival of the fittest.

Let us give the —— —that is, the fly—his due, says Life and Health. While we give him credit for this much good, let us be among the teachable.

Let us see that nothing around our premises breeds flies. Let us shun the presence of flies in the house as we would shun poison. Let us screen effectually our doors and windows, so as to avoid stray flies and let us kill every fly that gets inside the sacred inclosure. Especially if there is a baby in the family the fly is dangerous. Funerals are expensive, and them we would miss baby.

THOUGHT IT WAS A BOIL

Doctor Said Abscess.

Mr. Gleason R. Young, Kingscroft, N.B., under date of Feb. 9th, 1918, writes us as follows: "About five months ago, a lump came on my jawbone. I thought it was a boil, and after it had been there quite a while it began to get larger. I went to a doctor and he said it was an abscess, and lanced it. He gave me a wash for it, so I went by his directions until it healed up, but it commenced coming again, and in about three weeks it broke itself. I thought it would get better, but it didn't. A neighbour advised me to get a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, so I sent and got a bottle, and by the time it was all gone, the abscess had disappeared, and now it is all better."

Burdock Blood Bitters will heal and dry up sores, ulcers, and abscesses, no matter how large or of how long standing. If you have never applied it to a cut, wound, sore or ulcer, just try it and see what soothing, healing, cleansing power it possesses. It takes out itching, stinging and burning, and promotes the growth of healthy flesh. So, too, when taken internally, by its power of eliminating all impurities from the blood and making that vital fluid rich, red and pure, it cuts off the origin and source of the foul matter that goes to make boils, pimples, sores, ulcers, abscesses and the like, and at the same time the purified and enriched blood creates healthy tissue where there was formerly, perhaps, a sore full of pus.

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for 40 years. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well.

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. Marie Boyd, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary — every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years experience is at your service.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

A SUMMER WISH.

I WISH I could sail where the icebergs are thickest
And idle where walruses hide
Or sit on the northernmost point in Alaska
And dangle my feet in the tide.
I'd like to slide down on the side of a glacier,
In snow at the bottom to roll.
How fine it would be in the teeth of a blizzard
To sit on the top of the pole!

A point in the shade of the mountains of Greenland
Would seem an alluring retreat,
The temperature forty-eight points below freezing.
Then life would be full and complete,
With wind that was sharp as the edge of a razor
To fan me and keep me awake,
With only pajamas, an ulster and slippers
The foree of the climate to break.

A dip in the depths of the charming antarctic
In only a bathing attire,
And that not too heavy, would furnish, I'm certain,
A treat for yours truly, esquire.
To float for a time on the breast of the billows
And under an ice floe to dive,
To sport where the spray came in ice wagon crystals,
A fellow would sure be alive.

To live in an ice covered Eskimo cabin
On polar bear blubber and such,
An icicle fork to assist in the eating—
Oh, really the thought is too much!
Alas, I am hampered by getting a living!
The thought of it all makes me sick.
I have to stick round in this sun frizzled climate
And buy my ice cream by the brick.

Getting the Ground Ready.

"Why did you laugh at that silly joke?"

"Because I am wise."

"See more in it than the rest of us do, I suppose."

"Oh, no; not that way."

"What way, then?"

"The man who told it is my boss, and I am going to strike him for a raise at the end of the week."

Mystifying.

"I don't understand this game of golf."

"What's hard about it?"

"Why do they hit the ball?"

"That's the game."

"So it seems. But why can't they just as well carry it along? They are going that way anyway, and it would save them all the trouble of looking for it."

Generous.

"How are you feeling?"

"Poorly. I think I will change doctors."

"Isn't the one you have helping you?"

"Yes; he is doing what he can, but I thought it would be no more than fair to distribute my debts around."

The Tailor's Boy.

"His need is pressing."

"Hard up, eh?"

"No, not that."

"Then what?"

"Mussed up."

Too Previous.

"Jones is a quitter."

"Oh, no; he isn't."

"But I know him."

"How can he be? He quits before he begins."

Varsity Men Win Decorations

SEVEN Toronto University graduates have won the D.S.O. and eleven the M.C., according to the official reports.

Brig.-Gen. J. M. Ross has won a bar to his D.S.O. and is now a K.M.G. He was a University College graduate of 1899. He served in South Africa, and was awarded the Queen's Medal with two clasps. He was major and adjutant of the 29th Battalion, which left Canada in May, 1915, and reached France the following September. He was gazetted a lieutenant-colonel in January, 1917, a brigadier-general in July, and has been mentioned in despatches three times.

Lt.-Col. H. J. Dawson has also been awarded a Bar to the D.S.O., and is a K.M.G. He graduated from University College in 1898, and took his M.A. degree in 1900. He led a Saskatchewan battalion in France, was awarded the D.S.O. in June, 1917, and the Belgian Croix de Guerre in the following March.

The K.M.G. has also been bestowed on Lt.-Col. J. R. T. Parsons, who graduated from University College in 1897, and from the School of Science in 1901. He was originally a major in the 48th Battalion; went to France in October, 1914; with a lieutenant-colonel in December, 1916, a general staff officer of the first grade in the First Canadian Division; was mentioned in despatches twice; received the French Croix de Guerre October, 1918, and the Chevalier of French Legion of Honor last November, and won the D.S.O. in January, 1917. His home was in Regina, Saskatchewan.

Another D.S.O. man is Lt.-Col. Walter M. Moorehouse, a science man of 1904, and son of Dr. Moorhouse, of St. Patrick's street. He has been connected with the machine-gun section of the service since he enlisted, first as captain and O.C. of the 15th Machine Gun Co., then major, and lieut.-Colonel of the machine gun depot, Sussex. He was mentioned in despatches last January, and was awarded the D.S.O. and the Belgian Croix de Guerre for services in the battle of Passchendaele last July.

Lt.-Col. Alan Magee, is a Montreal man and a graduate of University College in 1903. He was O.C. of the 148th Battalion, Montreal; O.C. later of the 21st Reserve Battalion, then on the headquarters staff of the third Canadian Division, then on the general staff, on May 6,8 1917, then on the headquarters staff of the 4th Canadian Division in France. He has been awarded the D.S.O. for valuable services in August, 1917.

Major Elliot Greene, a School of Science man of 1912, went overseas in the first contingent as an officer in the 9th Battery, C.F.A. He was made a major and O.C. in 1916; served as adjutant of the 5th Artillery Brigade in France, and has won the D.S.O.

Major L. C. Outerbridge was a Trinity College man in 1907 and in 1909, and graduated from University College in 1911. He comes from St. John's, Nfld. He was brigade major at Bramshot Camp till July, 1917, was mentioned in despatches, January, 1918, and has been awarded the D.S.O.

The eleven men who have won the Military Cross are as follows:—

Lieut. J. H. Eastwood, 2nd Battalion, comes from Peterboro and was a B.A. Sc. in 1916.

Capt. F. Alport, headquarters 4th Brigade, Engineers, came from Orillia and was a B.A. Sc. in 1915. He went overseas with the first contingent in the Engineers. He was wounded in October, 1915, was given a commission, and was mentioned in despatches.

Lieut. G. A. Downey, 35th Battery, C.F.A., comes from Orillia, and graduated in science, 1915. He served with the 35th Battery in France.

Capt. J. Gordon Fleck, 72nd Battalion, came from Vancouver, and graduated in science in 1906.

Lieut. A. Greey's home is in Toronto. He is a graduate in applied science, 1911.

Lieut. S. R. Greer, 4th Brigade, C.F.A., came from Moose Jaw. He was a graduate of Victoria College, 1916.

Lieut. Goodyear, 102nd, 2nd N.O.R., came from Grand Falls, Newfoundland, and graduated from Victoria College in 1913.

Lieut. E. C. Gordon, 4th Battalion, 1st C.O.R., is a Toronto boy, and graduated from University College in 1916.

Lieut. G. R. Gouinlock, 11th Battery, 6th Brigade, lived at 37 Walmer road, Toronto, and graduated in science in 1913.

Capt. J. E. Barry, C.A.M.C., attached 2nd Battalion, graduated in medicine in 1916.

Capt. S. H. Brocklebank, 46th Battalion, a graduate of University College, has died of his wounds.

To Produce Soda Ash.

It is stated that the production of soda ash may be commenced in the next few weeks at the Amherstburg plant of the Brunner, Mond, Canada Limited, which has been under construction since March, 1917. While this plant was not completed soon enough to aid in the production of explosives for war purposes, the company hopes, subject to unforeseen difficulties, to proceed with little delay on commercial production of this important commodity.

It is expected that the output at Amherstburg will be sufficient to provide for the entire Canadian requirements for this product, which was formerly secured principally from Great Britain, and which was obtained from the United States during the latter stages of the war, in so far as the United States would release the commodity for export.

MAN HANGED HIMSELF WITH A PLOUGH LINE

Climbed on Ladder, Throwing Rope Over Beam on Barn and Winding it Round His Neck

Tuesday evening of last week Chief Constable Friend, of Oshawa, received an urgent call to reach the Drew farm on the 3rd con. of East Whitby, it being stated that a man had hanged himself there.

It seems that the victim of his own destruction, Mr. Harry Jaynes, who was in his 67th year, had been in a morbid state of health and mind since the death of his life partner a few months ago and had threatened repeatedly to do away with himself. While his family were absent from home, except two of his sons, who were working in a field some distance from the house, he took occasion to carry out his threat. Going to the barn, he secured a plough-line and a ladder. Climbing on the ladder he threw the plough-line over a beam in the barn, looped it around neck and jumped off to his death. When the boys returned from the field one of them opened the barn door to be greeted with the gruesome sight of his father's dead body dangling from the beam.

Brigadier-General Williams Will Open Peterboro Motor Show on Wednesday

Commanding Officer of This Military District is Well Known Locally—Route of the Automobile Parade—Will Be a Large Showing of Cars of All Makes.

A FEW OF THE MANY FEATURES

Arrangements on a very pretentious scale have been completed for the opening of the motor show on Wednesday eve. Brig.-General Williams, who is now in charge of military district No. 3, which includes Peterborough, has kindly accepted an invitation from the committee to formally open the show. General Williams was a prisoner of war in Germany having been captured at the same time that General Mercer was killed.

He will be remembered as a son of the late Colonel Williams, who commandd the Midland Battalion, of which Peterborough had one Company, during the north west Rebellion and many residents will also remember him as when a youth he attended the Lakefield Preparatory School.

He is a thorough soldier and his sympathies are with those who have seen service.

The program of his start in the city will be published to-morrow.

The Motor Parade

Mr. R. G. Cotton, who has charge of the Motor Parade, has mapped out the following route:—

Form at the Market Square at 7:30 p.m. sharp, out Charlotte street to Park street, up Park street to Hunter street, down Hunter street to George street, up George street to Antrim street, over Antrim street to Water street, up Water street to Smith street, over Smith street to George street, down George street, to McDonnell street, over McDonnell street to Aylmer street, down Aylmer street to Murray street to the Armouries.

Their probably never was a bigger effort made by any previous motor Show Committee to entertain the large crowds that are expected at the Armouries on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday next.

The showing of cars will be most attractive and their are some surprises in store for those who are interested in motor conveyances of any kind.

The Peter Robinson Chapter I.O. D. E. are holding a Cafe Chantant in the recreation room where smokes and soft drinks will be sold and a continuous program will be given. In the band room a dance will be held every evening with excellent music provided.

A complete musical program has been arranged for each evening. The orchestra of thirty-five pieces under the direction of Prof. Gliddon will be one of the features. The following is Wednesday night's program:

Program.

By the Conservatory Orchestra under the direction of Mr. R. Gliddon:

March, Corcoron Cadets, Sousa.
Overture Lustspiel, Keller Bella.
Soprano Solo, The Valley of Laughter, Sanderson— Miss Florence Scott.
Selection, Chocolate Soldier, Straus
Saxaphone Solo, Selected, — Mr. George Clarke.
Menuet, Paderewski.
Baritone Solo, The Battle of Sterling, Sinclair—Mr. Carlisle.
Fox Trot, You are the only girl, Tebzer.
March, Chicago Cadets, Sousa.
God Save the King.

Armouries Decorated

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, Limited have had men on hand decorating the interior of the Armouries and they will be all ablaze with colour. Booths of all kinds have been erected and upwards of 150 ladies will be busy looking after the differens amusements, refreshment booths, drawings, etc.

St. Peter's Patriotic Society will conduct a sale of fancy and serviceable articles of wearing apparel The Business Girls' Club have a booth for the sale of home made candy. The Thursday Club are making a special effort to cater to the wants of those in attendance and are having their booth prettily decorated in Easter colors.

The Peter Robinson Chapter will give a dance every evening and will also sell soft drinks, smokes, etc.

The Armouries will be the busiest place in town next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and as the proceeds are for the Health Association crowds of unlooked for proportions are expected.

A number of people have made inquiries for advance tickets and the ladies in charge of this part of the work are urged to get a wide distribution.

Another Counter Revolution Removed

(United Press.)

BASLE, April 7th. — Rumors are being circulated that a counter revolution has broken out in Budapest, according to a despatch from Vienna to-day. Foreign Minister Bela Kun is said to have been assassinated.

General Smuts In Hungary

Received Foreign Minister in His Private Car—The "Red" Army.

(United Press.)
(By Edward Bing.)

BUDAPEST, April 7. — General Smuts, special allied envoy, received Foreign Minister Bela Kun, in his private car.

Smuts and his party denied rumors in circulation here that the allies were planning to send an army into Hungary. They declared that the allied course toward the new Hungarian government has not yet been decided.

An "international Red army" is being organized here. Twelve hundred well equipped volunteers arrived from Vienna under the communist leaders, Roth and Ziegel, and were immediately mustered into service. more are expected. The first two battalions of the army have left for the line of demarcation established under the armistice.

The municipal Soviet has decided not to interfere with military affairs, recognizing the importance of discipline.

Hungarian Communist aviators flew over Vienna and dropped propaganda. They landed near a suburb and were arrested, but later were released.

After the meeting with General Smuts, Bela Kun was interviewed by foreign correspondents.

"General Smuts came not as a soldier but as a diplomatist," he said. "Negotiations are proceeding in the most cordial manner. There is every hope the Entente does not intend to take an offensive attitude toward the Hungarian Soviet Republic.

"My proposal for a conference of States forming the old Austro-Hungarian empire, to be held in conjunction with the peace conference, has been received in a friendly manner. We hope that at such a conference the Hungarians, German Austrians, Czecho-Slovaks, Jugo Slavs and Roumanians will settle their political frontiers and co-operate in an effort to promote a better and more humane existence for the workers."

Announcement Due This Week

Rumor Factory is working Overtime in the Queen's Park.

Parliament Buildings, Toronto, April 7th. — In the absence of any authoritative information on the subject of the Ontario Temperance Act amendments, the rumor factory was working overtime to-day at Queen's Park, where the only topic of conversation is the approaching announcement to be made by the Prime Minister. That announcement will be forthcoming this week. Sir Wm. Hearst has already promised it. It is generally expected that it will be made to-morrow, but in the corridors this morning the belief was expressed that the final drafting of the terms might not be completed before Wednesday. In that event the announcement would probably be withheld until Thursday, which is "Government day" in the House.

FRANK JENNE says:

"Paris modistes create the fashions for ladies, but styles for men are created and made in London, near where the branch offices of the Semi-ready Company are located.

"The newest and smartest London styles for men are shown each season by the Semi-ready designs, but we are usually a year or so in accepting and adopting them as the right and proper thing to wear. For instance, the puffed sleeve and the close form-fitting coat had been worn for fully a year in London before it was accepted here, though it was shown in the Semi-ready models as soon as it appeared in London. You can always get the very latest change in styles at our Semi-ready Store, on George street."

SITUATION IS SERIOUS

Soviet Government May Be Established in Austria—Food Supplies is An Issue.

FIGHTING BOLSHEVISM

By Rubelph Kemmer.
(United Press.)

BERNE, April 7.—Establishment of an Austrian Soviet Republic by May 15th is forecasted in advices received from Vienna to-day. The "Volkswehr" already has gone over to the Communists.

The proposed Soviet Republic is being openly debated, it was reported. Socialists, who now control the government, are said to have discussed with the Communists the possibility of a change in administration, declaring they are ready to surrender their power if the Communists will assume responsibility for feeding the population. The Socialists point out that a Bolshevist Austria could not expect food from the Entente. Hungarian Bolsheviki representatives who participated in the discussion, declared readiness and ability of the Hungarian Soviet government to feed Austria. (Count Karolyi, former Hungarian Premier, is reported to be in Vienna.)

The newspapers of Vienna are fighting Bolshevism. They emphasize the promise of Entente diplomats to supply sufficient food for an "orderly population.

Information from private sources indicates that the situation in Austria is serious. The present government is said to be helpless.

The Communist government in Budapest was still in office Saturday and on that day Bela Kun's statement to a correspondent of the Associated Press, said that a proposition had been made to Gen. J. C. Smuts, the chief Allied representative in Budapest, that representatives of the various States of the old Austrian Empire and Roumania hold a conference to discuss boundary and economic questions. Recent reports from Budapest have indicated that the Communist government was not meeting with very strong opposition, at least in the Hungarian capital, in carrying out its measures. Bela Kun was formerly private secretary to Premier Lenine of the Russian Soviet government, and has been looked upon as the real leader of the Communist government in Hungary.

Only Two Townships Are In Favour of Good Roads

Others, on Saturday, Confirmed Their Opposition to the Government's Plan Under the Existing Legislation—Will Stand Pat Until Concessions Are Made.

PROGRESS IS SLIGHT

Of the eight southern townships of Peterboro County that were represented at an informal meeting of the County Council's special good roads committee on Saturday morning, only Monaghan and Otonabee signified their readiness to adopt the provincial good roads scheme. The others flatly refused to change their attitude and opinion, as frequently expressed during the past three or four years, opposing the Good Roads Act for the reason that it imposes too heavy a financial burden upon the farmers. These townships maintain that the automobile fees should be returned to the municipalities for expenditure in the construction and maintenance of their roads, apart altogether from the percentage of cost borne by the Government, under the present legislation.

Saturday morning's meeting was attended by the reeves and deputies from the following townships: Harvey, Ennismore, Douro, Dummer, Belmont and Methuen, Asphodel, Smith, Otonabee and Monaghan, also by the reeves of Lakefield, Norwood and Havelock.

Reeve Anderson presided. After a discussion of the committee's object and also of the rural sentiment in the front townships, a show of hands was taken with only two votes in favour of accepting the Good Roads scheme until certain concessions are made by the Legislature to the municipalities.

PROVINCIAL HOUSE MAY PROROGUE BEFORE EASTER

Members Will Have Their Hands Full for Next Two Weeks.

(Special to Examiner.)

TORONTO, April 7th. — There is doubt in the minds of many members of the Legislature as to the prospects of the House proroguing before Easter. Premier Hearst while making no definite statement, expressed his opinion last week that the sessions can be wound up within the next two weeks, but private members on both sides of the House shake their heads dubiously when questioned on the subject.

The Premier's comment signifies that the government will devote its utmost energies to rushing the business which still remains, through the House as expeditiously as possible, but when the bill amending the Ontario Temperance Act is brought down this week it is likely to prove a life-size snag in the way of rapid progress, but whatever its provisions it is certain to provoke discussion on both sides of the House.

Several night sessions are regarded as a matter of certainty, both this week and the next. If the government seriously intends to close the session by Easter, in the words of one member, "they'll have the busiest two weeks of their life on their hands."

Woodrow Must Remain in Bed

The President's Nurse Refuses to Let Patient Attend "Big Four" Meeting.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, April 7.—President Wilson's condition continues to show improvement to-day, but Rear Admiral Grayson ordered him to remain in bed. The President, whose cold has been broken and whose fever has subsided, wished to attend the "Big Four" meeting to-day. Grayson, however, realising that the next two or three weeks will be filled with heavy work of vast importance, insisted that Wilson remain quiet for at least another day.

Not every labor organization in the city is hostile to the Board of Trade. At the regular meeting of the Typographical Union Saturday night it was decided to affiliate with the Board of Trade, and A. J. Bolwell, president of the Typos and president of the Trades Council was appointed the union's delegate.

Budapest Soviets Are Overthrown

(United Press.)

LONDON, April 7. — The Budapest Soviets have been overthrown, according to rumors in Vienna, a news agency despatch from that city re-layed by way of Berlin, reported to-day. Bela Kun, the Hungarian Foreign Minister, is said to have been killed.

Fresh Troops Ordered Out

Blank Warrants Issued by War Minister Noske.

(United Press.)

London, April 7th. — The Berlin correspondent of the Daily News reported to-day that the German government is taking every precaution against a threatened military coup by the Spartacans. Fresh troops have been ordered to Weimar, he said, and War Minister Noske has issued two thousand blank warrants authorizing the arrest of any communist.

GENERAL STRIKE.

The Communists to-day were completing plans for a general strike early next week. Government forces are on the alert to oppose any coup de etate.

The German government has discovered plots in several towns for the establishment of a Soviet Republic, a semi-official despatch from Berlin announced to-day. Repressive measures are being taken.

The Krupp works are reported to be idle and its officials have been instructed to arm themselves against an emergency.

ALD. MURRAY GOING TO SCOTLAND SOON TO REGAIN HEALTH

Ald. Murray today verified recent rumors that he is planning to go to Scotland in the near future in the hope of fully recovering his health. He denied, however, that he intended to tender his resignation to the City Council tonight, stating that this step and his subsequent departure were indefinitely placed for the present in his preparations for returning home. Ald. Murray's illness has been deeply regretted by his many friends who will join in their wishes that in the climate and among the heather of old Scotia he may find the natural restoratives he needs. He said that he might come back to Canada if his visit is attended by the desired results, but in the present arrangements his hopes are centred upon the benefits of the trip to the old land. Ald. Murray did not discuss immediate details of his preparations, but it is expected if he leaves shortly that he will resign his seat in the Council, creating a vacancy in the Labour delegation's ranks that will be hard to fill.

GOVERNMENT LEFT MUNICH

The Dog Fight in Europe Shows Little Change—Strike Continues in Germany.

A LAST STAND

By Frank J. Taylor.
(United Press.)

BERNE, April 7. — The Bavarian government, considering opposition to the Communists hopeless, is leaving Munich, according to despatches from that city to-day. It plans to take a last stand in Bamberg (130 miles north of Munich.)

The Majority Socialists are reported to be making efforts to prevent the firm establishment of the recently proclaimed Soviet Republic. They are centering their campaign in the rural districts.

Communists armed with machine guns are reported to have seized the Assembly building in Munich yesterday morning, preventing a meeting of the Landtag. At the same time the Communists began strengthening their ties with the Hungarian and Russian Soviets. In Berlin the Soviet Executive Council has demanded abolition of War Minister Noske's volunteer army. It called upon all workmen to boycott the building in which recruiting is going on.

Bolsheviki Advance.

(United Press.)

ZURICH, April 7.—A Budapest despatch published in Vienna newspapers, declared the Russian Bolsheviki army is approaching Czernowitz.

Czernowitz is on the Prath river, in Bukowina, only ten miles from the Russian border.

(Canadian Press.)

NUREMBURG, Bavaria, April 7. — The Bavarian National Conference of Social Democrats here, has voted 49 to 8 against the introduction of a Soviet Republic in Bavaria.

(Canadian Press.)

ESSEN, April 7.— The strike situation here shows little change to-day. Street car employees voted to join the Krupp workers, so that the city's transportation system is at a standstill. Essen is also without lights, because of the strike of the firemen. In the Ruhr industrial district there was an increase yesterday in the total number of strikers.

No Definite News.

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, April 7.—There has been no definite news here concerning the situation in Munich since reports were received of early exciting occurrences.

From such news as reached Berlin, however, it seems probable that the Soviet government has not yet been proclaimed in any way that can be regarded as official or binding.

Cease Fighting.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, April 7.—Ukrainians are willing to cease fighting the Poles if a plebiscite to decide ownership of territory in the dispute between the two republics is arranged under control of the Entente, according to a statement made by M. Holubovitch, Premier of West Ukraine.

Tariff Will Be the Real Issue

Agriculturists Are Tuned Up for Real Fight.

(Special to Examiner.)

TORONTO, April 7. — If the budget when brought down by Sir Thomas Whtie, doesn't meet the requirements of the agriculturists, there will be a real fight.

This is the position taken by the Council of Agriculture at its recent session in Winnipeg.

Messrs J. J. Morrison, A. A. Powers and M. W. Doherty of the United Farmers, returned to town on Saturday from Winnipeg, where they attended the meeting of the council. "The main question before the council," stated Mr. Morrison, "was the tariff question. It was decided to stick to the original platform of the council of agriculture on the tariff."

It was decided to push the matter if the budget when brought down doesn ot meet the desires of the agriculturists in this regard then the farmers will push the matter to the limit.

FORTY YEARS.

OTTAWA, April 7. — Hon. T. C. Norris, the Premier of Manitoba, who arrived in Ottawa to-day, says the west is deadly in earnest over the tariff. "We have had forty years of protection and all our progress has been made in spite of it," he said. "Now we think it is time that we had our innings.

"I believe that a dozen commodities on the free list, including open markets an dfree food, would satisfy our people for the present anyway. "The West thinks that if nothing is done this year nothing will ever be done. The people think it is time for a show down and they are unanimous."

Look For Revolution.

WASHINGTON, April 7.— Advices reaching the State Department to-day indirectly from Vienna said a Communist revolution is imminent in German Austria.

New Coal Firm Takes Over Business

Mr. Robert Johnston Takes Over Interest of Mr. Archie Weir.

Through ill-health Mr. Archie Weir has been compelled to give up active business and his interest in the firm of Weir & McCarthy has been taken over by Mr. Robert Johnston, a brother of Dr. Johnston, V.S., of this city. Mr. Johnston has been in the coal and wood business in the West and knows the business thoroughly, and will be welcomed as a new resident to the city. The new firm name will be McCarthy & Johnston.

"Wear-Ever Aluminum" Demonstration

All this week, a special demonstration of the "Wear-Ever" Aluminum utensils will be held at the store of Messrs. Campbell & Best, hardware merchants, Hunter street. An extra attraction every day will be the offer of a $1.95 three-quart "Wear-Ever" Sauce Pan for $1.49. An expert demonstrator from the service department of the manufacturers of "Wear-Ever" Aluminum cooking utensils, will be in attendance every day to explain the labor-saving and money-saving merits of "Wear-Ever."

GIVEN RIGHT TO ISSUE A WRIT

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, April 7.— After nearly three years, the Ontario Electrical Development Company has been given the right to issue a writ against the Attorney General without a fiat from that official. This is the substance of the decision of the Privy Council, cabled to Canada to-day, in which it is stated that the Privy Council has allowed the appeal of the company with costs.

Want of tact is an incurable infirmity.

THE REFERENDUM

Although the Ontario Government has not brought down in the Legislature the details of the liquor referendum to be submitted to the people of the province in September, the four alternatives given out on Saturday are generally accepted as the policy that was adopted at the recent convention. It is evident that the Government is by no means of one mind in regard to the question and the opinions of the Cabinet vary from that of Sir William Hearst, who is an out-and-out prohibitionist, to the view point of Hon. T. W. McGarry, the Provincial Treasurer, who a short time ago announced that he was opposed to prohibition and went out of his way to attack the temperance forces of the Province. The first expectation was that the referendum should be based on the simple question of whether or not the Ontario Temperance Act should be repealed. The pressure of those opposed to temperance legislation is evidenced however by the inclusion into the question of the wine and beer issue and the danger is that the ballot will be so involved and complicated that the friends of temperance may get confused with so many angles to the problem and that the license system in some form or other may get a fresh foothold in the province. The Government should see to it that the ballot shall be made as simple and easily understood as possible if the real opinion of the voters of the Province is to arrived at.

A NOTABLE VISITOR.

The motor show this week not only gives the peopel of this city a chance to assist in the work of the Peterborough Health Association, but also affords an opportunity to welcome the new officer commanding the Third Military District, General Victor Williams, who is coming up from Kingston to open the big exhibition. The visit of General Williams is in itself an event of unusual importance, as it is his first appearance here since taking over his new command. General Williams has had an interesting history in connection with the war. He will be remembered as commandant of the big camp at Valcartier when Canada's first division was mobilised. He went overseas with the 1st Division and afterwards, when the 3rd Division was formed was given a responsible appointment with that division. On that terrible second day of June, 1916, when General Williams was accompanying General Mercer in a tour of the 3rd Division's front line trenches, the party were caught in the frightful bombardment that almost wiped out the 4th C.M.R. It will be remembered that General Williams was badly wounded and carried to a tunnel, a short distance back of the firing trench, where Capt. Park, medical officer of the 4th C.M.R., had established a dressing station. The enemy's shells smashed in both ends of the tunnel and by the time the imprisoned men dug themselves out they found the position in the hands of the enemy and the officers and men, the majority of whom were wounded, were taken prisoner. General Williams spent many months in Germany before being invalided to Switzerland and afterwards sent home. A few months ago he was appointed to the command of this district.

He should be given a warm welcome to Peterborough, not only because of the important position which he holds, but also because of his part in the war.

VARSITY'S RECORD.

The fourth Varsity Magazine Supplement, which has just made its appearance, is not only a notable issue from an artistic standpoint, but also furnishes an impressive demonstration of the part that the graduates and under-graduates of Toronto University have taken in the Great War. To the number of 5,400 have the sons of Varsity fought for British's cause, and the Supplement brings home a realization of how heavy has been the price that has been paid. Among the pages of this remarkable number appear the photographs of 530 former Varsity men who have fallen in the struggle, while there are the names of 74 others whose photographs could not be obtained, making a total of 604 deaths among the enlistments from the University, and the affiliated faculties. The valour of the students on many a field is attested to by the fact that four pages in the Supplement are required to publish the record of military honours bestowed by allied nations. In addition to these features there is a photographic section of 15 pages containing the photographs of 854 members of the University who are on active service.

The Fourth Supplement is published, as an editorial preface explains, "by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto, as a tribute of pride and affection to those 5400 members of our Alma Mater who have upheld her fair name and honour on many a far-flung battle line." The volumnt should be highly prized by all friends of Toronto University.

WHERE HELP IS NEEDED.

Sir Herbert Ames, head of the Canadian Patriotic League, did will in bringing the sad case of the widows of British, French and other allied reservists, living in Canada, to the attention of the Special Pension Committee, of the House of Commons, and in urging that the Canadian Government should recognize its moral responsibility in looking after unfortunate families. They are the dependents of men who were citizens of Canada, whose children are Canadians. When the call of war came, and the reservists of the allies were summoned to the colors, they did not hang back but were found on the first ships crossing the Atlantic towards the scene of hostilities. They were on the firing line withing a few weeks after the commencement of the war and many of them were killed before the Canadian Expeditionary Force set foot in France. The widows of those who gave up their lives have been left with the meagre pensions that European countries provide for the dependents of the fallen. The allowance may be sufficient for the countries in which it has been adopted, but it is far too small to maintain the widows and children of Canadian reservists. The Patriotic Fund has been helping to support these families but the Fund will soon have finished its work, and after that the dependents of the men who loyally obeyed the first call to arms will be left to struggle along, trying to keep breath in their bodies on a pension allowance that is pitifully inadequate in the face of the heavy cost of living in this country. It is estimated that the pensions of these unfortunates could be brought up to the standard of the Canadian pensions by an expenditure of $175,000 a year. The people of Canada, if the facts were known, would cheerfully endorse the Government in deciding that these families should be placed on the same footing as the dependents of members of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces who met death in the Great War.

Idle curiosity causes a lot of people to work overtime.

Bachelors are the only men who think they know it all.

CEASES RATIONING EGGS.

Germany Abolishes Card System — Lower Prices Expected Soon.

BERLIN.— Although the rationing of eggs in Germany ceases to-day by official decree, the card system by which the purchaser theoretically could obtain an egg occasionally being abolished, it is not expected that the visible supply will increase soon.

Eggs ostensibly have been costing 7 1-2 cents apiece, which is the officially maximum price, but with the increase in underground methods of disposing of food they have almost disappeared from the market, although easily obtainable at from 30 to 35 cents each from private sources. Many eggs have been withheld for the making of Easter cakes, but it is expected by the optimistic that they will be somewhat less scarce and less costly after the Easter season.

U. S. MOSQUITO FLOTILLA ORDERED TO ENGLAND

WASHINGTON, D. C.—F. D. Roosevelt, Acting Secretary of the Navy, announced to-day that the cruisers Chattanooga and Galveston, the gunboat Sacramento, Eagles No. 1, 2 and 3 and several submarine chasers were under orders to proceed to Plymouth, England, where they will report to Rear Admiral Knapp, who has succeeded Vice Admiral Sims in command of the American naval forces in European waters.

The future movement of these vessels will be under Admiral Knapp's direction. Mr. Roosevelt specifically denied a report that they had been ordered to the North Russian coast, although he said it was possible some of them might go there later.

Rev. D. R. Gandier Delivered An Instructive and Inspiring Message to St. Andrew's Congregation

What Happened to the World and Christianity When the Bonnds of War Were Let Loose—The Reconstruction That is Taking Place.

Rev. Dr. Gandier, Principal of Knox College, Toronto, one of the prime movers in the "Forward" movement that is now taking place in all the Protestant denominations of the Dominion, was the minister in charge at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday morning. Peterboro has heard Dr. Gandier on several other occasions and on Sunday morning St. Adrew's congregation did him honour by turning out in large numbers in spite of the threatening weather.

His theme was the reconstruction that is taking place and must necessarily take place in the Christian church to-day.

"Repent ye for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand."—St. Matthew, 3: 2.

"Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make His paths straight." St. Matthew, 3: 3.

A Companion.

Dr. Gandier compared the Bibical kingdom of Israel, with the present order of things on earth. The coming of Jesus meant to Israel either the advancement of God's Kingdom on earth or utter dissolution and ruin. We, in the same way as the Israelites live at the end of one edge and the beginning of another. It is a day of dissolution, a day of judgment but it will be a day of mercy if we will repent of our past to the Lord. Speaking of the Christian church in Canada Dr. Gandier stated that compared with other institutions in Canada the church does not have to adopt an epologetic tone but in the light of past events we have to confess that the Christian church has failed in its duty in that it has failed to instil in the hearts of mankind love for one another.

An Example.

Taking Europe as an example he said that Europe was known as Christian Europe but what a spectacle was presented to us with Greek Roman Catholic and Protestant, the greatest divisions of the Christian church locked up in a deadly struggle, ruthlessly destroying our wealth and on such a scale that it can only be estimated in hundreds of billions Millions of men were slaughtered and millions more are broken for life The perpetrators of this were moulded in the image of God. How different the situation would have been in Europe today if the national and ecclesiastical boundaries had been broadened; if a passion for human brotherhood had been idstilled in the hearts of men; if th people had ministered instead of being content to being ministered unto.

Cost of War.

Speaking of the tremendous cost of the war Dr. Gandier asked the congregation what would have been the result if one-tenth of the money that has been spent on war, armaments and preparations for war for the last hundred years had been devoted for the furtherance of the cause of the Lord in Europe? If one-tenth of the number of men who fought on the battlefields of Europe, had been engaged as missionaries would this war have taken place. Instead of Europe drenched with blood, with race prejudices and class hatred the nations would have been standing together in a Christian brotherhood for each other's good.

Another Chance.

But the Lord is giving the Christian Church another chance. The war was the direct issue of human sin. Tyranny and oppression have wrought their own overthrow with a completeness which we could hardly hope to think of even in our most optimistic moments. Dr. Gandier gave several illustrations of the great fall of tyranny in the great war—the surrender of the Turkish Empire and of the Hun fleet.

Thoroughly Done.

"God didn't let the war end till his work was done thoroughly," said Dr. Gandier. The war has brought together the two great English-speaking nations of the world—Great Britain and the United States—who are to-day dominating the peace conference. Isn't it wonderful that God is putting the leadership of the world into the hands of nations who have a vital Christianity, a free and progressive Christianity, a living force in the life of the nation.

President Wilson said they smashde German militarism to make the world safe for democracy. What kind of a democracy? Do you think a mob-reigning democracy is better than a Kaiser autocracy? Look at Russia. In suddenly destroying autocracy we have let loose the flood gates of revenge, brutalness ignorance, indiscipline and cruelty. We have made a huge task for ourselves. It must be undertaken and it must be done by making the whole world Christian. We must put a new spirit in men to do this. Unless there is a radiance of God's love as never before we are doomed. To make the world Christian we must begin in our own country. It is useless for one nation to be Christian. This is a case where it doesn't take two to make a war.

Did Not Want War.

Great Britin didn't want war, France didn't Russia didn't, and Austria-Hungary wished to withdraw before the opening of hostilities. But Germany jealous of Great Britain plunged the whole world into the hell of war. We must do more than look for the Christianizing of our our nation. The world is one neighborhood to-day. There are no foreign and no home mission now. Would it not pay to spend billions of dollars and thousands of lives to Christianize the world rather than have an anti-Christian Europe to plunge us into another war when we would spend billions of dollrs and millions of lives. It is a straight business proposition. No nation is safe until all nations are permeted with the spirit of Christ. The organized Church is the only institution that can enter upon this campaign. The nation can't do it We are on the threshold of a new order and that is what the "Forward" movement is for. We must humble ourselves before God so that he can use us to help the world.

Music & Drama

"FLO-FLO."

While the costumes and the pretty girls who wore them were the outstanding features of "Flo-Flo," the musical comedy which visited the Grand on Saturday, the production did not depend altogether on these things to record a success. There was a notable cast of fun-makers, a pair of eccentric dancers who scored heavily, a happy musical score by Silvo Hein, and many other accessories to an enjoyable presentation.

Fred de Gresac, who wrote "The Bride Shop," which apeared here recently, is also responsible for the book of "Flo-Flo." The latter production recalls the former, inasmuch as the bride shop furnishes the locale of one of the acts in the two productions, and some of the characters, notably "Angelina Stokes and Billy Cope" appear in both. The display of lingerie in the first act, and of cloaks in the second act of "Flo-Flo," made the women in the audience gasp enviously, while it gave the men a chance of being doubly thankful, first because they enjoyed the display, and secondly because they could thank their stars that they did not have to pay for any of the costumes on view.

There was a splendid array of principals. Louise Kelly, who appeared in the title role, had the part of a vampirish corset model, and the choice was a happy one, inasmuch as Miss Kelly filled all the requirements of the role. Carl George was very funny as Isidor Mosier, one of the proprietors of "The Bride Shop." His impersonation of a Hebrew business man, of the type of the Montagu Glass characters, kept the audience in a happy mood, while W. B. Burns and Edmund Lynn, as entertaining a pair of comedy dancers as the Grand has housed in a long time, made a hit every time they appeared. William Cummings contributed a convincing presentation of the part of Billy Cope, the "small town boy," and Rhea Norton was equally successful as a Spanish girl.

The chorus was well above the average in looks, and miles ahead of the usual musical comedy "Merry-Merry" in cleverness. Their dancing was a feature. "Good-bye Happy Days" and "Would You Say No" were the song hits of the production.

The Grand offers a big programme of vaudeville and pictures for the first three days of this week. Gaby Brothers and Clarke are the vaudeville head-liners and other acts are, Archer and Archer in a comedy skit, and Marle and Duffy in a comedy horizontal bar act. The film feature presents Geraldine Farrar in a wonderful picture, "Shadows." There are other pictures as well.

SOLDIERS' COUNCIL WILL ARREST ALL UPPER CLASSES

Proclaim a General Strike, Then a Soviet Republic.

(Special to The Examiner.)

BASLE, April 7.—A despatch from Berlin to-day reported that the Workmen's and Soldiers' Council there had decided to arrest influential persons of the Bourreoisie and Press and occupy the War Ministry, after which a Soviet Republic would be proclaimed simultaneously with a general strike.

SOME VETERANS PARADE AGAINST W.C.T.U. TAGS

Toronto, April 5.—"The W.C.T.U. tried to lose the war by stopping our words upon it, a crowd of some 200 or more returned soldiers in uniform and men in mufti, paraded some of the downtown streets yesterday.

Taggers for the W.C.T.U. camsmokes. Every tag is a boost for the Kaiser."

Carrying a banner with these paign to raise funds for the extension of the Willard Home were at all the corners, and the members of the parade attempted to prevent the women and girls collecting the money.

At Queen and Yonge streets a lively scene ensued when the men placed a sign on one of the bank buildings. One of the collectors tore it down and threw it in the road. The soldiers rescued the sign, and there was fear, for a moment, that serious trouble might develop.

Wearers of the little flag that the taggers were pinning on those who dropped contributions into the boxes were intercepted on the street by the paraders, and asked to take them off in a large number of instances where the request was refused the badges were torn off forcibly.

On Queen street, a lady wearing a beautiful sealskin coat was stopped and the demand made that she remove the flag. She refused to do so, and it was torn off, damaging the coat.

The Hospital Ship "Loyalty"

HER INTERESTING CAREER RECALLED

1915, ex-R.M.S. "Empress of India." Hospital ship "Loyalty," Bombay,

QUITE recently the hospital ship "Loyalty" has been converted in Bombay into a troopship, and the occasion appears to justify publication of some account of her career as a hospital ship, a career which was not only one of great service but which reflects in a very remarkable way the great generosity of his Highness, the Maharajah of Gwalior.

In August, 1914, his Highness the Maharajah of Gwalior visited Bhopal and arranged with the Begum Saliha to present the Government with a hospital ship, to be called "Loyalty," to which the Chiefs of India were to be asked to subscribe. The offer was gratefully accepted, but there was considerable delay in procuring a suitable ship. Eventually the ship chosen was the "Empress of India," built by the Naval Construction & Armaments Company, of Barrow-in-Furness, in 1891, for the Canadian Pacific Railway's Pacific Ocean trades. Together with her sister ships "Empress of China" and "Empress of Japan," she was specially designed, built on very handsome lines, and fitted most luxuriously with everything considered necessary for the comfort of passengers of all classes. The matter of engine power and speed was kept specially in view, so that the ships in their time were the fastest in the Pacific trade, and earned a great name for the quick transmission of passengers, mails and fine goods, such as silk and tea, between Hong Kong, Japan and Vancouver, and thence to various points by the Canadian Pacific Railway across the North American Continent. It will thus be seen that the "Loyalty," prior to becoming a hospital ship, took a great part as "Empress of India," in the opening up and developing of commerce in one of the outlying parts of the Empire. Incidentally she has the honor of carrying King George as a passenger when he was Prince of Wales.

It would almost seem to be in the natural order of events that the good ship "Empress of India," after carrying on such useful commercial work for 23 years, and being relieved on the Pacific station by a larger and more modern style of ship (the new "Empress of Asia") should come on the scene at the outbreak of the present war, just when his Highness the Maharajah of Gwalior decided to record his loyal and munificent acts of 1900, by presenting a hospital ship of 300 beds capacity for use during the war. Most appropriately the ship was acquired from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. The Director of the Royal India Marine and his officers acted for his Highness in the matter of buying, altering and refitting, the "Empress of India," of London, and changing her name to the "Loyalty" of Bombay. This was done in October, 1914, and within four months from the time war was declared the hospital ship "Loyalty" was ready to begin her good work and assist in the relief of suffering humanity.

Record of Four Years.

The "Loyalty" sailed from the Persian Gulf on November 29th, 1914, having been remained by Lady Willingdon on the previous day, and from that time up to nearly the end of last year she was in commission. On her first voyage she was detached to Karachi, where she stayed till December 24th, when she left for England. During this time the ship was bought outright for the Chiefs, and subsequently remained their property.

In the four years she was in commission as a hospital ship she sailed 41 voyages and carried 15,406 patients British, Indians, Chinese, West Indian, East and West African, and German, Turkish and Arab prisoners of war.

The hospital was staffed with three or four I. M. S. officers and one military assistant-surgeon, and one matron and four to six nursing sisters and sub-assistant surgeons, compounders, ward orderlies, etc. A low lent by the Government of India, the rest being recruited from Gwalior, Indore, Dhar and Bharatpur States, and the balance locally in Bombay. The cost of buying and fitting out the ship was approximately $600,000, and her upkeep for four years was $1,500,000, the total being nearly two and a half million dollars, of which by far the greater part was paid by H. H. the Maharajah of Gwalior, though contributions were made from other States.

Incidents at Sea.

Unique as part of the ship's life-saving work was the rescue of the crew of the steamship "Ben Vorlich," after that ship had been shelled and torpedoed by a German submarine near Ushant, on August 1st, 1915. This incident and the sinking of the steamship "Clintonia" were witnessed by the "Loyalty" from a distance of about 14 miles, when she was full of badly wounded men (British cases from the Dardanelles) on her way down Alexandria and Malta to Southampton.

When plying in Indian waters, the "Loyalty" had the good fortune to render assistance to a transport which took fire and was abandoned at sea, the "Edavana." Hearing the distressed vessel's messages on the wireless, the "Loyalty" proceeded with all speed to the place indicated and picked up 70 of the burning ship's people in three boats during the night, afterwards transferring them to the steamship "Madras," which was bound for Bombay. Had the "Loyalty" not been an hospital ship she would have towed the "Edavana" into Bombay, but, of course, could not do this without infringing the Geneva Red Cross Convention.

She also rendered assistance to several India and native craft met at sea during her voyage, short of water and provisions, and to a lighthouse crew in the Red Sea.

PLEA FOR SHOP REPRESENTATION

A practical plan for representation of workers in determining conditions of work and for the prevention of industrial disputes

First let me lecture a little on labour. One must get down to fundamentals or else no topic.

Will you acknowledge that the past history of labour has indeed been a tragedy, also that at present we are on the verge of revolution. Call it Bolshevism, Spartacan or what you will.

Do you believe that the best buffer against revolution is what labour stands for—a healthy, prosperous and progressive working class, with happy home conditions. Russia had not these things.

Causes.—A man some time ago got 45 cents per hour. The soldiers return, trade slackens through loss of war work, the labour market gets crowded, so the employer goes to his employee and gives notice of reduction of wages from 45 cents to 35 cents per hour. If the employee don't like it, he can get out and another takes his place at 35 cents. Yet that employer still commanded the same price for the article produced and material at the same cost, in fact a little lower, but he did not care how that man with a family, a good citizen, dutiful and loyal, was to live, so long as he got his 10 cents per hour from him. Call him (the employer), a burglar, he would be wild, but yet he was, and is distinctly putting his hand into that poor, poverty-stricken man's picket and taking out 10 cents every working hour. Now don't laugh; I want you to understand the psychology of the worker. The employer was acting upon the law of supply and demand. Was it, or is it fair; is a civilization right that permits men to starve under its system. It's obvious; if it is the rule, it must be the rule no longer. Again, the worker goes to the library to try and improve his mind and education. He picks up Poor and Moody's manual (by the way a working man usually goes to the library when he is out of work, idle, which only aggravates the case more). The first thing he reads is Prestolite Co. 100 dollar share valued at $100,000. 100 dollars invested in Fords is now valued at $50,000 and brings in a yearly income of $3,000 for the non-producer. Times are slack, and the man that earned that money is starving as he sits reading how he must have been exploited. The natural conclusion is that he has not been getting anything like the value of his labour. He picks up a magazine, reads a Crown Life Insurance advertisement. Here it is: Experience of 100 men at the age of 25 years. Statistics show the following facts when they reach 65 years: 36 will be dead, 1 will be rich, 4 will be wealthy, 5 will be supporting themselves by work, 54 will be dependent on friends for charity. 80 per cent. are unable to leave any money at death.

The capitalist, the junker, knows this, and has never tried to remedy it. Does one wonder that labour is revolting? With enlightenment has come evolution for the better. I have taken these few everyday facts, as seen by the most thoughtless and careless worker, but when one studies this question as a science, the tragedy that presents itself is nowhere outclassed in its barbarity. The wage slave indeed has been worse off than the chattel slave. To alter such conditions, and as an act of progress and co-operation, I suggest that a scheme be adopted by employers of a "parliament of employees," consisting of a number of men and women elected by a popular vote of the employees in each department of the establishment, for a term of one year (or a fixed period). Then a senate formed of the foremen and department heads, and the cabinet as it were to be the executive heads of the firm. They claim the power to veto, but discretion of the highest importance would be here needed. The meeting of the employees and foremen to be held every two weeks, in the company's time, (this is important). A set of laws for the conduct of business should be drawn up, for both bodies. Questions affecting working conditions, wages, piece work rates if any; sanitation, safety, or anything for the good and welfare of the parties concerned; any recommendation decided upon after careful discussion must be passed by the three governing bodies. No change becomes law until it has been approved by all three bodies. Through this means you get at the psychology of the worker. You get to know their wants, and can therefore avoid trouble; prevention is better than cure. Under the ordinary shop committee plan the trouble has usually formulated before the matter is brought to the notice of the proper authorities. But under the parliament system the employees hear and report progress of their respective departments; learn about the troubles of other departments, and are able to help their fellow workers to get over any difficulties that may be experienced. Permitting the men to have a say in adjusting their wages removes this question as a field of dispute. Of course, this is democracy aimed at in business. At present each man is forced to work for himself, but under the educational system of this democratic form of business control he learns that co-operation in all things is to his advantage. At first the employee may also show a lack of response and confidence, but the employer has been responsible in the past for this. It is now up to the employer to restore that confidence by a dividend system. This, too, would be an incentive for better work. At the end of a certain period, once a month, the efficiency of the work can be determined by the relative value of its output to its cost or production. You will find that standards of production and cost and saving, occasioned by increased production and quality of work as well as decreased cost and overhead, this should be shared with employees 50-50. This bonus could be paid in a separate envelope marked dividend.

This plan is not original; it is being worked in several factories in this Dominion and the United States. One firm had it working for the last two years with surprisingly good results all around. A great saving is made in the turn-over of labour, which becomes no longer a serious problem under the above mentioned conditions.

Has Suggested a Conference

Hungarian Minister Makes a Proposal to Gen. Smuts.

(Canadian Press.)

BUDAPEST, April 7.—The Hungarian government has proposed to General Jan Christian Smuts, who was sent here by the Peace Conference at Paris, that a conference be held at Vienna or Prague between representatives of Czecho-Slovakia, Roumania, German-Austria, Hungary and Jugo-Slavia regarding boundaries and economic questions.

Bela Kun, Hungarian Minister, in discussing the situation to-day, said: "This is the first time the Entente has sent us a diplomatic mission. This is proof that the Soviet government is the first strong regime since the November revolution. There is not the least sign that the Entente wishes to undertake military operations against us. General Smuts has been received in a friendly spirit, and the proposition for a conference concerning boundaries has been submitted to him."

"MICKEY"

Mack Sennett likes to use animals in pictures, and in "Mickey," featuring Mabel Normand, to be shown at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, two cats are used to bring out a strikingly dramatic contrast in the story, which will attract attention not only as a picture, but as a nature study.

One is a lean, scrawny frog hunter, who rustles for his grub in the mountain cabin where little Mickey lives with her foster father. One of the "close-ups" of the picture shows this cat actually fishing for frogs in a mountain stream. If anyone were to write a magazine story about a cat fishing, some professors of natural history would begin to shriek, "Natural fake!" But they will have to believe what their eyes see. A paw suddenly flashes out with the speed of a snake striking, and the frog is hooked.

They found this cat in the California mountains, where they went to film Miss Normand in some of the scenes from "Mickey." The old miner whose cabin they used, told them that the cat learned to fish from being left alone for days at a time in the cabin. He had to hustle for his food or starve. He hustled.

Nature men would probably call this a revision to type. In their jungle days, before they became domesticated, cats undoubtedly were fishers. So natural history will say that they did not learn how to fish, this cat remembered how to fish. It took up the heritage of a savage past.

Afterwards the scene of "Mickey" is shifted to a luxurious home in the city, where poor little Mickey finds the going hard and sorrowful. Here there is another cat—a soft, silky Persian aristocrat, pampered like a prima donna. Nothing could more strikingly illustrate the change in Mickey's environment, and the elaborate attention to detail than the contrast in these two cats.

$6,000,000 GIFT TO WORKERS

Eastman Kodak Company Announce Benefit for Older Employees.

ROCHESTER, N.Y.—Announcement was made to-day of a gift by George Eastman, President of the Eastman Kodak Company, to older employees of the company of 10,000 shares of its common stock, having a present market value of nearly $6,000,000. This stock is to be sold to employees at the par value of $100 a share on an easy payment plan, the proceeds amounting to $1,000,000 to go into an employees' welfare fund.

The company has agreed to set aside a like amount of its unissued common stock, to be sold at par to later employees as they become eligible through length of service.

The Kodak Company has for several years paid to employees an annual wage dividend amounting to nearly $1,000,000, which is to be continued.

Bad Breath? Don't Be Offensive Removes the Cause

Follow This Advice and Your Breath Will Soon be Sweet and Pure.

The bad part of Bad Breath is the fact that nearly every case shows considerable trouble from indigestion, belching gas, bloating, piles or some form of stomach misery. Often er than not a pimply fact, a sluggish constipated condition is the true cause of many a man's failure in life.

By aiding digestion and building up the weak muscles of the stomach and bowels, DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS completely overcome constipation and all forms of stomach illness.

"I was terribly run down with stomach trouble that arose through neglected constipation, writes Mrs. P. D. Quigley, from Washburn, P. O. I simply couldn't half digest my food. I had dreadful headaches, piles and yellow muddy skin. The effect of DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS was phenomenal. I have gained in weight, have a clear skin, no more headaches, I eat well, sleep well and enjoy my meals.

There is no need to be in failing health when cure is so sure, so easy by taking Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c per box, at all dealers. REFUSE A SUBSTITUTE.

TWO MEN BLOWN TO BITS IN POWDER WORKS EXPLOSION

WAYNE, N.J., April 5.—Two men were blown to bits by an explosion at the Dupont Powder Works here They were George Duncan, of Lincoln Park and John D. Green, of Wayne. They were at work in the house in which powder is pressed into shells when the explosion occurred. The arms of one of the men were found two hundred and fifty yards away from the plant.

Almost simultaneously with the explosion in the press house another occurred in the grinding room a few hundred feet distant, but no one was at work there. Both buildings were demolished. The first explosion, the cause of which is not known, caused the second blast. The concussion shattered windows in most of the plant buildings and in residences and stores of this village, Lincoln Park, Mount View and Pequannock, all within a radius of one mile.

GOOD ROADS SYSTEM ENDORSED BY CITY AND COUNTY MEN

Representatives of Otonabee and North Monaghan Particularly Favourable to Adoption of the Ontario Policy.

M.P.P.'s PROMISE AID

With the same spirit of co-operation that won the great war, representatives of the county and city met Saturday afternoon to get down to a working basis in the question of good roads.

The meeting simply bristled with optimism. Every class in the community was represented. Farmers, merchants, labour, manufacturer and the learned professions all stood shoulder to shoulder in an effort to make the county and city what it should be.

In listening to the broad, enlightened and unselfish views of such men as Mr. F. E. Wilson and Mr. Wm. Madill, of North Monaghan, no one would wonder at some of the aldermen wanting to take the whole of the township into the city.

Mr. W. A. Anderson, Reeve of Otonabee, and ex-Warden of the county, took the chair at half-past one, standard time. Just here the farmers had the drop on the city men as they appeared at the meeting on their own time (not Mayor Duncan's), which meant that Alderman Phelan and his followers arrived an hour ahead of time. However, everyone took it good-naturedly, even if some of the aldermen had to forego their pie at lunch in order to be there on time "a la Duncan."

Mr. Anderson, after a short review of the good roads system, explained that Otonabee had held back in the past because they felt they would have to pay more for good roads than they could possibly get out of it. But now that legislation had changed things, and it was possible for a township to pay according to the actual expenditure in the municipality they had changed their views. And why, he asked, should the people have to pay 100 per cent. for roads when 30 or 40 per cent. would be paid by the Government? This proved to be the dominant argument of the whole meeting, backed up by Mayor Duncan's statement that the city was prepared to assume their end and co-operate every way possible.

Warden McIntosh, while of the opinion that no mistake had been made in not going into county good roads during the war, said that things had changed, and what would now be a benefit to the county would likewise prove a boon to the city.

Both Peterborough members for the Legislature, Mr. Gillespie and Mr. Thompson, were present. Both members spoke, offering their assistance in any way possible by the introducing of such amendments as would assist us in promoting good roads expeditiously and economically.

Several others spoke, and all were optimistic. The spirit of "we" prevailed, showing that any clearage between rural and city people was dead and buried so far as the county and city of Peterborough are concerned.

The following resolution, moved by Mr. R. B. Rogers, and seconded by Mr. Wm. Madill, was carried unanimously: "Resolved that this meeting of representative citizens of the county and city of Peterborough endorse the Government good roads system for the county of Peterborough, and a copy of this resolution be sent on to the County Council at the next meeting."

Saturday's meeting was arranged by Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works, in an effort to bring about a working partnership between the citizens of the county and city.

PARENTS CIRCLE OF QUEEN MARY SCHOOL

Enjoyable Evening Was Spent at Home of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Medd.

On Friday evening last the Parents Circle of Queen Mary School held a most enjoyable gathering at the home of Major and Mrs. S. T. Medd, Charlotte street, where the parents, teachers and friends of the school listened with much pleasure to an excellent programme. Splendid instrumental solos and recitations were rendered by the pupils of Queen Mary school and vocal duets and a double quartette by pupils of King Edward school, sung under the direction of Mr. Gould, vice-principal of that school, were exceptionally well rendered. The singing of the different parts by such young children reflected great credit not only on the children themselves but also upon their director, Mr. Gould, who also acted as accompanist.

Another feature worthy of special mention was a vocal duet sung by the little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Blade, the alto being sung by a little tot of five years old.

After refreshments had been served by the members of the circle a most enjoyable evning was brought to a close.

FRANCE DEMANDS ADEQUATE REPARATION

Allied Conference Do Not Hold Out Enough For France Says the Matin.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, April 5. — France cannot yield on the question of obtaining adequate reparation from Germany, the 'Matin' declared in an editorial dealing with the Peace Conference situation regarding the French claims.

"On all territorial questions a satisfactory agreement is being reached," the 'Matin' said, "but concerning the reparation question there is still a gap between what we are offered and what we justly demand. The French government will be unyielding on this matter. It cannot sign a treaty which will mean the bankruptcy of France."

Vaudeville Pictures At the Grand To-day, Tuesday & Wednesday

In order to meet the public demand for a little better class of vaudeville and pictures, the first half of every week will be devoted to three or more high-class vaudeville acts and first run feature pictures. The vaudeville acts for today will come direct from Shea's Theatre in Buffalo and Toronto, headed by the famous Gabby Bros. and Clark, talkative manipulators of hats and clubs; Archer and Carr in a comedy skit, entitled, "Love Me, Love My Dog," and Marlo and Duffy, clever comedy artists on the horizontal bar.

The feature picture will be Geraldine Farrar in "Shadows," a drama of eastern days and Alaskan nights. Also Fatty Arbuckle, in "Fatty's Indian Sweetheart," one of the best Arbuckle comedies, and the Grand Screen Magazine, "The World Before Your Eyes."

Seats can be reserved in advance for the evening performances or by telephone, which will be held until 7.30 evening of performance.

To those who find it an inconvenience to attend the evening performances, there will be a matinee daily at 2.30. Avoid the crowds. Attend the matinees if possible.

Peterboro Industrial School Is An Asset to the City

This Year's Work Was More Satisfactory Than the Last—Mr. A. F. Hagerman is in Charge of the Work—The Inspector's Report.

Dr. Cody, Minister of Education for Ontario, who visited the city last summer shortly after his appointment to the Cabinet, in several speeches foreshadowed legislation which would provide for more technical training to the rising generation. At present this training is carried on in the different cities of the province in quarters and with staffs which are entirely inadequate to the need. The Department of Education provided some time ago for technical training centres, and under the provision made by the Department, whereby the Government pays one half of the salaries of the staff and the cost of all equipment, the Peterborough Industrial School was opened in the old Collegiate Institute next to the Central school, in 1916. Advantage was at once taken of the opportunities provided, and the first year many pupils were enrolled. The last season of the Industrial School which closed on March 31, enrolled 218 pupils, which, although smaller numerically than the preceding year, was yet too large for the quarters provided. The school opened last October and fifteen classes a week were held. Mr. A. F. Hagerman, the local manual training teacher, who has had eighteen years' experience in technical education, was principal, assisted by a staff of expert teachers, gathered indiscriminately from local industries.

This Year's Work.

Mr. Hagerman states the work this year was more satisfactory than last. The organization of the classes of 1917-18 was almost completely destroyed by the operation of the Military Service Act, but the work took a hold on the pupils last term and very few dropped out. Women were enrolled in the motor mechanics, drafting and both electricity classes, subjects which it is generally conceded are men's trades.

The Classes.

Two drafting classes were held each week, under the direction of Mr. Enos Maybee, and Mr. V. R. Henry, of the P.C.I. staff, conducted the Junior Mathematics class. Mr. V. S. Foster, an electrical engineer, was teacher of the Senior Electrical classes, and Mr. Archie Gates taught the Junior class in Electricity. Senior Mathematics was taught by Mr. Ralph Carson. Two Motor Mechanics classes were held each week, one for women and the other for men. For the first part of the season Mr. Fred White was the teacher, while in the latter half of the term Mr. William Adcock had charge. The Commercial Art class was taught by Mr. S. Harris, a graduate of South Kensington Art School, an expert in his line. The three Dressmaking classes were well patronized, with Miss Deborah Welsh in charge. Each week Miss Robina Montgomery held two classes of Household Science and Dietetics, which were well patronized. The Millinery class was under the direction of Miss Haskill.

Classes Held Regularly.

These classes were held regularly, and pupils who attain 90 per cent. in attendance are provided with a year card, an indication that their particular field of study has been covered. This card states the time spent and the subjects taken. The issuing of these cards has proved a great incentive to the young people to attend the classes because of the fact that the cards are valued as highly by manufacturers as a matriculation certificate is prized by a classical institution. One local industry deducts 30 days from the time of apprentices who attend the Industrial School classes. The local Industrial School is under the control of the Industrial School Board, a committee of twelve members [illegible] Vincent Eastwood as chairman. Half of the members are industrial men of the city and the remainder are members of the Board of Education.

Inspector's Report.

According to the report of Inspector McKey of the Education Department, Peterborough, with Niagara Falls, has the best Industrial school in the province outside of the large centres, such as Ottawa, Toronto and London. In spite of this report, local conditions are far from satisfactory, especially in regards to quarters and proper equipment. The school has been specializing in electricity because very few know anything in this line. Equipment is being purchased continually and already prospects for more classes next fall are very promising.

The New Training.

President Stanley Hall, of Clark University, U. S. A., has this to say about technical training:

"Our training for vocationalists is not yet broad or long enough. Humanism now highly material in our day and land is not assured or even helped by a little Latin nor even Art or Literature, but we must chiefly develop it right out of the heart of each of the chief occupations themselves. The stories of its processes and inventions, the sources of its material, the destiny of its products, its role in modern civilization for the individual and the country—this is a new, old culture element which can give each intelligent workman in the world today a new sense of wide relations and of essential service to mankind. "A few leaders are already beginning to awake to the possibilities in this direction."

LED IN STANDARD TIME.

The United States and Canada were the first countries to establish standard time, November 18, 1883. European countries began to adopt it about six years later, Belgium and Holland being the first. The railroads took the lead.

British and French Favour Early Peace

Feeling of Hope Prevails at Council of Four.

By Fred S. Ferguson.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, April 7. — When the "Big Four" resumed its conferences to-day a feeling of hope prevailed that the predictions of Premier Lloyd George and Foreign Minister Pichon, of an "Easter peace" will come true.

Whether this is possible, it was declared, depends chiefly on the British and French, so if they have concluded they can agree on the various problems by that date, peace is that much nearer.

J. HALL DIES IN SEATTLE

SEATTLE, Wash., April 7. — Joe Hall, right defense man of the Montreal Hockey Club, died here Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock of pneumonia, following a severe attack of influenza. His body will be sent to Vancouver, and then to Brandon, Man., where he is survived by a wife and three children.

The other Canadian players whose illness on the eve of the final game of the Stanley Cup series caused the cancellation of that event are recovering rapidly. Manager Kennedy is on the road to complete recovery, while Berlanquette, Corbeau and Lafleur time to-day, Macdonald is still ill this time to-day. Macdonald is still in the hospital, but is in good condition.

Hall was 28 years of age. He was born in England, but spent most of his time in Canada, and had played hockey more than fifteen years, having begun with Winnipeg and Brandon teams. He played his first professional game with Houghton, Mich., and later was connected with teams at Winnipeg, Kenora, Quebec and the Canadiens of Montreal.

"Joe Hall was one of the real veterans of hockey," said Frank Patrick President of the Pacific Coast League "He had been playing senior hockey since 1902. The game suffered a loss by his passing. Off the ice he was one of the jolliest, best-hearted, most popular men who ever played."

School Children May Take Part

Following an animated discussion on the prospects of training the school children to enter the inter-school competition for the shield which will be presented to the school judged as having the best chorus in the National Week of Music celebration, it was decided to go ahead with the project and have the children sing three simple songs, if the cooperation of teh principals and the Board of Education can be secured.

Miss Rannie who was present at the meeting this morning in the Board of Trade rooms, was very enthusiastic over the idea of the competition but was dubious as to the ability of the children to put on a really creditable programme in so short a time and said that she did not want to have her work judged by the failure of the children.

In a vote, in which the musicians were about evenly divided, as to the advisability of either postponing the competition or calling it off for the year, it was finally decided to start the movement at once.

Sister Patricia was enthusiastic about having the children of the Separate school take part in the performance.

Peace Session Delayed.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, April 7.— Because of indisposition of Premier Lloyd George and the continued illness of President Wilson, the Council of Four did not hold a session during the forenoon. It was hoped to hold a meeting in the afternoon.

Some of the new one-piece tailored dresses have sleeves tight above the elbow and starched linen chemisettes, Directoire style.

He Remains Another Week By Request

Mr. Frank Bessenger, Vocalist, Drew Large Audiences at the Royal.

Mr. Frank Bessenger, who has spent the past week in Peterboro entertaining large audiences, both at Matinees and Evening Performances, at the Royal Theatre, has been requested to remain for another week and will give Royal patrons another fine programme of songs. Mr. Bessenger is here direct from the Regent Theatre in Toronto, where he has terminated a sixteen weeks' engagement. He is a talented artist, and his singing here has been greatly appreciated.

VIENNA YEARNS FOR PEACE

Would Welcome Re-establishment of Order by Any Party

VIENNA.—The situation in Vienna is characterized by radicalist tendencies, getting strong among all classes, and not only among the workers, who would welcome the re-establishment of order of any kind, Socialist or otherwise, that would put an end to the present insecurity and bring about the moral regenration that would enable the people to resume habits of work.

COULD HAVE SAVED THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS

Brown Sorry He Didn't Know About Tanlac Sooner—Gains 17 Pounds.

"If I could have had Tanlac five years ago I could have saved not only a world of suffering but more than a thousand dollars besides," said W. F. Brown, of 132 Yorkville Ave., Toronto, Ont., Canada, recently.

"I had a terrible case of stomach trouble," he continued, "and would bloat up with gas something awful. I would suffer with agonizing pains in my stomach and was never free from headaches. For nine months I was on a light diet and became so weak that I could hardly dress myself. I lost weight until I was little more than skin and bones and was so nervous I could hardly sleep. I took every kind of treatment and spent months in the hospitals, but only got worse and was so bad off that I was given up to die.

"One day my brother in law suggested that I try Tanlac, and I did so, and I am feeling a thousand times better. I have already gained seventeen pounds, my appetite is fine, the gas and those awful pains have disappeared and I can eat almost anything, without suffering afterwards."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock, by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by the Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle & Son.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir, In reading the address of Mr. Ryerson Ritchie, I notice particularly he asks, if the child is trained to acquire propriety of language, manners and deportment? I must state my experience of a principal's way of teaching the above. I have one boy of eight years attending that school, and of course boys will get fighting. One day some other boy pushed mine down on the ice from the back, hurting his head badly, so of course when he got up he chased and struck the other boy in retaliation. The first boy reported mine, and although both had witnesses the principal punished my boy for retaliating, and let the other one go free. When my boy came home his hands were so swollen from strapping that he could not unbuttou his coat. However, I bathed them and sent him back to school with a polite letter asking the principal his reason for punishment, and gave him my boy's reason, asking if it were correct why did he let the one that started it go free? Now, he was gentleman enough to tear the letter up, and ignore it. I was up all that night and the next day attending my boy for a very bad headache through coming in contact with the ice, and the next day I sent another letter to the principal explaining my boy's absence from school, and asking him as a gentleman to answer my first letter. My boy gave him the second letter and his reply was that if he bothered him (the principal) any more he would get ten times more punishment. I had explained that I could not leave the house on account of having a sick baby. I am a newcomer to Peterboro, and my impression is not very good in the respect of manners and politeness being taught my boy by a principal lacking manners, as he evidently does.

I always received the utmost respect from the principal of the largest school in Toronto; also my boy was extremely well liked at the latter school, which he attended for two years.

Thanking you for your valuable time, I remain, yours truly,

FAIR PLAY.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Sir,—In reference to A. J. Bolwell's correction, of labor representatives being present at the Milk Producers meeting, that Mr. Bolwell was not present is correct; neither had the Trade's Council any invitation to send representatives, is correct, but The Independent Labor Party representatives were there, in the persons of P. Arthru, the president and T. Totoma, the secretary, in their propaganda work of dealing intelligently with all labor questions, on broader and more progressive lines. We there heard, a very intellectual and instructive discourse, given by Mr. Stonehouse of Toronto, and many points were mentioned, that could bring farmers and industrial workers to a better understanding. A case of mistaken identity on the part of somebody, that is responsible for the mistake, that is all not deliberate misrepresentation.

T. Totoma,
Secretary, L.L.P.

Medical Bill To Be Laid Over

TORONTO, April 7.— Uncertainty as to the announcement of amendments to the Ontario Temperance Act was dispelled at noon today, when Premier Hearst affirmed his intention of making a statement on the subject in the House this afternoon. It is probable that the bill will be introduced at the same time. No official forecast as to the terms of the bill is forthcoming, but it is generally believed that they will follow closely along the lines already indicated in official conjectures.

The medical bill, based on Mr. Justice Hodgins' reports on social disease, will be laid over till the next session.

Captured Prisoners of Turks Tell of Many Indignities

British Officer Who Tried to Escape Thrown Among Common Thieves —Taken in Gallipoli Campaign Released Only When Armistice is Signed.

PRINCE ACTS AS SPY

LONDON.—A British officer who was taken prisoner by the Turks in Gallipoli forwards the following account of the experiences which followed his attempt to escape from Constantinople. He was subjected to a rigorous imprisonment which terminated only on the capitulation of Turkey.

"You have seriously annoyed the Turkish Government," said my gendarme, as he and a plain clothes detective piloted me through the main streets of Constantinople in my shirt sleeves and trousers.

"What is going to happen to us then?" I asked.

"I do not know, but you will be punished."

"Where are you taking us?" I demanded.

"We do not know," came the detective's elusive answer.

After this we remained silent until we reached the police station. That night found us each in a cell with gendarmes stationed outside our door with strictest orders that we were in no way to communicate with each others. Here was our difficulty. The true story of our attempted escape for many reasons, could not be disclosed, and it was therefore imperative to fabricate a plausible story of our actions during several days.

For twenty-four hours I sat and thought how to communicate with my companion, only a few feet away, who I knew was thinking how to communicate with me. The wall was too thick for any sort of tapping; the iron barred window was impossible; singing or whistling, or indeed making any sort of noise, was immediately cut short and, strange to say, the gendarmes were unbribable, chiefly because there were always at least three on duty and no one trusts his neighbour in Turkey.

A Mysterious Benefactress.

I had no pencil and no paper. To procure these was a necessity. The paper difficulty was overcome by permission to buy a box of cigarettes and a pencil is not difficult to improvise. I was in fact manufacturing some ink out of burnt matches and cigarette ash when an extraordinary thing happened. At the slit of my door through which the grinning face of one of our guards frequently gazed appeared the laughing eyes of a girl.

"Voici, monsieur," she whispered, and something tinkled on the floor. It was a pencil! How many winning smiles she had spent on the guards in order to be allowed this one look at the new prisoner I do not know, but she certainly gave him the two things at that moment he was in most need of—a kind word and a pencil! I never had the chance of exchanging more than half a dozen words with my benefactress, and then she told me she was a Christian, an Armenian. The Turks had put her and her two sisters in prison because their brother had deserted. They were kept as hostages until he should be recaught. They had already been there several months.

We were only kept in the police station a few days, and then — still hatless, bootless and coatless, my companions without any socks — we were again marched through the streets of Constantinople to the Ministry of War, to be handed over to the military authorities. We were brought before a certain well known military commandant, whose reputation for systematic ill-treatment of British prisoners was notorious. As we were marched separately across the square from his office to the prisons one certainly did not look forward to the next few months with relish. A Turkish officer entered our names in the prison register and were were marched away. It was a critical moment. We turned the end of a corridor and went downstairs. My heart sank within me—I knew we were in for it then, but next moment I was trembling with rage at the indignity of it.

Among Common Prisoners.

But I must explain. In this ingeniously constructed prison house there were two storeys "upstairs" and "downstairs." "Upstairs" is for officers and rich political prisoners. Conditions there are bad enough, but "downstairs" is for the commonest criminals. It is underground, and few of those who go into some of its cells ever see the light of day again. As the iron gates clanged behind me my thoughts were none of the brightest.

"Well, my fine Lieutenant," said the insolent sergeant who accompanied me, "this is what happens to people who try to run away from Turkey." So saying he unbarred a massive door and thrust me in past a sentry. I found myself in a large room with about 40 indescribably dirty ruffians, squatting about the floor. They all stopped talking to gaze at the new addition to their society. "An European," several of them muttered.

Spies Profess Friendship.

For three weeks I was confined to this room without even the privilege of walking up and down the corridor. Two prison spies, one of them Prince V—, showed the greatest friendship for me, and skilfully tried to lead me on to talk of past events. They kept up the farce of being free men, and as they enjoyed special privileges for the information they could get from their fellow-prisoners they were often absent from our prison room for many hours at a time.

This room had barred windows and bare walls; all the woodwork was infested with vermin; the only blanket, mattress and pillow supplied me by the prison authorities were in the same condition. There were no washing facilities, and the usual Turkish lack of sanitary arrangements. Until two parcels of medical comforts sent off by the British Red Cross several months before arrived and reached the prison via the Dutch Embassy I had not any proper sleep. These God sent parcels, cpntaining disinfectants and soap, and, in fact, all the things we were most in need of, changed imprisonment from the ghastly to the bearable. I quote a note received from the other end of the building from my companion, to whom by bribing a sentry I had managed to send some things:

"Just had the first night's sleep since we've been here, thanks to the priceless anti-vermin garments, etc., from your parcel, received intact through sentry."

After the first three weeks conditions gradually brightened. I was moved from room to room. Demands to be court-martialed and to know our sentence remained unanswered. But garia bave in. This was said by the Turkish papers to make no difference, but the wildest rumours filled Constantinople, and even pepetrated to us in prison.

Daylight Raids Begin.

Then came a succession of daylight air raids, the moral effect of which was tremendous. The first took place on the morning when the Turkish papers had officially published the fact that England had suggested peace. Turkey had consented to let President Wilson, whom she regarded as neutral, open negotiations. As the Turks were reading this in their morning papers six of our machines appeared over their heads. One bomb fell into a crowded street and killed sixty people. The next morning the papers were filled with righteous indignation.

"If the English don't want us to make peace, we won't." The air raids continued.

Then suddenly the whole tone changed. Enver and Talaat fled; various people tried to form Cabinets, and one morning as we looked from our prison bars across the Golden Horn we saw Entente flags floating over Pera. Even then, with the armistice three days old, the military governor would not let us out. He was about to enter into lengthy explanations, when we cut him short. "If we are not at liberty within two hours we shall force the guard. If there is an accident you will be held responsible when the fleet arrives." In less than half an hour we were at liberty.

After two months of imprisonment in a Turkish jail complete freedom comes as rather a shock, especially when those two months have been preceded by three years of captivity. But we found ourselves driven through the ancient streets of Stamboul in a cab with our scanty kit. We crossed the bridge. The change was magical; instead of the wood houses and squalor of the Turkish quarter, with depressed looking Turks mouching about the streets, the white buildings of Pera, bedecked in Entente flags, glittered in the morning sun; and then it happened. Some one gave the word; it was taken up on all sides. "They're English officers!" People rushed from their houses waving flags; cheering crowds pressed round our carriage.

We, who had a few hours before been lying in a dungeon, were now the momentary heroes of a fickle city. We got clear of them at last, dismissed our cab and found refuge in a friendly Embassy. They gave us addresses as to where we could find suitable lodgings and that night found us comfortably installed in our own house, administered to by a charming little Persian landlord.

If you are looking for real satisfaction in a hat we want to show you our new spring stock. We have styles to suit all faces and prices to suit all pocketbooks.

Mystery Shrouds Strange Shooting Of Cabaret Singer

White Plains Hotel Man Held After French Army Officer's Wife is Wounded.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Mystery surrounds the identity of the man who shot and dangerously wounded Mrs. Adalaide Queles, thirty-five years old, and a cabaret singer, as she was preparing to retire in her apartment, at No. 20 West 109th Street. According to a story told by Mrs. Queles to Policeman Rauch, of the West 100th Street Station, soon after the shooting, she had begun to disrobe when a man suddenly appeared in the room and announced he was going to kill her.

Mrs. Queles, who later admitted to the police she is Mrs. Jacquelin Sherman, estranged wife of a French army officer, declared she managed to move over to a window opening on a rear fire escape when the man fired five shots at her from a small calibre automatic pistol. Two of the bullets lodged in her back, and another penetrated her left hand.

After the shooting, she said, she ran to the door of her apartment, and hurried down to the apartment of Mrs. Katherine Dinkelmeyer, where Policeman Rauch, in response to a telephone message, found her. An ambulance was summoned, and the woman hurried to the Knickerbocker Hospital, where it later was said she is in serious condition.

Detectives Morrel and Fitzgerald later in the day questioned the woman and as a result of her story arrested Joseph Garrison Knapp, forty-six years old, formerly the proprietor of the Mirror Hotel, White Plains, N. Y., which was recently destroyed by fire. Knapp declared he knew nothing about the shooting and that he hadn't seen the woman since the latter part of last year.

The detectives declared Mrs. Queles said Knapp had shot her in a fit of jealousy, but in reply to that statement, the detectives alleged Knapp said: "Leave her alone for a while and she'll tell you who shot her. Then you'll find it wasn't me."

Neighbours in the house say that immediately after the shooting, they saw a man in his night clothing climbing down the fire escape of the apartment house. When he reached the ladder leading from the bottom fire escape to the yard, the ladder parted under his weight, and he was thrown to the court yard, twenty feet below. No trace of the man could be found, however, upon the arrival of the police, although a suit of clothing was found on the lower fire escape.

Knapp later was arraigned before Magistrate Ten Eyck, in the West Side Court, and was held for examination next Wednesday.

TOOK 5,046 AMERICANS

Foe Got Only One Officer as High as Lieutenant Colonel

WASHINGTON.—Official records of prisoners of war captured by the Central Powers from the American forces, the War Department announced, show that there were 156 prisoners whose status was still doubtful on March 20. A list of these names has been forwarded to the Central Records Office, A.E.F., for checking and investigation.

The War Department records, compiled from reports on prisoners from all sources, show a total loss by the American Army of 4,765 military prisoners and 281 civilians. Of the military prisoners 4,376 have been reported officially as released and 233 died in German prison camps.

Only one American officer of as high rank as lieutenant colonel was captured during the war. Four majors, 27 captains, and 363 lieutenants were taken prisoner.

Mr. Baker Admits U.S. Officers Tried to Kidnap Kaiser

Secretary Won't Tell Who Led Adventure, but Colonel Lea is Suspected.

NEW YORK, April 4. — Several American army officers obtained entrance to the one-time Kaiser's retreat at Amerongen some weeks ago, Mr. Baker, Secretary of War, said, regarding the reported attempt of Luke Lea, formerly Senator from Tennessee and now colonel of the 114th Field Artillery, to kidnap the fugitive German ruler.

An official report was filed with Mr. Baker describing in detail how these officers made their way into the quarters of William Hohenzollern and sought an appointment with the fugitive Emperor. They were refused an interview and left.

Mr. Baker did not disclose the identity of officers who undertook what is believed to have been an effort to kidnap the one-time Kaiser, but it is believed a Colonel Lea led the expedition.

Mr. Baker and officers at the War Department displayed amusement in discussing the bold scheme, but there was little disposition to look upon it seriously.

STYLES IN MILLINERY.

Features of Some of the Hats Displayed During the Week.

NEW YORK.—A preponderance of large black hats, trimmed with drenched ostrich, was shown in the millinery models displayed here last week, according to the bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America. Fine Neapolitan braid, plain hair braid, and lisere effects, it says, were most effective in large dress models with this trimming. No touch of colour was used to soften the sombre effect.

Another outstanding feature of the local displays, the bulletin says, was the number of models shown in the American Beauty shade. Most of these hats made use of flower or ostrich trims. A large rough straw model with a facing of faille to match had the crown plentifully sprinkled with large American Beauty roses. Straight ostrich plumes were gracefully arranged on the upper brim of a large, floppy Neapolitan straw model of this shade.

ICE THREATENS TROUBLE AT STURGEON POINT
The pressure exerted by the ice on Sturgeon Lake has been greater this season than for many years. The high winds of a few days ago moved the ice field south and westward against the Bald Point shore, forcing immense boulders above the normal bank and uprooting a number of huge stumps and cedar trees. As there are no boat houses in that section the material damage has amounted to nothing, but the imagination can picture the result had the ice pack been driven upon Sturgeon or Pleasant Point shores.
The ice is still very solid and only a small body of open water surrounds the edges. There is still a chance for destructive work should a heavy gale blow.

FRASERVILLE NOW WANTS TO GET OFF WATER WAGGON
QUEBEC, April 7. — The town of Fraserville is again on the road to the wet system. Some time ago it voted prohibition, but now the City Council is in receipt of a petition requesting the repeal of the prohibition by-law. The citizens want to get off the water waggon anticipating that the Provinces at large, on the 10th of April, will vote for the sale of beer and wine.
The Council will decide on the anti-prohibition petition on the 28th, shortly after the referendum on the sale of beer and wine.

CITY COUNCIL HAS APPOINTING OF ALD. MURRAY'S SUCCESSOR

Reports of Ald. Murray's intention to resign from the Council had gained a wide circulation to-day, and there were even intimations that aspirants for the resulting vacancy had commenced personal campaigns urging their appointment. Under the system of election by general vote the Council itself shall appoint a successor to any member who resigns during the year, according to information the Examiner received. Mr. A. H. Stratton, one of the defeated candidates at the January elections, has interviewed members of the Council, according to the statement of one of them, with a view to occupying the chair the Labour leader purposes to vacate. It is likely that the Labour Council will press for the appointment of one of their members or some union man to succeed Ald. Murray, and if the City Council is seized, with a magnanimous impulse when the occasion arises it may recognise the moral right of Labour to this seat. On the other hand Mr. Stratton has had considerable experience in the Council, in which he established a good record. There are, however, other citizens who are being mentioned for the vacancy, and the appointment should stir up a breeze of interest to vary the trade winds of routine.

OBITUARY

PATRICK GILLIECE.
In St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, on Saturday, the death occurred of Patrick Gilliece, a life-long resident of Downeyville. The deceased was sixty-two years of age and is survived by a family, his wife predeceasing him. "Lux" Demonstration Held at Turnbull's Daintiest Clothes, Can Be Washed Without Fear of Injury.

Just at the present time, when milady's dainty blouses have become soiled or crushed through wearing under her winter coat and she is beginning to wonder if she will have to discard them, the "Lux" demonstration which is being carried on at Turnbull's store, all this week, is very opportune. It shows how dainty silk and georgette blouses can be not only restored but improved by washing in the famous washing preparation. Through experience with inferior washing preparations and impure soap in many cases holes in blouses have been attributed only to soap and it is the intention of the representatives from Lever Brothers Toronto to demonstrate in a practical way, that contrary to harming the daintiest materials Lux really improves them. The demonstration, attracted a large number of interested people in the main floor of Turnbull's today, is done by actual work in the finest of materials being washed in the proper manner with particular attention to the use of proper proportions with a beneficial effect to all articles. The young lady in charge is happy to discuss with interested parties the proper manner of using Lux on all articles.

IN MEMORIAM
COONES—In sad and loving remembrance of Thomas Coones of Apsley, who was killed at Vimy Ridge on April 9th, 1917.
There's a lonely grave across the sea
Where lies my darling brother
I never more will see,
My heart is sad and weary
As lonely here we sit.

But I am proud of my dear brother
For I know he did his bit
In the bloom of life, death claimed him
In the pride of manhood days
None knew him but to love him
None mentioned his name but in praise.

His King and country called him
The call he did obey,
He left a lonely home behind
When he went away
He fought his country"s battles
He died to make us free
He gave his life that we might live
In a land of liberty.

WOMAN SUES FOR $10,000

Note Given by her Employer Before Death—Breach of Promise

HAMILTON, April 5.—The Assize Court is hearing the action in which Miss Lottie Sheehan is suing the estate of the late Edman Brown for $10,000 on a note, which she says Brown gave her for services as confidential bookkeeper and as compensation for declining to carry out his promise of marriage, made to her before his wife's death, on condition that she care for his wife during her long illness.

The note is badly torn, and Miss Sheehan says cats ripped it while it was hidden under a carpet. The executors say the figure on the note is either $1,000 or $6,000. The estate is worth $45,000. Brown broke the marriage promise and sought the affections of two other women, but didn't marry after all.

HOP HIGH, JOHN.

John Plewes gave a hop to a number of his friends at his home one evening las week.—Kimberley cor. Collingwood Enterprise.

F. J. Sandy Was Nominated For Victoria County

LINDSAY, April 7.—Possibly never before in the history of Lindsay was there a more successful or more enthusiastic nomination meeting held here than the United Farmers' Convention meeting held in the Academy of Music on Saturday afternoon, called for the purpose of nominating a candidate to contest the constituency of South Victoria for the Provincial Legislature. Eleven candidates were nominated and on a ballot the choice fell to Mr. F. J. Sandy, of Omemee, President of the County U.F.A.

Farmers Use Old Time.

One incident of the meeting worth noting was the fact that the farmers abided by old time. Consequently when the clock tolled one the only inhabitants at the theatre were the proprietor and the two faithful scribes.

"What is the trouble, where is the audience?" one farmer was asked.

"Oh, said he, rather surprised, "I think the meeting is going by slow time."

And so it was, for it did not start until after two o'clock, new time.

LIKENS THE ALLIES TO PONTIUS PILATE.

PROSKUROV, Ukraine, April 4.—"The allies will be in the position of Pontius Pilate washing his hands if they do not come to our rescue," was a statement made yesterday by S. Petlura, the military and civil head of the Ukrainian Republic, a man to see whom the correspondent had journeyed for nearly two weeks over bridgeless rivers, on slow trains, in autos, afoot and by wagon.

FIVE BOATS FOR FAMILIES.

Will bring Wives and Children of Soldiers during April.

LONDON, April 4. — The Megantic sailed on Tuesday from Liverpool, for Halifax, carrying 32 officers, 2 nurses and 1137 men, all from Kinmel Camp, except 15 officers and two nurses from London.

Five sailings for married men and dependents have been arranged for April.

FARMERS CONTRIBUTE.

Material for the erection of the new Methodist church sheds will be placed on the grounds in a few days. The estimated cost of the building is $3,000, of which sum the farmers of the congregation will contribute $2,000.—Mitchell Advocate.

HOUSEHOLD NECESSITY

Gillett's Lye has long been regarded as a household necessity because of the fact that it is useful in so many ways, and so satisfactory in every respect, that no woman feels that she can keep house without it. Making the best kind of soap for washing and cleaning. One can of Gillett's Lye will make ten pounds of good soap in twenty minutes. Many of its uses are shown in booklet under the label.

PARIS, April 7.—Peace Conference circles had received no information this afternoon that the Hungarian Soviet Government had been overthrown.

Anzacs Versus Bolsheviki.

BRISBANE, Australia, April 7. — Ten thousand returned soldiers were enrolled yesterday at an exhibition meeting to fight disloyalty.

Prince Flies Over London.

LONDON, April 7.—The Prince of Wales made a flight over London today in an airplane. The trip lasted an hour.

Bolsheviki Losses.

ARCHANGEL, April 7.—The Bolsheviki lost seven hundred in killed and one hundred and eight prisoners in the fighting on Friday. They are now bombarding the American and British positions on the Duvane and Vega Rivers.

NEW TRAP READY FOR DRUG SMUGGLERS

DETROIT, April 3.—Drug smugglers who for years have derived a more or less precarious living by selling in the United States various sorts of narcotics purchased in Canada, are going to have things made harder for them by the workings of new internal revenue law requiring a revenue stamp on packages of narcotics no matter how small.

As these stamps cannot be procured on drugs bought in Canada, the individual found in possession of them leaves himself open to immediate prosecution without any further effort on part of federal authorities to fix his guilt.

If the average man could live his life over he would probably be a bigger fool than ever.

ANZACS ON WAY HOME.

Many of Them Taking Wives From Old Country With Them.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., April 4.—With nearly 1,000 New Zealand troops on board bound for home from France via the Panama Canal, the British transport Remuera has arrived here for coal. The steamer is expected to continue ther voyage before the last of the week. Nearly 300 wives of the soldiers, who were married during the stay in Europe, are returning to New Zealand to make their homes. The majority of the soldiers had been in Europe three or four years.

WATTERSON WANTS TO QUIT

Offers Resignation to The Courier-Journal—League the Cause

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—The Louisville Courier-Journal announced that Henry Watterson, the editor of the paper since 1868, and editor emeritus since last August, had requested that he be retired. Mr. Watterson recently passed his seventy-ninth birthday.

The newspaper said the editor's action was partly due to his variance with the Courier Journal officials on the proposed League of Nations, he being against the Paris proposals, while the officials favored them.

Traitors With the Canadians Posted Foe About Ameins

German-American Who Enlisted in Canada Surrendered to Give Information—Secret Service After Spies.

LONDON, April 7.—At the Naval and Military Club luncheon here on Saturday, General Sir Arthur Currie made the statement that he had not heard whether Miller, the traitor who surrendered from the 18th Ontario Battalion in front of Arras last July, had been apprehended yet in the release of the British and Canadian prisoners in Germany. Miller, an American of German parentage, elisted with the Canadians. On his first time in the trenches he gave himself up to the Huns without making a fight.

Pages of Information.

Miller told the Germans that his real name was Muller and gave them three large pages of complete information about the Canadian trenches, lines of communication, billets, ammunition stores, and battery locations. He also told them what battalions of Canadians were occupying our front lines, what troops were behind our lines and what were the intentions of our commaders in the Amiens battle.

A copy of this scoundrel's revelations was captured from the Germans. Needless to say the spy Miller is a marked man, and the British secret service is going to get him if possible.

One A "German Agent"

Another man who surrendered as Miller had done gave the Huns complete information about certain things. This information our Canadian Intelligence Department discovered in some captured German documents. This traitor's name had "German agent" written opposite it in the Hun documents, proving that he, too was a spy in the Canadian ranks.

Back to University.

Brigadier-General Charles Mitchell, formerly head of the Canadian Intelligence Department in the field and later chief intelligence officer with the British forces in Italy, returns to take his new post at Toronto University as soon as his duties are finished here.

ENGLISH ROAD WORK

Grants amounting to $50,00,000 will be distributed by the British Road Boad for the reconstruction of roads and bridges in England in 1919. Demobilized army untis wil be used to do the labor. Local highway authorities will be required to match this appropriation by at least as large a program of road work as they carried out in the year before the war. Areas taken into consideration, England's program is far in excess of that of the United States, including both Federal aid and State funds.

SICK HEADACHE and CONSTIPATION CURED BY Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills.

When your liver becomes sluggish and inactive, the bowels become constipated, the tongue becomes coated, the breath bad, and the stomach all out of order.

Then come those terrible sick headaches. They take out every bit of life and ambition, bring on depression, and often end in complete mental and physical prostration.

To keep the liver active, and your bowels moving regularly, is the only way to get rid of the constipation and the distressing sick headaches. Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will do this for you by stimulating the sluggish liver into manufacturing sufficient bile to act properly on the bowels, thus making them active and regular.

Mrs. Winslow McKay, Jordan Branch, N.S., writes: "I have been sick for a number of years with sick headache and constipation. I tried all kinds of doctors' medicines, but none did me any good. I tried Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and after using four vials I am completely cured. I would heartily recommend them to all sufferers."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are small and easy to take; and do not gripe, weaken or sicken as so many pills do. Price 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Every man intends to have his own way after marriage, but sometimes his wife relieves him of a false impression.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache; or, if your meals sour and turn into gas and acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

To-morrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to sick headaches, biliousness, bilious attacks, constipation or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning inside-bath. It is said that men and women who try this become enthusiastic and keep it up daily. It is a splendid health measure for it is more important to keep clean and pure on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing disease, while the bowel pores do.

The principle of bathing inside is not new, as millions of people practice it. Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate eat on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.

MRS. BALFAME

Mechanically she had run through the list of all the accepted forms of removing human impediments and rejected them, when Dr. Anna's scientific mind, playing along the surface of hers, shot in the arrow of suggestion that she belonged naturally to the type of woman that poisoned if forced to commit murder. It was bloodless, decent, and required no vulgar expenditure of energy.

But healthy people, suddenly dead, were excavated and the quarry submitted to chemical tests; it was then—smiling brilliantly at her ardent pro-German friend—that Mrs. Balfame recalled a rainy evening some two years since. She and Dr. Anna had sat over the fire in the old Steuer cottage, and the doctor, who before the war never had been interested in anything but her friends, her science, and suffrage, had discoursed upon certain untraceable poisons, had even risen and taken down a vial from a secret cupboard above the mantel. During the same conversation, which naturally drifted to crime, Dr. Anna had discoursed upon the idiocy of doctors who poisoned with morphia, strychnine, or prussic acid, when not only were these organic poisons known to all scientific members of the profession, but they could easily remove the barrier to their complete happiness with cholera, smallpox, or typhus germs, sealed within the nontommittal capsule.

Mrs. Balfame shuddered at the mere thought of any of these dreadful diseases, having no desire to witness human sufferings, or to run the risk of infection, but as she stared at Dr. Anna to-day, she made up her mind to procure that vial of furtive poison.

So sudden was this resolution and so grim its portent that it was accompanied by unusual physical phenomena: she brought her sound white teeth together and thrust out her strong chin; her eyes became fixed in a hard stare and the muscles of her face seemed to menace her soft white skin.

Alys Crumley, the young woman who had been sketching Mrs. Balfame instead of listening to the discussion, caught her breath and dropped her pencil. For the moment the pretty, ultra-refined, elegant leader of Elsinore society looked not like St. Cecelia but like Medea. Always determined, resolute, smilingly dominant, never before had she betrayed the secret possibilities of her nature.

Miss Crumley cast a glance of startled apprehension about her, but the debate was just finished, every one was commenting upon the splendid self-control of the high participants, and repeating the New Yorker's last phrase: that not civilisation but man was a failure. A moment later Mrs. Balfame advanced to the dge of the platform, and, with her inimitable graciousness, invited the members of the Club to come forward and meet the distinguished guest. Little Miss Alys Crumley, watching her, listening to her pleasant shallow voice, her amused quiet laugh, came to the conclusion that the fearsome expression she had seen on her model's face had been a mere effect of light.

CHAPTER II

The meeting of the Friday Club had been held in the Auditorium, a hall which accommodated moving pictures, an occasional vaudeville performance, political orators, and subscription balls of more than one social stratum. It was particularly adapted to the growing needs of the Friday Club, as it impressed visitors favorably, and there was a small room in the rear where tea could be served.

It was a crisp autumn evening when the President and her committee sped the parting guest of this fateful day and walked briskly homeward, either to cook supper themselves or to prod the languid "hired girl." Starting in groups, they parted at successive corners, and finally Mrs. Balfame and Dr. Anna were alone in the old street. The doctor's officers were in Main Street under the Auditorium, between the Elsinore Bank and the Emporium drug store, but she too had inherited a cottage in what was now known as Elsinore Avenue, and almost at the opposite end from the "Old Balfame Place."

"Come in," she said hospitably, as she opened a gate set superfluously into the low boxwood hedge. "You can 'phone to the Elks' and tell Dave to try the new hotel. It's ages since I've seen you."

"I will!" Mrs. Balfame's prompt reply was accompanied by what was known in Elsinore as her inscrutable smile. "It is kind of you," she added politely, for even with old friends she never forgot her manners. "I long for a cup of your tea—if you will make it yourself. I really could eat nothing after those sandwiches."

"I'll make it myself, all right. First because it wouldn't be fit to drink if I didn't, and second because it's my night out."

[illegible] took the key from beneath the [illegible] mat, pressed an electric button in the hall and another in a corner of the pretty sitting-room. In the parents' day the sitting-room had been the front parlour, with an atmosphere as rigid as the horsehair furniture, but in this era of more elastic morals it was full of shabby comfortable furniture, a davenport was close to the radiator, the desk and tables were littered with magazines, medical reviews, and text books.

"How warm and delicious," said Mrs. Balfame brightly, removing her hat and wraps and laying them smoothly on a chair. "I'll telephone and then close my eyes and think of nothing until tea is ready—I know you won't have me in the kitchen. What a blessed relief it will be to hear you sing in your funny old voice, after that woman's strident tones."

She made short work of telephoning. Mr. Balfame, having "just stepped across the street," she merely left a message for him. Dr. Anna, out in the kitchen, lighted the gas stove, rattled the aluminum ware, and sang in a booming contralto.

Mrs. Balfame went through no stage formalities; she neither tiptoed to the door nor listened intently. From the telephone, which was on the desk, she walked over to the strongest looking chair, carried it to the disused fireplace, mounted and peered into the little cupboard the canny doctor had had built into the old chimney after the furnace was installed. There Dr. Anna kept her experimental drugs, her mother's seed pearls and diamond brooch, and a roll of what she called emergency bills.

The vial was almost in the middle of a row of bottles. Mrs. Balfame recognised it at once. She secreted it in the little bag that still hung on her arm, replaced it with another small bottle that had stood nearer the end of the row, closed the door and restored the chair to its proper place. Could anything be more simple?

Try This If You Have Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

FORD PLANT AT KEARNY.

Huge Factories Going Up to Produce 500 Cars a Day.

NEW YORK.—Few persons outside of the automobile trade have any conception of the magnitude of the new factory which Henry Ford is building on a section of what was formerly waste meadows at Kearny, N.J. The tract includes 128 acres on the Passaic River, where it enters Newark Bay. The river there was deepened to twenty-seven feet, over 1,800 feet of bulkhead is completed, and from the docks the cars will be transported on lighters to Communipaw for shipment to foreign countries.

The main assembly building, recently finished, is 880 feet long. A larger building is now nearing completion. 900 feet long, 350 feet wide, and four stories in shight. Ultimately 600 Ford cars will be turned out from the Kearny plant every day. The present production is 175 a day, and 1,300 men are employed.

The stock carried is valued at $3,-[illegible],000. The investment at present in site and buildings represents $9,500,000, and when completed will run to the huge sum of $[illegible],000. There are twenty-five miles of railroad track on the site.

CHAPLAIN WAS KILLED IN NO MAN'S LAND

Capt. Crochetiere Administering the Last Rites to French-Canadian Soldier.

QUEBEC, April 7.— A solemn Requiem Mass will be celebrated at Princeville on Tuesday for the repose of the soul of Rev. Father (Captain) G. E. R. Crochetiere, at one time Chaplain of the 22nd Battalion, who was killed at the front, in France, while administering the last rites to a wounded French-Canadian soldier in No Man's Land.

A delegation of the G. W. V. A. will attend, as will also scores of returned soldiers from this district.

HERE'S a welcome to the returned soldier and his bride. May their wedded life be a long and happy one.

If she is a "British Bride" she will be very fond of tea—and good tea, at that.

She will first be attracted to Red Rose Tea by the name which will remind her of the "Red Rose" of "Old England".

And when she tries it she will again be reminded of the "Homeland", for she will find Red Rose Tea the same kind of Tea that she has used at home—a rich, full-flavored blend, consisting chiefly of ASSAM teas grown in British-owned plantations in northern India.

Red Rose Tea is sold always in sealed packages.

MID AMID GERMANS 4 YEARS.

Two French Soldiers fed in Forest Retreat by Belgian Smuggler.

PARIS. — The adventures of two French straggiers, Sergt. Lesquern and Pte. Levesque, who, becoming separated from their units after the battle of Charleroi, remained in hiding for more than four years in German occupied territory, are told in the newspaper La Victoire. In the early days of the war civilians helped the two soldiers but as the German domination became heavier they took to the woods.

They made their home in the forest of Sapogne, in the vicinity of Sedan. Their dwelling was a dug-out so concealed that it was never discovered although the forest, which harbors wild boar and other game, was a favorite hunting ground for German officers. The French stragglers lived on wild animals, hare and other game. One German, who ventured into too close proximity of their dugout, is buried where he fell.

They made an attempt to escape in 1915, but on the Dutch frontier they were shot at by the German sentries, and the sergeant was wounded, so the two of them returned to the forest. The severe winter of 1916 brought them terrible sufferings. They were snowed in and almost starved.

They owe their lives to an old Belgian poacher and smuggler, who throughout all the years of of their adventures helped them with provisions. They are now in a French hospital recovering from the effects of their privations.

Your Other Brain

Down in the abdominal cavity lies a great "plexus" or network of nerve centres, that has been called the "abdominal-brain." It cannot think. Its functions are to superintend and keep in operation various mechanical processes, such as the proper secretion of moisture by intestinal glands and adequate action of intestinal muscles in the walls of the bowels.

It receives messages from nerves in various regions of the body, but being unable to reason, it often acts blindly, imperfectly, or improperly. It may stop secretion, lessen muscular action—and the result is constipation.

Castor oil, pills, salts, mineral waters, etc., do not reason with the abdominal brain, they force it to temporary action, to unnatural effort, until the bowels move. But this is followed by a sulky attitude or even a "strike" by your other brain, and the constipation is increased not cured.

90% of humen illness results from self-poisoning, caused by constipation.

But Nujol acts differently. Nujol is not a drug, does not act like any drug.

Nujol acts mechanically to coax the bowels to move easily and thoroughly at regular intervals.

Nujol supplies necessary moisture to bowel contents, makes it easier for tired intestinal muscles to act, absorbs poisonous matter, overcomes stagnation and by so doing persuades the abdominal brain to act rationally and efficiently. Nujol has no deleterious after effects, forms good habits instead of bad ones, overcomes constipation at any age, under any conditions.

Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today and send coupon for free booklet—"Thirty Feet of Danger."

ROOKIE ATONED FOR FAULT

Call It "Fisherman's Luck," if You Will, He Came Out of Scrape With Coveted Decoration.

At Aix a strange story was told of an American soldier who will probably abandon fishing for the rest of his life. It seems that the rookie had heard it said that one could readily catch fish with a hand grenade, the method being to proceed to the lair of the fish and hurl the hand grenade into the water. The grenade, exploding, would kill all the fish in the neighborhood, and one could gather in a plentiful harvest. So our hero set forth one evening and, reaching a not far distant canal, he threw in his hand grenade. No doubt it killed a fish or so, but, unfortunately, so intent was he on his job that he had not noticed a barge hard by. The grenade nearly blew the barge and the bargee and his family out of France, and did such mighty damage to boat and boatmen that, although for the moment flight enabled the culprit to escape arrest, it was quite clear that, when discovered, as he would inevitably be, he would suffer very severe punishment. It cannot be permitted to blow French barges up with impunity. A court-martial and death were the least that the wretch expected. That night there was an attack on the American sector. Our man went over the top a desperate rookie. He had determined to die a glorious death rather than submit to a shameful end. The result was that, single-handed, he killed seven Germans, and, seizing a machine gun, turned it on the enemy, thereby saving a ticklish situation. Picking up the machine gun, after it had done sufficient damage, he carried it back toward his own line, but, en route, he fell into a German trench and on top of a German postman. This postman was laden with mail for the regiment or company ousted from the trench; cigars and other delicacies were among his burdens. As the officer who told the story said, the rookie murdered the postman and, seizing several bags of mail, bore them, in addition to his machine gun, back to his own people. His record for the day's work was not only deemed sufficient to condone for his fishing escapade, but to his astonishment he received a medal for distinguished conduct in the field. He was decorated! Fisherman's luck with a vengeance!—Scribner's Magazine.

Thimble Lore.

Though the thimble is claimed to be a Dutch invention, somebody who knows says that they had them all the way back in the days when Herculaneum was. Sailors formerly wore a like device on their thumbs, and they called them thumb-bells or simply thimbles. Hence the origin of the present word.

You'd never think, would you, that it takes twenty men plus a great deal of expensive machinery to make one little thimble, would you? When John Softing introduced them from Holland into England in 1695, he virtually introduced a new industry besides.

Weeping Stove Pipes.

Weeping stove pipes, from the joints of which a milklike liquid leaks out, is often a difficult trouble to remedy. It is due to insufficient draft. The smoke moving slowly through the pipes condenses, and the liquid so formed oozes out at the joints of the pipes. Sometimes having the pipes on an incline, upwards towards the chimney, will increase the draft. Some find that a little opening in the pipe next the chimney, with a sliding cover, increases the draft up the chimney, when open, and so causes the smoke to pass out quickly. It all comes to this: Increase the draft and the heat of the pipes, and so cause the smoke to pass out so quickly that it cannot cool and condense in the pipes.

Wear Sunflower in France.

The fame of the sunflower as the emblem of Kansas has penetrated France, and is the object of much appreciation on the part of the French people according to word received at Camp Funston. A letter from a member of the Eighth division states that the members of the division all wear a big sunflower on an arm band as a distinguishing emblem of the division, which received its training here. The division, the first to be trained at Camp Funston, was trained by Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood.

"Biggins is a profiteer. He's interested in the income."

MAMMA! DON'T YOU SEE YOUR CHILD IS SICK, CONSTIPATED

Look at tongue! Move poisons from liver and bowels at once.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

As Safe as a Church.

Unless Lt.-Col. W. A. Bishop, world's premier airman, misses his guess, Canadians will be traveling between Toronto, Montreal and other Canadian cities via aerial routes within a year's time — making the trips in a fraction of the time now required, and with the addition of no greater risk than they take when covering the distance by the more commonplace method provided by the railways. The famous Canadian aviator is enthusiastic respecting the commercial possibilities of the airplane, and eagerly looks forward to the day when the Dominion will have its regular services from city to city.

"Safe? It's as safe as a church. Under present conditions, no danger attaches to flying. However, I think a number of changes will have to be made in the addition of airplanes for commercial use; I do not thing conversion of war machines will prove successful."

GET ON LAND EARLY

The Dates to Plant for Heaviest Yields.

To Make Most Money From Wool Shearing Must Be Done Properly and Wool Handled Carefully—A Few Hints Which Have Saved Farmers Dollars.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THERE is a best time to sow each class of farm crops to secure the highest returns. It is difficult, however, to know which are the most favorable dates for the best returns of the different crops in all seasons. The results of experiments conducted over a series of years form a good general guide. Some crops give best results from later seedings. Seasons vary so much that in some years the grains are practically all sown by the dates at which it is only possible to start sowing in other years. It is of the utmost importance, however, to start cultivating the land as early as it is dry enough to work to good advantage. The first cultivations should take place for those crops which should be first sown. In this connection it is interesting to study the results of an experiment which was conducted in each of five years at the Ontario Agricultural College. Spring wheat, barley, oats and peas were sown on each of six dates. One week was allowed between each two dates. The experiment was conducted in duplicate by sowing with the grain drill and broadcast by hand in each instance. The following table gives the average results for the ten tests in the five-year period:

Bushels of Grain Per Acre.

Seedlings.	Spring Wheat.	Barley.	Oats.	Peas.
1st	21.9	46.2	75.2	25.4
2nd	19.2	45.9	76.0	28.8
3rd	15.4	39.8	64.2	28.5
4th	13.0	37.1	55.8	25.5
5th	8.4	27.6	45.2	21.5
6th	6.7	18.4	37.0	19.5

It will be seen that the spring wheat gives decidedly the best returns from the first date of seeding. There is not much difference between the first two seedings of barley and oats, but there is a slight advantage from the first date in the case of barley and from the second date in the case of oats. The peas, however, gave the highest returns from the second and third dates, and even the fourth gave a higher average yield than the first date. After the first week was past there was an average decrease per acre for each day's delay as the season advanced of 27 pounds of spring wheat, 47 pounds of barley, 48 pounds of oats, and 20 pounds of peas.

These results are of special interest and are worthy of careful attention at this particular time.

Sheep Shearing.

Shearing and Tying the Fleece.—Shearing should only be carried on under the most favorable conditions; upon bright, warm sunshiny days when the sheep are dry of fleece and the wool has "risen" somewhat from the body. Cleanliness and care in the removal of all fleeces is very essential and the shearing floor should be swept after each fleece has been removed and tied. This will eliminate a great deal of foreign matter which, although it may add weight, does so at the expense of quality.

Dung Locks or Tags.—It will be noticed with many fleeces that there are certain hard dung locks or tags adhering to the britch ends. These contain a great deal of moisture and if left on and rolled into the fleece produce a damp heavy condition that means a higher shrinkage and hence less value. They should, whenever present, be snipped off with the shears before the sheep is shorn or else pulled off by hand after the fleece is spread out for rolling. They can very easily be packed and shipped separately, bringing more money this way than if left upon the fleece. The same is true of all paint clotted locks as well.

Rolling the Fleece.—Spread the fleece out on the floor, being careful not to pull it apart and with the flesh side down. Then fold the belly wool and both sides in until your fleece represents a strip about 18 inches wide. Starting at the tail end, roll tightly toward the neck, thus leaving the shoulder wool, which is always the superior portion, on the outside of the roll. The grader always estimates the grade by the appearance and quality of this wool over the shoulder and heart-girth, that over the hindquarters usually running a grade or two lower.

Tying the Fleece.—Having rolled tightly, tie both ways with the special paper twine supplied by the Department. Never under any consideration use binder twine as the fibres become attached to the wool and follow right through into the cloth where they always show up quite prominently. Many mills have refused to have anything whatever to do with clips that have been tied with binder twine. If the paper twine is not available use any stout cord other than binder twine. Tie each fleece separately, never tying two or three together in the same bundle. Furthermore, avoid as much as possible the shipping of loose wool. If you have two or three different breeds of sheep, possibly a grade flock and a pure-bred flock, it is wise to keep the wool from each breed separate and pack it so.—Director R. W. Wade, B.S.A., Ontario Department of Agriculture.

A number of varieties of beans are in cultivation, but to meet the present demand the Small White Pea bean is particularly suitable. Care should be exercised in securing well matured seed of strong vitality as many of the beans grown last year are unsuitable for planting.

This Maxwell Truck has 25,000,000 miles behind it

ONE thousand times around the equator is about the mileage of all Maxwell trucks now in use.

What this tremendous mileage has taught may be found in the Maxwell truck you buy today.

For the keen engineering done in this remarkable carrier of freight has not been laboratory engineering but road engineering.

That is why the Maxwell is so practical, why it is so hardy, why it seldom needs mechanical attention, why it is always a delight for engineers to look over.

It is every man's truck. It is not a road rolling monster. Neither is it light and flimsy. It will carry 80% of the different kinds of loads conveyed by horse or motor.

Surprising, of course, is the chassis price—$1450 f.o.b. Windsor; several hundred dollars less than any other truck of similar capacity. Quantity production is the reason for this.

Pays for itself as it runs. See it and save.

REAL "DEVIL" WANTED

Wanted at this office immediately a boy to learn the printing business; must have fair education; references not necessary. We would much rather have a youth noted for his cussedness and a reputation for getting to work before the bell rings than one whose only recommendation is to head the Sunday school class and laziness. The fact of his having committed two or three passages of Scripture to memory will not count against him if he has the other qualifications.—Beeton World.

The Tower of Lions.

Just outside the Syrian port of Tripoli, alongside the railway track, is a Crusaders' old fort, known as the Tower of the Lions, from the tradition that it was built by Richard the Lion Hearted of England. As a matter of fact, it is one of six such forts built by the crusaders to protect the coast, only one other of which exists, and this one is in a poor condition. Now the Tower of Lions is to be demolished to make room for the railway, much to the discomfort of archaeologists, who would like to see this old tower preserved as a relic of antiquity.—Scientific American.

Whistled to the Queen.

There is a resident of Sunbury who has felt uncomfortable in his mind for a long time to come. He was walking behind two women in the park when he noticed the younger of them drop her handkerchief. He picked it up and, to attract the owner's attention, whistled loudly as he went to restore it.

The owner thanked him politely. Afterward, to his confusion, he learned he had been whistling to the queen and princess Mary.—London cable to New York Times.

HERE IS NEW EAST

Result of British Occupation of Mesopotamia.

Ages-Old Somnolent Peace of the Desert Gives Place to Activity Which Amazes Traveler Familiar With the Old Days.

It was early morning when I arrived at Basra, the seaport of the Mesopotamian zone, and I stood for two hours or more at the dock rail, wondering vaguely why somebody did not come to take me ashore, while I watched with intense interest the disembarkation of the troops we had brought, and a scene along the river bank of tollsome and bewilderingly multitudinous industry, Eleanor Franklin Egan writes in "The War in the Cradle of the World." It was war—twentieth century war—in the process of destroying for all time the somnolent peace of a world that has drowsed for ages in eastern dreams.

The Arabs—children of the desert and inheritors of noiseless ease and ancient methods—say: "The British came with the smoke." But it was the other way round. The smoke came with the British, and it rolls today in black spirals of industrial abomination—from workshops innumerable, from electric power plants, from many steamboats and from tall chimneys and funnels of every kind all round the horizon. And with the British came also the loud murmur and the clatter and clank of toil, the shrill shriek of the locomotive and the honk of the horn of the motor.

The Arabs say also: "Leisure is God-given and haste is of the evil one." They never worked before in all their lives, but they are working now, and they are working with a rapidity and cheerfulness which denote much with regard to the reward they get and the character of the discipline they are under.

But the scene on the amazing river bank looked to me like the utmost in disorderliness and confusion. Docks and wharves were lined with ships and crowded with men and women—coolies—working after fashion, coming and going in endless lines, carrying on heads and bent backs boxes and bales of materials and materials and materials. Acres of low sheds stretching away into the fringes of the palm groves; miles of closely tented open space seen hazily through clouds of dust; pyramids of hay and smoked grain under light green canvas; mule wagons, motor lorries, ammunition carts, ambulances, an artillery convoy getting under way out across a basin gray wave in the distance; automobiles hurrying hither and thither; officers on handsome horses moving slowly here and there, a long line of diminutive donkeys tricked out in brightly ornamental pack saddles and with jingling halters and strings of blue beads round their necks; a longer line of ambling, munching, disdainful nosed camels on the way down to the adjoining dock, where they were being swung up one by one, like so many bales of hay, and deposited in the hold of a big gray ship; it was a scene to hold the newcomer's attention and, to make the time pass swiftly.

"Safety" Umbrella Handle.

A certain wise man of this city persists in carrying an umbrella with a broken handle. The handle has come loose from the center rod, and twirls around and around on the rod.

"Why don't you give that an honest one who is perpetually telling other people what they ought to do.

The man gave his broken umbrella a whirl, and replied:

"I don't fix it because I find it quite useful this way. The other day, for instance, I took it to the theater with me, and placed it between my seat and the next.

"When the show was over, my neighbor absent-mindedly reached for my umbrella, caught the handle and marched off. After he had gone a few feet he looked down to see what he had drawn—and then he threw the handle away. I came along and picked up my handle. Why should I get it fixed so somebody can get away with it?"—Washington Star.

Great Tunnel Opened.

With the holding of the official ceremony in honor of the piercing of "the hole in the southern Alps," the great Otira tunnel of New Zealand took its place proudly as one of the world's longest railways. The full story of the Otira tunnel has been described in the Christian Science Monitor, but the fact that it is five miles and thirty-five chains in length, and that the first shot at the Otira end was fired on May 5, 1908, may be recalled. Owing to scarcity of labor due to the war, it may be two years before the permanent way is laid through. By that time the water power available will have been harnessed in readiness to drive the electric trains that will run from Canterbury to the west coast.

Checking a Presumption.

"There is a rumor that you may be asked to assume leadership of your struggling country," ventured the trusted retainer.

"I have heard such a rumor," answered Wilhelm.

"Well, you may be a painter and a poet and a lot of other things. But there is a limit to human credulity. With your shabby record for truth and veracity, don't you ever try to pose as the George Washington of Germany."

Colored wooden beads take the place of buttons on fine vests of ox-hide.

HIS PRIVACY INVADED.

Knew There Was a Mistake Somewhere, and His Surmise Was Correct.

Once in a while a man who has never been inside a theater more than once or twice in his life comes to Broadway for a supply of city impressions and experiences. One of these stepped into the lobby of a theater and said to the man in the box office:

"Give me a seat in one of them little rooms by itself."

He was given a ticket which entitled him to a box. Armed with this, he went around to the gallery entrance and climbed the long flight of stairs to the top of the house, where the ticket taker admitted him without question.

He found a seat, but seemed ill at ease and at the end of the second act went back to the doorman with a displeased frown.

"Look here!" he demanded petulantly. "What does this mean? What is all them people doin' in my box?"

He indicated the crowded gallery with a comprehensive sweep of his arm. When the nature of his complaint was realized by the staff he was duly conducted to the box that belonged to him in the middle tier.

"Nobody but you will be allowed to sit there," he was told in response to his anxious inquiry. "The place where you were sitting before is the gallery."

"I knew there was something wrong, and that is why I spoke of it," he explained. "I allow that the gallery is a box for the general public! Am I right?"

They assured him that he was right.

COUGHED, COUGHED ALL NIGHT LONG

Terribly wearing on the system is the cough that comes at night and prevents sleep. Sometimes it is a constant cough, cough that will not be quieted.

Sometimes it is a choked-up, stuffed-up feeling that makes breathing difficult, and sleep impossible.

Whatever kind of a cold or cough you have, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the remedy you need to cure it, for the simple reason that this valuable preparation combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with which is combined wild cherry bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks.

Miss Margaret Landly, Bristol, P.E.I., writes: "I am writing to tell you the benefit I have received from Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Last fall I took a severe cough and cold in my head. I was unable to do anything. At night I could not sleep, but cough, cough, all night long. A friend advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before the second bottle was used, I was entirely cured, and I have found this the best cough medicine I can buy."

Do not accept any other "pine" preparations when you ask for "Dr. Wood's." This remedy has been on the market for a quarter of a century. It is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LINCOLN ON CIRCUIT.

He Presented a Quaint Appearance as He Followed the Court.

Following the court about on the circuit was no doubt the joy of Lincoln's life. He was so fond of it that he declined a flattering offer to enter a lucrative law partnership in Chicago, because, as he contended, it would necessitate more or less confinement in the office and therefore keep him off the circuit. Seated in a one horse buggy, behind a sorry looking animal, he would set out from Springfield, to be gone for weeks at a stretch. The lawyers, as he drove into each successive place, eagerly anticipating a new stock of stories, gave him a cordial welcome, and the landlords hailed his coming with delight, for he was one of the most patient and uncomplaining of guests. "If every other fellow," relates one of his colleagues, "grumbled at the indifferent accommodations and scant fare which greeted us at many of the dingy taverns we struck, Lincoln said nothing." His forbearance in this regard well warrants the observation he is said on one occasion to have made—that he never so completely felt his "own unworthiness as when he stood face to face with a real, live hotel clerk."

How he appeared on the circuit may be gleaned from this sketch of him drawn by Henry C. Whitney, one of his colleagues in central Illinois: "His hat was brown, faded and the nap usually worn or rubbed off. He wore a short cloak and sometimes a shawl. His coat and vest hung loosely on his giant frame. His trousers were invariably too short. In one hand he carried a faded green umbrella, with 'A. Lincoln' in large white cotton or muslin letters sewed on the inside. The knob was gone from the handle, and a piece of cord was usually tied round the middle of the umbrella to keep it from flying open. In the other hand he carried a carpetbag, in which were stored the few papers to be used in court and underclothing enough to last till his return to Springfield."—Century.

An Important Difference.

Not long after a series of losses at sea on a certain steamship line two travelers were discussing transatlantic liners. One of the men preferred the C—— line, the other the T—— line, the one on which the repeated wrecks had occurred.

"There's one important difference," said the first, "that you don't seem to have considered, but which weighs strongly with me."

"What is that?"

"Why, the C—— line guarantees to take you across, but the T—— line guarantees to take you only as far as it goes."

Are you aware that an ointment applied to the skin is absorbed into the system just as surely as medicine that is swallowed? It is! You see, therefore, how necessary it is we should use a pure ointment; and the purest you can get for yourself and your children is Zam-Buk.

Dr. Scott, the great English analyst, says: "I have analysed Zam-Buk, and have no hesitation in certifying its purity."

There is another reason why you should prefer Zam-Buk. It is of such a refined nature that it can penetrate to the very seat of skin diseases; whereas ordinary ointments, owing to their coarse ingredients, remain on the surface skin. Skin diseases, like plants, have their "roots." Zam-Buk can get down to the very root of the disease, kill the germs and thus effect lasting cures.

There is nothing like Zam-Buk for ending eczema, old sores, or eruptions; nothing that can so quickly draw out the soreness of a cut, burn or scald. Try it!

Proof. Mrs. A. J. Cameron of Melita, Man., writes: "My little son's head and hands were completely covered with eczema. I tried numerous ointments, and he was under doctor's treatment for some time, but nothing would cure him. Then I tried Zam-Buk. After a week's treatment I noticed a marked improvement, and perseverance with Zam-Buk resulted in a complete and permanent cure."

All druggists and stores 50c. box or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Send 1c. stamp for free trial box.

STOOD NINETY-NINE HOURS NOW LOSES LAND

Calgary Veterans are Hot Over Action of Settlement Board

CALGARY, April 5.—After having camped out on the land office steps for 99 hours in order to secure land titles and having been passed on for a loan of $1,500 from the settlement board Private J. Lee, it is alleged, has been told by the Department of Agriculture that he must get off the land because it was too valuable and was taken to be sold and the funds turned over to the settlement board. The local veterans have passed a hot protest.

QUEER ILLUSIONS.

Morbid Minds That Associate Names and Numbers With Colors.

"Numerals have no colors to you and to me," said a psychologist. "Three, for instance, doesn't seem to us to be pink, and eight doesn't seem to us to be brown, but there are certain slightly diseased minds to which almost every word in the language appears to have color.

"The odd part of this matter is that when you study the minds that attribute colors to figures you find them almost unanimous in attributing to each figure a particular hue. Thus, they will say that one is black, two is cream, three is pale brown, four is red brown, five is blue, six is tan, seven is green, and so on. Finding among the morbid so uniform a belief in the blackness of one, the blueness of five and the greenness of seven, you almost persuade yourself that these figures actually have colors.

"Some morbid minds hold that names have colors. A New Orleans clairvoyant says that to him John is blue, Atlanta is steel gray, Peter is brown, and so on.

"Mankind harbors an incredible number of illusions. Each one of us, perhaps, has an illusion of some sort. Mine is that if I count on getting a thing I desire I will be surely disappointed. My wife's is that her brother appears to her in dreams.

"I know a nervous, pallid woman who attributes certain perfumes to certain sounds. A soprano voice to her is like lilies of the valley. A tenor voice is like roses. A contralto voice is like heliotrope. A bass voice is like violets."

Animal Oils in Medicine.

The number of animal oils and fats used in medicine are extremely numerous. Large quantities of oil are obtained in Tasmania from the mutton bird and used as a liniment for rheumatism, while the fat of the frigate bird is said to be an excellent specific for sciatica. Cod liver oil is too well known to bear more than mention, and the oil got from the dugong, an aquatic monster related to the whale tribe, has a high reputation as a substitute for that obtained from the smaller fry of the cod. From six to fourteen gallons of this medicinal oil can be taken out of a single animal.

John Bright's Speeches.

John Bright had a curious method of guarding against any failure of memory or language in his public speeches. When he had to deliver a speech of importance he wrote a sort of essay on the subject and tore it up. He then wrote another and treated it in the same way, and finally a third. In this way he considered that he had not only exhausted his own thoughts upon the matter in hand, but had gained such a command over the language in which it could be expressed that he could never be at a loss for the right word.

The Escape He Wanted.

"Is there danger from fire here?"

"Oh, no," replied the hotel clerk. "We are well provided with fire escapes."

"I don't care a hang about that. How are you fixed for man escapes?"

"I Am So Short of Breath"

"IT MUST be your heart, Grand Dad."

"Yes, I suppose it is. I am getting old, you know."

"Oh, you are not so old. You have got run down after the cold you had and will be all right when you get your blood built up again."

"Well, I hope so, dear."

"You remember how weak my heart was, Grand Dad, when I used to be pale and anaemic. It was no joke for me to climb these stairs then."

"You are all right now, aren't you?"

"I never felt better in my life, Grand Dad, and if you will use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for a while you will get strong and well, too. That is what cured me."

"But do you think that the Nerve Food is any good for old men like me?"

"I am sure it is. I often read letters in the newspapers from old people telling about what a great benefit it has been to them by enriching the blood and increasing their vitality."

As an example of what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does for people of advanced years, here is a letter from Mr. James Richards, 73 Dundas St., Belleville, Ont., who is 89 years of age. He writes:

"I was suffering from a weakness of the heart, shortness of breath and frequent dizzy spells which used to force me to go and lie down for a time. I secured Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and received such splendid results that I continued its use until I am now feeling fine and am not troubled with these symptoms any more."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. On every box of the genuine you will find the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author.

SHORT TALKS.

A terrible lot of love is wasted on cats, dogs and unmarried men.

So many people waste time! Do you do it? Do you talk, and talk about nothing?

How we all dislike the child that has its own way and is impudent! All of us need a great deal of training.

A good many people are like pleiant—their good qualities are not known because no one handles them right.

When a woman's daughter marries a preacher she is more firmly convinced than ever that her children have advantages she did not enjoy.

If a woman truly loves her husband, when she is asked how he is she will say, "Well, he does not complain, but I do not think he is very well."

If you have a little hard sense it has probably been beaten into you; very few have it naturally. So that, after all, adversity and criticism are useful. —Atchison Globe.

The Bear He Missed.

Telling in his book of some hunting experiences near the north pole, Captain Sverdrup wrote: "Walruses and seals were harpooned and shot and also the large arctic hare, which seems to have contracted the peculiar habit of frequently running long distances on its hind legs. Hunting was not always easy, the atmosphere playing strange tricks with the eyesight, as witness the following account of the stalking of a bear: 'With the utmost caution, with his gun ready and his eye fixed inexorably on the bear, Sehlei advanced to the spot. Meanwhile the bear sat wagging its head, but keeping a good lookout, it appeared, for when Sehlei had come some twenty steps nearer it rose and flew away. It flew as well as any bird, which, after all, was not remarkable, for it was a glaucous gull.'"

LABOR SHORTAGE AT LETHBRIDGE

LETHBRIDGE, April. 5.—At the Provincial Labor Bureau, there were 100 calls for farm work. Less than ten were filled.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Drop Freezone on a touchy corn, then lift that corn off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic! No humbug!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.

SERVANTS IN RUSSIA.

The Law Excludes Them as Witnesses Against Their Employers.

The Russian servant is hired for one year and is told exactly what his particular duty is to be. He then sticks to that one duty. As long as each servant faithfully performs the special duties of his position all is well, but the neglectful butler or cook or coachman is sent by the employer with a written note to the police judge, who after carefully investigating the complaints has a right to order bodily punishment or to write a bad mark in the book kept for this purpose.

In great Russian households often from twenty to fifty servants are kept, and even the middle class families have two to four. The pay of these servants varies according to the line of work. While the "chiefs" in the kitchens of wealthy families often receive £300 a year, a cook in an ordinary citizen's employ gets no more than £12 a year, and a maid of all work never gets more than £5 a year. At Easter every servant gets a present, generally a suit or dress.

Every other Sunday the servants in a Russian household are entirely free. Their work stops Saturday night after supper, when the servants leave the house not to return until the next Monday morning. The employers never ask where or how the free time is spent.

Russian servants will pilfer. Since Russian ladies leave everything to the care of the servants the latter do as they please.

The manservants smoke cigars belonging to their masters and pay frequent visits to the wine cellars of the house, but a gentleman would consider it "demeaning" himself to prosecute a servant for this.

The Russian servants will talk about fellow servants, but never about their employers. Even when they quit one place and take service in another family they would never mention anything about their former masters. This discretion goes so far that even the law considers it. In Russia the law excludes servants as witnesses against their former or present employers so long, at least, as these servants are not suspected of having taken part in the crime.—London Mail.

Postman's Error Causes Tragedy

Wrong Delivery of Letter Leads to Murder in Texas.

DECATUR, Texas.—A letter wrongly delivered led to the tragic death of Judge H. D. Spencer, of Decatur, one of the leading lawyers of this part of the State. He was shot down while passing along the street here the other day. His slayer was W. M. Bolger, a well known and highly respected retired merchant of Waco.

Judge Spencer was divorced from his wife several months ago. She moved to Waco, where recently she was married to a man by the name of W. M. Bolinger, a soldier stationed at Camp McArthur. Spencer wrote his former wife a day or two before he was killed. It was a business letter and made inquiry in regard to certain insurance policies which she had in her possession. The letter had a tone, however, which showed that there had been a close intimacy between the two.

This letter was delivered by the postman to Bolger instead of Mrs. Bolinger. He read it and then laid it before his wife. Mrs. Bolger declared she had never heard of Spencer before, and did not know what the letter was all about. Bolger became infuriated and declared he was going to kill Spencer.

Bolger came to Decatur. He had never seen Spencer and the latter declared after being shot that he had never before seen Bolgr. On arriving here Bolger began a search for Spencer. He inquired of several what kind of looking man Spencer was.

It was not until several hours after Bolger's arrival in Decatur that Spencer appeared upon the street.

"You are sure that's Judge Spencer, are you?" he asked when the man was pointed out to him.

Walking close behind Spencer he called: "Hey, Spencer!"

Turning quickly at hearing his name called, Spencer found himself covered with a pistol in the hands of a man who was an entire stranger to him. Before he could say a word he was shot four times. Bolger then gave himself up to the local authorities.

Spencer was hurried to a hospital in Fort Worth, where he died after an operation performed in an effort to save his life.

It was when Spenced on his deathbed told of having written a letter to his divorced wife in Waco, whose name is Bolinger, that Bolger realised he had made a terrible mistake.

Chinese Eggs Factor; Some Poultry Exports

There is little new in the egg market locally. Higher prices last week at country points threatened to force up local figures, but the markets eased up at the week end and prices locally are still quoted at former levels. Today wholesalers ask 43 cents for strictly new laid stock.

Severe weather is still curtailing supplies in western Canada. A thousand cases of Japanese have been placed on the Vancouver market at 45c candled. The Chinese fresh import season is now closed. Local consumption is generally very heavy and this with some being taken off the market to complete export contracts made some time ago is having a material influence on the market. There is no surplus for storage purposes so far. As to when storing will commence or upon what basis of cost it is difficult to say. It is many years since conditions were so complicated and the future so uncertain. Some storing in the United States will be done at an early date in the East and it has already commenced on the Pacific Coast on a 40c basis. The prices in the States will have an important bearing on the situation in Canada.

It is the opinion of some in the trade that Chinese eggs are going to have quite an important bearing both in America and Europe this season. There are a number of very large independent houses in China that have large forces at work breaking eggs and it is felt by some that the Chinese canned egg will be a commodity this year.

Receipts of live and fresh killed poultry continue very light almost at vanishing point. While there has been no change in wholesale prices the market is very firm.

Information gathered would indicate that about twelve cars of chickens and fowl have been exported from Canada during the past few weeks, in weight this would be approximately 480,000 lbs. Some of this was sold on private contract and the balance went on consignment.

MELT CANNON FOR PEACE.

Germans Sell to Foundry Guns Rejected by American Peace Commission.

COBLENZ.— Eighty big-calibre German guns refused by the United States Receiving Commission because they did not meet certain modern requirements, have been sold to a Coblenz foundry and are soon to be made into farm implements and other peace time machinery. While some of these cannon were cast as long ago as 1870, all had been used at some time or another in the present war, several of them having done duty against the Americans in the Argonne drive in November.

After the guns had been refused by the Americans, members of the German Delivering Commission, requested that they be permitted to dispose of the material to a foundry. The request was granted with the understanding that the cannot would be quickly melted into "pigs" and that none of this in any way would be used for the manufacture of any kind of firearms.

Virtually all the material which the Germans were to turn over to the Americans according to the terms of the armistice, has been delivered.

Returned Soldiers in Ontario to Have Chance to Secure Small Holdings

War Veterans Will Raise Everything From Bees to Small Fruits.

THE REPORT

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, April 8th.—To-day the report of the Committees on Small Holdings for Soldiers, under the Soldier Settlement Act, issued its report after over a month's consideration of the knowledge learned from their discussion at the Parliament Buildings here at their last meeting. The report provides for several options which may be taken advantage of by men who are not physically able to cope with the strenuous duties of a large farm, but who wish to make their living from the land. The committee recommends that small holdings be taken up only by men partially disabled who have some assured income by way of pension.

The Expenditure.

The outlays necessary on the part of the soldiers for the securing of a small holding vary from $1,500 to $5,000, all of which may be borrowed from the Government, to be repaid with 5 per cent. interest in 25 years. In the case of the $1,500 investment, the largest yearly repayment comes in the third year, when $268 will have to be returned by the soldier farmer to the Government. Where the investment amounts to $3,635, the greatest annual payment is $350, and the committee estimates that in the third year of his venture he should realize a profit of $1,375. This would be on a chicken and bee farm of five acres of land.

The Options.

The options include the opportunity of a chicken farm, a bee farm, mixed farming on a small scale with a specialty such as truck farming or dairying, with high revenue possibilities, and truck farming with a chicken raising specialty.

The first option provides for the acquisition of three to five acres of land at a cost of $300 and other equipment, bringing the investment up to $1,500. This would include the purchase of a horse at $150 and a cow at the same figure, with 25 chickens at $2 each as a beginning.

Small Fruits.

The second option is that of a chicken and bee farm, with small fruits, including currants, raspberries and cherries. The suggestion is to commence with one hundred to five hundred chickens, which will ultimately be increased to two thousand, and with 14 hives of bees, which can be developed into 50 or 75 colonies. For those who have had two to five years' experience at this sort of work, a market garden specialty is provided with five acres of land at a maximum price of $300 an acre will be allowed.

The scheme provides for colonies of five or six soldiers' families to take up small farming in the same neighbourhood. It has been devised in response to more than one thousand applications from returned men in Ontario who want to be placed on small farms under the Soldier Settlement Act, but whose requests could only be treated in a vague way up until the finding of the committee which has been now announced formulating the small holding programme.

IT RAINED PITCHFORKS

That was what they used to say after a big storm, and it meant something doing just like the pre-Easter Shoe Sale that is going on at Peterboro Shoe Store. The large edvertisement last week and the bills that were left at the homes tell the story in part, but it is neceessary to come to the Store, at 291 eGogre Street, nearly opposite the Opera House, to realize the extent of the bargains that are being given in the very newest style Spring Shoes, Pumps, etc.

RAILWAY PURCHASE WAS TURNED DOWN

Canadian Press:

DETROIT, April 8.—The proposed purchase by the city of Detroit of local lines of the Detroit United Railway, as a cost of $31,500,000, was rejected, according to almost complete unofficial returns. Sixty per cent. of the vote was required to carry it. The figures stood 58,601 in favour of the plan and 64,174 against it.

"Der Tag" In Germany

Future of Germany May Be Decided Within the Next Few Days.

(By Ed. L. Keen—United Press).

PARIS, April 8.—This is the "der tag" on which the future of Germany may be decided.

Advices from German and neutral sources indicate the question of whether Germany is to continue its present form of government or embrace Bolshevism hinges largely in the action of the Soviet Congress which opens in Berlin to-day.

The Scheidemann Ministry has granted further concessions to the Radicals, but is represented as determined to resist with all the force at its disposal any further political encroachment on its powers.

While announcing the formal acceptance of the plan for the establishment of a national Soviet as the third branch of the legislative department, the Government was completing its preparations under War Minister Noske for meeting force with force. Every military precaution, according to the latest despatches, has been taken, both in Berlin and Weimar.

A Great Bill At the Grand

Geraldine Farrar in "Shadows" and Three Fine Vaudeville Acts Delight Big Audience.

The quality of the programme at the Grand Opera House last night proved conclusively that the new policy of Mr. A. J. Small in connection with the local theatre guarantees the people of Peterborough weekly offerings of splendid vaudeville and feature pictures. The three acts presented last night were of first class calibre, one coming here from Shea's Toronto theatre, and another from Shea's Buffalo house. The sensational Marlo and Duffy in their horizontal bar act, proved one of the best teams that have been seen here, while the Gabby Brothers and Clarke did some wonderful things with hats and clubs, their performance being accompanied by a rapid fire repartee that kept the audience in good humour. Archer and Carr also scored a hit in their comedy skit, "Love Me, Love My Dog." Those who enjoyed the vaudeville last week will find the new billing even more attractive. The picture feature shows Geraldine Farrar in a splendid film drama, "Shadows." The picture gave her a fine opportunity to demonstrate her ability, and she is supported by a clever cast. Fatty Arbuckle, always a laugh producer, is seen in a characteristic picture and there are besides a special comedy and the Screen Magazine. The bill is a splendid one and capacity houses promise to be the rule for the remaining performances.

FIGHT WITH SPARTACANS

Several Workmen and Soldiers Killed—Bavarian Situation is Critical.

A PROCLAMATION

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, April 8. — Government troops and Spartacans clashed in Berlin yesterday, the Amsterdam correspondent of the Post reported today. Two workmen and two soldiers were said to have been killed.

The Bavarian situation is critical, with the Soviets firmly established in Munich, according to advices received here to-day. The Royalist Government has retired to Nuremburg.

Demonstrations have occurred in Munich against the new revolutionary government of Bavaria, according to Berlin despatches to-day. They were dispersed by troops.

Regiments Disarmed.

Two more regiments, suspected of treachery, have been disarmed in Berlin.

Complete severance from the old German Imperialism, as declared still to be manifest in the Ebert-Scheidermann Government of Germany, and the resumption of "brotherly connection" with Russian and Hungarian peoples, is announced in a proclamation of the new Soviet Government for Bavaria, formed here.

APPROVES OF COMMUNION

Government is Carrying Out Work Assigned to Them—Strict Discipline.

THE RED GUARD

Canadian Press:

BUDAPEST, April 8. — Great earnestness is displayed by members of the new Government in carrying out work assigned to them. They are ready to discuss their plans and to solve problems, and they refrain from abusing capitalism. The maintenance of strict discipline to protect the Bourgeoise and to prevent Red Guard outbreaks has been decided upon by the Government. Jules Alpari, prominent Communist, and Jules Sevresi, People's Commissioner in charge of the Socialization of Factories, argue that Communism is the only method by which Central Europe can be saved from total ruin. Capitalism, they maintain, is unable to cope with the threat of bankruptcy, high wages and the unwillingness of labourers to work. They point out that under Communism workmen cannot strike and are obliged to accept reasonable wages.

Everything In Readiness For Opening of Motor Show

Brigadier-General Williams Will Press the Button—A Monster Parade.

THE PROGRAMME

Everything has been completed for the big Motor Show at the Armouries, which is opened to-morrow night by Brig.-General Williams, who is coming to Peterborough for the occasion. General Williams has been a prisoner of war in Germany, and will be heartily welcomed by the citizens of Peterborough.

Monster Parade.

The show will be ushered in by a monster motor parade forming at the Market Square at 7.30 o'clock, and following the route given herewith:

Form at the Market Square at 7.30 p.m. sharp, out Charlotte Street to Park Street, up Park Street to Hunter Street, down Hunter Street to George Street, up George Street to Antrim Street, over Antrim Street to Water Street, up Water Street to Smith Street, over Smith Street to George Street, down George Street to McDonnel Street, over McDonnel Street to Aylmer Street, down Aylmer Street to Murray Street to the Armouries.

In this parade everything that runs on wheels in motor-driven vehicles is expected to be out—big and small cars, old and new cars, decorated and not decorated, roadsters, runabouts, trucks, heavy and light, are all invited to participate in the parade. The small boy on his bicycle is also asked to be there. There will be a blare of bands, all of them in the city will be on hand, the biggest and noisest motor parade in Peterborough's history.

At the Armouries, where it has been gaily decorated for the show, there will be the finest exhibition of motor cars, trucks, etc., to be seen; some imported for the show that will so please the eye of some of our citizens that they will never leave the city.

Booths have been built and decorated, a big platform for the artists, including the 35-piece orchestra, has been erected, from which the following programme will be given tomorrow night:

Programme.

By the Conservatory Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. R. Gliddon:

March—"Corcoron Cadets" (Sousa).
Overture — "Lustspiel" (Keller Bella).
Soprano solo — "The Valley of Laughter" (Sanderson), Miss Florence Scott.
Selection — "Chocolate Soldier" (Straus).
Saxaphone solo—Selected, Mr. Geo. Clarke.
"Menuet" (Paderewski).
Baritone solo — "The Battle of Stirling" (Senclair), Mr. Carlisle.
Fox trot—"You are the Only Girl" (Tebzer).
March—"Chicago Cadets" (Sousa).
God Save the King.

The Tea Room.

The tea room will be in charge of the Ladies' Patriotic Association of East City, another organization that has done wonderful work all through the war. Light refreshments served afternoon and evening.

There will be dancing every evening, rooms where you can rest, places where you can have your fortunes told and dozens of ways to spend a splendid afternoon or evening.

The proceeds are for the Peterborough Health Association, and you are asked to assist in this worthy cause by attending the show and help to make it the success it deserves.

MINISTER OF JUSTICE WAS ARRESTED

COPENHAGEN, April 8.—Herr Landsberg, Minister of Justice in the German Imperial Government, was arrested yesterday at Magdeburg, capital of Prussian Saxony, by members of regiments stationed there, a Magdeburg despatch reports. General Von Kleist, in command of the Fourth Army, and his staff also were arrested.

Ready For the Overseas Flight

Mariners Instructed to Be on the Lookout for Aircraft on the High Seas.

Special to the Examiner

LONDON, April 8. — The Air Ministry announced to-day that Pilot Harry Hawker probably will leave Newfoundland at 2 a.m., April 15, in an attempt to fly across the Atlantic.

"Within the next few weeks, perhaps in a few days, a trans-Atlantic flight will be attempted," said the statement.

"We have placed the resources of the Air Ministry at the disposal of all who attempt it. It has been generally decided to make the attempt from the American side. It is probable that Pilot Hawker will make the first attempt from Newfoundland at 2 a.m., April 15th.

"The Admiralty has instructed all mariners who sight aircraft in the North Atlantic to signal immediately the position by wireless, continuing the signal four times. At night mariners, hearing aircraft, must display illuminated signals."

F. W. Woolworth Died Suddenly

Had a Store in Peterborough — Was Founder of Chain Stores.

Canadian Press:

NEW YORK, April 8. — Frank W. Woolworth, founder and proprietor of eight hundred five and ten cent stores throughout the United States and Canada, died suddenly early to-day at his home at Glen Cove. He was born at Rodman, New York, in 1852, and his business was capitalised at sixty-five million dollars. He erected the highest building in the world in New York.

A Beautiful Sedan For the Motor Show

Mr. C. R. Banks, of the Banks Garage announces that he has been successful in securing for the Motor Show a beautiful Willys Knight 7-passenger Sedan. This is a magnificent creation, and is well worth seeing.

Among the prominent visitors to the Show will be Mr. W. A. Dovers, sales manager for Canada for the Willys Overland Co. 2d-83

The Stand of War Veterans on O.T.A.

Secretary Turley Says People Should Have Chance of Voting on O.T.A.

TORONTO, April 8.—"The question of the Ontario Temperance Act and prohibition generally cannot be decided by a mere "yes" or "no," stated Provincial Secretary W. E. Turley, of the G.W.V.A. to-day, with regard to the form of ballot announced by Premier Hearst, to be stated in the coming referendum on the temperance question. "In my opinion the form of the ballot is decidedly satisfactory. The open bar has gone forever from this province. No one wants to see the return of the bar. But unquestionably the people of the province should have a chance of voting on the O.T.A., so that the temperance enactments of the province will represent the wish of the majority of the citizens."

"Bob" Rogers Reaches Ottawa

Sees Necessity for Reorganization of the Conservative Party.

OTTAWA, April 8. — Hon. Robert Rogers, smiling and self-poised as ever, reached Ottawa this morning, and at once gave expression to his belief in the necessity of an organization of the Conservative party. He referred to the "critical point" Canadian history had reached, and declared: "If we are to save Canada from disaster there is immediate necessity for the complete organization of the Conservative party, as it is the only safe and sound form through which we can co-operate and co-ordinate under a national spirit for the common good of Canada, all branches of human industry."

"Such complete organization," said Mr. Rogers, "cannot fail to merit the confidence and support of Canadians everywhere, whose aim and object will be to see to it that not one man or woman must leave Canada because of inability to find employployment for either capital or labor."

DAYLIGHT SAVING FOR MAY'S SCHOOL UNTIL SEPTEMBER REOPENING

Guided by the prevailing opinion of the public meeting in May's School last night, the trustees decided to retain daylight saving time until midsummer, but to return to standard time at the re-opening in September. The meeting was largely attended, for the most part by residents of the Byersville district, who have adopted daylight saving. Ratepayers from the remoter parts of the school section objected that their children had to get up too early. The new time was an actual hardship on their children, but the majority of the parents present were in favour of the change, and the trustees complied with their wishes that there should be no interference with daylight saving.

Big Increase In the Revenue

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, April 8.—Revenues received by the Dominion of Canada during the fiscal year closing the end of March were 305 million dollars, being 35 million dollars over the estimate made by the government for the year. Income and war profits taxes contributed largely to this unexpected increase.

Collected revenue was fifty-three million more than in the previous fiscal year. War expenditure during the year was about 348 millions, or forty-seven millions more than the previous year.

SAYS SOVIETS WILL NOT LAST

Political Atmosphere in Bavaria Thickens—Several Leaders Arrested.

OUTWITTED POWERS

(Canadian Press.)

COPENHAGEN, April 8.—A Berlin despatch says that Enrich Muehsam, prominent Communist, who is included in the Bavarian Soviet government, has been given unlimited powers by the Bavarian Central Council, according to the "Achtuhrblatt," and thus exercises an unrestricted dictatorship. It expresses opinion that the Soviet government, however, will not last, as people are opposed to the dictatorship and hope that the counter measures taken by Premier Hoffman of the old government will be effective. Protests against the formation of a Soviet government, voiced at political meeting in Northern Bavaria, are reported in despatches from that city. Deputies of all Bourgeois portion of three Franconian governments, Upper, Lower and Middle Franconia, met in Bamberg and registered unanimous protest against a proclamation of new regime at Munich.

Were Arrested.

Former Deputies Brandes and Filkel have been arrested. Other arrests of Social Democrats and members of the Bourgeoisie are planned. The majority of Magdeburg garrison sympathizes with the Independent Socialists, the messages adds.

Political movement of great importance is imminent in the region of Hamburg reports from Berlin say. Doctors Herz and Hauffenberg, Spartacan leaders, it is added, have almost succeeded in making themselves masters of the situation and in converting Hamburg and the region between Hamburg and Bremen, into a Soviet Republic.

OUT OF POLITICS.

The Peterboro war veterans are to be congratulated upon the common sense they displayed in their decision last night that at the present time at least the G.W.V.A. should fight shy of entrance into the political arena. The Veterans have shown by their action that they recognize not only that the introduction of political issues into their body might easily result in the disruption of the organization but also that their mission of looking after the interests of returned soldiers and of the dependents of those who will never return might be seriously interfered with, if the Association were to enter the political field as a returned soldiers' party. An organization such as the G. W. V. A. which is growing by leaps and bounds—the local membership is already at the 450 mark—by keeping free from political entanglements can make itself a power that will be felt in the country. There are reforms that must be brought about and the Veterans by using the pressure that the union of all the men who fought for Canada can bring to bear, would be in a much more advantageous position to achieve results than if they attempted to make a political machine out of the organization.

EQUALITY OF PENSIONS.

The returned soldiers of Peterboro have decided to add their voice to the chorus from their comrades in all parts of Canada, demanding equality of pensions, regardless of rank, for the men who fought in the Great War. The chorus is growing stronger and louder, and is being joined in with not only by the ex-service men, but by the general public. Canada prides itself on being a democratic country; is there any evidence of a spirit of democracy in a system that says that because one man was a colonel in the war he shall receive a pension many times as large as another man who, although he has endured greater hardships and came closer to death, fought in the rank and file?

It is granted that while the men were still members of the army it was necessary that they should be paid according to their position, but is there any justification for continuing the system into private life? When the uniforms are succeeded by the mufti the officers and men of Canada's army become once more citizens of the Dominion, on a common footing with each other. There should be no distinction between them in the matter of the pension allowance they are granted to compensate them for the disability they may have suffered. It is sometimes argued that it would not be fair to bring the scale for officers down to that of the rank and file. That is evident, for the present allowance is not fair to anybody, but it would be justice to raise the pension of the private soldier up to a scale on which a disabled man might be able to live and maintain his family, and to bring the officers' allowance down to that standard. That is to adopt a pension scale that is adequate and to make it the same for all ranks. This is the feeling of returned soldiers everywhere, not only of the rank and file, but of numerous officers as well. It is noticeable that the resolution passed by the Peterboro branch of the Great War Veterans last night, was seconded by an officer member of the organization. There will probably be a great deal heard of this matter at the Provincial Convention and the popular demand for an equalization of pensions is bound to sooner or later make an impression even upon the somnolent administration at Ottawa.

DISPELLING THE GLOOM.

In view of the pessimistic stories of the failure of the Allied Peace Conference and of the rumours of strong dissension among the Allies that have been cabled across the Atlantic, especially by American correspondents, the interview given by Premier Lloyd George to Stephen Lauzanne, editor of the Matin, is of unusual importance and interest. Lloyd George advises the people of the Allied countries to wait for the facts and not pronounce on rumours. "The day does not pass but what some false note takes the light," says the British premier, and Canadians should remember his words in connection with the gloomy reports that have been cabled by correspondents whose zeal to cable news that would be sensational, seems in some cases at least to have led them to indulge in speculation that was, to say the least, unfounded on facts. The stories that the League of Nations has failed, that France is being sacrificed by the other allies, that Germany will escape unpunished, and others of the same kind that have been read with misgiving and regret by the people of Canada, are discounted by the optimism of Lloyd George, who declares that the preliminary peace treaty will be ready by Easter and that the Germans will be asked to come and sign it before the end of this month, or at the beginning of May. "I affirm absolutely that there is no divergence among the negotiators," i sthe positive statement of the British leader, and his declaration will have a tonic effect upon the people of all the allied countries. His interview is one of those gloom-dispelling talks that often during the war, when the outlook before the allied cause was of the darkest, sounded a fresh note of hope and encouragement. Several times similar declarations by Lloyd George at critical moments in the struggle put new hope into British hearts everywhere, and so his utterances on the peace conference will be joyfully hailed by those who have worried over the disquieting reports that have recently drifted over from Paris.

EMPLOYMENT FOR M.P.'S.

Capt. J. H. Burnham's harrowing picture of the poor member of Parliament struggling under the arduous burdens of his position and burning the midnight oil night after night in an effort to catch up with the work that is piling upon him cannot have come to the notice of the Financial Post or else has utterly failed to convince the editor of that well-known journal for in its current issue the Post, far from recognizing the average member of Parliament as a busy individual, discusses ways and means of finding employment for the "members in the House whose voices are never raised in debate and the others whose voices would be better silent". In view of the talk of an increased indemnity for the members of Parliament the Post's article which is published under the heading "Finding a Job for the Idle M.P." is of unusual interest. Here it is:

There was a time when the member of Parliament, when he came to Ottawa, carried with him as the most important part of his baggage a little black book, which he had occasion very frequently to consult. It contained names of those who expected a grateful member of Parliament to see that a grateful country remembered and remunerated in some substantial way for performing that mysterious rite known as "getting out the vote."

When this matter of patronage was abolished—as, officially, and to a large extent, practically, it has been—it left the member of Parliament with a considerable amount of time on his hands to devote to the affairs not of private and avaricious individuals, but of the country as a whole.

The member of Parliament cannot now be said to be overworked. He very often finds time hang heavy on his hands; and before the session is very old he finds life at Ottawa more or less of a bore. If his leisure were directed into useful channels there is a great deal of work for the good of the country which he might do.

There is scarcely a man in the House who has not a considerable amount of useful knowledge along some special line; and THE FINANCIAL POST'S Ottawa representative suggests that a great deal of use could be made of this knowledge by the formation of more special committees. Take, for example, the matter of labor unemployment in the West—something which is constantly recurring, and for which no serious attempt at a solution has ever been made. A special committee of Parliament might secure complete information on such subjects, and make recommendation which would help to remove the cause, or, at least, alleviate such situations when they arose.

There are dozens of trade problems on which it is apparently impossible to secure any information; among the membership in the House are leaders in nearly every line of business. The formation of special committees to deal with such subjects would employ the time of the members to good advantage and should make Parliamentary life more interesting for those members, particularly, who take no active part in the debates. There are members in the House whose voices are never raised in debate; and others whose voices would be better silent: both classes might very well be advantageously employed on special committees dealing with matters of great national importance, which are now largely neglected.

Presentation to Mr. F. Lockington

L. O. L. No. 457 Met Last Evening

At the conclusion of the regular meeting of L.O.L. No. 457 last evening, about thirty of the members assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lockington, Nassau, and presented them with a handsome tea kettle. Mr. Lockington is Past Master of the Lodge. The following address was read by Bro. E. E. H. Brown, while Mr. W. J. Hicks made the presentation:

Nassau, April 7, 1919.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lockington,—We your brethren and friends of Nassau Orange Lodge No. 457 have learned of your actions in the past few days, and could not let this opportunity pass without expressing our feeling in some manner. In our loving associations with you and yours we have had splendid opportunity to appreciate your many good qualities. You have been a faithful and efficient member of our Order. We hope your personal friendships gained during the many years amongst us will ever remain as steadfast in the future.

We ask you to accept this small gift as a concrete proof of our feeling towards you, and we trust that you will value it, not for its own worth, but because it symbolizes the pleasant relationship between you and ourselves, and because it is accompanied by our heartiest good wishes of a long and pleasant life together.

We trust that this may call to you the memories of the past and the prospects of a bright and pleasant future which we all wish you.

Signed on behalf of the members of the Duke of Wellington Orange Lodge,

R. Breadhiled, W.M.
J. Cunningham, D.M.
F. Sanderson, R. Sec.

To this Mr. Lockington made a fitting reply.

Has Evolved a Russian Policy

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, April 7. — The American peace delegation has evolved a definite Russian policy, it was reported to-day. It will be submitted to the other Allied delegations for ratification.

The reported policy, it was said, does not include recognition of the Bolsheviki government, but is such that Premier Lenine is likely to accept it.

Recent United Press despatches described a peace proposal submitted to the Allies by Premier Lenine, promising to discontinue Bolshevik propaganda and grant anti-Bolshevik districts the right of self determination in return for withdrawal of the Allied armies and the shipment into Russia of food and materials.

Buried Alive Five Times in Three Days

Princess Patricia Veteran is Arrested as an Absentee—Before a Court Martial.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, April 8.—(By Canadian Associated Press). — "I was buried five times in three days in France and have not been the same man since," pleaded Major Donald Grey, Eastern Ontario regiment, when court martialed for absence without leave. He pleaded not guilty. The accused was arrested in London by Colonel Clifford, the Canadian Provost Marshal. The accused told the court that in August, 1914, he joined the Princess Patricia Regiment. He was badly shaken up at Sanctuary Wood and twice wounded afterwards. He was not fit to return to France after his leave, and so wired his division. He had no idea that he had been posted as an absentee. He was about to apply for medical board when arrested. The decision of the court will be promulgated.

THERE WILL BE NO POLITICS FOR LOCAL WAR VETERANS

Unanimously Decide Not to Enter Political Arena—Branch Expresses Approval of Equality of Pensions—Delegates to Provincial Convention Chosen—Splendid Report for the Past Quarter.

The Peterboro branch of the Great War Veterans' Association at one of the largest meetings in its history at the headquarters, George street, last night unanimously placed itself on record as being opposed to the entrance of the G.W.V.A. into the political arena at the present time. There was practically no discussion when the question was introduced. Ex-President Staunton strongly advised that the Veterans should remain independent of political ties and his motion to that effect was promptly recorded and was carried unanimously by a standing vote.

The Peterboro branch also unanimously expressed its approval of equality of pensions for all Canadian soldiers, regardless of rank and of a minimum yearly pension of $1000 in the case of total disability.

New Members

Capt. A. S. Morrison, president of the branch, was in the chair. After the minutes of the last meeting and the correspondence were read, applications for membership were considered and a number of new members were initiated.

Reports Presented

Comrade R. F. Layfield, chairman of the Building Committee, presented a report of the activities of that organization and informed the members that the new headquarters on Murray street would be ready for the formal opening next month if the weather conditions are favorable.

Comrade Layfield, who is also the chairman of the Joint Committee in charge of the Veterans' drive, gave the members the details of what has already been arranged, outlining the programme for the big week ending with May 24th. There will be something doing every night, winding up with a big field day on the holiday.

The report of the House Committee which has been appointed to draft rules for the conduct of members in the rooms, was presented, but after a little discussion was given the six months' hoist, the majority believing it advisable to place the members on their honor rather than to enforce hard and fast rules.

A resolution was unanimously passed asking that the Government should make the allowance in regard to the repatriation of the wives and families of Canadian soldiers retroactive, so as to include those who returned to Canada before the armistice was signed.

The Quarterly Report.

Secretary Whatley presented the following report:

In submitting this report of the activities of the Branch during the last quarter, I desire to congratulate the members upon the splendid progress they have made during that period.

Since the beginning of the year 236 members have been initiated into the branch, making in all a total membership of 436 in good standing up to the end of March.

The finances of the branch are in a very satisfactory state. During the quarter $2,245.64 was received in dues, initiation fees and other sources. The total expenses for the quarter amounts to $1,691.58, leavin ga balance of $554.05 on the quarter's working.

During the quarter your Building committee has been successful in prchasing the property known as the Murray street Baptist church. This property is now under re-construction and when completed promises to be the finest of its kind in the Province of Ontario. This work is being undertaken entirely by local talent, and much of the success of the enterprise is due to the efforts of Comrade R. E. Layfield, who designed the present plans and has worked assiduously in order to make the whole thing a complete success. We are certainly indebted to him for the time and care that he has spent in connection with our new quarters.

During the next two weeks preparations are being made for the annual Tag Day in commemoration of the 2nd Battle of Ypres. It is to be hoped that every member who can possibly get out on Saturday, April 19th, 1919, will do so, wearing his uniform and taking one of the many boxes that will be used on that day in order that we may have an even more successful day than the two previous tag days.

On Sunday following the annual Tag Day the annual church parade will be held. This takes place at St. Peter's Cathedral and it is expected that every member will make every effort to attend this service, particularly as it is to be held annually and is one of the most important functions of the Association.

During the past quarter we lost by death two of our esteemed comrades, in the persons of Comrade W. Stoker and Comrade J. McLeod. These men were represented by a large body of Veterans at their funerals and we are greatly indebted to the services of the Band, who turned out on these occasions under very difficult circumstances.

Many claims have been settled during the last quarter, uring DJanuary in pensions, war gratuities, post discharge pay, medical expenses, compensation, etc., the total amount settled was $1,740.00. In February $1,507.00 was settled. During March this amount was augmented by the sum of $7,682.18, making the total amount of $10,298.18 for claims settled.

This covers the activities of the Branch during the quarter ending March 31st, 1919.

Comrade V. Lancaster, chairman of the Housing committee, informed the members of the progress that was being made by his committee, stating that questionaries had been sent out with a view of getting information as to the number of people who were willing to take advantage of the government scheme.

Delegates to Convention.

Secretary S. Whatley and Comrade Thos. Williams were chosen as delegates of the Peterborough branch at the annual Provincial convention of the G.W.V.A. to be held in Windsor next month. It was at first decided to send three delegates, and Capt. Morrison was the third man selected out of a field of six nominees. However, he suggested that he be permitted to withdraw on the ground that two delegates would be sufficient and that it would be advisable from a financial standing to only send that number. The meeting concurred in his views and the two comrades named will represent the Association.

A number of matters in connection with problems that will come before the convention were discussed in order that the delegates might get the feelings of the members in regard to these things. The political question and the matter of equality of pensions already referred to were among the matters discussed.

A New Harmless Way to Banish Hairy Growths

(Beauty Topics.)

By following this suggestion any woman can, in the privacy of her own home, remove every trace of hair or fuzz from her face: With powdered delatone and water mix enough paste to cover the not wanted hairs; apply and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off and wash the skin. This method is unfailing, harmless and quick in results, but care should be employed to get the genuine delatone.

The Verdict Was in Favour of Miss Law

Court Decided That the Coat Was of Good Workmanship.

At the Division Court sitting last week, His Honour Judge Huycke dismissed the case brought against Miss Law, of 426½ George Street. When he had heard the evidence of expert witnesses, His Honour decided that the coat was of good workmanship, and an excellent garment in all respects, dismissed the action which had been brought against Miss Law, and allowed Miss Law her costs.

This was an action, begun last December, against Mis Law, for the value of material supplied to Miss Law by a customer, to be made into a coat. After the coat had been delivered and paid for, the customer began to find fault with it and commenced action against Miss Law for [illegible]

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Council Urges Government To Proceed With Promised Work

Passed Resolution Petitioning the Legislature to Establish Eight Hour Day in Ontario—$26,853 Taxes Unpaid—Teamsters Ask for Higher Wages—Ald. Murray's Busy Session.

MR. PAYNE'S FINE REMITTED

Promies that have ben made to Peterboro, that a new Customs House, Post Office and Dry Dock would be built here this year were recalled by Ald. McIntyre at last night' meeting of the Council, and a resolution on his motion seconded by Ald. Edgar, was passed unanimously urging that the work be begun on as soon as possible. The City Clerk was instructed to send copies of this resolution to Mr. J. H. Burnham and to the Hon. F. B. Carvell.

"They assured us that this work would be started this spring," remarked Mayor Duncan.

"Does this mean a deputation to Ottawa," asked Ald. Murray. "It seems to me that they are a good deal of a picnic."

"There's no picnic in going to Ottawa one night and returning the next night," replied Mayor Duncan. "I want to say that there has been no high-flying this year. I call it work while in going to Ottawa and coming back with $50,000. But if we get anything ahead of us, we will not be going on deputations."

"Ald. Murray:—"I was down to Ottawa one night, and it was the most comfortable night I ever had."

Mayor Duncan:—"It doesn't say much for your bed."

Replying to another question, His Worship stated that he purposed going to Toronto with the object of trying to get $50,000 from the Ontario Government."

No Seconder To Motion

Ald. Murray signalized his return to the Council after a long illnes by proposing several motions, and otherwise assuming a lead in the discussions. He moved that the by-laws authorizing the heads of civic departments to engage their employees be rescinded.

Mayor Duncan remarked that if this change were carried out it would upset conditions in the Fire Department, and probably would seriously impair the discipline.

Ald. Murray:—"I don't see why the Chief should have any right to engage his help. In justice to the citizens every vacancy should be advertised."

Ald. Gainey at first seconded the motion, but in referring to it he said he was reluctant to interfere with the methods at the Fire Hall. He was satisfied to apply it to the departments at the City Hall.

Ald. Garside poined out that this resolution would have the effect of tying the hands of the City Engineer and the Street Commissioner. If they wished to engage or discharge a man they could take no action until the Council had given its sanction one way or the other.

Mayor Duncan:—"I hold that the man at the head of a department should be boss."

After further discussion in this vein, Ald. Murray's motion failed to secure a seconder and was forthwith abandoned.

An Eight Hour Day

Ald. Gainey revealed a streak of perseverance by moving, seconded by Ald. Murray that he Council petition the Ontario Government to enaforce an eight hour day with a half holiday on Saturday throughout the Province. This resolution passed on a vote of six to three. Those who supported it were Aldermen Taylor, McIntyre, Garside, Murray, Morrison and Gainey. Ald. Turner was absent.

Ald. Murray is Skeptical

Ald. Murray next turned his attention to the Fair Price Committee, which the Council had previously constituted by giving Aldermen Gainey and Garside a free hand. He believed that he Council had "put one over" the three Labor men, and doubted that they could accomplish anything. They might make enquiries from the retailers, but if the public desired to obtain redress from the present prices they should co-operate as the consumers of the Old Country had done, establishing their own manufacturies and retaining complete control of the business. Ald. Murray improved his opportunity by advocating the co-operative system, stating that it had proved a success in Great Britain, where the people manufactured their own goods, maintaining the highest quality and securing full quantity at the same time, with advantages in prices that accrued from this system.

The relatives of the late William H. Denham wrote to the Council acknowledging Peterboro's condolences in their bereavement. The formal card bore the names of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Eichenlaub, Miss Dorothy Denham Eichenlaub and Miss Ella Gertrude Denham.

Shuts Out Barber's Pole

Jones Bros. of Toronto, jobbers in barbers' supplies, wrote that they had sold a revolving pole to a Peterboro customer for advertising purposes, but he had cancelled the order because the City's Sign By-law had prohibited the erection over the sidewalk. The Company stated that this attractive sign was not a large one, and would not interfere with or present a danger to traffic. They requested that the by-law be amended to admit this sign. Referred to the Board of Works and also to the City Engineer for a report.

The Trades and Labor Council's communication urging the impartial enforcement of the Building By-law was referred to the Property Comm.

Wilfred J. Grisdale, 582 Aylmer street, applied for permission to remove a tree from in front of his property. Referred to the Board of Works.

More Production

H. Crary, 515 Cedar street and Thos. Greer, were given permission to use, this summer, the grounds opposite the Queen Mary School which they cultivated last year.

Teamsters Want Higher Wages

Stating that $5.50 a day was not enough to meet the advanced cost of living, sixteen teamsters requested the Council to grant them a substantial increase in wages. Referred to Board of Works.

Fine Was Refunded

Convinced that he had been wrongfully convicted under the War Time Stamp Act, on Order-in-Council, E. L. Payne, druggist, explained the case to the Department of Inland Revenue and appealed the remittal of the $50 which he had been fined in the local police court on a charge of neglecting to affix a war stamp to a certain proprietary article.

Mr. Payne wrote the Council that his money had been refunded by the Department and he applied for the $3.10 which he had paid to the City. Referred to Legal Committee.

Tax Collector's statement for March:

To total acc't on roll	$496,576.24
By Total acc't deposited	469,722.94
Deposit during March	3,888.02

Ald. Edgar suggested that this statement should be sent to the Finance Committee.

"We should be getting after that $26,000 taxes in arrears," he commented.

"I spoke to Mr. Green the other day," said the Mayor, "and he told me he was doing all he could."

The report was forwarded to the Committee.

THE GRENFELL MISSION FUND

The absence of the treasurer of this fund from the city has of necessity lengthened the period of appeal. Mrs. Wood has returned and we now give a list of all contributors, both directly to the treasurer and through the Examiner. The accounts are not mentioned, for good reasons. If any of the friends of this work have been overlooked in special appeal through the absence of the treasurer, will they kindly consider this an invitation to participate, and it is hoped that many new friends will still see their way clear to send in an offering to one of the newspapers.

List of contributors to the Grenfell Medical Mission send direct to the treasurer: Mrs. John Wood, Miss A. E. Wood, Mrs. Halliday, Mrs. Margaret Downham, T. F. Matthews, Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., Mrs. Magie, Mrs. R. Waddell, J. J. Turner, Mrs. Cressman, J. Fairbrother, Mrs. G. A. Wood, Mrs. James Wood.

Names of those who sent amounts to The Examiner:

J. A. Aylmer, W. A. Logan, Mrs. H. Rogers, Frank Rosel, Miss Lancaster, Well Wisher, Keene, Ont., Mrs. Best, F. Q. Orr, Mrs. William Church, Mrs. J Garbutt, Mrs. J. Wood, Mrs. A. G. Maguire, D. H. Moore, F. E. Kerr, Mrs. Langley, Pearl avenue, E. Edwards, Mrs. A. P. Waddell, "A Friend," Mrs. Dobie, John Williams, W. P. Adamson, G. A. Gillespie, Mrs. R. H. Braden and Mrs. Robert Darling, Miss Nan Hall, Miss Elsie E. Taylor, Miss Cochrane, Miss Mathews, Mrs. Montgomery, J. D. Collins, Mrs. D. C. Edwards, Miss Rubidge, Mrs. Morris, W. H. Hamilton, Mrs. Mann, Park St. Mission Circle, Mrs. Haslett, Mrs. Walsh, Miss Dickson, Miss M. Dickson, Miss Edwards.

Dr. Grenfell has asked the children of Canada to provide a brick home for the homeless children of Labrador. Each child who gives twenty-five cents to this fund is paying for a brick in the new orphans' home in St. Anthony. Surely there are many children in Peterborough who would be willing to help to build this home for the children who need it so much. Contributions may be left at the Y.W.C.A., Simcoe street, or sent to Mrs. James Wood, secretary-treasurer Grenfell Medical Mission.

List of contributors to the "Brick Fund" St. Anthony:

Miss Peck, Janet Sanderson, Helen Sanderson, Ira Sanderson, Mary Sanderson, Isabel Bidwell, Ethel Walsh, Rena Johnson, Margery Hutchinson, Miss Garbutt, Mrs. Garbutt, Hilda Thompson, Mamie Cottingham, Gladys Kelly, Zetta Robinson, Gordon Langley, Clara Morris, Irving Morris, Lily Lake, Sunday school.

MUSICAL BURGLAR ENTERS CHAS. VANDERBILT'S HOME

TARRYTOWN, N.Y., April 8.—A musical burglar broke into the home of Charles Vanderbilt in South Broadway, through the glass in the front door and enjoyed himself playing records on a talking machine. Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt are at Augusta, Ga., for the winter and all their valuables are locked in a safe deposit vault. The burglar, after ransacking the house, went to the icebox and got out refreshments left by the butler, and as he dined he played the phonograph. Remnants of the luncheon and the records were found on the table this morning. The top record was "Till we meet again." Chief of Police Bowles wishes to make an appointment with the intruder.

A SICKLY WIFE NO FIT MATE FOR ANY MAN

GIRLS AND WOMEN SHOULD LOOK WELL TO THEIR HEALTH AND STRENGTH.

Never before was physical health and vigor so highly esteemed and so eagerly sought for as to-day.

No man finds happiness in a sickly wife, and the woman who wishes to enjoy the pleasures of life should spare no effort to maintain perfect health.

Is your daughter growing up strong and ruddy? Has she strength to drink in greedily all the pleasures that youth so zealously seeks—or is she compelled to use the street car instead of enjoying the delightful exercise of walking—does she after the ball arise refreshed and vigorous or is she exhausted, indifferent, and perhaps irritable?

When strength and vigor can be so easily maintained by Ferrozone, when the glow of health is so quickly brought to the cheeks and elasticity to the step, it is plainly a mother's duty to see that Ferrozone is on hand to assist her daughter back to health.

Upon the wake of Ferrozone quickly follows a stream of rich, nourishing blood which imparts that power and surplus energy so earnestly desired by those in ill-health.

Stop and think what this means for your daughter—certainly a great deal, and it can be accomplished by Ferrozone.

Every growing girl and young woman derives enormous benefit in many ways from this nutritive, vitalizing tonic.

It is specially suited for young women and is a guarantee of health and regularity as long as it is used.

Ferrozone is free from alcohol and perfectly safe to use. Prepared in the form of a chocolate-coated tablet and sold in 50c boxes or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Complains That C.P.R. Wage to Labourer Is Much Too Small

Stating that the C.P.R. had been paying only 25c an hour to labourers, although this wage had been increased to 27c. yesterday, Ald. Gainey moved, seconded by Ald. Murray at last night's Council meeting that the Minister of Labour be requested to investigate this situation and have a proper wage paid to these men. Ald. Gainey said that they composed an extra gang, and were told that if they would not accept 25 cents an hour they needn't take it. Under the present cost of living, he continued, 25 and 27 cents an hour for eight hours was insufficient for a man and family.

Ald. Murray failed to get a seconder for his resolution urging the Government to abolish the property qualifications for elections.

A resolution by Aldermen Taylor and Phelan providing for the sale of certain sewer debentures was passed, but it called forth a kindred motion by Ald. Edgar seconded by Ald. Murray that this matter be referred to the Finance Committee for the purpose of offering the debentures for sale to the ratepayers.

Everybody Talking About It

Heretofore many Motor Car owners have been sending their money out of town for Accessories and Supplies.

Now they are jubilant over the fact that they can buy all the supplies they require at the same prices, without any delay or express charges, at the Duffus Garage, Wholesale and Retail.

City and suburban garages are delighted with this department of the Duffus Garage which enables them to procure standard Parts and Supplies without delay or difficulty, instead of having to wait or to carry costly stocks themselves.

THE GRENFELL MISSION FUND

The absence of the treasurer of this fund from the city has of necessity lengthened the period of appeal. Mrs. Wood has returned and we now give a list of all contributors, both directly to the treasurer and through the Examiner. The accounts are not mentioned, for good reasons. If any of the friends of this work have been overlooked in special appeal through the absence of the treasurer, will they kindly consider this an invitation to participate, and it is hoped that many new friends will still see their way clear to send in an offering to one of the newspapers.

List of contributors to the Grenfell Medical Mission send direct to the treasurer: Mrs. John Wood, Miss A. E. Wood, Mrs. Halliday, Mrs. Margaret Downham, T. F. Matthews, Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., Mrs. Magie, Mrs. R. Waddell, J. J. Turner, Mrs. Cressman, J. Fairbrother, Mrs. G. A. Wood, Mrs. James Wood.

Names of those who sent amounts to The Examiner:

J. A. Aylmer, W. A. Logan, Mrs. H. Rogers, Frank Rosel, Miss Lancaster, Well Wisher, Keene, Ont., Mrs. Best, F. Q. Orr, Mrs. William Church, Mrs. J. Garbutt, Mrs. J. Wood, Mrs. A. G. Maguire, D. H. Says Concrete Bridge Demands Expenditure of Too Large a Sum

Steel Bridge Would Permit a Saving That Could Be Used for the Outfall Sewer, Good Roads or Other Necessary Work and Afford Additional Employment.

MR. SHEEHY'S TENDER

In tendering for the Hunter street bridge contract, Richard Sheehy and Sons of Peterboro, submitted a bid on the Barber plans and an alternative one for a steel bridge designed by the Dominion Bridge Company. In view of the strong opinion held by many citizens that a steel bridge would enable the city to save approximately $100,000 that could be used upon road work, the outfall sewer or some other necessary local work that would provide employment as soon as the city is prepared to undertake any of these projects, the alternative tender is published herewith.

The Sheehy tender for a steel bridge is publish'd for the purpose of acquainting the public of the possibilities of steel. This phase of the problem applies not only directly to the tender of Sheehy and Sons, but to any other tender that might be obtained from other contractors.

In fact Mr. Sheehy stated to the Examiner that he had practically decided to withdraw his tender at once for the reason that other work was offering, but as a citizen and a ratepayer he was convinced that the concrete bridge would ultimately cost a huge sum. He pointed out that the city would begin other work it had planned and could thus open up extra employment almost immediately. In addition the steel bridge would require quite a number of local men despite statements to the contrary, and with these considerations was the outstanding fact that for the money expended Peterboro could not only erect a bridge of steel such as the Bloor street viaduct in Toronto, but with the sum, which it was stated could be saved, the city could complete other projects without sinking the whole sum into a concrete bridge.

Mr. Sheehy's tender for a steel bridge was as follows:

"Owing to the different expressions of opinion re a steel bridge. I herewith submit plan of a steel construction bridge with concrete abutments. This bridge is 810 feet long with filled approaches, width of roadway 42 feet with 6 feet sidewalks as shewn on plan.

This bridge being designed by the Dominion Bridge Co. is guaranteed to carry exactly the same traffic as the concrete design. With a bridge of this type it is possible to guarantee he finished cost before work is commenced and could be supervised by our resident city engineer without any outside assistance and work could be started immediately.

The cost of this bridge would be approximately two hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars ($235,000.00) and if nine feet narrower approximately two hundred an fifteen thousand dollars ($215,000.00). I would drow your attention to the fact that there would be no engineer's fee to add to the cost of the bridge, as full details would be supplied by the Dominion Bridge Co. and guaranteed by them and myself. The steel bridge could also be completed this year which is an important consideration."

WAR HERO CHARGED WITH ATTEMPT TO ROB STORE.

NEW YORK, April 4.—When two defendants were arraigned in the West Side Court, charged with attempting to rob a curiosity shop in Broadway, one of them proved to be a soldier who had won the Distinguished Service Cross and the Croix de Guerre. He explained that he is Private Arthur La Salle, and that his decorations were awarded him for capturing fifteen Germans without aid near the Argonne Forest.

Policeman Benjamin Jacobs, of the West Forty-Seventh Street Station, said he had heard a crash of glass and found La Salle and a man, who gave the name of William Edmonds, removing fountain pens, curios and jewellery from the window of the Lee Curiosity Shop at Broadway and Fifty-Third Street. The men were held in $1,500 bail each for the Grand Jury.

Heals Inflamed Nostrils Stops Catarrhal Discharge, Cures Colds Quickly

Poor remedies have given Catarrh the reputation of being incurable. But it is curable, easily and quickly, if the right method is employed. Snuffing a powder or ointment up the nose won't cure Catarrh, neither will tablets, douching or stomach medicines cure. These treatments fail because they only affect local conditions, they do not remove the cause, which is germ life established in the lungs, bronchial tubes and nasal passages. Ordinary remedies do not reach these remote parts, but Catarrhozone does, for it is breathed through the inhaler, into every air cell in the lungs, into every air passage in the head and throat. No matter where the catarrh is Catarrhozone will reach it. It kills the germs, heals sore spots, clears the nose and throat instantly. Universally used; pleasant and clean; guaranteed to cure or the money refunded.

Don't be an object of aversion to everyone you meet—get Catarrhozone to-day and use it regularly; it will cure your Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Trouble, spitting and gagging. Large size lasts for two months, price $1.00; smaller size, 50c; sample size, 25c; at all dealers.

Lemons Beautify! Make Quarter Pint of Lotion, Cheap

Here is told how to prepare an inexpensive lemon lotion which can be used to bring back to any skin the sweet freshness, softness, whiteness and beauty.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands, and see for yourself.

RECOVER FRASER'S BODY

WINNIPEG, Man., April 5.—The body of Allen T. Fraser, the chief engineer of National Railways, who was killed in a snow-slide near Mt. Robson, was brought here. Interment takes place in Ottawa, Ont., the body being taken to Toronto first.

MASSACHUSETS HAS MOST WONDERFUL CLOCK IN WORLD

BOSTON, Mass. — In the observatory of the Nichols Academy at Dudley, Mass., is the most wonderful clock in the entire United States, and porbably in the world. It is the kind of a clock that tells time three ways, and it's always right. If the sun should be one second slow in rising to-morrow morning the clock would register a black mark against the orb of day and would tick its peculiar record in spite of the sun.

It is called a right ascension clock, and cost nearly $20,000. The designer and the maker was a widely known genius and the sidereal clock was the masterpiece of his life.

This clock was a gift from Hezekiah Conant, a native son of Dudley who made a fortune manufacturing thread. He had three things to his credit that are mentioned these days, the first daily paper ever printed in Worcester the most wonderful clock in the world, and the first Dudley man to make $1,000,000. The observatory containing this clock is the most complete of any in the State outside of Harvard.

A good fighter dodges lots of quarrels.

G.W.V.A. Branches May Join West

Controversy Over Issue May Be a Lively One.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, April 8.—Is the Ontario G.W.V.A. to lose Port Arthur, Fort William, Dryden, Kenora and two or three other important Western Ontario members to Manitoba. At the Ontario convention in Windsor on the 14th, 15th and 16th of next month, representations will be made on behalf of Manitoba Provincial command to have this territory added to their jurisdiction. A large number of the members of the various branches affected are decidedly against them leaving the Ontario Association for the Western Province, and the controversy over the annexation of these points to the Manitoba command is expected to be a lively one.

The attitude of the Provincial command is that the western points must settle the matter for themselves and that the Ontario authorities will not put anything in the way of them joining with Manitoba if the branches themselves feel that it would be in the best interests of the G.W.V.A. Yesterday one of the Port Arthur extremists wrote the Ontario Provincial Secretary describing the proposed change as a pipe dream among the westerners. There are several thousand members in this district affected.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

New Athletic Club Formed

South End Athletes Organize to Further Different Sports.

That reconstruction is not being confined to mercantile interests alone was manifest last evening in the goodly number who turned out at the Sacred Heart School, Lake Street, to attend an organization meeting of an Athletic Club for the South End of the city. Many spoke their approval of again reviving sport in that district, and seemed to be unanimous in naming the club the Lakeview Athletic Club, in consideration of the part played in past years by a club of similar aim in the South End. For some time a club of this nature has been under way, for it has been seen in the past that the South End has been contributing athletes for every line of sport in the city, and an organized method to unite these will no doubt prove to be a happy move. This new club, it is planned, will take up every line of sport. Father Gorman acted as chairman.

After considerable discussion the following officers were chosen to guide the club through its first year:

Hon. Pres.—Peter Milloy.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—Enias Maybee.
President—Wm. Meagher.
Vice-President—A. Cranfield.
Secretary—Jack Condon.
Executive Committee—Walter Jackson, Ed. Desautel, Frank Neary.

Turnbull's Lost Two Games

Last night in the Five-pin League at the Water street alleys, Matthews-Blackwell took two games from the leaders. For Matthews-Blackwell, Stanton was high man with 593. McLean and Everett both reached the 525 mark. For Turnbulls, Perry had 524, Villineve 522. Scores:

Matthews-Blackwell—
Stanton	199	266	218	593
McLean	136	220	169	525
Mansfield	116	108	137	361
Matthews	128	125	136	379
Everett	189	221	175	525

First Team to Organize For the City Ball League

The Matthews-Blackwell ball team for the City League was organized yesterday, with the following officers:

Hon. Pres.—T. B. Matthews.
President—Gordon Matthews.
Vice-Pres.—R. Hall.
Manager—Dan McCabe.
Secretary—Carl McLean.
Treasurer—J. McDonald.
Executive Committee—R. Everett, G. Cunningham, S. Lowe.

De Laval Won From Grocers

Last night in the Business Men's Ten-pin League at the Water street alleys, the De Laval won two from the Grocers. Ross for the Grocers had the high count of 514. For the De Laval Fitzgerald was high with 523.

Employees of J. J. Turner Company Held a Banquet

First Union Gathering Was a Big Success—The Toast List.

A most enjoyable time was spent last evening a the Empress Hotel on the occasion of the first union banquet of the employers and employees of the firm of J. J. Turner & Sons, Ltd., a banquet which, considering the unqualified success of the initial undertaking, is bound to become an annual event in the history of this lately organized firm. The get-together and pull-together spirit which conceived the idea of this banquet was evident every moment throughout the entire evening, and nothing occurred to in the slightest degree mar the universal feeling of harmony and goodwill existing between this firm and its employees. With the exception of two or three, who were unavoidably absent, practically every one in any way connected with this progressive firm was present, and all came determined to make this an evening to think about and talk about, no matter what undertakings of a similar nature may transpire in the future.

Promptly at 7.30 the doors were opened to the large dining-hall which had been modestly, yet tastefully, decorated for the occasion, and the company sat down to a repast such as only this popular and home-like hotel is famous for. Nothing which could add to the comfort and convenience of those assembled was left undone, and too much cannot be said for the service given by the management of this excellent hotel.

After full justice had been done to the various courses served, the following programme was carried out:

Toasts—The King—Our Guests—The Chairman.
Song—"There's a Land" . F. Alliston
Mr. H. Farr.
Response by Mr. J. J. Turner and Mr. A. W. Turner.
Reading—"Lary O'Dee" . . . .
Miss F. Stewart.
Song—"The Diver" . . E. J. Loder
Mr. T. Boddy.
"Some Stories" . . . . . .
Mr. Reg. H. Turner.
Our Travellers—Mr. W. F. Turner.
Dance—Sailors' Hornpipe . . . .
Miss E. Price.
Response by Mr. G. C. Staples and Mr. H. F. C. Dreyer.
Song—"The Flight of Ages" F. Bevan
Mr. Geo. E. Chandler.
"Auld Lang Syne."
Mr. R. J. Devey, accompanist.
Mr. Geo. E. Chandler, chairman.

In passing it need only be said that every number was a success. The addresses of members of the firm were most inspiring and full of the spirit of optimism and goodwill which permeates this whole institution.

The evening's proceedings concluded by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem.

"MICKEY"

Neil Moret, the popular song writer, gave the "Mickey" caste a great surprise at their studio one day by an unexpected music recital in which he serenaded "Mickey." There were many exclamations of delight, of course, since no one imagined he had seen any of the scenes in this great photoplay, which will be shown at the Grand Opera House, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Miss Normand particularly was pleased with the song, which brought out in such sweet and melodious music, the very spirit of the photo-play.

To-day this song, which the photo-play inspired, is proving one of the most popular song hits of the year, one million copies having already been sold to the public, song and dance records having been made by the leading talking machine companies and piano roll companies.

There was a good deal of questioning later on, as to how he knew anything about "Mickey." No one in the company had ever noticed Mr. Moret there during the rehearsals. In order to get some peace on the subject, therefore, he told them that he had first noticed "Mickey" when he had dropped into the studio for a chat one day with one of the directors. At that time the very first scenes were being "shot," and attracted by the charming personality of "Mickey," he stayed the entire day. Two hours later, inspired by this fascinating photoplay, he wrote the song dedicated to "Mickey," and which he called "Mickey."

But why Miss Normand should be at all peeved, after the first surprise of the song no one could quite fathom. As for Neil Moret, he sat it down, as "just like a woman." It leaked out, however, several days later, when Miss Normand said she was afraid of "Mickey." 'It sticks so," she complained, "just as Peter Pan is associated with Maude Adams." Nevertheless, just ask Miss Normand some day how proud she is of her twin sister, "Mickey." She loves that mischievous little girl as much as everyone else does, she has confided many times.

United States Crop 837,000,000 Bushels

Increase of Wheat Crop Over Last Year—Average Condition of Crop.

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, April 8th. — The production of a 1919 wheat crop of 837,000,000 bushels was forecasted today by the United States Bureau of crop estimates.

The yield was indicated by the average conditions of winter wheat on April 1st, which was 99.8 per cent. of normal, against 78.9 a year ago, 83.4 two years ago, and 82.3 the average for the past ten years.

The production forecast is an increase over the estimated production of last year of 278,551,000 bushels. The crop two years ago was 413,991,000 bushels.

All blooming shrubs should be trimmed after they have stopped blooming. It is the new growth that makes the blooms, and if that is cut off in the spring the bush will not bloom well.

LAKEFIELD PERSONALS

LAKEFIELD, April 8.—Miss Molly Young, of Peterborough, was in the village last week, visiting her sister, Mrs. Dr. S. J. Gibson.

Pte. George Tanner, of Saskatoon, passed through Lakefield on Friday to visit friends at Apsley.

Mrs. Sid. Middleton, who had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Hendren, returned to her home at Peterborough on Saturday.

Mrs. William Young, of Calgary, was the guest last week of Mrs. A. J. Young.

Mrs. J. H. Northey, of Peterborough, was in the village last week, the guest of her brother, Mr. A. J. Young.

Miss Nina Sherin, of Peterborough, was in the village on Saturday.

Mr. Con. Young, of Peterborough, was a week-end visitor with his daughter, Mrs. S. J. Gibson.

Mrs. Booth, of Apsley, spent the week-end in the village visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gilman returned to Lakefield this week, after spending a couple of months in Peterborough.

Mrs. Robertson, of Toronto, president of the Women's Missionary Society, delivered an excellent address on Friday night at the eight days' series of meetings held in the Presbyterian Church.

The series was completed on Sunday night by a most eloquent address on the Forward Movement of Missions by Rev. Alfred Gaudin, Principal of Knox College, Toronto.

He delivered a splendid sermon to a large audience, and which made a splendid ending to the series.

LLOYD GEORGE WILL CONFER WITH WILSON

Meeting is Regarded as Highly Significant.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, April 8. — Premier Lloyd George, entirely recovered from his cold, will confer with President Wilson at three o'clock this afternoon.

Inorder to make the appointment the Premier suddenly deferred his scheduled speech to the correspondents from 3 to 6 p.m. The incident was regarded as deeply significant, in view of speculation as to whether his speech will reveal an alignment with the President, or otherwise.

DUFFUS EXHIBIT AT MOTOR SHOW

GRAY DORT

Ask—and be Convinced

To those who still doubt we say—talk to a Gray Dort owner and be convinced.

Ask him about the motor—that puts at your command a smooth, quiet flow of real power—instantly. Ask him about the comfort of this generously-large light car. Ask him about the equipment—about economy of tires, gasoline. And the longer he has his Gray Dort, the more enthusiastic he will be.

A fine example of practical and sound careful construction. Performance and marked economy is the truest index to its rare value.

For pleasure riding its 50" Springs makes it superior to any car of its class. By a single ride you can easily verify this for yourself.

See this handsome, sturdy car at the Motor Show. Fully equipped, Nobby Tread Tires on the rear.

PRICE—Touring Car $1245 f.o.b. Chatham.

After a $50,000 "Golden Fleece"

Ald. McIntyre Leading An Argonautic Expedition to Toronto To-day.

Ald. McIntyre this morning essayed the role of Jason and set out for Toronto to bring home the golden fleece. His fellow Argonauts were members of the special bridge committee including Mayor Duncan, Ald. Phelan, Ald. Morrison and Ald. Gainey. The figure is not too strongly coloured, for on the surface the attending difficulties seem insuperable to ordinary mortals in this town and time. Ald. McIntyre told the Council a few nights ago that he had been assured on good authority that Peterboro could get a contribution of $50,000 in Toronto for the Hunter street bridge.

His announcement was decidedly cryptic, but the studied reticence in regard to details inspired the inference that the golden fleece would be "easy picking". His assurance sounded so convincing that Mayor Duncan and Ald. Phelan as Castor and Pollux in this expedition arranged the details of the venture. Ald. Morrison may be set down as Hercules, Ald. Gainey as Theseus, but Ald. Turner, as Orpheus, decided that his voice and presence were not needed. It is assumed that the Argonauts expect to obtain the $50,000 from the Ontario Government, and that Sir Adam Beck is cast for the part of Medea. At that point the analogy is broken, for experience should put the local Thessalonians on their guard against this particular intermediary who to some citizens appears as the Colchian dragon rather than the friendly and powerful Medea. The Hydro-Electric scheme was held out as a golden fleece to Peterboro some years ago, and the Aldermen of that day went after it as true but guileless Argonauts To-day, that golden fleece is regarded as a gold brick, and the thinking community realizes that it was thoroughly fleeced then. Only the hope that the Beck "Medea" has undergone a change of heart recognizing that something material is due to Peterboro can prompt the hope Ald McIntyre will bring back anything more tangible than the fading smiles of a pleasant reception.

Temance Forces Will Not Commise on Temperance Issue

Will Vote on All Questions— f Hotelmen.

(S The Examiner.)

TOR April 8.—The fight over the Ont perance Act involved in the m vote on four questions a by the Ontario government up into a no compromise by the Temperance forces, negative vote on all questio

Liqu will attempt to carry the qu ough, which propose to grand hotels the privilege of selli er about the strength of "Anheuch."

"No se, vote "no" on all questi e slogan of the temperanc according to Mr. Geo. Warbu e Committee of One Hundr forthcoming campaign. not a compromising people show them a decisive victor o vote is taken," said Mr. W to-day.

the People.

"Is ittee of One Hundred still "Yees, and will certainly job in the forthcoming c

"Th which are to be submitt ers regarding prohibition isfactory as any four propo ould be," said he. "Wh ems to be some doubt as to of submitting many quest fair-minded man can have ions, especially as the whole series of questions can be answered by "no." The problem before the temperance people of the province is to organize as to secure a full expression of public opinion. When this is done there will be no question as to what the will of the people is with respect to the use of alcohol for beverage purposes. In spite of a very aggressive propaganda against prohibition the people know that it has been beneficial and Canadians will never consent to any backward step being taken. The eyes and the will of Canada are turned the other way.

The Hotel Men.

Mr. W. E. Allen, secretary of the Ontario License and Allied Trades Association, which he states is composed of standard hotel men throughout the province, would not discuss whether the organization would put up a campaign or not. "The questions submitted seem reasonably fair," he said. "The beer which is indicated in the amendment, according to Mr. Allan, is about the strength of "Anheuser Busch." "It is a light beer," he said.

"Is your organization still in shape?" "Yes," replied Mr. Allan.

"Will there be a real campaign put up?" "I would think so," he said.

Mr. Allen would not give the name of the President, and would not state the policy of the organization any further than quoted. The headquarters of the offices are in Toronto.

Mr. George Wright, of the Hotelkeepers' Association, stated that he had only glanced at the questions. As far as the hotelkeepers are concerned their attitude is one of absolute noninterference. "Let the people decide for themselves, and no attempt is being made to influence public opinion at all. It is a matter for the people to decide, and that is the attitude of hotelmen as I know them."

Rev. Dr. John Somerville, treasurer Presbyterian church: "The simpler the form in which these things can be submitted to the people the better. I believe the present form will tend to confuse the electors. There should be a main question, with the alternatives yes or no. The proposed form of ballot will result in many of the ballots being spoiled and what is really wanted is the view of the country on the subject."

CANADIAN COPYRIGHT LAW IS BEFORE THE SENATE

Lieut. Rice, With Deputation of Musicians, Tells Upper House of Inadequacy of Law.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 8.—Lieut. Gitz Rice, the young Canadian who wrote "Keep Your Head Down, Fritz Boy," and other popular song successes, was the principal representative of the Authors' and Composers' Association before the Senate committee on the Copyright Bill this morning. Lieut. Rice told the committee of the money he had lost and the disabilities he had suffered in the United States because he was a Canadian, and the Canadian Copyright Law was so inadequate as to give him neither protection nor privilege.

The chances are that fashions will be eccentric during the next few years, simply as a reaction from the war.

Construction of Scenic Highway

One of an Army of Deputations Visited Queen's Park To-day.

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, April 8.— Construction of a scenic highway through the northern districts of Ontario was urged on Hon. G. H. Ferguson, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, by a deputation fifty strong, from Ontario, Victoria, Haliburton, Muskoka and other counties to-day. The scenic beauties of such a highway were pointed out to the Minister by several speakers, after the deputation had been introduced by John Carew, member of the Legislature for South Victoria. It was suggested that the route followed be along Cameron Lake and Balsam Lake, thence along the shores of Mud and Turtle Lake, up the Gull River, and finally to the Lake of Bays. Hon. Mr. Ferguson in reply promised that an engineer would be appointed to investigate the project and that his report would be given serious consideration. He expressed himself personally as favouring the proposal.

MRS. BALFAME

She was too careful of her best tailored suit to lie down, but she arranged herself comfortably in a corner of the davenport and closed her eyes. Soothed by the warmth of the room and the organ tones in the kitchen she drifted into a happy state of somnolence, from which she was aroused by the entrance of her hostess with a tray. She sprang up guiltily.

"I had no intention of falling asleep—I meant to set the table at least—"

"Those cat naps are what has kept you young and beautiful, while the rest of us have traded complexions for hides."

Mrs. Balfame gracefully insisted upon clearing and laying a corner of the table, and the two friends sat down and chatted gaily over their tea and toast and preserves. Dr. Anna's face—a square face with a snub nose and kindly twinkling eyes—beamed as her friend complimented her upon the erudition she had displayed in her reply to the Club guest and added wistfully:

"I feel as if I didn't know a thing about this war. Everybody contradicts everybody else, and sometimes they contradict themselves. I'm going over to-morrow" ("going over" meant New York in the Elsinore tongue) "and get all the books that have been printed on the subject and read up. I do feel so ignorant."

"That's a large order. When you've dug through them you'll know less than you could get from the headlines of the anti evening papers. I'll hunt up a list that was given me by a patient who claims to be neutral, if you really want it, and leave it at your house in the morning. It's at the office."

"Oh, please do" Mrs. Balfame leaned eagerly across the table. "You know, it is my turn to read a paper Friday week, and literally I can think of nothing else except this terrible but most interesting war. Of course, I must display some real knowledge and not deal merely in adjectives and generalities. I'll read night and day—I suppose I can get all those books from two or three New York libraries."

"Enid Balfame, you are a wonder! When you buckle down to a thing! Who but you would take hold of a subject like that with the idea of mastering it in two weeks—Oh, bother!"

The telephone was ringing. Dr. Anna tilted back her chair and lifted the receiver from the desk to her ear. She got it down almost immediately. "Hurry call," sh esaid briefly, an intense professional concentration banishing the pleasant relaxation of a moment before. "Baby. Sorry. Leave the key under the door mat. Don't hurry." She was putting on her wraps in the hall as she called back her last words. The front door banged simultaneously.

Mrs. Balfame piled the dishes on the tray, carried them out into the kitchen, washed and put them away. She was a very methodical woman and exquisitely neat. Although she no longer did her own kitchen work, it would have distressed her to leave her friend's little home at "sixes and sevens"; the soiled dishes would have haunted her all night, or, at least until she fell asleep.

After she had also arranged the publications on the sitting-room table in neat rows she put on her coat and hat, turned off the lights, secreted the key as requested and walked briskly down the path. There was a street lamp directly in front of the gate. Its light fell on the face of a man emerging from the heavy shadow of the maple trees that bordered the avenue. She recognized her husband's lawyer, Dwight Rush.

"What luck!" he exclaimed boyishly. "Now I shall talk to you for at least five minutes—tell if you will walk slowly! What ar e you doing out so late alone?"

Mrs. Balfame glanced apprehensively up and down the street. All the windows were alight but it was too late in the season for loitering on verandas; even if they met any one, recognition would hardly be possible unless the encounter took place under a street lamp. Moreover she was one of these women who while rarely terrified when alone, became intensely feminine when a man appeared with his archaic right to shield and protect. She smiled graciously.

"You may see me to my gate," she said.

"I should think I might- A pistol at my head wouldnt' keep me from walking these few blessed minutes with you. Seriously, it's not safe for you to be out alone like this. There were three burglaries last week, and you are just the woman to have her bag snatched."

She drew closer to him, a faint accent of alarm in her voice.

"I never thought of that. But Anna was called off in a hurry. I am so glad you happened along. Although," primly, "it wouldn't do, you know, for a woman of my age and position, to be seen walking alone with a young man at night."

"What nonsense! You are like Caesar's wife, I guess. Anything you did in this town would seem about all right. You've got them all hypnotised, including myself. It's the ambition of my life to know you better," he added in a more serious tone. "Why won't you let me call?"

"It wouldn't do. If I have a nice position it's because I've always been so particular. If I let young men call on me, people would say that I was no better than that fast bunch that tangoes every night and goes to road houses and things." Her voice trailed vaguely; she really knew very little of the doings of "gay sets," although much in the abstract of a too temperamental world.

She made up her mind to dispose of this misguided young man once for all. She knew that she looked quite ten years younger than her age, and she was well aware that although man's passion might be business his pastime was the hunt.

"I am thankful that I have no grown daughter to keep from running with that bunch," she said playfully. "Of course I might have. I am quite old enough."

He laughed outright. Then he said the old thing which is ever new to the woman, and with a perceptible softening in his hard energetic voice: "I wonder if you really are as conventional—conventionalized—as you perhaps think you are? You always give me the impression of being two women, one fast asleep deep down somewhere, the other not even suspecting her existence.

"How pretty!" She smiled with pleasure, and she felt a faint stirring of coquetry, as if the ghost of her youth were rising—that far-off period when she put on her best ribbons and made her best pies to allure the marriageable swains of Elsinore. But she recalled herself quickly and frowned. "You must not say such things to me she said coldly.

"But I shall, and will add that I wish you were a widow or had never been married. I should propose to you this minute.

"That is equivalent to saying that you wish my husband were dead. And he is your friend, too!"

"Your husband is not my friend; he is my employer—upon occasion. At the moment I did not remember who was your husband. Let it go at that."

"Very well."

It was evident that he belonged to the type who found amusement in making love to married women; but— they were within the rays of a lamp, and sauntering—she looked up at this pleasant exponent indulgently. She was quite safe, and it was by no means detestable at the age of forty-two to be coveted by the cleverest young man in Brabant County.

The smile left her lip and she experienced a faint vibration of the nerves as she met the unsmiling eyes. Rush was almost drab in color, but the bones of his face were large and his eyes were deeply set and well apart, intensely blue and brilliant. It was one of those narrow, rigid faces the exigencies of his century and country have bred, the jaw long and almost salient as that of a consumptive, the brow bold, the mouth hard set, the cheeks lean and cut with deep lines, the whole effect not only keen and clever but stronger than any man has consistently been since the world began. The curious contradiction about this type of American face is that it almost invariably looks younger than the years that have contributed to the modelling of it; such men, particularly if smoothly shaven as they usually are, look thirty at forty; even at fifty; if they retain their hair, appear but little older. When Rush's mouth was relaxed it could smile charmingly, and the eyes fill with playfulness and vivacity, just as his strident American voice could move a jury to the tears that were in it.

At this moment all the intensity of which his striking features were capable was concentrated in his eyes.

"I'm not going to make love to you as matters stand," he said, his voice dry with emotion. "But I want you to divorce Dave Balfame and marry me. Sooner or later you will be driven to it—"

"Never I'll never be a divorced woman. Never! Never!"

His steady gaze wavered as he sighed. "You said that as if you meant it. You think you are intellectual, and you haven't overgrown one of the prejudices of your Puritan grandmothers—who behaved themselves because women were scarce and even better treated than they are now, and because they would have been too mean to spend money on a divorce suit if divorces had come into fashion elsewhere."

"You are far from complimentary!" Mrs. Balfame raised her head stiffly, not a little indignant at his natural would have withdrawn her arm and hastened her steps but he held her back.

"I don't mean to be uncomplimentary. Only, you ought to be so much more advanced than you are I repeat I shall not make downright love to you, for I intend to marry you one of these days. But I shall say what I choose. How much longer do you think you can go on living like this?—with a man you must dispise and from whom you must suffer indignities—and in this hole—"

"You live here—"

"I came back here because I had a good offer and I like the East better than the West, but I have no intention of staying here. I have reason to believe that I shall get into a New York firm next Spring; and once started on the race-course I purpose to come in a winner."

"And you would saddle yourself with a wife many years your senior?" she asked wonderingly.

But she thrilled again, and unconsciously moderated her gait still further; they were but a few steps from her home.

"I am thirty four. I am sorry I have impressed you as looking too young to be taken seriously, but you will admit that if a man doesn't know his own mind when he is verging toward middle age, he never will. But if I were only twenty-five, it would make no difference. I would marry you like a shot. I never have given a thought to marrying you before. Girls don't interest me. They show their hand too plainly. I've always had a sort of idea and you fill it."

It was characteristic of Mrs. Balfame's well-ordered mind that her intention to murder her husband did not intrude itself into this unique and provocative hour. She had never indulged in a passing desire to marry again, and hers was not the order of mind that somersaults. But she was willing to "let herself go," for the sake of the experience; for the first time in her twenty odd years of married life to loiter in a leafy shadowy street with a man who loved her and made no secret of it.

"I wonder?" She stared up at him, curiosity in her eyes.

"Wonder what?"

"If it is love?"

Peace and Power Transmission

Imagination is not stirred by pulleys or shafting, yet human life, from the cradle to the grave, depends for a great deal of its comfort upon their efficiency.

Grain Elevators, Railroad Shops, Machine Shops, Coal Mines, Laundries, Bakeries, Dairies, Furniture Factories, Auto Factories—every business that consumes power must have the things we manufacture.

Judge, then, how industry would be paralyzed if Dodge Service failed. A Power Transmission Machinery Plant is not created over night. The human element, which takes years to train, is a tremendous factor in its success.

What has this to do with you? The answer is: Economy of Power Transmission is the first step towards reducing overhead expenses. Reducing overhead expenses without impairing efficiency is the perpetual problem of wide-awake employers.

We are helping many firms to solve this problem. Let us assist you.

War's demands made us efficient; and at that we were by no means slothful. But industrial competition makes us keener. Test us with your next order.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens so Naturally Nobody can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even colour, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the same troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Cut Your Cost of Production With Dominion Friction Surface Belting

Two inseparable factors in decreasing the cost of production are efficient equipment and labor.

At your convenience, our belting experts will prove to your satisfaction that Dominion Friction Surface Belting, through its efficiency in transmitting power, will decrease your cost for placing each completed product or for each operation in its manufacture.

It practically eliminates power wastage because its Friction Surfacing grips the pulleys and prevents slipping.

It enables your employees to increase output by giving long and continuous service that keeps machines from standing idle, for it eliminates the cause of most transmission troubles and seldom needs repairs.

Our special field advisory service is in charge of belting engineers who will analyze your transmission equipment, without charge, and recommend only such changes as will help to reduce cost of production.

A phone, wire order to any of our Service branches, places at your disposal the entire facilities of the largest and largest rubber organization in Canada, which for over fifty years has specialized in the production of better belting.

Farmers Object to Pleasure Roads

Deputation Visited Queen's Park This Morning.

TORONTO, April 8.—Objection to the Provincial Government's road policy, and particularly the Toronto-Windsor highway, was registered by a strong deputation of united farmers from nearly every county in Ontario, who waited on Hon. F. G. McDiarmid, Hon. G. H. Henry and W. A. Maclean at Queen's Park to-day. The deputation claimed to represent ten thousand farmers through the Province. They were introduced to the Ministers by J. W. Widdifield, U.F.O. Members of the Legislature for North Ontario, Benjamin Bowman, member for Manitoulin, and Nelson Pardament, member for Prince Edward, also accompanied the deputation.

R. H. Halbert, president of the U.F.O., who was the first speaker, expressed objections to the proposed highway on the ground that it would not be to the benefit of the public. He doubted the democracy of the Governmen. in constructing such highways.

E. C. Drury, vice-president of the association, viewed Canada's present financial condition with grave concern. The United Farmers asked for sane economy but not pinching economy.

NOT OPPOSED TO GOOD ROADS.

"We do not oppose good roads, but we want useful roads," he explained.

"You would have no objection to highways suited for useful traffic?" queried Hon. F. G. McDiarmid.

"None at all; we object to pleasure roads," replied Mr. Drury.

"We do not admit that we are building pleasure roads," retorted the Minister of Highways.

H. J. Bettypiece declared that the deputation which had visited Queen's Park two weeks ago for a highway to Sarnia did not represent the farmers of that district. The construction of such a line would tend to draw help away from the farm, and would thus decrease agricultural production.

"Do you mean to say that this highway has not been asked for," demanded Mr. McDiarmid.

"Not by a single farmer," was the response.

E. C. Drury said the financial situation did not justify the proposed expenditure on provincial highways. He said the Hamilton-Toronto-Niagara highway was defensibe, but would oppose the Kingston road, which paralleled three railway lines. The deputation pointed out that the Toronto-Hamilton highway cost $30,000 a mile, and 30 miles of market roads improved at a cost of $1,000 a mile would be more valuable to the farmer.

Mr. McDiarmid pointed out the importance of provincial highways to agriculture, and asked the farmers to reconsider their position.

CANAL SCHEMES.

Old Controversies Revived With the Return of Peace.

Business men in Montreal who have studied the canal problems of Canada are generally opposed to the scheme which has been talked of in the United States, of a jointly constructed and internationally owned canal between Montreal and the Great Lakes. So far as public feeling can be fathomed in Montreal, it is confidently expected that should the Canadian authorities entertain the idea of entering into an arrangement for such an international waterway as is now being discussed in the United States, and abandon the Georgian Bay Canal project, there would be a vigorous protest from the shipping and business men of Canada.

"I am of the opinion that the people of Canada will vigorously protest against any scheme that may involve Canada in the construction of such a canal, in view of the fact that the plans for the Georgian Bay Canal are now well advanced," said Mr. Thomas Robb, president of the Shipping Federation, in discussing the matter.

"The Georgian Bay Canal project has the great advantage of being entirely on Canadian territory," he continued. If the international canal project was gone into by the Government of Canada and of the United States, it would mean that the Canadian people would have to throw the Georgian Bay Canal scheme overboard, and all the money that had already been spent on this project would be entirely wasted.

The cost of the Georgian Bay Canal proposal, giving a 22 feet deep waterway for the largest lake boats, would be $100,000,000. It is estimated that it would require ten years to build, while the annual cost of maintenance, including operation of storage reservoirs for regulating flood water of the Ottawa river, would be $900,000.

The distance between the Georgian Bay and Montreal is 440 miles, and no international waterways are affected by the scheme. It is estimated that the passage of a lake boat through this canal at a maximum speed of 12 miles an hour would be 70 hours, and a reliable water-power supply amounting to 1,600,000 horsepower would be secured as a by-product of the scheme.

The Georgian Bay Canal scheme involves the construction of 28 miles of artificial waterway and the improvement by dredging or excavation of 80 miles of river and lake beds. There are 332 miles of natural waterway, wider than 200 feet and over 22 feet in depth which requires no improvement.

It is proposed to have 27 locks and 45 dams on the entire canal, and in this connection the 1,000,000 horsepower previously referred to will be developed. So far as distances are concerned Chicago is 412 miles nearer to Montreal via the Georgian Bay Canal than to New York by the Erie Canal route, and 794 miles nearer to Liverpool than by the American water. Duluth is 424 miles nearer to Montreal by the Georgian Bay Canal than to New York by the Erie Canal route and 806 miles nearer to Liverpool. It is only 83 miles farther from Duluth and Fort William to Montreal via the Georgian Bay Canal than from the same port to Buffalo. From all ports on Lake Huron, Michigan and Superior the Georgian Bay Canal route to Montreal is shorter than the St. Lawrence and Welland route.

In 1910, Mr. R. W. Reford, of the Montreal Board of Trade, prepared a statement which strongly urged the construction of the proposed Georgian Bay Canal. In view of these facts business men in Montreal feel that the Canadian Government would scarcely entertain any proposal to abandon the Georgian Bay Canal project.

Not in Practice.

"That man has studied political economy."

"Maybe so," said Senator Sorghum, "but the injudicious way he spends his money at an election looks to me like political extravagance."

Judging from what they have to show for it, some people's time must be counterfeit money.

Now Staple Articles of Trade

THE parts of a Ford car—every part—can be bought anywhere in Canada.

They need not be "ordered from the factory."

—nor from a Ford Branch.

—nor even from one of the 750 Ford dealers.

They can be delivered "on the spot" by over 2000 garage and repair men.

Although highly specialized pieces of engineering and machining, Ford parts have become staple articles of merchandise. They are as easy to obtain as a hatchet or a saw.

This is a most unusual service to the owner of a car.

Its value is incalculable.

The Ford car need never be "tied up" while repair parts are being "brought on from the factory."

There need be no annoying delays while touring because Ford Service Stations are located everywhere.

The owner of a Ford (barring serious breakdown through accident) may enjoy uninterrupted use of his car.

Caution to Ford Owners

Never allow "spurious" or imitation parts to be used in repairing your Ford. Your repair man—if he is earnest in his desire to serve you well—can get genuine Ford parts and sell them to you at a reasonable profit.

You need never accept "spurious" repair parts. In any locality, in any emergency, there is sure to be close at hand, a Ford Service Station.

Demand genuine Ford parts. Be firm.

Keep your Ford running at full Ford efficiency.

Figuring on Greenland.

Denmark wants Schleswig reannexed, after all these years that Germany has held the province, and, by rights, it ought to be returned to Denmark, for it was forcibly taken from her. But Denmark is willing to make a trade; she will give up Greenland to anybody who desires it, in exchange for Schleswig—and she seems to think that Canada would like to have Greenland.

But the truth is, Canada has about all the snow and ice she desires. Greenland doesn't appeal to her. Greenland is principally an incident in the history of the Western world and is not important from any other standpoint. It is historically interesting because it was the starting point of the hardy Norsemen who really discovered America, but without appreciating what they had found.

During the Viking Age — away back in the ninth, tenth and eleventh centuries—when it was the fashionable thing to do to leave the Scandinavian countries—if one happened to be living there—Eric the Red, a Norwegian, sailed from Iceland and struck Greenland. He roamed around over it for three years and returned to Iceland with marvelous tales of its fertility. In fact, he gave it the name of Greenland, in order to induce migration to it. That was in 985. In 986 he started out with a fleet of 25 ships, but only about half of them reached Greenland. A colony was established on the southwest coast. The colony was a failure, however, and the whole population perished, leaving little to mark the site of their adventures.

Greenland is about 1,600 miles long and 800 miles wide, and the southern coast is habitable—if anyone wants to inhabit it. The interior of the vast tract, however, is covered with perpetual snow, and glacier ice lies upon the ground to the depth of hundreds of feet. It is the most desolate, dreary stretch of country upon the face of the globe. The entire population of Greenland amounts to only about 15,000, and there are not a thousand Europeans living in the country. The exports are seal oil, seal, fox and bear skins, fish products and eiderdown. All of which is here mentioned lest some dreamy sentimentalist gets it into his head that Greenland would be a valuable acquisition for the Dominion of Canada.

POSSESSION OF LIQUOR NOW A PELONY IN MICHIGAN

LANSING, Mich.—A bill supplementing Michigan's prohibition law, and designed to remedy defects developed when the State Supreme Court nullified the search and seizure section of the original act was signed by Governor Sleeper this forenoon. The new law, declared to be one of the most drastic enacted by the Michigan Legislature in recent years, takes immediate effect. It makes the possession of liquor a felony punishable by a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment from six months to two years and authorizes search of all buildings or containers, except private residences.

Regularly licensed druggists are exempt and physicians are permitted to prescribe not to exceed eight ounces.

ALL HE'S FIT FOR.

London Globe:—In an Irish courthouse an old man was called into the witness box, and being infirm and just a little nearsighted he went too far in more than one sense. Instead of going up the stairs that led to the box, he mounted those that led to the bench. The judge good humoredly said:—

"Is it a judge you want to be, my good man?"

"Ah, sure, yer worship," was the reply; "I'm an old man now, an' me be it's all I'm fit for."

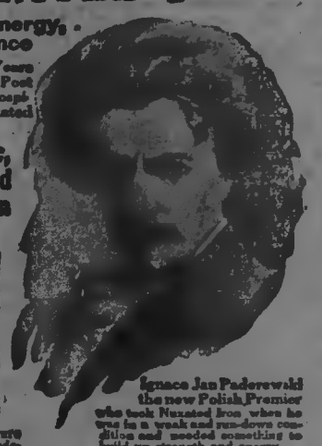
PADEREWSKI—MASTER PIANIST AND NATION MAKER USES NUXATED IRON

To Obtain Renewed Energy, Power and Endurance

Dr. Kenneth K. MacAlpine, for 16 Years Adjunct Professor New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, Says That in His Opinion Nuxated Iron is

The Most Valuable Tonic, Strength and Blood Builder Any Physician Can Prescribe.



Ignace Jan Paderewski, one of the greatest musical geniuses of the age, at a time when his untiring work for Poland overtaxed his strength and impaired his health had recourse to Nuxated Iron to help rebuild his wasted forces and restore his old-time health and strength.

Ignace Jan Paderewski the new Polish Premier who took Nuxated Iron when he was in a weak and run-down condition and needed something to build up strength and energy.

"With the tremendous strain imposed by over two years of almost continuous work in the cause of his fatherland, of which he is the foremost figure today, it is easily understood why Paderewski accepted the sustaining tonic benefits of Nuxated Iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. "Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of the virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. Thousands of men and women are impairing their constitutions, laying themselves open to illness and literally losing their grip on health, simply because their blood is thinning out and possibly starving through lack of iron. Iron is absolutely essential to enable your blood to transform the food you eat into muscular tissue and brain. Without iron there is no strength, vitality and endurance to combat obstacles or withstand severe strains. To help make strong sturdy men of blood and iron there is nothing like them 'organic iron—Nuxated Iron.'" Mr. Paderewski never "I am using Nuxated Iron very frequently and consider it as an excellent tonic."

A prominent New York Surgeon and Formerly Adjunct Professor of the New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, says: "If people would only realize that iron is just as indispensable to the blood as is air to the lungs and be just as particular about keeping up a sufficient supply at all times, there would in my opinion be far less disease resulting from anaemic, weakened conditions.

"Nuxated Iron, by enriching the blood and creating new blood cells, strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy into the whole system whether the patients be young or old. In my opinion Nuxated Iron is the most valuable tonic, strength and blood-builder any physician can prescribe."

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day, after meals, for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above, is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

Voice of The People

Editor Daily Examiner:

Dear Sir,—With your kind permission and at the risk of somewhat boring your readers on the Hunter street bridge question, I crave a small additional space.

I am sure the taxpayers of Peterborough will be well satisfied with the action taken by the Board of Works in deciding to "lop off the sidewalks on the loose fill, the granite facing and masonry, and the terra cotta panels, and also to shorten the earth approaches, and to reduce the width by nine feet."

If they will now decide to make three, or at least two spans over the river, I feel confident they will have the complete confidence and approval of the citizens in this important and expensive undertaking.

A big list of long span concrete arches appears in your edition of the 29th ult., but despite the assurances given by your authority on the subject none of these long arches are on, or close to the latitudinal or isothermal lines of Peterborough and are not subject to similar climatic conditions.

Respectfully yours,
J. W. Fitzgerald.

April 7th, 1919.

Editor Examiner

Dear Sir:— Permit me through the medium of your columns to reply to the few remarks made by the person who merged his identity into "Private," but whose real name is well-known to most of the members of the G.W.V.A.

The writer is fully aware of the launch his tirade of invective against a body of his former "Comrades in Arms," and who he presumably still desires to associate with.

If, as he says, he is good enough to associate with them, he has had ample opportunity to do so during the past year, by whatever chance he may have had of becoming a member of the G.W.V.A. is lost to him now; for his additions in writing this epistle on Saturday last has condemned him in the eyes of the majority of his "Associates in Arms," of which there are now 500 members of the local branch of the G.W.V.A, 400 of which have fought on the shell-torn fields of Europe.

The question of the use of the club rooms for all returned soldiers seems to be the sore spot with "Private," and he would have the public believe that these rooms are intended for all who have donned the khaki; this is not so, and further let me tell "Private" that no money he has given towards the G.W.V.A., if he has given any, or any money subscribed by the public has ever been used for the maintenance of rooms, or to a salaried official, for the simple reason that we are self-supporting.

This brought about by charging a membership fee which is sufficient to cover the cost of maintenance and organizing.

In justice to the public the G.W.V.A. want these facts to be known and the monies our fellow citizens so generously gave us on our last two tag days has been entirely devoted to relief purposes; during the past two years we have been able to materially assist many of the dependents of soldiers, and members who have on evil times through the stress of war, and particularly during the present winter, and to them, the G.W.V.A. are grateful for their past support, and trust hey will merit the continuance of their good will and support despite the malignancy of "Private."

On several occasions "Private" has been approached by some of his former "Comrades" with a view of becoming a member of the G.W.V.A., and he knows full well that unless a returned soldier, no matter who he may be, joins the G.W.V.A., he cannot use the club rooms with impunity.

A reasonable time is given to all returned men to join, they are given every privilege and a hearty welcome to the rooms, but a time limit is placed upon these privileges, and if they do not join after this privilege has elapsed they are courteously informed that the privileges are removed, this is practically what happens to "Private."

But "Private's" time limit had no more than elapsed, he has been home nearly a year, and we have had peace and harmony within our ranks during that period, and after Saturday's outburst the present, and prospective members of the G.W.V.A. may shake hands with themselves that their constitution proves a bar to such a disgruntled "Private."

Thanking you for your valuable space, I have the honor to be, Sir, you obedient servant,

S. W. Whatley,
Sec. Peterboro Branch G.W.V.A.

PROGRESS OF THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

Meeting Held at British Premier's Residence.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, April 8.—The Council of Four met this morning at the residence of Premier Lloyd George. President Wilson was not able to attend the forenoon session, but hoped to be able to attend the meeting this afternoon at his house. The overnight tension in Peace Conference circles had not been dispelled when the Council of Four met to-day. In Conference circles, however, it was felt that the session to-day would serve to clear the atmosphere.

BROADWAY STORE ROBBED OF FUR STOCK VALUED $15,000

NEW YORK, April 5th.—Philip Shurack, of the firm of Shurack & Fial, dealers in furs at No. 1,368 Broadway, reported to the police the theft of pelts and garments valued at $15,000, representing practically the entire stock in trade of the concern. Mr. Shurack said he believed the premises occupied by the firm had been entered after one o'clock Thursday morning, neighbors in the building having stated they locked up at that hour and that there was then nothing to indicate a burglary.

Mr. Shurack said the partners carried no insurance and that the loss was complete. He also announced that the firm was formerly Shurack & Stern but that Mr. Fial took over a half interest in February.

UNCHAPERONED GIRLS IN DANGER, REMARKS FALCONBRIDGE, C. J.

WOODSTOCK, April 5.— "It is a wonder that there are not more cases of seduction in view of the way young girls of to-day are allowed to go around unchaperoned," declared Chief Justice Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, at the conclusion of the opening case of the Oxford spring assizes.

The above remarks were made prior to giving judgment for $1,300 damages against Frederick McRae, a farmer, near Verschoyle, aged 33 years, and in favour of the parent of a 17-year-old Glanworth girl, whom the defendant seduced. In his evidence McRae said he had no intention of marrying the girl. A child born in May, 1918, at Tilsonburg, died.

Five other cases, all civil and non-jury, are on the docket, and the sessions will likely last the remainder of the week. When court opened the sheriff presented the judge with white kid gloves, there being no criminal cases on the order.

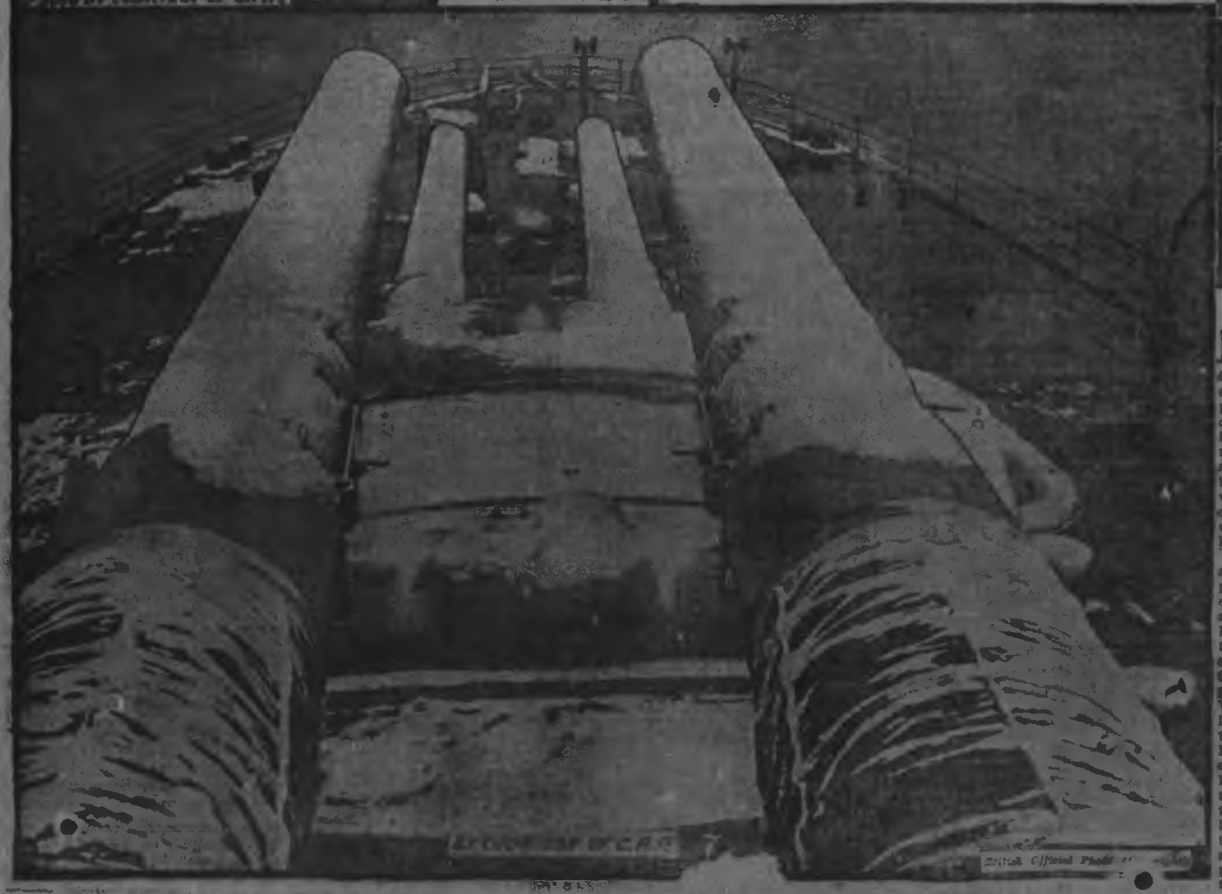
Shipping the Golden Grain



Grain steamers in Goderich Harbor.

EVEN more than California looked to her gold camps, more than Washington turns to Alaska, all Canada anxiously watches, day by day, the progress of her annual prosperity as registered by the barometer of her prairie crops. The grain crop is like a huge river of gold, which rises through the spring and summer and then bursts its bounds, running in torrents to the sea, and, flowing with this stream of golden grain, comes an era of prosperity which finds expression in development of all kinds.

Canada has, for years, pursued an active legislative and constructive policy in keeping abreast with the ever widening development of its agricultural resources in the west. Each year has seen an immense additional acreage under the plow and each fall has shown vast additions to the bulk of the crop. This has been particularly true of the grain in Western Canada. Rails have been laid in all directions, so that one of the biggest items in the Canadian Pacific's annual budget has been the extension and construction of branch lines tapping newly developed country. In this respect, it may be noted that for years the Canadian Pacific has been the premier grain carrier of the Land of the Maple Leaf and from all indications of the present it will probably remain so until the end of Canadian history.

Elevators form a chain across the plains until soon they will stretch from the Atlantic to the Pacific oceans. They have been built by the Canadian Pacific, by the Dominion Government, by private corporations, by individuals and by co-operative organizations.

Canada's method of grading grain is considered as good as, if not better than, any other method in the world. Every whim of nature, as indicated in the grain crops, which vary year by year in an amazing variety of ways, has been provided for in the classes into which the grain is separated by the laws enacted by parliament and by the sub-divisions created by the Standard Board. Therefore, western spring wheat often has as many as 21 different grades, and winter wheat the same. This also applies to the other grains.

One of the Canadian ports on the Great Lakes which has recently made considerable progress in the handling of grain is Goderich, on Lake Huron. Nine grain vessels wintered in Goderich harbor, and seven of them are as fine grain carriers as will be found in any port on the lakes. Three of the vessels, the Central West, the C. G. Breitung and the Meganuco, are of United States registration, and the captains are loud in their praises of the Goderich harbor.

It would probably be an exaggeration to say to be told that there is at the present time over ten million dollars' worth of property at the dock in connection with the grain trade through this port, yet that figure is probably a conservative one. First of all, taking the nine vessels at an average of $500,000 the vessel property in port would amount to $4,500,000. Then there are three million bushels of grain in store or afloat, representing another $2,750,000 at least. Add to this the elevator and mill property and we have another $1,750,000, allowing $750,000 as a valuation for the mill and putting each of the elevators down at $500,000.

The vessels constituting the Goderich winter fleet are the Rickerdyke, Capt. Johnston; the Central West, Capt. Ronsel; the C. G. Breitung, Capt. Buchanan; the Meganuco, Capt. Morrison; the Home Smith, Capt. A. McIntyre; the Agawa, Capt. Montgomery, the Midland King, Capt. McLennan; the Martian, Capt. R. McIntyre, and the Ionic, Capt. Wing. [illegible] the outfitting of these vessels this season will involve many thousand dollars spent in Goderich. The [illegible] to be made on the Martian are estimated at $4,000, and the repairs on the fleet of nine vessels will run to at least $10,000.

The Goderich elevator the past year has handled a very large business, the grain receipts being 10,310,000 bushels, and this record was only slightly exceeded in the best year the elevator ever had, the year 1913. The Western Canada Flour Mills Co., Ltd., also has handled a large amount of grain, over 2,500,000 bushels.

Suggestions to Women "Just Ready to Drop"

When you are "just ready to drop," when you feel so weak that you can hardly drag yourself about—and because you have not slept well, you get up as tired out next morning as when you went to bed, you need help. Vinol will help you just as it did these two women. Why not try it?

HERE IS PROOF

Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I keep house for my husband and myself and I got into a weak, run-down, nervous condition and no appetite. I heard how Vinol helped others and tried it and it built me up so I am strong, have a good appetite and feel better in every way." — Mrs. James Croker.

Holmdel, N.J.

"I live on a farm and am a hard working woman and for weak, run-down, overworked conditions have found nothing that will create an appetite, build me up and make me strong equal to Vinol. It helped several others in our neighborhood, too." —Mrs. Thomas Ellis.

For all run-down, nervous, anaemic conditions, weak women, overworked men, feeble old people and delicate children, there is no remedy like Vinol.

Chicago Newspaper Is Sued For One Million Dollars

Henry Ford Objects to Be Called An Anarchist—War On the Pacifist.

ELEMENT OF HUMOUR

"Does it cost a million dollars to call Henry Ford an anarchist?" is the question asked by the New York Sun. It is dangerous to risk an answer offhand as one of the greatest arrays of legal talent gathered together in several years past is preparing to argue the matter before a court in Macomb County, Michigan The Chicago Tribune called Henry Ford an anarchist in an editorial article published on June 23, 1916, and Ford is suing the Tribune for a million dollars. Though the amount of the claim will attract most attention from the average citizen, it does not loom so vastly before either Ford or the Tribune, for Mr. Ford is one of the richest men in the world and the Tribune refers to itself as "the world's greatest newspaper." While it is violating no secret to explain that the Tribune is not the world's greatest newspaper, it is undoubtedly an extremely wealthy institution with plenty of millionaire affiliations and to hand over a million dollars to Mr. Ford would not embarrass it financially, any more than the receipt of an extra million would discomfort Mr. Ford.

What the Tribune Said

The Tribune's editorial was based upon a despatch from Detroit which appeared in the paper the previous day, and which was to the effect that Mr. Ford had announced that any of his employees who enlisted in the United States army for service in Mexico would lose their jobs and that no support would be given their families when they were away by the motor company. The opening sentence of the editorial was as follows:

"If Ford allows the rule of his shops to stand, he will reveal himself not merely as an ignorant idealist but as an anarchist enemy of the nation which protects him in his wealth." The concluding sentence was, "Anywhere in Mexico would be a good location for the Ford factories." This last remark is demonstrably wrong, but it is not to that that Mr. Ford objects. He protests against being called an anarchist, but even this he might perhaps have tolerated if the Tribune had not waged war upon him and his ideas from that day to this.

War on the Pacifist

On scores of occasions in the past couple of years the Tribune has attacked Henry Ford for his pacifist notions, and because he succeeded in having his son Edsel, a young and presumably well-nourished man of military age, exempted from active service on the ground that his presence in the Ford Motor shops was of national importance. It fought Mr. Ford when he was a Senatorial candidate in Michigan and shamelessly exulted in his defeat. Mr. Ford did not remain dumb all this time. He fought back at he Tribune and at considerable expense compiled a record of the Tribune in relation to the present war for the purpose of proving that the newspaper was pro-German. Since the United States entered the war the Tribune has not been pro-German, but before that event it certainly had no reason to congratulate itself upon its championship of the cause of the Allies, in comparison with other prominent American papers. But if one had to make a choice between the record of Henry Ford from 1914 until the present one would give a verdict in Mr. Ford's favor, if one happened to be a German, and in no other circumstances.

A Change of Venue

Shortly after the appearance of the article referred to Mr. Ford's attorneys entered suit in Chicago. The Tribune, in its answer urged the seriousness of the Mexican situation, the general attitude of Henry Ford to military preparedness and the duty which the Tribune as a national newspaper owed it readers to comment on Ford's actions. It also declared that it published the report that Ford was to discharge his volunteering employees in good faith, from which we assume that the report was not well founded, or at least that the men who enlisted—if any of them did enlist—did not lose their jobs when they returned from Mexico. These pleas were being considered when the Ford attorneys abruptly dismissed the action in the Chicago court, and instituted a similar action in Wayne County, Michigan. They plainly showed that they wanted the case tried in an atmosphere that was at least more favorable to Henry Ford than the atmosphere of a Chicago county might have been.

An Element of Humor

Naturally the Tribune lawyers objected to any such change of venue, and made a vigorous and successful protest on the ground that there were more than 50,000 men on the Ford payroll in Wayne county, and also that his pamphlet, in which the Tribune was accused of pro-Germanism had been widely circulated there. So a shift was made to Macomb County, which while in Michigan may be expected to be more open-minded with regard to Henry Ford. In switching from Chicago to Michigan the Ford attorneys introduced a new element of humor into the suit, for instead of bringing action against the Tribune they sued for the million dollars three young Jews, former newsboys who had become news dealers and were the distributing agents of the 500 copies of the Tribune that were sold in Detroit. These agents could not among them have satisfied a claim for $2,000 and were naturally greatly agitated at the prospect of being convicted and being in debt to Henry Ford for 500 years, but the Tribune announced that it would accept the guage of battle on their behalf and so the battle is on.

Stomach So Bad

THOUGHT HE WOULD DIE. CAN EAT ANYTHING NOW.

But for indigestion and dyspepsia, many a life might be a pleasant one.

The misery which stomach troubles cause the sufferer knows only too well and any one who has suffered knows what joy it would give to be able to eat three good meals a day and not be punished for it after.

Nearly everything that enters a weak stomach acts as an irritant, and even the little that is eaten causes such torture and is digested so imperfectly that it does little good.

Before you can eat heartily, and not pick and choose your food, you must put your stomach right so that it will manufacture its own digestive ferments.

For forty years now Burdock Blood Bitters has been making weak stomachs strong, and permanently curing severe cases of indigestion and dyspepsia that other remedies were powerless to reach.

Mr. H. L. Fairweather, Cumberland Bay, N. B., writes:—"I was troubled with my stomach for two years, and sometimes was so bad I thought I would die. I tried everything I ever heard tell of, and had medicine from three doctors, but continued to grow worse. One day I read of some wonderful cures made with Burdock Blood Bitters. After taking two bottles I could eat any kind of food without any bad effects and by the time I had taken four I was in perfet health."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards — Receipts, 63 cars, with 1,182 cattle, 125 calves, 863 hogs, and 75 sheep and lambs.

There was a good strong, steady market yesterday for choice quality Easter cattle. While there are plenty of baby beef steers offering, the demand is limited, and their disposal was in some cases very slow. At the same time, there were some high prices realized for selected "baby." One extra choice yearling, over 1,000 lbs., topped the Easter market at $20. Several sold at $16 to $17. But good loads of baby beeves sold a $14 to $14.75. Choice medium weight steers and heifers, around 840 to 900 lbs., are selling good and strong.

Lambs, choice quality, are very firm.

Hogs are quoted from $19.75 to $20 f.o.b. Drovers in some cases stood out for more.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Revival Services Held in Oshawa

The greatest revival that has been seen in this city for many years has recently come to a close. Evangelist H. D. Kennedy of Peterboro was with us for three weeks. Again and again the question was asked: "Has Billy Sunday Come to Town?" There seemed to be something about the man that compelled people to enter, to think, to decide. The key note of all his preaching was "Ye Must be Born again." Sin in every shape and form was dragged from its hiding place and exposed by this fearless preacher. Mr. Kennedy had a most wonderful message and preached in a most wonderful way, and with most wonderful results. Every sermon seemed to be hurled forth with an earnestness of a soul held in the grip of the Holy Spirit and "Many who came to scoff remained to pray." It is a long time since any of the churches of this town has seen the place packed and the alter crowded with seekers, yet night after night this was witnessed in this great campaign here. As a direct result of the meetings over 170, besides a number of children publicly confessed, having found Christ as their personal Savior, indicating a desire to join this or other churches of the town. Habits long formed were abandoned; family altars were set up and broken family circles were united. There is nothing sensational or emotional about the evangelist's work. His preaching appeals to the common sense and reason. There is no reaction after he leaves. The good work still goes on.

We understand Mr. Kennedy is to open an evangelistic campaign in Peterboro early in June, and we are sure he will be held up in prayer for the work there by hundreds of kind friends he has left behind here,

Signed, Rev. W. H. Truscott,
Pastor Methodist Church.

Clergymen Censure Mayor

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., April 5.—A resolution was passed by the Niagara Falls Ministerial Association, protesting against the action of Mayor Stephens in issuing a proclamation last Saturday afternoon to advance the clocks of the city on Sunday morning, which gave less than 12 hours' notice without allowing time for any protest.

Meeting Postponed.

PARIS, April 8.—A meeting of the Conference Commission to pass on the League of Nations covenant, which was to have been held to-night, was postponed until Thursday on account of the illness of President Wilson.

If a woman doesn't continue to trust her husband it is because he is a trust buster.

Examine preserved fruit one week after it has been put away; if there is any sign of fermentation empty the fruit out, recook it and use it at once as stewed fruit.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

WINNING A BATTLE

How One Defeat Was Turned into a Brilliant Victory.

THE REAL HERO OF MARENGO.

It Was Not Napoleon Nor Even the Daring Dessix, but the Fearless Drummer Boy Who Refused to Beat a Retreat, but Beat a Charge Instead.

Napoleon was sitting in his tent. Before him lay a map of Italy. He took four pins and stuck them up. Measured, moved the pins and measured again. "Now," said he, "that is right. I will capture him there!"

"Who, sir?" asked an officer.

"Milas, the old fox of Austria. He will retire from Genoa, past Turin and fall back on Alexandria. I shall cross the Po, meet him on the plains of Lacoda and conquer him there," and the finger of the child of destiny pointed to Marengo.

Two months later the memorable campaign of 1800 began. The 20th of May saw Napoleon on the heights of St. Bernard. The 22d, Lannes, with the army of Genoa, left Pavia. So far all had been well with Napoleon. He had compelled the Austrians to alter the position he desired, reduced the army from 120,000 to 40,000 men. Despatched Murat to the right and Lake 14 moved forward to consummate his masterly plan.

But God threatened to overthrow his scheme! A little rain had fallen in the Alps, and the Po could not be crossed a time. The battle was begun. Lannes, pushed to the wall, resolved to cut his way out, and Napoleon reached the field to see Lannes beaten, Champeaux dead, Dessix still charging old Milas with his Austrian phalanx at Marengo till the consular guard gave way, and the well planned victory was a terrible defeat.

Just as the day was lost Dessix, the boy general, sweeping across the field at the head of his cavalry, halted on the eminence where stood Napoleon. There was in the corps a drummer boy, a gamin whom Dessix had picked up in the streets of Paris. He had followed the victorious eagle of France in the campaigns of Egypt and Germany. As the columns halted, Napoleon shouted to him, "Beat a retreat!"

The boy did not stir.

"Gamin, beat a retreat!"

The boy straightened up, grasped his drumsticks, turned and looked Napoleon straight in the eyes, and said, "Sir, I do not know how to beat a retreat; Dessix never taught me that, but I can beat a charge—oh, I can beat a charge that will make the dead fall into line. I beat that charge at the Pyramids, I beat that charge at Mount Tabor, I beat it again at the bridge of Lodi. May I beat it here?"

Napoleon turned from the boy to Dessix and said, "We are beaten; what shall we do?"

"Do? Beat them! It is only 3 o'clock and there is time enough to win a victory yet. Up! the charge! beat the old charge of Mount Tabor and Lodi!"

A moment later the corps, following the sword gleam of Dessix and keeping step with the furious roll of the gamin's drum, swept down on the flank of Austrians. They drove the first line back on the second—both on the third and there they died.

Dessix fell at the first volley, but the line never faltered, and as the smoke cleared away, the gamin was seen in front of his line marching right on and still beating the furious charge.

Over the dead and wounded, over breastworks and fallen foe, over cannons belching forth their fire of death he led the way to victory and the fifteen days in Italy were ended.

Today men point to Marengo in wonder. They admire the power and foresight that so skillfully handled the battle, but they forget that a general only thirty years of age made a victory of a defeat. They forget that a gamin of Paris put to shame "the child of destiny."—Anonymous.

IN SHEER CRUELTY

Bodies Operated on Prisoners Without Anesthetics.

Ample Proof That There Was No Shortage of Medical Supplies in Evidence of Fiendishness of Hun Surgeons.

A British prisoner taken near St. Quentin in March said that amputations in Germany were being done without anesthetics, owing to alleged shortages of them. A correspondent writes:

"On the day that the prince of Wales entered Dessix and attended the service of thanksgiving in the church there I lingered behind after all the ceremonial was over and talked with the inhabitants. They had been badly treated. They were full of the stories of their nightmare week. One old man said to me:

"'You should see the English doctor. He knows!'

"I saw him. He was a major in charge of a Canadian field ambulance. When I found him, in the huge building which he had transformed into a hospital, he was busy superintending the treatment of women and pitiful little children who had been gassed by the Boches in defiance of all the laws of humanity. There was one little fellow howling with terror. He did not wish to remain with the military. He had only known the German soldier!

"'Well, then take him away, poor little chap,' said the major. 'Bring him back three times a day to be dressed.'

"Then the major and I talked of the successful Canadian attack and of the condition of the town when it had been taken. It was not a pretty story. It was, in fact, a terrible indictment against the Boche.

"'They starved the civilians. The only meat they gave them in three years was three dead mules. And all the while their own officers were living on the best.'

"'Then there was shortage?'

"'Oh, yes, there was a shortage; but the German officers did not feel it.'

"'And their other supplies? Your line, for instance—medical supplies?'

"The major laughed.

"'Come with me,' he said, 'and I'll show you a field medical cart that we captured just as they were driving it off. It is one of the most wonderful things I have ever seen.'

"We went into the transport yard and here we found something like a Scotch cart with a closed-in top, bearing the Red Cross on its sides. The major let down the back flap and we saw a series of drawers, like an enlarged card-index file cabinet. He pulled one out.

"'Look at that,' he said. 'There you have most of the drugs we have been short of for months—and have them in profusion. Morphia, chloroform—anything you like. It is the most perfect thing of its kind I have ever seen. You could sell that cart's cargo in England for its weight in gold. It contains some of the most valuable and rarest synthetic drugs in the world. It is treasure trove. . . . Like a souvenir? Here, then—here's a case of a dozen grains of morphine—or chloroform—for antipyrin.'

"That was in a field medical cart! If such a supply of rare drugs could be sent up practically to the front line, what must the German have had in his rear hospitals? What, then, can be his excuse for amputating the limbs of our wounded prisoners without anesthetics? Can it have been anything but wanton cruelty?

"That field medical cart is the evidence!"—Boston Transcript.

He Found It.

"Always," said the astute news editor to the new reporter—"always be on the lookout for any little touch of humor that may brighten up our columns."

That evening the new reporter handed in an account of a burglary in a butcher's shop which commenced, "Mr. Woodhis Cleaver, the well known butcher, has been losing flesh rapidly of late."

Sartorial Diversion.

"I expected to find that suit done," stormed the customer.

"Oh, well, here's the other suit dun," said the tailor, who was a low wag, and who had a bill in his hand.

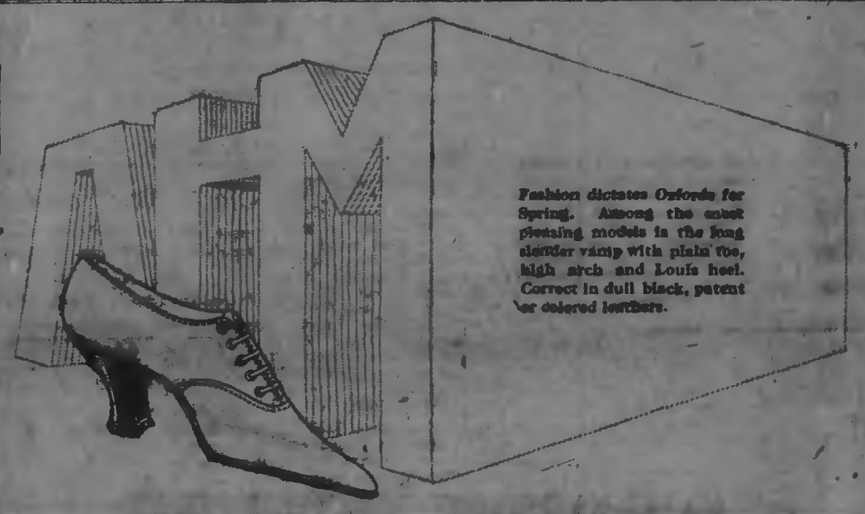
LEVER BROTHERS LIMITED
Toronto. Ontario



Fashion dictates Oxfords for Spring. Among the most pleasing models is the long slender vamp with plain toe, high arch and Louis heel. Correct in dull black, patent or colored leathers.

An Easter Suggestion

FASHION for women as reflected in the new gowns for spring, strongly suggests the Oxford in footwear as in most proper keeping with style. Oxfords will be more popular this year than in many seasons past.

Most effective in appearance among Oxfords is the long, slender vamp model, with the popular Louis heel. Its effect with the new gowns, either in black or patent leather, is most striking.

As with all of our models, A.H.M. Oxfords combine, with correct style, a capacity for service and an assurance of comfort to the feet—when properly fitted by your dealer.

Taking the Jewsharp Seriously.

The jewsharp has been taken far more seriously as a musical instrument than most of us have ever imagined. Its music has been known all over Europe for centuries, and quite elaborate effects have been produced by it. One virtuoso devised an ingenious holder by means of which he played five harps differently tuned, and Eulenstein used no fewer than sixteen instruments, keeping them on a table in front of him. And Sir Charles Wheatstone, inventor of the concertina, once wrote an elaborate essay on the technic of the jewsharp.—London Mail.

Thought Astor Was Crazy.

People said John Jacob Astor was crazy because he paid $1,000 an acre when he bought the estate of Aaron Burr about a hundred years ago. It was a farm of 120 acres, located about where Twenty-first street is now in Manhattan. In ten years he commenced to sell lots at $5,000 an acre, but he did not sell much at that price. What it is worth today is hard to compute in millions.

The Difference.

"The belligerent man who was expelled from the audience is very much entitled to burning tissue."

"How's that?"

"He who still full of fire even after he was put out."—Baltimore American.

If a woman is nervous or has dizzy spells, suffers from awful pains at regular or irregular intervals she should turn to a tonic made up of herbs, and without alcohol, which makes weak women strong and sick women well. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Druggists sell it in liquid or tablets. Send 10 cents to the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package. Then, for the liver and bowels nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. These are little, sugar-coated pills, composed of Mayapple, leaves of Aloe, root of Jalap—things that Nature grows in the ground.

CHATHAM, ONT.—"As a girl I was wonderfully helped by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I had become all run-down, weak and nervous. I suffered with terrible backaches. I also suffered from suppression and pain. My mother gave me 'Favorite Prescription,' and it so completely regulated my condition that I have never had any trouble since. There is nothing so good for girls or women who suffer as Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription."—Miss. Wm. Mason, 169 Wellington Street, E.

Fat That Shows Soon Disappears

Prominent fat that comes and stays where it is not needed is a burden; a hindrance to activity, a curb upon pleasure. You can take off the fat where it shows by taking after each meal and at bedtime, one Marmola Prescription Tablet. These little tablets are as effective and harmless as the famous prescription from which they take their name. Buy and try a case to-day. Your druggist sells them at 75 cents or if you prefer, you may write direct to the Marmola Co., 864 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich. You can thus say good-bye to dieting, exercise and fat.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a Glass of Salts Before Breakfast If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

DEATH OF JAMES KERR.

One of the Oldest Inhabitants of Port Hope.

PORT HOPE, April 8.—One of Port Hope's oldest residents, James Kerr, passed away yesterday afternoon, following a stroke of paralysis about ten days ago. He was born in the county of Fermanagh, Ireland, in 1826, and came to Canada when fourteen years of age, settling in the township of Clarke. For some time he conducted a hotel at Orono, and moved to Port Hope forty-two years ago, taking up the business of auctioneer, which he carried on until 1916, when he retired. He was of a robust constitution, his rapid recovery after the amputation of his left arm at the age of eighty-eight being proof of his wonderful vitality. Three sons, Stonewall and Collingwood, of Los Angeles, and Henry, overseas, and two daughters, Mrs. E. J. McLean, in town, and Mrs. Stanley Fallis, at McTaggart, Sask., survive. Mayor R. L. McLean, of Lindsay, and Russell and Charles McLean, of Toronto, are grandsons.

Former Kaiser Stayed Too Long

Commander of Guards Regiment Gives Inside Information Regarding Abdication of Former Kaiser.

BERLIN, April 8.—While admitting there was a difference of opinion among German generals as to the practicability of fighting to maintain the imperial regime in November, Count Schulenberg, commander of a Guards regiment, maintains in an article on the abdication of Emperor William, published in the Freiheft, that there were enough loyal troops to have marched on Aix-le-Chapelle and Cologne and put down the revolution. The Count says that Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and Gen. Groener, Prussian War Minister, would not assume the responsibility for such a move, however, arguing that things had gone too far and that only the abdication of former Emperor William could save the situation. The Emperor, he says, was emphatic in declaring he did not desire a civil war, and that he would not call upon the army to engage in such a conflict.

Internal conditions becoming worse William at length agreed to Count Schulenberg's advice to abdicate as emperor, but not as King of Prussia. Field Marshal Von Hindenburg endorsed this course, but, in the opinion of General Groener, it was too late, although it might have saved the situation two weeks earlier. In the meantime there came rumours from Berlin of the imminence of civil war and street fighting was actually begun there. Finally the Imperial Chancellor telegraphed that civil war might break out at any moment if the abdication was not announced at once.

Only One Idea.

Hurried conferences were held by the Emperor, the Crown Prince and the leading generals, the article says. One of the commanders asserted there was a feeling among the generals that the entire army could not be depended upon in case of civil war. To this, Count Schulenberg says, he replied:

"No soldier would break his oath to the colours."

"The oath to the colours and the supreme war lord is only an idea," was the rejoinder of General Groener.

At this moment Admiral Von Hintze, the Foreign Minister, entered with a menacing message from Berlin and tendered his resignation. William then consented to abdicate as emperor, but insisted on retaining his office as King of Prussia and head of the army. The Imperial Chancellor had in the meantime, however, announced the abdication without waiting for the Emperor's formal declaration.

Count Schulenberg says that William's flight to Holland was due to pressure brought to bear on him by Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and General Groener.

Cleverly Decorated Booths and Wonderful Array of Exhibits Feature Motor Show

The Big Show Will Open To-night Amid a Blaze of Glory—A Feature of the Features and Those in Charge—The Booths Are Cleverly Decorated—Nothing Has Been Overlooked to Make the Motor Show a Success.

Peterboro has excelled herself in answer to the call of the Health Association through the medium of the Motor Show, which the committee in charge is putting on at the Armouries to-day, to-morrow and on Friday. The sombre walls of the building have been completely transformed by splendidly draped flags, while the inside the vast array of motors, a line of booths gaily and festively decorated, lend a charming effect to the main drill hall of the Armouries. At the door the first booth which is cleverly decorated to represent a summer house with a color scheme of yellow and white with pussy willows climbing the sides and beautiful gauzy butterflies made by the artistic hand of Mrs. Hounsell, a wonderful assortment of flowers are on sale. Of this booth Mrs. Cameron is the convenor, assisted by Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. G. Whittaker, Miss Maud Rush, Miss C. Littlefield, Mrs. George MacDonald, Mrs. Clegg, Mrs. McPherson Mrs. Dearie and twelve little girls.

Home Make Cooking.

The ladies of St. Peter's Cathedral have a tastefully decorated booth where all manner of home made cooking and the daintiest of lingerie and children's clothes can be had. Of this booth Mrs. R. Gallivan is convenor and is assisted to-day by Mrs. B. Law, Mrs. J. White, Mrs. J. Coughlin, Mrs. J. Daly, Miss D. Welch, Miss Margaret MacGrath, Miss Kathrine Sharpe, Miss Francis Carveth and Miss Josie Lynch. Under the convenorship of Mrs. D. Drummond, the Business Girls Club have a charmingly spring-like booth with a wonderful array of home-made candy. The assistants today are Miss Lillian Hall, Miss E. Hall, Miss H. Dennison, Miss Saunders, Miss O. English, Miss E. Miller, Miss J. Gillespie, Miss E. Burgess, Miss M. Rae and Miss J. Waddell.

Gypsy Encampment

A charming departure from the ordinary booth lies in the Gypsy Encampment. Surrounded by a forest of real cedar trees, the dim light from the shaded lamps inside give a weird effect while the interior is an exact representation of a witches home, black cats and all that contributes toward an atmosphere of black magic The ladies who foretell the future are Mrs. Grant the convenor, Mrs. F. Neal, Mrs. Reg. Turner, Mrs. Chris. Graham, Miss H. Logan, Mrs. Boyd, Miss Dorin, Mrs. C. E. Jamieson and Miss Archer.

Soft Drinks

At a nice private little booth at the left of the main door the Thursday Club under the convenorship of Mrs. W. R. Morris serve such attractive things to eat as hot dogs, ice cream and cones also soft drinks of every known description. The assistants today at this booth are Mrs. Fortye, Mrs. Robertson, Miss Belcher, Mrs. Mann, Miss Hatton, Miss Halliday, Mrs. Carruthers, Mrs. Perks, Miss Munro and Mrs. G. Wood. Adjoining this is a well equipped fish pond.

The Ashburnham Patriotic League have taken over the tea room and by clever decorations of red and white with scores of pennants have made a charming place for a cup of tea. The convenor of this room is Mrs. C. H. Moore and she is assisted today by Mrs. G. Hay, Mrs. Lees, Miss Morgan, Mrs. Sedgewick, Miss Meta Richardson, Miss Lillian Moore and Miss Conroy. Miss Kerr is the secretary.

Dance Every Evening

The Cafe Chantant is a distinctive feature of the Motor Show. This attraction which is held in the recreation room of the Armouries has been prepared with the same zeal and whole-heartedness which has marked every undertaking the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. has figured in. With handsome allied flags, comfortable chairs and palms, kindly lent by Mr. C. Williamson, and every convenience typical of a Cafe Chantant in a big city, the girls' efforts have been crowned with success and already the room has become a busy centre. Mrs. Gordon Langley is in charge of this and is assisted by Miss Robina Gordon-Cumming, Miss Nora Hatton, Miss Jessie Cressman, Miss Margaret Neal, Miss Esme Aylmer, Miss Georgie Stevenson and Miss Helen Stapleton, are in charge of the refreshments and coffee. A continuous programme of excellent music has been prepared for this evening and each following day. Ideal provision for a dance every evening has been made by the chapter.

Firms of Peterboro

Several of the firms in the city have very interesting and instructive booths in the midway in which all the newest ideas and latest inventions are exhibited. Electric stoves are exhibited and their use demonstrated by a booth belonging to Alexander & Miller. The Roy Studio has a splendid exhibit, the Kingan Hardware, Grant & Thorpe, The Canadian General, J. M. Greene, Warne Bros., Anglesy and Heelan, who demonstrate the vulcanizing system and the Motor Association have joined in to make the show a practical demonstration of the possibilities of Peterborough.

"Marriage to Take Place in England"

(Special to Examiner.)

OTTAWA, April 9. — The marriage of Lady Blanche Cavendish, second daughter of Their Excellencies, the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, to Captain Ivan Cobbold, son of Mr. J. H. Cobbold and Lady Evelyn Cobbold, has been arranged to take place in London, England, on Wednesday, April 30th. Shortly after this ceremony the Duchess of Devonshire will return to Canada.

Postmen Air Their Troubles

Things May Come to a Head Next Week Unless Settlement is Reached.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, April 9.—President Gallagher, of the Toronto postal clerks, accompanied by several colleagues, was received by the Cabinet subcommittee dealing with post office troubles. Among the Ministers present were Senator Blondin, Postmaster-General, Hon. N. W. Rowell, representing the Department in the House of Commons, and Senator Robertson, Minister of Labour.

It is understood that at the conclusion of the conference matters stood very much as at the beginning and that progress was not any too satisfactory. The Cabinet committee are considering the men's representations and will reach a decision in a day or two. Meanwhile arrangements are going ahead for the regular quarterly meeting of the Toronto postal clerks on Sunday next, when things may come to a head unless a settlement is previously reached.

Nervous Tension.

According to authoritative information, every one is showing effects of the strain. There is a nervous tension in the very air. Every delegate carried an implied "ultimatum" on his lips. It is becoming not only a matter of political and diplomatic effort reaching the end of the string, but as it is human beings doing the work, the limit of physical endurance is beginning to manifest itself.

As has been stated for three weeks past, the hour for definite decisions has brought a halt in the work of the conference. For days there has been quibbling over details. One person in authority declared to-day it would not be wrong to say technically that the conferees agreed on the principles of the main issues but that the constant dragging in of details has caused an endless going over of every subject.

Government is Split Into Factions

Premier Hoffmann's Government at Nuremburg Loses Support of the People—Soviet Government Gains in Power.

(Canadian Press.)

MUNICH, April 9. — With another 24 hours behind it, the Bavarian Council government appears less able to impose itself upon the country and the general political situation has become more involved and threatening.

Not only has the support of the old government taken concrete form in North Bavaria, but the breach among the Socitl Democrats, in South Bavaria has widened until the Majority Socialists, Independents Socialists and the Communists, are not at all united.

THE PEACE CONFERENCE

A Few Details Remained to Be Cleared Up—Something Left for League of Nations.

SAAR BASIN

By Lowell Mellett.

(United Press.)

PARIS, April 9.—The British continued to insist to-day that the peace work is practically concluded. An official who is in the closest touch with deliberations of the "Big Four" told the United Press that agreement has been reached on all the knotty questions with the exception of a few details. He reiterated that differences, so far as principles are concerned, are now a thing of the past.

"It will be a peace which the world's common sense will approve, even if it disappoints the reactionaries on one hand and the extreme radicals on the other," he said.

The official intimated that the peace treaty will leave a great deal for the League of Nations to do, saying it will not be a rigid affair, like most treaties, but will be more like the American constitution, subject to changes, providing two-thirds of the signatories desire.

When it was suggested that such questions as the Saar Basin and reparations hardly admitted of a compromise, but must be decided one way or the other, the official replied it would be found there is room for give and take on these questions without sacrificing any of the essential principles. Asked if he meant the principles President Wilson enumerated, he said, "Yes."

Commission Has Been Announced

Chief Justice Mathers Head Royal Board.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, April 9.—It is understood here that, after many delays, the personnel of the Commission of Industrial Relations has been fixed, and that an announcement will be made to-day.

The names mentioned are Chief Justice Mathers, of Manitoba, chairman; Senators Smeaton White of Montreal; Cral Riordan, of Toronto, and H. J. Daly, Ottawa, representing the employees, and Tom Moore, Ottawa, John W. Bruce, Toronto, and Charles Harrison, M.P. of Nipissing, representing Labour.

Senator White is president of the Gazette Publishing Co.; Carl Riordan is a member of the Riordan Pulp and Paper Co., and H. J. Daly is a well known financial and mercantile man, who until recently was director of repatriation, and who, as such, studied the labour problem.

Tom Moore is president of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada. Mr. Bruce is chief organizer for Canada and the Associated Plumbers, and member of the Labour Appeal Board, and Charles Harrison is a Labour Unionist member of the House.

If the personnel is as forecasted, it means that Jos. Archambault's contention in favour of a French-Canadian to represent the industrial workers of Quebec, has not been heeded. There is also no western labour man, although Eastern and Western ideas among labour are not quite the same.

Baby Conference at the Motor Show

Mothers Asked to Bring Their Babies Each Afternoon, 3 to 5 O'Clock.

Owing to circumstances which could not be avoided, the Baby Welfare Exhibit to have been sent by the Provincial Health Department cannot arrive in time for the three days of the Motor Show.

However, the Baby Conference will be held as planned for, and the mothers are asked to bring their babies each afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock.

A doctor and nurses will be in attendance and each baby will be weighed, measured and examined.

Afternoon tea will be served to the mothers by the members of the Supervision Committee of the Health Association, who will be assisted by members of the St. John's Ambulance Corps.

Let us make the conference a splendid success, and we'll look forward to having the Exhibit a little later when more time can be devoted to it.

The committee are keenly disappointed in having to postpone the exhibit but as it is unavoidable we will plan for even better things later on.

HUGE DEBT OF FRANCE

Every Man, Woman and Child Burdened With Debt of More Than $1,000.

STARTLING FIGURES

(United Press.)

(By Wm. Philip Simms.)

PARIS, April 9th. — Premier Clemenceau, undaunted by charges of imperialism, or insinuations that France is imbued with a childish idea of vengeance, continues to fight for what the French regard as reparations from Germany.

The Premier's arguments are backed by the most startling figures. These indicate that France's national debt is more than $40,000,000,000. Every man, woman and child, therefore, is burdened with a debt of more than $1,000.

Every baby is born owing a debt on which it must pay at least an annual interest of $55.

According to the last census, there were less than 13,000,000 money-producing males in France. Thus for each worker, there is a debt of over $3,000. With its present debt, France's expenditures are placed at $3,600,000,000 a year and as the total annaul private income of all the French together is only between $2,600,000,000 and $7,000,000,000, 50% of every man's wages and other income is necessary to meet the country's budget.

A Hundred Years.

However, it is not only necessary to meet expenses, but to pay off that great national debt. Prof. Henri Truchy, the famous economist of Sorbonne University, considers $40,000,000 a year for this purpose, would be a good average. At this rate it would require a hundred years to free the country from debt. Truchy declares that certain peace delegates have adopted the position that it would be unfair to Germany, and contrary to the spirit of the times, to place a heavy burden of debt on future generations of Germans, who ought not to suffer for the mistakes of their forefathers. He said the French position is "Is it fair to force future generations of French to pay the debts of a war begun by Germans, when the Germans themselves are exempted?"

La Liberte said to-day that Clemenceau, Premier Lloyd George, Premier Orlando, and Colonel House reached an agreement on certain principles while President Wilson was ill. It declared that it now remains for the President to approve these decisions, adding "the obvious conclusion is that if he approves, the peace preliminaries will be signed."

HE CRAVES TO SHOW A LITTLE SPEED.

I'd like to have a new car,
A green or red or blue car,
A tan or golden hue car—a la mode;
The body must be classy,
On a fairly sporty chassis,
I want to be real sassy—on the road.

I'm sick of eating dust now,
I feel I really must now
Get out ahead—or bust now, so to speak;
I want a turn at showing
How to keep the horn a-blowing,
I want to pass 'em, going like a streak.

So when you hear a-drumming
Like an engine that is humming,
You'll know just who is coming—it is I!
Dont' start in accelerating,
Cogitating or debating,
Aggravating, imprecating — let me by!

Two Years for Alleged Deserter

Another was Fined Five Hundred Dollars.

Canadian Press.

LONDON, April 9. — Gustave Wetlauffer of Kitchener, an alleged deserter, was to-day fined $500 by Magistrate Graydon.

Fred Cameron of Dutton, Ont., who deserted from the army on three occasions, was sentenced to two years in the Kingston penitentiary. Cameron's defence was that he deserted in order to provide for his wife who had the influenza. He says this was necessary as they were unable to make satisfactory arrangements with the Patriotic fund.

Megantic Docked This Morning

(Canadian Press.)

HALIFAX, April 9.—The Megantic, with two thousand returning Canadian soldiers, came up the harbour in the teeth of a twenty-five knot wind this morning and made several attempts to dock, but was unable to do so. The tugs are now leaving her, and it is presumed she will remain at anchor in the stream until the wind moderates. The men are being brought ashore in lighters.

The Situation In Saxony

Soviets Are in Communication With Budapest and Moscow.

By Frank J. Taylor.

(United Press.)

BERLIN, April 9.— The Soviets in Saxony were reported to-day to be in communication with Budapest and Moscow.

The situation in Saxony was described as "threatening." Herr Landsberg, member of the German Cabinet, who was arrested in Magdesburg (capital of Saxony), by Republican Guards yesterday, is said to have been rescued and taken to Hanover. Gen. Von Kleist, commander of the Fourth Army Corps, who was arrested at the same time, was believed to be still held a prisoner. The arrests resulted from anger at the government's seizure of Brandes, Heikel and Kegel, Radical leaders.

A reported split among the Majority Socialist delegates to the Congress is said to be causing a decided swing toward Radicalism. Many of the Radical leaders professed to believe the Soviets will follow the example of their Bavarian prototypes and demand the ousting of Chancellor Scheidemann and War Minister Noske.

Members of the German Cabinet were scheduled to leave for Weimar to-day.

Hamburg Plotting to Establish Soviet

Soviet Congress opens in Berlin — Hungarian and Bavarian Bolshevik Governments are Greeted.

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, April 9. — At this morning's session of the Soviet Congress, Independent Socialists presented two resolutions extending greetings to the Bavarian and Hungarian Soviet Republics. There was a lively discussion, especially regarding Bavaria. The Independent Socialists wanted the Congress to express the hope that the Bavarian proletariat might overcome all opposition and that the rest of Germany might follow its example. The motion was postponed after unfavorable discussion. The greeting to Hungary was accepted. In spite of recent threatening predictions, Berlin was quiet to-day, being strongly patrolled by government troops, with artillery. Wilhelmstrasse was commanded by machine guns from the Chancellory. No strikes were reported up to noon.

Spartacan leaders at Hamburg are plotting to proclaim a Soviet Republic in that city, according to the "Zeitung Am Mittag," which calls upon Gustav Noske, the Minister of War, to send troops there to prevent this action.

Bolsheviki Aim to Destroy Foundations Upon Which Peace is Being Determined in Paris.

A STATEMENT

By Edwin Hullinger.

(United Press.)

LONDON, April 9.— Cecil Harmsworth, Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, declared in an interview with the United Press to-day that the Allies are fighting in Russia because the Bolsheviki are openly proclaiming their determination to destroy the foundations upon which peace is being determined in Paris.

He denied that the Allies are actuated by a desire to safeguard British and French financial interests; or that the Allies are supporting reactionary elements in Russia.

"The refusal of the Allied governments to recognize the Bolsheviki," said Harmsworth, "is due to the following facts:

"The Bolsheviki do not represent the Russian people, as shown by their overthrow of the Constituent Assembly and their refusal to grant freedom of the press or the right of public meetings to rival political organizations.

"They have openly proclaimed themselves enemies of the League of Nations and are determined to upset the very foundations upon which peace is being determined in Paris.

"With cynical indifference to the interests of their country they made peace with Germany, and during the latter part of the war acted with open hostility to the Entente.

Supported Government.

"The Allies supported the governments of Tchaikovski, Kolchak and Deniken because these governments, formed from every political party in Russia except the Bolsheviki, openly stand for restoration of Russia, and when this is accomplished they will call a National Constituent Assembly to determine the future kind of government. They also have maintained an alliance with Western Europe and America, and despite overwhelming difficulties, have reached terms with either the Germans or the Bolsheviki, who betrayed their country and brought it to ruin, it is untrue that any of these governments are openly working for restoration of the Monarchy. Tchaikovski and his government certainly are not Monarchistic. Personally they favour a republic, but they admit the future form of government must be settled by a Constituent Assembly.

"Both Kolchak and Deniken may consider that the future of Russia demands a constitutional monarchy, but they, too, have declared their intention of not prejudicing the issue one way or the other. Their immediate object is the restoration of order and liberation of the Russian people from the tyranny of the Bolsheviki.

Good Offers.

"It is equally wrong to insinuate that the British and French governments are supporting the anti-Bolsheviki in the hope they may thereby safeguard British and French financial interests. After announcing that they had repudiated Russia's foreign loans and would refuse any compromise with "capitalistic" governments, the Bolsheviki now offer large financial concessions to the Allied governments in return for conclusion of peace with them. If the British and French were actuated by mercenary motives they would hardly be likely to refuse such good offers, which neither Kolchak nor Deniken thought fit to make.

FRANK JENNE says:

"Many people who do not know the Semi-ready label in the pocket are encouraged to the belief that 'Semi-ready' is a descriptive adjective —for when they go into a nondescript store and ask for a Semi-ready suit the salesman promptly shows them something— and conceals the fact that he is trying to take advantage of their not knowing the genuine.

"There is only one 'Semi-ready'—it means clothes made by Semi-ready Tailoring Corporation.

There is only one Semi-ready Store in Peterboro—I have the exclusive selling rights of Semi-ready tailored clothes in this city."

Germany to Pay a Huge Indemnity

25 Billion Francs Will be First Payment—Total Amount Will be Specified in Peace Treaty.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, April 9. —The preliminary peace treaty will require Germany to make an immediate indemnity payment on account of 25 billion francs in cash and raw materials, according to the "Echo de Paris." The treaty it declares, will not leave uncertain the total amount which Germany is to pay, as that amount will be written into the document.

Two Peace Treaties May Be Necessary

The Soviet Government in Bavaria May Make Necessary a New Peace Document.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, April 9.—There is much apprehension in Peace Conference circles as to the effect of the establishment of a Soviet government at Munich may have on the conclusion of peace. As the Munich government appears from press despatches to be well established, the peace delegates are considering the eventual necessity of negotiating two peace treaties with Germany, one with Berlin and the other with Munich.

We are told that the millennium is coming, but it isn't coming with a rush. Perhaps a messenger boy is bringing it.

Allies Will Keep Order In Germany

German Government is Considering Asking the Entente to Maintain Order in Germany to Stamp Out Bolshevism.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, April 9. — At the latest session of the German Cabinet, the Government considered the eventuality of making an appeal to the allied armies to maintain order in Germany, in the interest of the whole of Europe, the Zurich correspondent of Le Journal reports.

Farm Wages Take a Jump

Hired Man Will Share Prosperity of the Farmer.

United Press.

(By Ralph F. Couch.)

WASHINGTON, April 6. — Farm wages this year will be beyond the billion dollar mark, the Agricultural Department figures indicated today. The American farmer has begun to share with the hired man the increased prosperity that came to him last year and is promised a "greatest in history" crop this year.

In pre-war times the hired man earned approximately $500,000,000, or about one half of what he is expected to receive this year. Reports to the Department of Agriculture show that last year farm wages had jumped 72 per cent. over those of the five years from 1909 to 1913.

Millions of persons will share the fattened pay envelope as there are 5,717,000 farms in the United States, and almost every one employs at least one hired man during some part of the year.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 9TH, 1919.

THE MOTOR SHOW

On behalf of the Peterboro Health Association in whose aid the event is being held, may the Examiner be allowed to once more urge a splendid patronage for the Peterboro Motor Show, which opens in the Armories to-night. The Motor Show on its own merits as an exhibition of cars and accessories and its added attractions is worthy of a record attendance. When in addition it affords the people of Peterboro an opportunity to welcome General Williams, O.C. No. 3 Military District and at the same time to afford financial assistance to one of the most meritorious organizations in Peterboro, there seems every reason to look for a huge gathering at the Armouries. The Committee and the assisting organizations have done their part; the motor dealers and manufacturers have splendidly co-operated, but after all the success of the event depends upon the general public. Judging by other years there is no reason to doubt the willingness of the citizens to assist by their presence in rendering certain the financial triumph of the Motor Show. The proceeds go to that splendid and public-securing organization the Health Association, the magnificent work of which is all too little known and too meagrely appreciated in Peterboro.

THE REFERENDUM

It is apparent that if the temperance referendum it be taken in Ontario next autumn is to afford a clear expression of the opinion of the people, a campaign of education is necessary in order that those who are entitled to vote my not be misled by the number of questions upon which they have to indicate their views. The prohibitionist who is anxious to suppress liquor under all conditions has of course no difficulty— he simply has to vote "no" on all four questions. Similarly the anti-prohibitionist whose only desire is to have drinking facilities come back can vote "yes" on the four counts, but his first affirmative will have the effect of nullifying his vote on the other three questions The greatest danger of a mistake occurs in the case of the citizens who may regard it as the best solution of the liquor question that the sale of liber through government agencies shall be permitted or that spirituous liquors generally should be sold by government agencies. It would be necessary for him to vote "no" on the question of the repeal of the Temperance Act and "yes" on the proposition he favours, and it is on this point that there is need of a publicity campaign for the danger exists that many citizens who favour a moderate policy of dealing with the liquor question may be led into taking the affirmative on the first question and unconsciously while seeking to establish a system free of many of the evils of the old license days, may help to restore the very conditions they are anxious to eliminate.

EXPLANATIONS NEEDED

While it is doubtful whether any practical result will come from it, the action of the City Council in protesting against the decision of the Dominion Government not to proceed with the erection of the new Federal building in Peterboro at the present time, may serve to indicate to the authorities at Ottawa that this city considers that straight promises have been broken. It is doubtful, however, whether such a change will worry the hardened members of the Government who must by this time have broken so many pledges that a disgruntled municipality more or less will make very little difference. The members of the City Council feel that their confidence has been betrayed; in this respect they can sympathize with the thousands of other Canadians who have learned that the present administration at Ottawa can promise more and do less than any Government in the history of Canada.

The building of the Government's building here was counted upon as affording relief in the unemployment crisis. The building was promised and part of the money was voted before the war. The conflict, of course, put an end to the project and nobody found fault with the Government in declining to go on with the work while hostilities continued. Now, however, the people of Peterboro have a right to expect that the Government shall implement its pledges as made by responsibile ministers and shall proceed with this work. That the building is needed was admitted years ago by the Ottawa authorities. They are at present spending large sums throughout the country doing necessary work and to provide employment. Why is Peterboro being neglected? The Federal member for West Peterboro should explain to his constituents why the city is being discriminated against. The unemployed in Peterboro are anxious to know the reason for the postponing of the Government programme here and the action of the Council may throw some light on the question.

THE CITIZEN'S RESEARCH INSTITUTE

It will be welcome news to the unfortunately too few people who have followed with interest and approval the work in Toronto of the Bureau of Municipal Research, that it has been decided to extend the work into the national field and that a charter has been secured for the Citizen's Research Institute of Canada. For the past few years the Bureau has carried out a programme of community education in Toronto, its work being along the lines of eliciting facts with regard to Municipal Government and Community Affairs and the analizing and publication of these facts for the consideration of the citizens. In commenting upon the desirability of the extension of the work, Mr. F. Barry Hayes, the Vice-Chairman of the Institute remarks "We are facing a period of great industrial, social and political unrest. There is a grave danger that momentous decisions in all these fields may be made as a result of passions or self-interest rather than in the light of facts as to actual national and community needs. The Institute promises, therefore, to build up the necessary fact basis through definite studies and community surveys and to conduct campaigns of publicity based thereon."

The Bureau of Municipal Research had its origin in the feeling among a small group of Toronto citizens that it was necessary to consider ways and means of improving city government. In the beginning, it is explained in a booklet just issued by the Bureau, the changing of the personnel of the city council seemed to be the first step to be taken, although even then there was a feeling that something more fundamental was needed than a mere change of leaders. This feeling grew into a conviction that the real root of the trouble was with the people themselves as citizens and that their reconstruction lay through the removal of the lack of information concerning and apathy toward civic problems on the part of citizens in general. Education then, seemed to be the basal process and a realization of that fact led to the formation of the Bureau which is a voluntary association of citizens banded together to promote informed citizenship and through this, desirable conditions of community life.

In brief its ideals are similar to those which the Peterboro Board of Trade hopes to be able to follow in this city.

The development of the work of the Citizens Research Institute will be watched with interest.

UNDERSTANDING THE SOLDIER

When Mr. Philip Gibbs, in the course of an interview given to a representative of The Star, urged that governments and leaders of men study the psychology of the returned soldier, he touched upon one of the most vital questions of the day; but a question which is in danger of being cast into the shade by more spectacular topics. Subscription lists of patriotic funds show that the average civilian, the man possessing the usual amount of public spirit, is ready to give generously of his material substance in an effort to help the man home from the war; but it is fairly obvious that if the civilian had been equally quick in trying to perform the harder task of putting himself, mentally, in the soldier's place, there would be less complaint among the soldiers than is often expressed.

The soldier, as Mr. Gibbs pointed out, has been living and thinking violently. Tremendous issues have been before him, and he returns with a changed viewpoint. The civilian, sympathetic though he may be, cannot have been affected to the same degree and must take a long step forward if he would meet the soldier half way. The soldier comes back with ideas which may be disproportionate in some details, but which are, at least, larger than the ideas which he carried overseas. The civilian, lacking the same education, has been changing more slowly and thinks more slowly now, and in a smaller way. While the soldier remained in the trenches, he constantly received assurances from the civilian that the home fires was being kept burning; he returns to find that the flame is not as bright as he expected and that the supply of fuel looks inadequate. It is not, probably, that the returned soldier is greedy for riches, that he hankers for flesh-pots, although he reasonably claims that he has earned his share of the world's good things,—it is that more than ever he craves love, friendship, understanding; and it is when the outward manifestation of these are lacking that he becomes restless and grumbles over conditions.

The concrete case of one soldier, who enlisted in Montreal, may be taken as typical. He had fought bravely through three years of agony with never a word of self-pity in his letters; but he saddened like a child when, on arriving home, his favorite chum was not at the station to meet him. It is not enough that "things" be "done" for the returned soldier; if deeds are not imbued with the right thoughts, the soldier will soon deject their hollowness. Yet systematically to treat the returned soldier as a strange sort of being can have but one effect,— that of estrangement. The returned soldier is a civilian again, but a civilian entitled, by most honorable service in his country's cause, to exceptional consideration and sympathy. If such helps are withheld from him, then those civilians who now are apathetic must suffer; for one thing is certain, the soldier will not tamely submit to anything that savors to him of injustice.—Montreal Star.

"THE LAND OF PROMISE" WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Splendid Entertainment Under the Auspices of the Young People's Society of Knox Church Enjoyed by Large Audience.

REPEATED TO-NIGHT

"The Land of Promise", a play that was dramatic and at the same time witty and with this depicting the joys and sorrows of a country parson in charge of a small parish was presented last evening at the Knox church Lecture Hall, under the auspices of the Young People's Society of Knox Presbyterian Church. The cast of characters presents a list of names hat would grace the pages of a novel of the Biblical age.

Rev. Benjamin Franklyn Sunday is a conscientious Scotch minister, in a small community whose sole ambition is to take care of the spiritual needs of his little flock as much as lays in his power, to give his three daughters a good education and to provide the church with a new bell.

With these objects in view the minister enters a contest presented by the Theological Review magazine to gain a prize of $2,000 which will be given to any minister who sends the best sermon on any subject to the magazine before a certain date. Prentiss Whitfield, theological student, temporarily in charge of a small mission and incidentally in love with Eloise Sunday, the minister's daughter also decides to enter the contest. His sermon "The Land of Promise" which he has loaned to Rev. Mr. Sunday cannot be found by the clergyman and the student enters another one.

The minister's three daughters Eloise who "just doves" pretty clothes and of course Prentiss Whitfield, Paulina, who aspires to be a great musician and with it a new piano, and Indiana, their irrepressible kid sister who continually teases her sister about the student and whose ambition is a new pair of pink silk slippers also see the offer of the magazine and hunting through their father's sermon find "The Land of Promise", which they send to the magazine for the contest. In their mind's eye they have the first prize won and spent.

The next issue of the Theological Review announces that the sermon of the Rev. B. F. Sunday has won the $2000. Pandemonium reigns in the Sunday home with Indiana as chief actor but their ardour is soon dampened when Leonard Dudley, the dude of the village, head clerk at Mr. Tucker Doolittle's combined grocery store and post-office to whom Mr. Sunday had entrusted his sermon to be posted, tremulously informs Mr. Sunday that he forgot to post the sermon.

This was a mystery, the sermon had never been posted yet he had won the $2000 prize.

The minister's daughters soon enlightened the troubled parson but he is unable to recall when he wrote a sermon called "The Land of Promise". He remembers Prentiss Whitfield's lost sermon and the mystery is explained. The three girls terrified attempt to explain and Eloise explains to Mr. Whitfield the whole situation. Everything arights itself when the student proposes to Eloise, Mr. Tucker Doolittle, the store-keeper who has been a personal enemy of the minister relents and presents him with a farm and last but not least Indiana is allowed to keep her pink silk slippers.

The same programme will be presented this evening at 8 o'clock in the Knox church Lecture Hall.

CANADIAN EXPRESSMEN DECIDE TO STRIKE THURSDAY.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 9. — It was given out at the offices of the Grand Division Brotherhood of Railway Employees that the Canadian Express Company's employees had decided to strike, following the refusal of the company to abide by the award of the board appointed under the provisions of the Industrial Disputes Act for the purpose of passing upon the grievances entertained by the men.

The strike will go into effect throughout the territory served by the Grand Trunk Railway and the Canadian National Railways, exclusive of the Canadian Northern Railway system, on Thursday, April 10, at 6 p.m. Approximately 1200 men are involved. The employees had asked and had been awarded by the board a revision of their wage schedule, together with a reduction in working hours.

Children's Fete Of Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E.

Those who desire to have their children take part in the Fancy Dress Party given by the Chapter on Saturday afternoon, April 26th, are reminded that it would be well for them to secure their tickets as early as possible, as the number, for both children and spectators, is necessarily limited. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the Chapter.

It is expected that this entertainment will be one of the prettiest of the season, as well as being absolutely new to Peterborough. All sorts of entertainments are being arranged for the little ones, as well as those for the older children.

Miss Littlefield has kindly arranged to have some fancy dances presented by her pupils.

SPLENDID CHOIR CONCERT

Some one remarked at a recent meeting of the musicians of the city that Canadians have not discovered their musical possibilities and were decades behind their English cousins. If the author of the criticism had been at the concert given last evening in the George street Methodist church he would undoubtedly have admitted that there are exceptions to the sweeping assertion. The performance was one of the most artistic musical events in years and afforded an evening of unusual enjoyment to the very large audience which was most demonstrative in its appreciation of the different numbers and would take no denials to its insistent encores. The various choruses were interpreted under the leadership of Mr. J. H. Renwick, with careful attention to such important details of chorus singing as singing with proper phrasing, attack, dynamics, shading, etc., and the choral numbers merited the highest praise.

The Programme.

The opening item on the programme was a chorus, consisting of the choir of George street Methodist church, augmented to sixty-five voices from the different choirs of the city. In this number the members demonstrated their ability to sing and the ability of the musical director to choose a well-balanced choir. There was a nice distribution of voices, which were well blended, without a tendency to overlapping. In the contralto solo of the first number, "Damascus," Miss Lynn sang with refreshing competence and artistry. Miss Bessie Elcome played the accompaniment on the organ with splendid effect.

In the piano quartettes Miss Laura McFarlane, Miss Bessie Elcome, Miss Isobel Baird and Miss Roxie McKee played with delightful verve expression and admirable poise, their performance reflecting the highest credit upon the training they have received, and upon their musical talent. Miss Laura Logan in two violin selections, displayed competent technique and high interpretative ability, and was encored with the greatest enthusiasm.

A departure from the ordinary church concert lay in a clarionet solo by Mr. Otto Gliddon, who was warmly applauded by the audience.

The artistic interpretation of the ladies' choruses was thoroughly appreciated by the audience, and the semi-chorus for ladies, in which Miss Lillian Eastwood, Miss Etta Kemp, Miss Rathbone, Miss Florrie Nicholls, Miss Jean Herbison and Mrs. E. E. Ellis took part, was a revelation of the musical powers possessed by the ladies taking part. Miss Isobel Baird played the accompaniment capably and artistically.

Miss Doris Rathbone and Mr. T. Ward sang a duet, 'O That We Two Were Maying,' with pronounced effect.

The men's chorus in 'Comrades in Arms,' aroused the greatest enthusiasm on the part of the audience and they were brought back with insistent encores.

Two of the most notable successes of the programme were the readings of Miss Winnifred Parker and Mrs. Frank Jenne. While elocution has not been developed to any great extent in the city, any such performance is always heartily appreciated by a Peterborough audience, especially when given by two such talented elocutionists as the ladies mentioned. Both demonstrated their striking voice powers and mastery over facial expression and read with the deepest feeling and greatest taste.

To the inexpressible regret of the audience, throuhg illness Mrs. J. H. Renwick was unable to take part in the programme.

P. BLACK'S SIXTH ANNIVERSARY SALE

Six years ago, Mr. P. Black, general drygoods merchant, corner of George and King streets, acquired his present business. To-day it affords him pleasure to state that his trade has grown from its very small beginning to an established, good-paying business.

Mr. Black is an admirer of straightforward business dealings. When asked about the methods which helped him to his present success, he replied: "I have done my business in the honest and best way." His trade has gradually kept pace with the growth of the city. He started business with only a small sum of money, occupying just one small section of his present store. Gradually he added more space and more goods as he found his business growing. His plans had to be carefully made and well considered, but he was shrewd and careful in buying. Being more anxious to establish a business than to make money, he sold his goods on a very small margin of profit. He paid very little for clerks' salaries as Mrs. Black and himself have done nearly all the clerking during the past six years. His "overhead expenses" figured very lightly, which was one of the reasons why he claims he could afford to sell on a small cost basis. As his business kept growing he started to advertise in a small way; and, as he advertised he found his business growing steadily. Then he advertised more extensively and the store grew bigger, the stocks larger, and his sales in proportion, until to-day the whole store premises is filled with a large and well assorted stock of men's and women's wear, millinery and general drygoods.

Yesterday Mr. Black commenced his sixth anniversary sale, for which he has issued large quantities of handbills describing the goods, and bargains he has to offer. Householdholders should get a copy of these bills and judge for themselves the values he has to advertise.

Voice of the People

Peterborough, April 8th, 1919.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In reading Labour Man's letter in your issue of the 4th, re Daylight Saving I was surprised at some of his statements. I am a labour man and machinist, have a large garden and work at the C.G.E. I think the daylight saving scheme is the only thing. I have asked every man I came in contact with, and nine out of ten are in favour of it. A few would prefer it adopted May 1st, but say better too early than late. The only person that has a kick coming is the farmer. I am sure that any intelligent farmer would not strongly object to any system that is such a great benefit to his principal customers, the working men in the cities and town and does no harm to himself, as he controls his own whistle. Labour Man speaks of joy-riding, golf, etc. Did he ever stop to think how many labour men joy-riding supports. I refer to the automobile industry. I do not grudge people taking pleasure from golf and automobiles. "I would," only I can't afford. Now, Mr. Editor, if you will kindly use your influence to have the daylight saving system adopted a few more years, with the help of my garden and the extra hour of daylight I will be able to buy a car and joyride, etc., in those lovely long summer evenings. Thanking you for the space in your paper.

Live and Let Live.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Dear Sir,—There appeared a telegram in your paper March 18th, headed "Cheap Power for Lakefield," wired from Toronto by Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P. as follows: "Notwithstanding the request of the Reeve of Lakefield for further postponement the Lakefield council accepted Mr. J. H. Burnham's invitation and joined him in the appointment to meet the Hydro-Electric Commission this morning. The interview was most satisfactory. The Chief Engineer said that the prompt application from Lakefield for power would mean cheap power for Lakefield, instead of dear," etc."

Now, Sir, I think Mr. Burnham should have acquainted himself with the facts and been careful from whom he got his information, as the Reeve of Lakefield is one of the strongest supporters of the Hydro-Electric Power and always has been. Mr. Burnham wired me from Toronto saying he had made an appointment with the Hydro-Electric Commission for ten o'clock the following morning which was indeed a surprise to me as Mr. Burnham had never been authorized by the Lakefield Council to do so. However, what Mr. Burnham has done is all right and I hope Lakefield will get the best of results from it, as for myself I was confined to my room through illness and was unable to go with the deputation to Toronto but it was with my suggestion that the deputation went to Toronto to meet the Hydro Commission.

Further more it has been stated by some parties that the Lakefield Council are playing into the hands of the Dickson Company but there is no truth in the matter whatever. Personally I have always worked for the best interest for Power for Lakefield and I am not now nor did I ever play into the hands of any private company as some selfish parties are trying to make it appear. I remain

Yours truly,
F. J. Moore,
Reeve of Lakefield.

Sat Up In Bed To Get Her Breath

Palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, inability to lie on the left side, feelings as if smothering, oppressed feeling in the chest, dizzy and faint spells, tired weak, worn out feeling, involuntary twitching of the muscles, sleeplessness, restless, etc., all point to the fact that either the heart or nerves, or both, are not what they should be. Any of these conditions should be remedied immediately so as to avoid a complete breakdown of the whole system.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will bring energy to the weakened constitution, strengthen and regulate the heart, and tone up the tired, overstrained nerves.

Mrs. William Steeves, Chemical Road, N.B., writes:—"I have been a great sufferer from nerve troubles and palpitation of the heart, which was so bad I had to sit up in bed to get my breath. I could not lie on my left side at all. I tried doctor after doctor, also several different remedies, but got no help from them. My mother insisted on me trying Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. By the time I had used one box, I was feeling very much better. I took in all three boxes, and now I am in perfect health and can enjoy a good second sleep, and can lie on my left side without any trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THEY ACTED IN TIME

During 1917, twenty men all hale and hearty insured their lives in the Sun Life of Canada. All paid the first premium, none lived to pay the second.

They paid a total of $5078.26 and their beneficiaries received $74,412.60.

The records for 1918, owing to the ravages of the "Flu" will show the above record repeated many times, and all such acted in time.

What are you going to do about it? Act in time or be forever too late.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Says German Envoy Intended Annexations and Indemnities

Matthias Erzberger Accused of Being Author of Scheme to Absorb Belgium and Eastern Frontier, Establish Large Colonial Empire and Make Allies Pay Heavily.

BERNE (French Wireless Service).—Mathias Erzberger, chairman of the German Armistice Commission, and a member of the German Government, was accused of being the author of a document written in 1914 showing that Germany's peace terms, if she won, would include large annexations and indemnitities, Herr Landauer, a representative of the Munich Soldiers' and Workmen's Council, declared in a speech at Augsburg, Bavaria, according to a despatch to the Frankfort Zeitung. Landauer,, who was speaking at a meeting in memory of Kurt Eisner, the late Bavarian Premier, said he had a copy of the document.

Landauer at first refused to give the name of the author, except that he was still a member of the Government. Finally, however, he said that the person to whom he alluded was Herr Erzberger. Among the peace terms mentioned in the document, Landauer said, were Annexation of Belgium, French Normandy and several towns on the south-eastern coast of England.

Annexation of the territories on the eastern frontier of Germany which have since become separate states.

Establishment of a large German colonial empire.

Payment of a war indemnity calculated to cover Germany's expenses during the first ten months of the war, as well as the entire German debt before the war.

Herr Landauer asserted that these terms were approved in principle by General Von Falkenhayn, General Von Moltke, and Admiral Von Tirpitz.

Condemned Man in Death House Tries to Murder Keeper

Enraged at Failure to Get Clemency Prisoner Slashes Three Sing Sing Guards.

SING SING, N.Y., April 8.—Infuriated because his plea for a commution of the sentence of death in the electric chair to life imprisonment had been rejected by Governor Alfred E. Smith, Giovanni Ferraro, one of the most desperate criminals ever incarcerated in the death house here, attempted to kill two of his keepers with a dagger fashioned out of an old piece of iron, which had been smuggled into his cell.

His attack on Edward O'Toole and Michael McCarthy, keepers in the death house, was witnessed by sixteen other men condemned to death in the electric chair, and before the dagger could be wrenched from his hand he had inflicted painful wounds on the faces of both the keepers.

Several weeks ago Ferraro joined Antonio Verrino, of Monroe county, in an appeal to Governor Smith for clemency. Ferraro was convicted of murder in the first degree for the shooting of William Dunbar at Farmersville, Cattaraugus county. Verrino was convicted for another murder, but the circumstances in each man's case they considered similar.

Governor Smith on Tuesday commuted Verrin's sentence to life imprisonment, but he refused to interfere in Ferraro's case. Word of the Governor's action was conveyed to the men by Warden Moyar this morning.

Soon after Keeper O'Toole opened Ferraro's cell to permit the murderer to take his customary morning's exercise in the corridor in front of the condemned man's cell. Hardly had the door swung open than Ferraro lunged forward in an attack on O'Toole, and before the keeper could defend himself, Ferraro had drawn the improvised dagger across his face, severing the corner of his left eye.

O'Toole's cries were heard by McCarthy and H. P. Thacker, another keeper, and in a few minutes the three keepers were struggling with the murderer to disarm him. McCarthy received slight cuts on the face and body before Ferraro was beaten into submission.

Warden Moyer said to-night Ferrara will be put to death in the electric chair after eleven o'clock Thursday night.

"IT HAS NO EQUAL," SAYS ED. HOOER

No Medicine Did Him Any Good Till He Took Tanlac.

"Tanlac has convinced me that it has no equal for people in the condition I was in, for it has made me feel like a different person," said Edward Hooper, of 2062 St. Clair avenue, Toronto, Ont.

"Four for years," he continued, "I suffered from an awful case of stomach trouble. My appetite failed and the little I forced down hurt me. I felt like there was a lump right in the pit of my stomach and was constantly belching up sour, undigested food. I would get so dizzy that I would almost fall, I had dull headaches and felt unfit for work. I felt I was getting worse and don't believe I could have kept up much longer

"I have taken four bottles of Tanlac now, and am feeling fine. My appetite is great, and I haven't been troubled with indigestion or gas since I started taking Tanlac. All that bloated feeling is gone, the dizziness has left me and I actually feel like a different person."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. D. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowlers' Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Farmers Moving Into Peterboro

Meeting of Children's Aid Society Was Slimly Attended.

With the "back to the city" movement which is said to be progressing to a great extent among the farmers, the legal representatives on the Board of the Children's Aid Society were too busy preparing to instate the farmers in their city homes to attend the regular monthly meeting held yesterday afternoon. One lawyer remarked that a surprisingly large number of farmers are selling out to come and spend the wealth they have amassed in the city.

Members Present

The members who attended were Ald. Edgar who occupied the chair, Dr. C. King, Messrs. R. H. Parsons and L. Lebar, who as representative of the Great War Veterans attended for the first time: Mesdames W. Stocker, Gibbs and Turner. The Secretary, Mr. J. Wearing dropped in for a few seconds.

Mr. G. W. Powel was appointed representative from the Shelter to the Charity Board.

Fire Protection

On the receipt of a letter from the Deputy Provincial Secretary asking for a statement of the fire protection at the Home, Mr. Powel invited an inspection by Chief Grange, who recommended fire escapes and three chemical extinguishers. A definite settlement was left to the next meeting.

No Foundation

Mr. Powel investigated several cases of reported destitution, which reports he found to be practically without foundation.

To Care For Garden

It was decided to place the garden at the Shelter in the hands of Mrs. Reid's (the Matron) son and the Board and to buy such vegetables for the Shelter as may be required. the proposition in a week....aSrupwrs If Reid does not decide in a week to accept the proposition other arrangements will be made. Dr. King and Mr. C. H. Parsons were appointed a committee to look after the matter.

Norma Talmadge in the Safety Curtain

If the opportunity to cast your lot with a man who loved you and would care for you tenderly came to you after cruel and harsh treatment came to you and when the SAFETY CURTAIN at the theatre, dropping to shut out a fire from the audience, also shuts you away from your miserable past; and if you thought that by drawing the safety curtain of silence and distance behind you as you fled to India with the man you loved, you would forever leave the hateful past behind, what would you do? Would you seize with both hands the happiness flung you way as PUCK seized it?

How Puck, the little dancer in a cheap music-hall in London, meets Merryon on leave from service in India on the night of the fire which separates her from her husband who has beaten her for fancied attentions from another man; how the safety curtain shuts off her escape and her life, until Merryon leaps to her aid, is endangered; how she reads of Vulcan's death in the papers and consents to a marriage with Merryon with whom she goes to India; how she realizes that the reports of Vulcan's death may be false since her own name had been listed erroneously; how Vulcan, who is alive, comes to claim her and rather than ruin the man she loves, Puck returns to him, just as he is dying of the plague; and finally how Puck is released from him and free to return to the man she loves, all goes to make up the thrilling incidents in Norma Talmage's latest Select Picture, "THE SAFETY CURTAIN," which will be shown at the Grand Opera House next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Labour Party Suggests Planks For Board of Trade Platform

Mr. T. Tooms Emphasized Opportunity for Improving Local Housing Conditions — Will Have a Weekly Paper as Organ for the Party—Public Meeting Here on April 22nd.

30 MEMBERS ENROLLED

Affirming the moral right of Labour to the vacancy in the City Council which will be created by the forthcoming resignation of Ald Murray, the Independent Labour Party last night decided to support the candidate Trades and Labour Council are expected to nominate for the position.

Mr. Peter McArthur presided and welcomed thirty new members, Messrs. T. McMurray T. Tooms and F. Asta were appointed delegates to the Convention of the Independent Labour Party in Toronto on Good Friday. It is expected that some of the Unions may send representatives of their own, comprising altogether a strong delegation from Peterboro.

Meeting Here on April 22nd

It was announced that Mr. J. T. Marks, secretary of the I.L.P., of Ontario and Mrs. Singer of Toronto would address a public meeting here on Tuesday April 22nd in the interests of the Labour Party. The auditorium in which this meeting will be held will be published later. Mrs. Singer is coming to Peterboro to organize the women industrially and politically, and, it is understood, will make a house to house canvass. Mrs. Singer met with marked success in the St. Catharines campaign and recently organized Orillia with a charter membership of more than 250.

A Labour Organ

The Peterboro branch of the I.L.P. is arranging for the publication of a weekly paper to be devoted to its interests. It will be issued in Montreal, but its five pages will contain news and comment written by local members. The members aim at embracing the entire province in the circulation and scope of their official organ. The Party's organ has already been named: "The Labour Mirror."

A deputation from the Co-operative Society composed of Messrs. Carter, Stackacre and Houston urged the I.L.P. to support the Co-operative movement and the Society's store in Peterboro. They promised to bring Mr. Keen to Peterboro to present the advantages of the Co-operative scheme at a public meeting.

Discussed Board of Trade

Mr. T. Tooms referred to a recent editorial in the Examiner which regretted organized Labour's decision to hold aloof from the Board of Trade. At the outset he said that the membership fee of ten dollars was too large. It represented almost a month's rent.

"So far as Labour is concerned," he continued, "I do not think any objection is raised to the organization of these Boards of Trade so long as they are not misrepresented by their promoters and advocates, but organized under the guise of a community service institution they are a snare and a menace to community service such as the Co-operative Society. A short time ago the business people refused to supply the Co-operative store. The Board of Trade by their many services are absolutely unsuited to discharge real community service. We believe in the abolition of class dominion, and so long as the real objects of the Board of Trade are as manifest to the public as the Labour organization's and Farmers organization's it is desirable to work in harmony with them. Exchange of views is most desirable to the end of bringing about a better understanding, but we do not want the absorption of the larger section by the smaller under the plea of community service to promote the financial interests of the latter."

Mr. Tooms declared that the greatness of Peterboro depended not so much on its size as on the degree of comfort and economic independence enjoyed by the average family. He submitted three ways in which he considered that the Board of Trade could contribute to the advancement of the city. The first was to encourage a one hundred per cent. organization of Labour in Peterboro. This would insure by agreement employment to the extent the industries would warrant and wages would be maintained. The second was to promote the Co-operative Societies as an economic asset to the people. The organization of a housing co-partnership estate was the third suggestion. This scheme would reduce the cost of erecting houses by the wholesale purchase of materials and would save labour in a systematic development.

"The collective erection of houses would provide modern sanitary and hygienic convenience and there would be permanency of tenure at fixed rentals for the occupants. As high as 85% of the necessary capital can be secured as a loan from the Ontario Government at 5%. If the Board of Trade will not undertake such community service it will justify my suspicion. We want to make sure that the movement is not a masquerade of the dominant class interests."

"AN AGREEMENT OR A WRECK."

The Peace Conference has Reached a Critical Stage."

(Special to Examiner.)

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

PARIS, April 9th. — The Peace conference, it was declared in certain official quarters to-day, has reached a stage where there are just two alternatives, an agreement or a wreck.

The period in which continued protracted discussions are possible, has passed.

NO NEWS FROM ITALY.

An Artistic Car With a Warrior's Heart

EXQUISITELY modeled and built, a smart traveller of city street or country road, the Willys-Knight is nevertheless a car to meet the hardest test of service. Its smart elegance, prized by the fastidious motorist, adorns a rugged power and dependability, every motorist needs.

The modish Willys-Knight is built around an engine at home alike on battlefield and asphaltum drive. Canada specified a Willys-Knight sleeve valve motor for its War Truck. British military engineers would have none but a Knight in the Tanks. Here in America, New York and Chicago motor 'buses in motor distress called the Willys-Knight to the rescue.

Noiseless as it is powerful, without slam-bang opening and spring-jam shutting, immune to carbon corrosion and pre-ignition, it is the de luxe engine for the de luxe passenger car. It begins better than ordinary engines, and every thousand miles of travel make it a better engine.

Every Willys Knight is a classic, but we urge your especial consideration of the Willys-Knight Special De Luxe, a seven-passenger luxury car for fastidious motorists.

A look at a Willys-Knight will convince you of its tasteful beauty. Let us take you for a rapid spin—over the roughest road you may care to pick—and prove what a Willys-Knight motor in a Willys-Knight car means in comfort and all-around motoring enjoyment.

DODGE BROTHERS NAME LOCAL MAN AS DEALER

Realize Big Possibilities in Automobile Field of Thriving Community

(Canadian Press.)

Recognition of Peterboro and vicinity as a thriving community that gives promise of big opportunities in the automobile field, has led Dodge Brothers to establish representatives here, with The Duffus Garage as the newly appointed dealer. Mr. Duffus now has the exclusive selling rights in this territory.

The remarkable popularity of the Dodge Brothers Motor Car has caused automobile men all over the country to clamor for sales privileges, but Dodge Brothers' policy of quality in selling methods, as well as quality in the car, requires a painstaking investigation in every instance before selection is made. In Mr. Jos. J. Duffus Dodge Brothers have a dealer on whom they believe they may rely for both progressiveness and fair business methods.

An idea of the popularity of Dodge Brothers Motor Car may be gained from the fact that within three years after the first car was turned out, the aggregate sales had exceeded $175,000,000.

This is a record without precedent in the motor car industry. It is regarded as a striking testimonial to the high regard in which the name "Dodge Brothers" was held by the public even before they marketed a motor car bearing this name. Prior to that time Dodge Brothers had built the vital parts for more than a half million other cars, establishing a reputation for thoroughness and mechanical skill.

This reputation has been more than up-held. It is said of Dodge Brothers in explanation of their unusual success, that they spare no money or effort in building a car to suit their particular ideas of thoroughness in manufacture. What their ideas on this subject mean to the purchaser of their product may be imagined from the fact that they have a staff of more than 750 inspectors who do nothing but check up on workmanship in the various processes of manufacture. In addition there are several large departments devoted entirely to similar work, such as the physical and chemical laboratories where raw and finished materials are subjected to tests so thorough as to leave no doubt of the quality.

It is sufficient that the frst Dodge Brothers Motor Car ever built was made up exactly as a car is made in the regular line of production. Ordinarily the "experimental job," as the first car is known, is built of castings because of the great time and expense involved in preparing dies for forgings. Dodge Brothers, however, decided that their experimental car should be like the car they expected to build in every detail, so that neither they nor the public might be "fooled." So they spent almost a year in making these dies and preparing otherwise for a completely manufactured car. As a result when the car was built they knew what they had and what they and the public might expect of their product. As a further result this first car, although only an "experimental job," is still in daily service on the hardest runs—experimenting under all sorts of road conditions—and with a record of more than 150,000 miles behind it. This is but an illustration of Dodge Brothers as manufacturers.

Public approval of their principles of thoroughness is seen in the rapid expansion of Dodge Brothers Works, made necessary by public demand. In December, 1914, it was a plant of less than 20 acres. To-day Dodge Brothers Works covers 72 acres of floor space, employes more than 14,500 persons, produces more than 400 cars a day and is still unable to keep pace with the demand.

Britain to Enter Oil Business On An Enormous Scale

Government Expected to Check Merger of Interests All Over World—Special Efforts in Mexican Field.

LONDON. — The British Government is going into the oil business. Profiting by the costly experience of the war, when it was compelled to send enormous sums into other countries in payment for petroleum and petroleum products, it has adopted a clearly defined oil policy, and is already credited with financially backing what is expected here to develop into the most powerful oil producing, refining and transporting enterprise in the history of the industry.

Stories concerning the Government's policy have been in circulation on several occasions and recently were revived by reports that the Royal Ducth-Shell oil interests were about to take control of the Mexican Eagle Oil Company, an important member of the Lord Cowdray group.

The Government's first important move, it was stated by authorities here, will be the creation of a permanent ministry, the machinery for which exists in the petroleum department which looked after the empire's oil interests during the war and which is still an active institution.

Britain Holds Potential Fields.

This machinery will be charged with the task of acting as petroleum advisor for all departments, including the army, and what is more important, the navy; it will have control over concessions for the development of possible oil territory within the empire. The importance of the ministry will be better understood when it is realized that a large part of the undeveloped oil territory of the world lies under British dominion, and, according to British law, the capital of every oil company operating in British territory must be not less than 60 per cent. British-owned, and all the control must be in the hands of British citizens.

The next move in the development of this policy, it is asserted, is the combination under the protection of the Government of the most important oil companies operating in British and neutral countries, if they are wholly or partly British owned. These include such companies as the Royal Dutch, the Shell and the Lord Cowdray interests.

It recently became known that the British Government was buying the holdings of British citizens in the Royal Dutch, the ownership of which was then conceded to be sixty per cent. Dutch and forty per cent. British. Accompanying these statements were equally interesting stories concerning the Shell Transport and Trading Company's securities, whose ownership was closely allied to that of the Royal Dutch.

Group Owns American Property.

The Royal Dutch-Shell group controls immense production in many lands, including many properties in the Oklahoma-Kansas-Texas, California and Wyoming fields, and has a foreign department which makes note of all that is going on in the oil world.

Interlocking directorates give to it a commanding place in such companies as the Burmah Oil Company and the Anglo-Persian Oil Company. The British Government is the largest stockholder in the last named company, while the Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Company, an important subsidiary of the Royal Dutch-Shell interests, has a selling contract with the Anglo-Persian Company, which brings all these interests close together.

It is very generally accepted in London that the British Government is not altogether satisfied with its forty per cent. interest in the Royal Dutch and would like to have a more important financial place in the corporation. This sentiment, it is said, is seconded by the most important Dutch stockholders, who feel they would enjoy added safety for their investment if the financial and military powers of the Imperial Government were back of their enterprise.

The Pearson oil interests—that is, the Lord Cowdray companies—also are perhaps the most powerful of all the British companies. Recent reports have been that the Pearson interests were desirous of getting out of the business, and well informed persons, in view of the Government's petroleum policy, look to it as a logical purchaser.

The Cowdray interests include important holdings in Mexico. They also have concessions which give to them the oil control of Trinidad and the best parts of Algeria.

Of the undeveloped territory to which the British Government is said to be looking none is more important than that which is known as the Persian field. Here the Anglo-Persian Oil Company has a concession of 500,000 square miles on which several wells have been drilled and which already has an annual profit production of 10,000 barrels.

GIRLS! HAVE WAVY, THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Save your hair! Double its beauty in a few moments—try this!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

The human race is but a contest for dollars.

To Grow Hair On Bald Heads

Specialist Gives Simple Recipe That Works Fine

Thousands of people suffer from baldness, and falling hair who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless, the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair, to its original color stopping hair from falling out, and destroying hair dro mfalling outhdrl ll stroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist: Bay Rum, 6 ounces, Lavona de Composee, 2 ounces, Menthol Crystals, one-half drachm. If you wish it perfumed add 1 drachm of your favorite perfume. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Ladies using this prescription should be careful not to get it on the face or where hair is not desired.

Manufacturers Meet June 10, 11, 12

Meeting Will be Held in King Edward Hotel—Important Questions.

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, April 9.—Dates for the annual general meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in Toronto, have been settled upon by the executive as June 10, 11 and 12, in the King Edward Hotel. President Bulman and the officers of the Association say that this year's meeting will be one of the most important in the history of the Association. Questions of tariff, adjustment of capital and labour and export questions will be discussed at considerable length.

The new crop of maple sugar will probably be made of the same ingredients.

How to Make a Real Wrinkle Remover

In these days of cleverly advertised "beautifiers" and "rejuvenators" it is hard for a woman to believe she can make a simple home remedy for the removal of wrinkles which will do her much more good than the average made preparation. There's nothing in the world so effective for erasing or preventing wrinkles, age marks, bagginess of cheeks and chin, as a simple and harmless solution made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hasel. These ingredients of course can be had at any drug store. Use the mixture daily for a while as a refreshing wash lotion. The quick and satisfactory results will surprise you. Even the first application produces very marked improvement. The wrinkles are less in evidence and the face has a firm, "solid," comfortable feeling. Soon you will look considerably less than your age.

We can exactly duplicate your lenses if you save the pieces. We refit you as exactly as if we were following the ortginal prescription. Experienced optometrists agree that person's eyes should be re-examined at least once every two years. Your focusing accommodation is very apt to be better or worse, and a change of lens-power advisable.

Guardianship of Lad With $1,000,000 Causes Court Fight

NEW YORK, April 9.—Opposing an application of Mrs. Clara C. Erickson of No. 63 Riverside Drive for her appointment as guardian of her son, William Thorne Erickson, ten years old, a student at the Peekskill Military Academdy, Frank F. Boulton, a capitalist, declared in the Surrogate's Court, that the boy's grandfather was backing the petition to gain control of young Erickson's fortune, estimated at more than $1,000,000.

When Alexander H. Erickson, father of the boy, died last October leaving an estate of $1,500,000 he appointed Mr. Boulton, his business partner, guardian of his son. Mrs. Erickson was then in a sanitarium. Her release was obtained on February 17 last through proceedings begun by her father-in-law, W. Thorne Erickson.

Mrs. Erickson was then encouraged by her father-in-law, who is seventy years old and lives at No. 220 West Fifty-ninth street, says Mr. Boulton, to have him removed as the boy's guardian. He asserted that his late partner informed him that his father never displayed any affection toward him until he began to accumulate wealth. The decedent, declares Mr. Boulton, said he was driven from home when fifteen years of age.

In his assertion that the grandfather is behind the proceedings to have the mother appointed guardian, Mr. Boulton says:

"We can picture with what satisfaction and complacency Erickson would set himself up in this handsome residence on Riverside Drive as the patriarch of the family, were he able to secure Mrs. Erickson's release from the sanitarium, and to add her income and that of the boy to that of his own wife in the maintenance of a common establishment. The boy receives the greater part of the estate, and we believe Erickson's interest is centred upon the control of the income arriving from the money rather than upon the welfare of the boy."

Surrogate Fowler, before whom the application was made, appointed Peter B. Olney referee to determine whether Mrs. Erickson is mentally competent to manage her boy's affairs.

Peterboro County Soldiers Tell Of Riots in Kinmel Camp

The Y.M.C.A. Canteen Was Demolished—Officials Got a Move On.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Crough, Bridgenorth have received the following letter from their son, Sapper J. H. Crough, who is at present in Kinmel Park Camp. The letter is interesting especially as this camp was the scene of the recent riot.

Kinmel Park Camp,
Sunday, March 9th,, 1919.

Dear Mother and Father:—Just a few lines to let you know that I'm still alive and well after the great outbreak in this camp. Enclosed you will find a few clippings from local papers that will give you some slight idea of what has happened here in the past week and with what information I give you in this letter, you will be able to form a picture of things here as I saw them.

For the past month there has been great dissatisfaction among the troops and perhaps they had some reason to be so. It appears that several of the men have been left in this camp for a long time while others come and go and while they are here they did not get much if any money with which they could enjoy life. Some of them were promised money and leave when they would come to this camp and as they got nothing only three meals a day and a place to sleep, they soon grew tired of it Any time a large number of men are left idle they are sure to get into some trouble.

The pot came to a boiling point last Wednesday evening at 9.30. In a few moments thousands of men bolted from their huts and made for the Y.M.C.A. in Camp 13, just across the road from my hut. There they broke in the windows and doors and helped themselves to the goods in the canteen. In five minutes it was a total wreck. Chairs, benches, etc. flew from side to side and through the windows. Some had revolvers, others swords and more rifles. Every place you looked you could see men running with boxes of candy, cigarettes, pop, soup, cakes, etc., which were soon broken open and relieved of their contents. Windows were mere holes in the walls and doors hung like old farm gates. This was only one drop in the bucket. As the crowd grew larger some took for the Navy and Army Canteen where there were large stores of beer, etc.As there is a canteen in each of the 20 camps, the mob soon had all they could drink; beer flowed like water. After the canteens were totally destroyed, the sergeants and officers mess came next. Here was more liquor and beer, which helped to make life more lively. The next object of loot was the Navy and Army Store-room in Camp 7. Here were thousands of dollars worth of groceries, such as jam, tea, cocoa, flour, coffee, and cigarettes and tobacco of all kinds. The safes and offices were also destroyed. As this was going on the clothing stores were broken into. Here half a million dollars worth of clothes was taken. Some of the boys had half a dozen suits of underwear, 20 pairs of socks, new overcoats, caps, shoes, pants, towels, etc.Men went into the latreens and took off their old clothes and dressed up in a complete new outfit.

It was now 6 a.m. Thursday morning and still men were carrying eats and clothes and smokes. All at once two carloads of beer were found on the track between 7 and 8 camps then the fun did start. The Red Flag showed up and the jig began.

Through the night several were put in the coop. Now the mob ordered that the persons should be let loose. Going from one camp to another they smashed the jails overpowered the armed guards and took with them the jail birds. This led to open battle between 19 and 20 camps, where there are several large trenches. It was here that 5 men were killed and twenty some odd wounded.

In town just outside the camp wall which supply the soldiers with eats and pictures and many other trinkets at hold-up prices, got their dose. The only places in the whole camp that escaped damage were the R. C. Huts, the Salvation Army Huts and the Free Church Hall. For one reason only and that is they treat and sell to the soldiers at reasonable prices.

On Friday high officials from London came here and soon made arrangements for 10,000 men to leave this camp within 10 days. Friday, Saturday and Sunday saw many pay parades.

In all it is an eye-opener. No doubt it will hurry things up a little. Of course this does not mean that I will get home much soon, as under the present arrangements my turn will not come for some months yet.

Kindly keep those clippings for me until I get home, as I would like to have them for after years. It sure is a sight to see in the huts now. We are sure living high with plenty of smokes. Of course, the supply will soon run short and then we will be down to hard tack again.

I have met several lads from the West that I knew quite well. They are all looking well and feeling good over being able to get home once more. The "flu" is still floating around here yet, several are dropping off with it each day; but I still manage to keep away from it all. Good health is sure a great thing to have. I had a letter from Joe and wife last Friday. They sent me a couple of pictures taken in Kamloops. Married life seems to agree with them.

Well, as I have a few more letters to write I will close with love to one and all,

Mrs. Vanderbilt Weds Son's Friend

NEWPORT, R. I., Mrs. Ellen French Vanderbilt one of the most prominent women of society and philanthropic workers, and first wife of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt who was lost when the Lusitania was sunk by the Germans, was married here to Lieut. Paul Fitzsimons, U.S.N., in the library of the bride's residence, Harbourview. The Rev. Stanley C Hughes, rector of Trinity Church this city, performed the ceremony.

The marriage came as a great surprise to Newport. The first intimation that it was to take place was when Mrs. Vanderbilt and Lieutenant Fitzsimons appeared at the City Hall this morning at 9 o'clock, where they obtained their marriage license. They stopped at the Red Cross headquarters on their return to Harbor view to tell the officials and workers the news, receiving the congratulations from all there assembled. The bride is Vice Chairman of the Newport Chapter of the Red Cross.

Lieutenant Fitzsimons is attached to the United States destroyer Evans, now in New York waters, to which is also attached Ensign William H. Vanderbilt, the bride's son by her former marriage, and they are close friends. He is the son of the late Medical Director, Paul Fitzsimons, U.S.N., and Mrs. Fitzsimons of Washington, D. C. He was born in Newport, and is 28 years old. His bride is ten years his senior.

Gambling Craze Grips Berlin; Roulette Played in Streets

Sidewalks Lined With Tables Edge to Edge in Certain Sections, While Mushroom Clubs Flourish in the Most Aristocratic Districts.

BERLIN, April 5.—Gambling has so increased since the armistice that the widest opportunity and license are not sufficient to satisfy the passion of the residents of Berlin, who have taken to playing games of chance, even roulette, in the open streets in certain sections of the city. The police say they are unable legally to prevent gaming clubs from operating as long as the weak membership regulations are observed. It is a fact, however, that the police cannot stop games in the public streets.

A few weeks ago it was common for the police to make eight or ten arrests daily, but this form of gambling has increased by leaps and bounds until certain streets are lined with tables edge to edge. The bets have been increased gradually in size until men and women, apparently of the poorer classes and often "workless" and drawing government support, wager twenty-five marks ($6) at a time.

The police occasionally come on the scene, whereupon the gamblers disappear only to reappear instantly when the officers have gone. The scene is enlivened frequently by bettors who after losing snatch money from the table and dash through the crowd to the walls of the cheated gamster.

Bad as is the gambling in the open streets, that in the "clubs" is declared to be far worse. Membership in the clubs is a mere formality as membership cards are pressed upon all who enter. The clubs are springing up like mushrooms even in the formerly aristocratic sections of Berlin. The police last night raided a well known hotel of the first class and discovered a club, but they were unable to disturb it because every player had a membership card, as required by law.

The fashionable west end is full of clubs, while gambling places have been opened on the Unter den Linden. The clubs are patronized by a strange mixture of wealthy and poor and the strata between. Bets on roulette run as high as $1,200.

For those who cannot patronize the expensive clubs there is always gambling in certain cafes, particularly in the west end, where the dice rattle steadily until late at night and where even roulette and baccrat are prevalent. Street gambling is not always with cash, stolen valuables of various kinds being put up as stakes.

A Rising Colt Changed Hands For a Dollar Bill

Thirty-five years ago the name of Minting was flashed around the world when he won the English Derby. His victory, however, will not be a marker to what is expected of another colt now bearing the same name, which will start in the William Penn Purse for two year old trotters at Philadelphia's Grand Circuit meeting next August. This Minting was bred at Nawheek Farm and was got by Sidney Dillon out of The Leading Lady, 2:07 by Bingen. His ownership was transferred for a dollar. It was brought about last year when Al Saunders was giving a Red Cross meeting at Belmont Park. In order to boost the gate receipts, A. B. Coxe presented the colt and each one who contributed a dollar was given a numbered ticket, a duplicate of which was dropped in a bag. When the selling stopped, E. T. Stotesbury selected one of the tickets at random and the holder of the corresponding number became the owner of Minting. It proved to be Gus Wilson of Frankfort, Pa. He was offered $200 for the youngster but refused it. Later on he formed a partnership with Herman Auth, who will look after the development and racing of Minting. That the colt has not been idle during the winter months is evidenced by the fact that he worked a mile to a high wheel cart on March 24 in 2:43 1-4. During the next four months, Minting will be trained to meet the fastest youngsters in the country and as he comes from a family with a winning habit" in colt stakes, he has a chance to thrill the race goers just as the Santa Claus colt of William Penn did at Lexington in 1892, when he won two races inside of five days from the best two year olds in training.

Poughkeepsie Early Closers.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., April 9:—There are seven early closing events on the program for the Grand Circuit meeting at Poughkeepsie, August 18 to 23, five of them being for trotters and two for pacers. The latter will appear in the 2:06 pace for $2,000 and the 2:10 pace for $3,000. The trotters are offered a 2:06 trot $2,000, 2:09 trot $2,000, 2:14 trot $3,000 while $2,000 purses are also set aside for the two and three year old trots.

Wages Case Disposed Of

In January, 1918, Messrs. Gordon, Widdifield and O'Brien took out a Writ in the County Court for D. B. Iveson against Major Charles Ackerman, contending that Ackerman owed a considerable sum for wages. Major Ackerman set up that he had from time to time paid Mr. Iveson wages and on December 15th while in Savannah with the plaintiff, sold the Canadian Trench Exhibit to Messrs. Victor and Saxby, who amongst other things agreed to pay Mr. Iveson. In the County Court yesterday Mr. C. R. Widdifield on behalf of Iveson pressed strenuously that no such bargain had been made. After hearing the examination and cross-examination of witnesses all day, His Honour Judge Huycke gave a carefully considered Judgment deciding that Mr. Iveson's claim should be dismissed without costs, Mr. S. T. Medd stating his client did not press for costs against Iveson.

The Visit Of General Williams

Arrangements have been completed for the visit to Peterboro of General Williams, commanding officer of No. 3 Military District, who will formally open the Motor Show to-night. Gen. Williams will arrive on the 5.30 G.T.R. train and will be entertained by officers of the Peterboro Health Association at dinner at the Empress. After opening the Motor Show he will be the guest of the officers of the 57th Regiment in the officers' mess of the Armouries.

General Williams will remain in Peterboro tomorrow inspecting the rifle ranges in the morning and the Armouries in the afternoon. At six o'clock in the officers' mess of the Armouries he will be pleased to meet the relatives of Peterboro soldiers and representatives of Peterboro societies.

At 7.30 o'clock tomorrow evening General Williams will inspect the band of the 57th Regiment and at 8 o'clock will visit the Great War Veterans' in their quarters on George street. It is expected that there will be a large turnout of members to meet the new officer commanding the district. Afterwards he will return to the Armouries where at 9 o'clock he would like to meet the officers of the active militia, reserve of officers, C.E.F. and R.A.F. This meeting will take place in the officers' mess at the Armouries.

WOMAN WITH CLOTHES AFIRE RUNS BLOCK, A LIVING TORCH

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Frances Torres, twenty-two years old, wife of George Torres, of No. 88 Adams street, Brooklyn, was frightfully burned in her home here. She was preparing supper for herself and husband when her clothing caught fire. She ran screaming from the room and down the stairs to the street.

A living torch, the woman ran nearly a block before Policeman Gertiser, of the Poplar street station, stripping himself of his coat, threw it about here, extinguishing the flames. She had been badly burned about the head, face and body, and was removed to the Brooklyn hospital.

WINNIPEG REEKING WITH HOME-MADE LIQUOR.

WINNIPEG, April 8.—"Winnipeg is literally reeking with home-made liquor. We are trying to keep things within reason, but there are so many stills in the city the situation is beyond control," T. H. Verner, Customs Collector for the Inland Revenue Department, stated in Police Court. "The evil is very strong and growing stronger daily," he said.

P. Stokon, found guilty of having a still in his home, was fined $300 and costs. Two others were fined $200 each for having liquor in their possession.

POSTMAN DOWNER HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Mr. G. W. Downer, a city postman residing on Morrow street, while crossing George street on a bicycle to go west on Simcoe street, this afternoon at 2:45 was run down by a touring car driven by Mr. John Gillespie of this city. Mr. Downer escaped unhurt but the bicycle was dragged along under the car for some distance before it could be stopped. Both wheels of the machine are badly bent and mud guards broken. Mr. Downer left the heel of his right boot on the pavement. Some of the spectators attribute Postman Downer's ill-luck to the fact that his number is thirteen.

Mrs. Dutton, Toronto, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Harry Huffman, 509 King street.

QUEBEC WILL VOTF ON TEMPERANCE ISSUE TO-MORROW

Should the Affirmative Win, Sale of Beer and Other Malt Liquors Will Be Allowed.

MONTREAL, Que., April 9. — To-morrow the people of the Province of Quebec will vote on the question of whether this area will be "dry" or "wet."

The ballots provide for the voter to answer "yes" or "no" to the following questions:

"Is it your opinion that the sale of light beer, cider and wines, as defined by law, should be allowed."

If the affirmative should win, the sale would be allowed of beer and other malt liquors, containing not more than 2.51 per cent. alcohol, weight measure and cider and wine containing not more than 6.94 per cent. of alcohol, weight measure.

Should the negative win, only 2 1-2 per cent. beer will be allowed and this will also be under license. Under the present license law, which remains in force no matter which way the referendum goes, the bars must all disappear on May first. If the beer and wine advocates win, there will be drinking saloons, but they will have to serve their drinks from tables, and no display of liquor either inside or in the windows of any licensed place will be permitted. Hon. W. G. Mitchell, provincial treasurer, who sponsored the new license law before the Legislature, states that to-morrow's referendum will not affect municipalities which at present are under local option "dry" regulations. Wherever prohibition now exists, it cannot be repealed until such steps are taken as are now necessary under either Federal or Provincial law.

Licenses Issued.

The referendum only affects the "wet" districts. If the popular vote should be against the beer and wine, then the whole province would become "dry," and there cannot be any question of repealing the prohibition laws.

There were 250 licenses issued last year in Montreal for the sale of liquor, and the same number of licenses will be issued this May by the license commissioners if the referendum is in favour of beer and wine. The commissioners would also issue the same number of grocers' licenses as for the present year. The referendum will be run on the same lines as an ordinary Provincial election. There will be 4,000 polling places and the hours of voting will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daylight time. Workers both for and against the measure have been very active. Huge advertisements have appeared in the daily newspapers, and much literature has been distributed.

Confidence is expressed by both factions in the result, but the probability is that the "wets" will win.

Aldermen Looked With Suspicion On Application

Applicant Had a Reference From Mr. J. J. Duffus.

Mr. L. R. Knight appeared before the Lindsay Council on behalf of Mr. Annis, of Peterborough, who had decided to take over the business of Mr. John Andros. The applicant brought a reference from ex-Mayor Duffus, of Peterborough. If he could not get a license for five tables he would not consider buying it.

The request was referred to the Police committee.

Ald. O'Reilly said there were town men whom he knew, who would buy the business if it could be bought right. He did not believe in giving a license to a man whom they did not know.

Ald. Broom—What nationality are you?

Mr. Annis—I am a Greek.

Ald. O'Reilly said there were town country, you say, two years, and only required to bring $25 with you. You had $50 besides and yet you are able to pay $3,000 for this business after only being in business eighteen months. Mr. Annis said his brother and himself conducted a shoe shine business in Peterborough. He had no connection with the Andros firm or Yeates of Peterborough.— Lindsay Post.

Reception Will Be Held

General Williams to Meet Many Citizens During His Visit to Peterboro.

Lieut.-Col. Mills and officers of the 57th Regiment have invited all officers of the active and reserve militia, and of the C. E. F. and R. A. F. to meet General Williams at the mess rooms of the 57th Regiment at 9 o'clock Thursday evening, April 10th Dress service or mufti.

On Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the officers' mess, the General will be pleased to meet the relatives of all who have had men overseas, specially those who have been bereaved, also those who have been actively engaged in patriotic work and citizens generally. Entrance the officers' door, Murray street.

To Discuss Good Roads

Farmer's Club Will Debate Question Thoroughly.

The Peterboro Farmers' Club have set the question of Good Roads for discussion at their next regular meeting on Monday night next, at 8 o'clock (standard time in their meeting room (Sons of England Hall Hunter street). The Deputy Minister of Highways, Mr. W. A. Maclean and Mr. Anderson, Reeve of Otonabee, Mr. J. McIntosh, Reeve of Monaghan will be present. Mr. E. Elliott, County Clerk has also been asked to be present as well as the reeves of Smith and Douro. With such an array of authorities it is expected that the subjects will be thoroughly discussed in its several bearings.

Made All the Hills On High Gear

At the Duffus Garage it was learned that Mr. Bert Duffus drove a brand new Dodge Brothers car yesterday from Toronto to Peterboro to be in time for the Motor Show today. Notwithstanding the rain and terrible conditions of the roads this car made all the hills on high gear.

Miss Isobel McBeth, London, is visiting Miss Collins, 194 McDonnel street.

"MICKEY"

"When an actress loses her identity, so that she is always thought of as the character portrayed rather than her own self, it's hard sometimes for her to discover whether she is exactly pleased or not." Mabel Normand, who is featured in "Mickey," said to a reporter during a recent interview.

She seemed to complain, at the same time appreciate, that everyone who seen her as "Mickey" thought of her as only "dear little Mickey" which was naturally absorbing "Mabel Normand"—just as Maude Adams is inseparable from Peter Pan. Because the story of "Mickey" is so vivid and appealing, and the characters are so real and human, one will always remember the people in this play.

"Mickey" is a story of Universal appeal. It is a human, tender narrative that in the telling is somewhere between laughter and pathos. There are charming bits of comedy and there are places where the story trembles very closely to the brink of tears. Mickey is a quaint little mountain girl, and this lovable, mischievous child, with her little scuffed-over shoes and her bulldog and lop-eared burro, is a wonderfully vivid characterization. The action of the play carries her finally into the city and into new complications whose dramatic contrast is telling and strong.

This is not a drama of flying pastry, or seven buckets of blood. "Mickey" is a production of the ordinary run of picture plays, and will be shown at the Opera House on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Russian Was Remanded Until April 16th

"If I get word from Hamilton, Toronto or Buffalo to rise up or revolt I will be one of the first and some day my money will go to buy a revolver and purchase dynamite and make bombs with which to rob the banks and kill the police," etc., are the words alleged by the police to have been spoken on March 28th by Kosma Svestelhekoff, a German-Russian, residing on McDonnell St., who appeared in police court this morning on a charge of using seditious language. It is stated that Svestelhekoff is a machinist by trade. Mr. J. O'Brien appeared for the defence and declined to either elect or plead on the charge.

The Crown asked for a remand until April 16th. In the meantime Col. Sir Percy Sherwood, Commissioner of Dominion Police, will be communicated with to see if the alleged Bolshevik's antecedents can be obtained.

Svestelhekoff's wife, said to be of Austrian birth, was in police court this morning with her two small children.

The information regarding the words of Kosma was given to the police by a fellow Russian who is a community worker in Canada among his fellow countrymen for the advancement of the "Canada First" slogan. Svestelhekoff is said to have resented his fellow countryman's advice to Canadianize himself and then spoke in favour of the Bolshevik programme of Lenine and Trotsky.

Mr. Fred Noyes Home On Visit

Has Just Returned From France.

Mr. Fred C. Noyes, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Noyes, 35 Concession street, is home visiting his parents, just having been discharged from overseas service. He enlisted with the New York Federal Guards in 1918 and saw service in the Verdun sector in France. Previous to fighting the Germans he had enlisted with the same regiment that was sent to the Mexican border to quell disturbances there. Mr. Noyes left Peterboro about 16 years ago and now resides in Rochester, N.Y. He will be here until Friday.

Woolworth Store Closed To-morrow

Founder of Chain Stores Was Known as World's Largest Retail Merchant.

In memory of the late Frank W. Woolworth, President of the F. W. Woolworth Company, 5, 10 and 15c. stores, the local store will be closed all day to-morrow. In a recent issue of Leslie's Weekly Mr. Woolworth is described as the world's largest retail merchant. He started out a self-confessed hayseed with a capital of $50 and in 1916 his customers exceeded 700,000,00, with a capital of $65,000,000. He said that his ambition was to open a store in every civilized town throughout the world. He owned a store in every town in the United States over 8,000 population, besides hundreds of stores in Canada and Great Britain.

Clip Your Horse

—WITH A—

Stewart No. 1 Ball Bearing Horse-Clipping Machine

So reasonable in price that even the man owning only ONE horse can well afford to buy one. It may easily save several times its cost the first season it is used

SAYS THE HORSE REVIEW:

'Clipping a horse in the Spring is now conceded by all the leading veterinaries to be as essential to his well-being as shoeing him or giving him a comfortable bed to lie on. A clipped horse dries out rapidly after a hard day's work, rests comfortably and is refreshed for work the following day. An unclipped horse is liable to catch the heaves, pneumonia and all sorts of colds, rheumatism, etc. This is especially so when his hair is long and he is "soft." If worked hard he will perspire freely and the moisture will be held by his long hair, and the food that should go to nourish him will be used to replenish the heat that is constantly taken from his body by the mass of cold, wet hair. If clipped the perspiration will evaporate almost as soon as secreted, and when put in the stable he rests comfortably and his food does him good.

COWS MUST BE CLIPPED TOO

Demand for clean milk now being made by shippers, by health departments of cities, and by an awakened consuming public, makes it necessary that every milch-cow should be clipped around udder and flanks about once a month. The Stewart No. 1 is exactly suited to this work, as well as to horse-clipping.

We carry the Sheep-Shearing Attachment for the Stewart, Converting it into a sheep-shearing machine

Severe Sentence For a Defaulter

(Special to The Examiner.)

GUELPH, April 9.— The most severe penalty given here since the Military Service Act cases were commenced some weeks ago, was imposed this morning by Magistrate Watt, when he sentenced Emil Rumig, of Bamberg, to two years less one day in Burwash Reformatory. Rumig, although a class one man, refused to register when ordered to do so. The Magistrate stated there was no provision in the recent order-in-council for a fine.

PETERBOROUGH THIN PEOPLE

Bitro-Phosphate should give you a small, steady increase of firm, healthy flesh each day. It supplies an essential substance to the brain and nerves in the active form in which it normally occurs in the living cells of the body. Bitro-Phosphate replaces nerve waste and creates new strength and energy. Sold by McDermid & Jury in Peterborouhg, and all good druggist, under definite guarantee of results or money back.

A certain surgeon, who was very young and rather shy, was invited to dinner by a lady, who was at least fifty, but frivolous enough for twenty. She imagined herself very clever when making rude remarks, so during dinner she asked the young surgeon to carve a fowl, and, not having done so before, he failed lamentably. Instead of trying to cover his confusion, the hostess called attention to it pointedly by looking down the table and saying loudly:

"Well, you may be a very clever surgeon, but if I wanted a leg off I should not come to you to do it."

"No, madam," he replied politely, "but then, you see, you are not a chicken."

Man Fights Death As He Is Dragged To Electric Chair

Furiously Tugging at Straps, Although Handcuffed, Dogged Italian Struggles Up to Last Second.

OSSINING, N.Y., April 10.—Vainly trying to wrench off the handcuffs that held him fast, and ready again to battle with his keepers as he had done only the other day, Giovanni Ferraro was literally dragged to the electric chair. Not until the electric current had actually rendered him lifeless did Ferraro give up his fight against his doom. So determined was he that even after he was strapped in the chair the keeper handcuffed him.

The sensation of the straps against his arms and the electrodes against his bared leg and skull, instead of making him realize the hopelessness of his plight, only aroused him to greater effort. He struggled, tugged and squirmed at his bonds, making desperate efforts to free himself. The priest's voice, reciting the litany of the dying, had no effect on the doomed man. He was still writhing, and four keepers were near at hand to shoot him if necessary, when the mighty electric current did its work.

Record For Death Chamber.

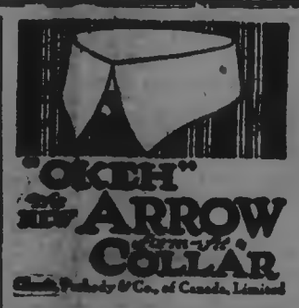
Never had Sing Sing prison witnessed such an electrocution. Never had a doomed man made such a fight for life. Even after the first shock had [illegible] of life, and it was considered necessary to administer three extra shocks before Ferraro was finally pronounced lifeless.

Ferraro was executed for the murder of William Dunbar, a railroad boss, at Farmersville, N. Y. The sentence was carried out with unusual precautions to prevent the condemned man from an outburst like that of the other day, when he attacked the keepers with a knife.

Ferraro went to the chair handcuffed and guards close around him. Never in the history of the death house were such precautions taken with a prisoner.

Keepers understood Ferraro to say, when he had been overpowered after attacking Guards O'Toole, McCarthy and Thacker with a knife that he would not die in the electric chair.

Then Ferraro was placed in the old death house, a separate room from the new condemned chamber



From there he could be taken to execution without disturbing the other sixteen doomed men.

Only Fluid Foods.

His wrists were fastened and two keepers were set to watch him continually. Only fluid foods were given him, for fear he might deliberately choke himself. No visitors were allowed the other condemned men.

Principal Keeper Martin Dooley was assigned to conduct Ferraro from the cell to the chair. He had four more keepers than is usual on the death march.

In the last hours before the execution Father William Cashin, the prison chaplain, prayed with Ferraro.

The convict's outbreak the other day came upon the receipt of the news that Governor Smith had commuted the sentence of another man in the death house and refused Ferraro's plea. With a knife he slashed Keeper O'Toole, who let him out for exercise. A second keeper had a finger bitten off. It was ten minutes before keepers could choke Ferraro into submission.

FOUND DEAD IN BED

John Colville Retired as Usual on Saturday—Died During the Night.

John Colville, an employee of the Mathews Gravity Carrier Company, was found dead in bed in his apartments over Mr. Charles Scott's boot and shoe repair shop on John street. Mr. Colville complained Saturday of feeling unwell but remained at duty and nothing serious was thought of. When he did not come into work, it was thought he had gone to Toronto over the week end. Tuesday morning he was still absent and when a letter was received in the Company's mail addressed to Mr. Colville from his daughter, in Toronto, an investigation was commenced at once. The doors of the apartments were locked but entrance was gained by the use of a skeleton key and Mr. Colville was found in bed, life being extinct. It is supposed that Mr. Colville died Saturday night or early Sunday morning, as the meat and other provisions for Sunday's dinner were all on the table. His parcel of laundry was on the table in his bedroom not untied.—Port Hope Guide.

IN DOUBT

A well-known judge dined recently at a noted hotel, where the man who takes care of the hats is celebrated for his memory about the ownership of headgear.

"How do you know that is my hat?" the judge asked as his silk hat was presented to him.

"I don't know it, sir," said the man.

"Then why ro you give it to me?" insisted the bewildered judge.

"Because you gave it to me sir," replied the man, without moving a muscle of his face.

MRS. BALFAME

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON

He laughed unmusically. "I am not surprised you ask that question—you, who know no more of love than if you had been a castaway on a desert island since the age of ten. Never mind. I've planted a seed. It will sprout. Think and think again. You owe me that much—and yourself. I know that six months hence you will have divorced Dave Balfame, and that you will marry me as soon as the law allows."

"Never! Never!" She was laughing now, but with all the gay coquetry of youth, not merely the eidola of her own.

They had arrived at the gate of the Balfame Place, which faced the avenue and a large street lamp. She put the gate between them with a quicker movement than she commonly indulged in and held out her hand.

"No more nonsense! If I were young and free—who knows? But—but forty-two!" She choked but brought it out. "Now go home and think over all the nice girls you know and select one quickly. I will make the wedding cake."

"Did you suppose I didn't know your age? This is Elsinore, and its inhabitants are five thousand. When you and I were born—of respectably eminent parentage—all Brabant County numbered few more."

He made no attempt to open the gate; but he raised her hand to his lips. Even in this rare moment he was conscious of a regret that it was such a large hand, and his head jerked abruptly as he flung out the recreant thought.

"I never shall change," he said. "And you are to think and think. Now go. I'll watch until you are indoors."

"Good night," she ran up the path, wondering if her tall slight figure looked as willowy as it felt. The mirror had often surprised her with the information that she looked quite different from the image in her mind. She also wondered with, some humor, why no one ever had discovered her apparently obvious charms before.

When she was in her bedroom and electricity replaced the mellow rays of street lamps shining through soft and whispering leaves, Mrs. Balfame forgot Dwight Rush and all men save her husband.

She took the vial from her bag and stared at it. In a moment a frown drew her serene brows together, the sweet, shallow, large grey eyes, so consistently admired by her own sex, at least, darkened with displeasure. She was a bungler after all. How was the stuff to be administered? She racked her memory, but the casual explanation of Dr. Anna, uttered at least two years ago, had left not an echo. A drop in his eggs or coffee might be too little; more, and he might detect the foreign quantity.

TUESDAY NIGHT'S STORY

She removed the cork and sniffed. It was odourless, but it was tasteless.

Obviously there was no immediate way of ascertaining save by experiment on Mr. Balfame. And even if it were tasteless, it might cook his blood, congest his face, burst his veins—she recalled snatches of Dr. Anna's dissertations upon "interesting cases." On the other hand, one drop might make him violently ill; the suspicions of any doctor might be aroused.

She must walk warily. Murder was one of the fine arts. Those that cultivated it and failed followed the victim or spent the rest of their lives within prison walls. Thousands, it was estimated, walked the earth unsuspected, unapprehensive, serene and content—contemptuous of failures and bunglers, as are the masters in any art. Mrs. Balfame was proudly aware that her role in life was success.

There was nothing to do but wait. She must have another cosy evening with her scientific friend and draw her on to talk of the poison. Ah! that made another precaution imperative.

She went to the cupboard in the bathroom, rinsed a small bottle, transferred the precious colorless fluid, refilled the vial with water and returned it to her bag. To-morrow or next day she would slip into Dr. Anna's house and restore it to its hiding place. The poison she secreted on the top shelf of the bathroom cupboard.

Reluctantly, for she was a prompt and methodical woman, she resigned herself to the prospect of David Balfame's prolonged sojourn upon the planet he had graced so ill. She went to bed, shrinking into the farther corner, but falling asleep immediately. Then her hands having faltered, Fate borrowed the shuttle.

CHAPTER III

A fortnight passed before Mrs. Balfame found the opportunity for a chat with Dr. Anna. On Saturday afternoon it was the pleasant custom of the flower of Elsinore to repair to the Country Club, a building of the bungalow type, with wide verandas, a large central hall, several smaller rooms for those that preferred cards to dancing, a secluded bar, a tennis court—flooded in winter for skating—and a golf links. It was charmingly situated about four miles from the town with the woods behind and a glimpse of the grey Atlantic from the higher knolls.

The young unmarried set that danced at the Club or in the larger of the home parlours every night, would have monopolised the central hall of the bungalow on Saturdays as well had it not been for the sweet but firm resistance of Mrs. Balfame. Lacking in a proper sex vanity she might be, but she was far too proud and just to permit her own generation to be obliterated by mere youth. Having no children of her own, it shocked her fine sense of fitness of things to watch the subservience of parents and the selfishness of offspring. One of the most notable results of her quiet determination was that she and her friends enjoyed every privilege of the Country Club when the mood was on them and that a goodly number of the men of their own generation did not confine their attentions exclusively to the bar, but came out and danced with their neighbors' wives. The young people sniffed, but as Mrs. Balfame had founded the Country Club, and they were all helpless under her inflexible will and skillful manipulation they never dreamed of rebellion.

During the fortnight Mrs. Balfame had cunningly replaced the vial, the indifferent Cassie leaving the sitting-room at her disposal while she wrote a note reminding Dr. Anna of the promised list of war books, adding playfully that she had no time to waste in a busy doctor's waiting-room. In truth Dr. Anna was a difficult person to see at this time. There was an epidemic of typhoid in the county, and much illness among children.

However, on the third Saturday after the interrupted supper, as Mrs. Balfame was motoring out to the Club with her friend, Mrs. Battle, wife of the President of the Bank of Elsinore, she saw Dr. Anna driving her little runabout down the branching road. With a graceful excuse she deserted her hostess, sprang into the humbler machine and gaily ordered her friend to turn and drive to the Club.

"You take a rest this afternoon," she said peremptorily. "Otherwise you will be a wreck when your patients need you most. You look just about fagged out. And I want a little of your society. I've been thinking of taking to a sick bed to get it."

Dr. Anna looked at her brilliant friend with adoration. She was worth one hundred per cent. more than this companion of her forty years, but she never would know it. She regarded Enid Balfame as one of the superwomen of Earth, astray in the little world of Elsinore. Even when Mrs. Balfame had done her own work she had managed to look rare and lovely. Her hair was neatly arranged for the day before descent to the lower regions, and her pretty print frock was half covered by a white apron as immaculate as her round uncovered arms.

And since the leader of Elsinore had "learned things" she was of an elegance whose indifferences from those of women born to grace a loftier sphere were merely subtle. Her fine brown hair, waved in New York, and coiled on the nape of her long neck, displayed her profile to the best possible advantage; like all women's women she set great store by her profile. Whenever possible it was framed in a large hat with a rolling brim and drooping feathers. Her severely tailored frocks made her look aloof and stately on the streets (and in the trains between Elsinore and New York); and her trim white shirt waists and duck skirts, or "one piece suits" for colder weather, gave her a sweet feminine appeal in the house. At evening entertainments she invariably wore black, cut chastely about the neck and draped with a floating scarf.

Let us hope it is the latter, and wish them all abundant happiness as they go through life sharing each other's joys and sorrows.—Kincardine Review.

Those "Boughten Buttons."

Writing of the poet Whittier, Mrs. James T. Fields says that "one of the poet's most entertaining reminiscences of his boyhood was the story of his first visit to Boston. William Greene's mother was an interesting woman of strong, independent, character and wide interests, wanted to the life of cities, and one of the first, in spite of his boyish shyness to appreciate her young relative. Her kind eagerness, during one of her occasional visits to the Whittiers, that Greenleaf should come to see her when he came to Boston, fell in with his own dreams, and a high desire to see the sights of the great town.

"One can easily imagine how this imagination must have glorified the natural expectations of a country boy, and when the time arrived, how the whole household lent itself to furthering so great an expedition. He was not only to have a new suit of clothes, but they were, for the first time, to be trimmed with 'boughten buttons,' to the lad's complete satisfaction, his mind being fixed on those as marking the difference between town and country fashions."

Manitoba's Mixed Farming King

For thirty years "S. Larcombe, of Birtle" has been a name growing steadily more familiar to the public, until to-day it is known and recognized all over Canada and in many states of the Union to the south as that of a man who has labored unceasingly to promote diversified agriculture in the Canadian West. Larcombe is 68 years young, and for 59 of those years he has worked on the land and worked hard. To-day he is hale and hearty, and loves a joke, tells a capital story, but in a moment can turn from gay to grave, and has a vision of what should be done agriculturally in this country, a vision that the younger men might well try to catch.

Like so many who have wrought well for western Canada he has had little or no tangible recognition by governments of his work. Occasionally he indulges in a little mild sarcasm over things as they are, as for example the other day when congratulated on winning the Bankers' Special of $500 in gold he remarked with a merry twinkle "Oh yes I have the glory and the bankers have the gold. Didn't you see that the placing had to be won twice before the money is paid over?" but the writer said "you have won twice the grand championship for wheat." "Oh, yes," replied Mr. Larcombe, "but banks are only retroactive in collections, not in payments, and my first win was before this prize was offered, but perhaps I will win next year though every year there are more expert wheat growers in Canada, and the prize is open to the whole Dominion, but banks like to play safe, they get the glory of offering $500. I get the glory of winning [illegible] sweepstakes and there's a long chance I will [illegible] and he went on his way with a gay laugh.

Just a bare recital of his life work makes fascinating reading. Born at the little village of Musbury, near Axminister, in bonnie Devon, in 1851, he went to work on a farm when he was nine years old and worked there until he was twenty-one, when he moved to Croydon, in Surrey, and specialized in market gardening for ten years. In 1880 the call of the new land became insistent and though by this time he had given seven hostages to fortune and had a wife and five children, he pulled up stakes, and came to Canada, landing in Winnipeg in May of that year, and after a few days rest started on what was in those days the old Manitoba North Western, for Birtle.

He did not make the mistake so common among his countrymen of thinking because he had farmed in England, there was nothing to learn in Canada, but hired out for a year with another farmer. The following year he rented a farm three miles from Birtle, and started on his own account, and that very year joined the Birtle Agricultural Society. At a time when everyone was talking wheat, and wheat and more wheat, he made his first exhibits not of grains but of vegetables. The first time he got three prizes. In ten years his list of entries numbered 40 and he had thirty-seven prizes from the Birtle society, and 94 prizes from four other local shows at which he exhibited. All these years he was growing grain, and feeling his way as to varieties and strains, but confined his exhibiting to vegetables and roots almost entirely.

In the years from 1905 to 1908 inclusive he grew roots and vegetables and grain for the C. P. R. for exhibition purposes for Eastern Canada, and personally superintended these displays at the exhibitions at Ottawa, Toronto and London, Ont., and Sherbrooke, Quebec. In 1906 he grew vegetables and such vine products as citrons, cucumbers, pumpkins, squash, and marrows for the Dominion Government, and shipped about three tons to London, Eng., for display in the Immigration Offices. In 1913, he won the gold medal at the Winnipeg Land and Apple Show for the best general exhibit of [illegible] grains. In 1917 he [illegible] exhibit to Provo, Ill. [illegible] World Soils Products exhibition and captured no less than [illegible] prizes among them the coveted grand sweepstakes for wheat, [illegible] competition open to the world.

In 1918, he again showed at the World Soils Products exhibition at Kansas, and won the sweepstakes for the best individual farmer's exhibit, and sweepstakes for wheat in the Dry Farming section.

DOWNEYVILLE CORRESPONDENCE

DOWNEYVILLE, April 9. — Miss Ida Murray, who is attending school in Lindsay, was a week end guest here.

The Misses Madge, Ruth and Gladys Gilliece, of Buffalo, N.Y., are guests of Mrs. T. J. Morrisey.

Mr. Joseph Meehan and daughter, Miss Kathleen, of Lindsay, were here to attend the funeral of the late Patrick Gilliece.

Mrs. Patrick Gilliece of Lindsay, is visiting friends in the community.

A number of delegates to the Farmers' Club attended the meeting held in the Opera House at Lindsay on Saturday.

Funeral.

The remains of Mr. Patrick Gilliece, who died at St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, were taken to the home of his daughter, Mrs. T. J. Morrisey. His funeral took place from St. Luke's church. He leaves to mourn his loss four sons and four daughters.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

The Spider's Web.

One of the simplest of nature's barometers is a spider's web. When there is a prospect of wind or rain the spider shortens the filaments by which its web is sustained and leaves it in this state as long as the weather is variable. If it elongates its threads it is a sign of fine, calm weather, the duration of which may be judged by the length to which the threads are let out. If the spider remains inactive it is a sign of rain; if it keeps at work during rain the downpour will not last long, and will be followed by fine weather, says an exchange. Observation has taught that the spider makes changes in its web every 24 hours, and that if such changes are made in the evening just before sunset the night will be clear and beautiful.

Eyes Weak?

If your eyes are weak and worn-strained; your vision blurred, if you find it difficult to read and must wear glasses, go to your druggist and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one in a fourth of a glass of water and bathe the eyes two to four times a day. Stronger eyes, clearer vision, and sweet relief will make you tell your friends about Bon-Opto.

BRITISH GREAT SEAL

STRANGE ADVENTURES OF THIS EMBLEM OF SOVEREIGNTY.

Fished From the Bottom of the River Thames, Buried in a Garden, Used as a Frying Pan and Broken to Pieces in the House of Lords.

It seems almost ludicrously impossible that the great seal of England should have ever been made to serve the humble purpose of a frying pan; and yet this is only one of many equally strange episodes in the romantic story of the seal which is the "specific emblem of British sovereignty."

Lord Chancellor Eldon was so fearful that the seal would be lost or stolen while in his custody that he never went to sleep without first satisfying himself that it was safe in his bedroom. One night—it was in the year 1812—he was roused from his slumbers by cries of "Fire!" Jumping out of bed he snatched up the great seal and, rushing into the garden, buried it deep in the middle of a flower bed. His house might be burned to the ground, but at least he would not prove unworthy of the great trust which had been reposed in him.

Next morning, however—so exciting had been the experiences of the night—he had completely forgotten in what part of the garden the emblem of sovereignty had been hidden, and it was only after his entire household had hunted for hours that it was at last run to earth. "You never saw anything so ridiculous," he wrote later, "as seeing the whole family down the walks dibbling with bits of sticks until we found it."

Once at least the great seal has been at the bottom of the Thames and would be there today but for a lucky accident. It was in 1688, when the second James was fleeing from England and the Prince of Orange to France, in company with Sir Edward Hales. He had intended to take the great seal with him, but as he was being rowed from Lambeth to Vauxhall, where horses were awaiting him, another and better idea occurred to him. He would fling the seal into the river, and that would place it once for all out of reach of his enemy. So overboard the seal went, and for some weeks it lay there until by a curious chance it was picked up in a fisherman's net and restored to the proper custodians.

The ludicrous frying pan adventure befell it when in the custody of Lord Brougham. The chancellor had gone to Scotland for a short holiday—seeing that he could not take the seal on the Rhine trip he longed for without putting it in commission at great cost to himself—and he was a guest of the dowager Duchess of Bedford at Rothiemurchus, where he kept his precious charge in his bedroom. One day the young ladies of the house party took the seal from the bedroom and hid it. Brougham was desperate when he discovered his loss and did not recover his peace of mind until the pretty thieves promised to lend him to it if he would consent to be blindfolded.

With his eyes bandaged he was conducted to the drawing room, and there he discovered the seal hidden in a tea chest. So overjoyed was he at its recovery that he consented to the young ladies' suggestion that they should adjourn to the kitchen and celebrate the joyous event by making pancakes in the seal, and thus, amid much laughter, the greatest emblem of sovereignty in the whole world was actually used as a pan in which to fry pancakes. The seal, it should perhaps be mentioned, consists of two silver disks hinged together, so that when they are closed they form a mold, into which the wax, green, red or yellow, as the case may be, is poured. Thus it would make not at all a bad substitute for the common or kitchen frying pan.

Many a time has the great seal been taken to the house of lords and broken to pieces at the bar by the hammer of a sturdy blacksmith, amid the frantic cheering of onlooking members. This was the fate of the seal which fell into the hands of the parliamentary army on the capitulation of Oxford in 1646. Three years later the old parliamentary seal, which represented Charles enthroned on one side and riding on horseback on the other, was similarly destroyed to make way for the new seal with its view of the house of commons in place of the deposed sovereign. Richard Cromwell's seal was broken by the hammer in 1659, and in the following year the great seal of the commonwealth itself was destroyed in the same way.

Once the seal was lost, by Charles II. in his flight from the fatal field of Worcester, and once it was stolen by burglars from Lord Thurlow's house in Great Ormond street, but it was replaced by a replica in the wonderfully short time of thirty-six hours. The seal that was in use when George IV. died was divided between Lord Lyndhurst and Lord Brougham. King William IV. presenting one side to each chancellor, mounted in a magnificent salver, and a similar present was made in later years to Lords Chelmsford and Campbell and to Lords Selborne and Cairns. Of the handsome satchels or purses in which the seal is supposed to be kept—exquisite specimens of art needlework in white and gold—so many fell to the lot of Lord Thurlow as perquisites that his good lady was able to make several sumptuous counterpanes and bed hangings from them.

Fined for Throwing Kisses.

Three young men were fined $10 each in Worcester, Mass., for disturbing the peace, on complaint of the management of a carpet factory that, by throwing kisses to the girls employed in the mills, they distracted the attention of the girls from their work, so that they fell short of 100 per cent efficiency.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

When Baby Cries.

A baby may cry because it is hungry—and frequently it does—but it has other causes of complaint. Therefore when baby cries—

Look for some cause besides hunger, especially if it has just been fed. Don't stuff a nipple in its mouth and let it go at that.

Perhaps it is tired of lying in one position so long. Turn it over.

Quite likely it is thirsty. Give it a drink of cooled boiled water—no ice in it.

Perchance its clothes are uncomfortably tight, or a pin may be sticking it. Correct this.

It may be complaining about being too warm. Make it comfortable by removing all unnecessary clothing.

Perhaps it is tired of being fondled and wants to be let alone. Let it sleep all it will—always alone. Don't handle the baby more than is actually necessary. Cut out the "upsie-daisy" and "trot-trot to Boston" business.

Maybe it is objecting to the quality of the air of the room. Give it lots of fresh air. Let it sleep outdoors as much as possible.

HAD SEVERE COLD

AND TICKLING SENSATION IN THE THROAT.

This trouble is most distressing, and is caused from a cold that has settled in the throat.

How many people have lost a good night's sleep by that nasty, tickling, irritating sensation in the throat?

The dry, hard cough keeps you awake, and when you get up in the morning you feel as if you had had no rest at all.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which is composed of the most soothing and healing expectorant herbs and barks, combined with the lung healing virtues of the world-famous Norway pine tree, will give almost instant relief in all cases of this nature.

Mrs. G. C. Routley, Bright, Ont., writes: — "I take great pleasure in writing you of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

For several weeks I was troubled with a severe cold, and a tickling in the throat. I tried numerous remedies, but found no relief until I used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I had heard so much about, and on taking one bottle got instant relief. I highly recommend it to those who need a quick cure."

So great has been the success of "Dr. Wood's" in curing coughs, colds, bronchitis, etc., it is only natural that many imitations have been placed on the market. The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LEGAL PRESCRIPTION FOR DRUG ADDICTS DEFINED

NEW ORLEANS.— Judges of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in affirming the decision of the Federal District Court of El Paso, held that physicians cannot prescribe legally narcotics in any form for drug addicts unless they do so in the course of a treatment looking to a cure. Otherwise, according to the court's ruling, there is a violation of the Harrison Anti-Narcotic act.

MRS. HART GETS SEPARATION, $175 A MONTH, USE OF HOME.

NEW YORK.—The decree of separation sought by Mrs. Katie Wolf Hart, nineteen, against James Hervey Hart, eighty-seven, was awarded to her by Justice Russell Benedict in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn.

Alimony of $175 a month was allowed her and also the use of the house at No. 837 Munroe Street for her own residence. It was to this house, which is owned by the aged bridegroom, that he took his bride on their return from the honeymoon at Lakewood and Atlantic City. If Mr. Hart declines to accept the arrangement with respect to the house Justice Benedict directed that Mrs. Hart receive an additional $75 monthly.

Adelina Patti the Songbird

ANNOUNCEMENT of the illness of Adelina Patti falls upon the ear of this generation like news about the health of Sarah Siddons. Patti seems to belong to another age. It is not that she is so old, for she is not yet eighty, but that her fame has extended over so many years. For sixty years her name has been a household word. Many can remember the time when they thought that Queen Victoria and Patti were the two greatest women in the world, and P. T. Barnum and John L. Sullivan the greatest men. It is difficult if not impossible for even musical critics to say who was the greatest singer in the nineteenth century and to compare Patti, Lind, Sembrich and Schalchi with singers like Galli Curci. The vocal artist of one generation, unlike the graphic artist, cannot be compared with the vocal artist of another day. It may be that since the invention of the phonograph this will be possible in the future, but despite the difficulty of forming a proper judgment there are living hundreds of thousands of people, perhaps millions, who will insist that Patti was the greatest singer of the nineteenth or any other century, either in the past or in the future.

Her great gifts appear to have been due much more to heredity than to training, for her mother Caterina Barili was a famous singer of the old Italian school, and her father, Salvatore Patti, a tenor of note. Adelina was born in Madrid and was brought by her parents to the United States when she was a mere infant. For some little time the parents sang in grand opera and then one day the impressario failed or absconded and they were reduced to want. They pawned, one by one, their valuables, and seemed on the point of absolute destitution when the thought occurred to them of producing their young daughter, aged seven. The first concert was a success, and the child was hailed as an infant prodigy. She sang several times and helped restore the fallen fortunes of the family.

Patti owed much of her success to Maurice Strakosch, her teacher, who perceived that if she continued to sing as a child it would ruin her voice in later years, and who also saw that she had the opportunity of becoming one of the world's greatest singers. He permitted her to sing only occasionally until she was seventeen, when she was formally introduced to music-lovers in New York. She created an instant sensation, and her master desired to take her on a tour through Mexico for which tempting offers had been made, but when she learned that there were brigands in that country she refused to go, thus giving an early demonstration of the fact that she possessed temperament. She continued to sing with great success in American cities, and then was taken for her European debut to Covent Garden in 1861. In London she arrived practically unheard of, and there she enjoyed one of the supreme triumphs of her career. She was hailed as the greatest singer the world had ever heard, and even the lowbrows wept to hear her sing "Home, Sweet Home" and "Way Down Upon the Suwanee River."

From one capital to another she went through Europe, her tour a veritable triumph! Even her greatest rivals—if it could be said that she had indeed rivals who was unrivalled—admitted the glories of her voice. Money came to her in quantities undreamed of by an artist up till that time. On the occasion of her visits to the United States she was paid at the rate of $5,000 for a concert. It is not on record that any of her impressarios ever made anything out of her. On the contrary they usually went broke, but Patti did not worry. She used to insist that the $5,000 for the evening's engagement should be paid her in cash before she left her dressing-room, and the money she made she saved. Those most jealous of her could never assert that she was a spendthrift, and it certainly was not under her auspices that the saying came into use about anything being sold "for a song," nor the other wheeze about "art for art's sake."

Even some twelve years ago when there remained of her golden voice only some loose change in dimes and pennies she made public appearances, and for old sake's sake was welcomed. Her farewell tours became jokes in time, but they never failed to richly reward her, and usually to bankrupt those who brought her out. Mme. Patti was several times married. Her first husband was the Marquis de Caux, an equerry at the court of Napoleon III, but the union was unhappy because her husband was unable to have her recognized as one of the old nobility. Moreover he used to take even more than a husbandly interest in her earnings. So he was divorced. Her next husband was Ernesto Nicolini, a noted tenor, with whom she lived happily for years. Within a year of his death, and when she was approaching sixty, she was wooed and won by a young Swede who called himself the Baron Cederstrom, and who is said to have been a masseur whom she encountered in London. He survives, and the marriage is said to have been a happy one. For some years past the diva has been living in Wales in a fine, old castle, her companions being a couple of old professional musicians.

A Mother's Tribute

THIS letter from Mrs. Roberts gives such a fine idea of the value of Dr. Chase's medicines for use in the home that we shall publish it without further comment.

Mrs. Everett Roberts, 44 Endicott Ave., Halifax, N.S., writes :

"I feel it a pleasure as well as my duty to recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Ointment. After the shock of the Halifax explosion my system was all run down, and I was so weak that I could not walk. Night after night I lay awake unable to sleep. Nothing did me any good until one of my neighbors recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. After a treatment of this medicine I can positively say that my health and strength have been restored, and I can now sleep well and do my work as well as ever.

"I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for my baby, who had ringworms all over his face. I tried almost everything I knew of without success until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. This cured him in a short time. I would not be without either of these medicines in the house, and trust this may induce others to give them a trial and be convinced of their merits."

You can scarcely ask for a stronger gurantee of the value of a medicine than the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on the box. This is for your protection against imitations and substitutes. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

What is Indurated Fibreware?

EDDY'S Indurated Fibreware is wood without any of the drawbacks which are commonly associated with wooden household utensils. It is made in one piece without joints or hoops, it will not splinter, will not fall to pieces if dropped, and is impervious to taints and odors. And with all those qualities it has all the lightness and the resiliency of wood.

Eddy's Indurated Fibreware
Washtubs, Pails, Butter Tubs, etc.

are made from wood-pulp, ground so as to preserve the long fibres intact. It is moulded to the required shape, in a single piece, under tremendous hydraulic pressure. This welds the fibres into a homogeneous mass, stronger in texture than the original wood itself.

The moulds are then dipped in oil, put into huge ovens, and baked for hours with intense heat. This produces a hard, glazed surface, which is impenetrable to liquids, and which effectively wards off every outside taint.

The next time you buy a washtub, a milk pail, a household pail or butter tub, ask for Eddy's Indurated Fibreware. You will find it much easier to lift, much easier to keep clean, and much more economical than the ordinary wooden or metal container.

IT WAS A "JIM" POEM.

But That Was Not the Only Reason Why Riley Liked It.

James Whitcomb Riley and Joel Chandler Harris figure in a story told by a writer in the New York Sun. They had sought rest and recuperation in a hotel among the southern mountains and wished to avoid the attempts of the other guests to lionize them. Much against their wills, however, they were constrained to appear at a "reading" from their own works, after having been routed from a secluded spot in the woods to which they had retired.

A young elocutionist had the center of the stage when they got to the hotel. She led off by announcing a poem by Mr. Riley. She recited it. It was about somebody named Jim. Riley looked impressed.

"Would you mind," he said when she had finished, "reciting that again?"

She did not mind, and went at it. Riley wiped a tear away as she finished. Then he said, "Please recite it again, if you will."

She did it the third time, and Riley was even more affected.

"Do you know," he said, after she had ended, "I like that poem. It's a Jim poem. I always liked Jim poems. My own name is Jim. I always read Jim poems. I have written several Jim poems myself. But do you know why I like this Jim poem better than any other?"

The young woman eagerly asked why. The assembled guests leaned forward breathlessly to hear the answer.

"I like it," said Riley, "because it always reminds me of my dear old friend, Eugene Field. Eugene Field is the man who wrote that poem, you know!"

Wrong Dinner Hour.

Our dinner hour is wrong, according to Professor Berguine of Bordeaux university. The human body, says he, is an engine driven by a steam boiler. Food is its fuel. The most fuel should be used just before the heaviest work is done. The heaviest meal should come, he says, before the day's work—in other words, at breakfast. The midday meal should be lighter and the evening one hardly a meal at all.—New York Post.

Maxwell
—a car of rare charm and—able

YOUR first impression of this present day Maxwell as it passes you on the street is one of decided beauty.

Your first ride in it, whether at the wheel or in the tonneau, tells you of its rare charm.

But after six months you find a new admiration for the Maxwell. You find it shuns the repair shop, that it runs and runs and runs and never stops running.

Then after a year is past you develop an enthusiasm for it that dictionary words don't seem to fully describe.

And then after you have had it for more than the average life of a motor car and you find it far better than even the Maxwell salesman said it was you search for the reason.

This is what you find:

For 5 years Maxwell cars have been built on the single chassis plan. To date 300,000 have been turned out on this plan. Each car better than the other. Each one better looking than the other.

There have been more than 1000 refinements in the Maxwell, but never once have the Maxwell executives swerved from the original program.

You conclude that reliability was designed "into" the car and built "into" it, and that a policy of 300,000-all-alike is the soundest kind of reason for writing your check for a present day Maxwell.

How Christian De Wet Lost Admiration by Acts That Displayed Treachery

THE recent refusal of the Cape Town Government to issue pasports to Gen. Christian De Wet and Pieter Grobler, a grandson of President Kruger, who desired to proceed to Paris in order to submit proposals for an independent South Africa to the Peace Conference, recalls the futile effort of these irreconcilables and their confederates, Beyers, Maritz, and Kemp, to break up the Union and establish a republic in the early months of the great war. De Wet, captured in the field and tried for treason, was sentenced to six years' imprisonment, but, with Pieter Grobler, upon whom a sentence of two years was imposed, was soon pardoned for political reasons. It was no time to enforce the rigors of the law against a famous veteran who was still a hero in Boer households, or to make an example of a descendant of Paul Kruger.

No doubt the influence of Gen. Botha and Jan Smuts, who had accepted British rule in the belief that it would be for the welfare of South Africa, was exerted in favor of their old comrade in arms. The truth, of course, was that martyrdom for De Wet would have fomented the rebellious spirit still latent in the Transvaal and Orange Free State. The Transvaal, with a population of nearly 2,000,000, is the richest province of the Union, and it was wise to try conciliation with those Boers whose loyalty was still under suspicion. They were chiefly the older men who had fought in the war of 1899-1902. A good many of the veterans were stanch supporters of Botha and Smuts, but there was an element that gave sullen allegiance to the Empire. It is active enough at the present time to agitate for independence and ask to be represented at Paris. The influence of the two veterans who have been honored by the British Government with high place and who have driven the Germans from Africa is so strong, however, that "self-determination" would doubtless show the Boer people of the Union to be satisfied with the British administration, which is liberal, progressive, and farseeing. The younger Boers understand its advantages, and are proud to be represented by such soldier-statesmen as Louis Botha and Jan Smuts.

Looking back, the rising which brought out De Wet from his retirement is seen to have been an irrational and dishonest enterprise doomed to failure. Maritz, who beguiled De Wet to his undoing, was an unscrupulous and graceless figure. The propaganda of the revolt was a tissue of lies to delude the Boer farmers who were out of touch with true conditions at Cape Town. At first they were allured by the promise that it should be a bloodless revolution. Then they were told that Botha had inspired and would lead the movement. Soon after Christian Beyers joined it he was reported to be bombarding Pretoria with German artillery. Maritz was said to be on the Vaal with 30,000 men and 100 guns. But when Gen. Botha took the field the rebellion crumbled like a mangus.

De Wet had had his choice to serve with the Imperial forces in the great war. He might have gone to France, so it was said, with a corps of British and Dutch Africander scouts, but he elected to attack the Government of the Union from ambush. There is no doubt that he could have had a command under Botha or Smuts in South Africa. For his fame it would have been better if the ablest guerrila leader that the world has probably ever known had at least remained in retirement during the struggle. He had been a most romantic figure and was greatly admired by a generous enemy. After the Boer war he was treated with consideration by the victors, and accepted office from them. In the rising of October, 1914, he lost his prestige as a soldier, and in a cause that had little to recommend it from any point of view he cut rather a pitiful figure.

Warsaw Items of Interest

Visitors to the Village During the Week

WARSAW, April 8.—The maple syrup season is nearly over. It has been rather unsatisfactory.

Mrs. Bogue, Lindsay, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Percy Lloyd.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Anderson entertained the boys' classes of the Methodist Sunday School in their sugar bush last Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. A. F. Choate has her millinery in her own house instead of at the store.

The "Kings' Daughters" Girls' club held their fortnightly meeting on Friday afternoon. By an unanimous vote it was decided to hold the meetings weekly beginning with the one in April 18th. The classes in Domestic Science and First Aid will be held on alternate weeks. It is earnestly hoped that the girls will be on hand promptly at 2.30 p.m.

Trail Rangers

The "Trail Rangers" held their weekly meeting on Wednesday evening and got their classes in First Aid and Physical Culture well started. The Methodist Boys with Rev. Clare as leader are "The Links"; The Baptists with Rev. Roberts are "The Climbers" and the Presbyterians, with Mr. D. Miller the "The stars."

Mrs. Levi Payne passed away at her home on Wednesday evening, last. Mrs. Payne had not been well since being in the west and has been seriously ill for nearly six weeks. She leaves her husband and a foster-daughter, Miss Bessie Lonsdale, also her sisters Mrs. Richmond, Warsaw and Mrs. Robert Hill, Manitoba and her brothers Messrs Sam, Peter and William Henry Bell of Warsaw.

The funeral which was held Sunday afternoon and conducted by Rev. Clare, was largely attended. The remains were interred in Warsaw Cemetery.

The Union Prayer Meeting held in the Presbyterian Church last Thursday evening and conducted by Rev. Percy Roberts, was very uplifting.

This week it will be in the Baptist Church and conducted by Rev. Clare of the Methodist Congregation.

LOOK AT A CHILD'S TONGUE WHEN CROSS, FEVERISH AND SICK

Takes no chances! Move poisons from liver and bowels at once.

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

THE INFIDEL AND HIS DYING DAUGHTER

The damps of death are coming fast,
My father, o'er my brow;
The past with all its scenes has fled
And I must turn me now
To that dim future which in vain
My eyes seek to descry.
Tell me, my father, in this hour
In whose belief to die.

In thine I've watched that scornful smile
And heard the withering tone,
Whene'er the Christian humble hope
Was placed above thine own.
I've heard thee speak of coming death
Without a shade of gloom,
And laugh at all the childish fears
That cluster round the tomb.

Or is it in my mothers faith
How fondly do I trace
Through many a weary year long past
That calm and saintly face.
How often do I call to mind
Now she's beneath the sod.
The place; the hour in which she drew
My early thoughts to God.

'Twas then she took the sacred book
And from its burning page
Read how its truths support the soul
In youth and falling age;
And bade me in its precepts live,
And by its precepts die;
That I might share a home of love
In worlds beyond the sky.

My father shall I look above,
Amid this gathering gloom
To him Whose promises of love
Extend beyond the tomb;
Or curse the being who hath blessed
This checked path of mine;
Must I embrace my mother's faith
Or die, my sire, in thine?

The frown upon the warrior's brow
Passed like a cloud away,
And tears coursed down the rugged cheeks
That flowed not till that day.
"No, not in mine," with choking voice,
The sceptic made reply.
"But in thy mother's holy faith,
My daughter, may'st thou die."

PETERBOROUGH THURSDAY, APRIL 10, 1919

Record Crowd Attended the Opening of Peterboro's Three Day Motor Show

Mayor Duncan and General Williams Were the Speakers—Excellent Musical Programme Was Provided.

FEATURES OF SHOW

A record crowd attended the opening of the Motor Show last evening and the drill hall of the Armouries was one seething mass of humanity until a late hour. In and about the attractive booths matters of interest for every one were found and thoroughly appreciated, while a generous programme of music was given by the Conservatory of Music orchestra. Solos by Miss Florence Scott and Mr. Douglas Carlisle were enthusiastically received during the evening. The accompanist was Miss Cora White of the Conservatory staff.

Opened the Show.

The show was formally opened by Brigadier General Williams, officer commanding No. 3 Military district, who was introduced by His Worship Mayor Duncan.

The Mayor welcomed the distinguished guest on behalf of the city and of the Health Association. He said in part, "Brigadier-General Williams is commander of this district with headquarters in Kingston. He comes from a well known family. Colonel Williams his father resided in Port Hoep. He was a colonel in the Northwest rebellion and died on his way home and to his memory a large monument has been erected. The General himself was Brigadier-General at Ottawa before the commencement of the war and enlisted with the first contigent. In 1916 he was taken prisoner of war by the Germans and will testify as to his treatment while in Germany. In speaking with the General before coming to the show he told me of his school days spent at the Grove in Lakefield while the Saturday se[illegible] Circle to Peterboro, where [illegible] round up by a run around the market square and back to Lakefield Knowing what a busy man General Williams is we cannot fail to appreciate his kindness in coming to our city and opening the Motor Show.'

Gen. Williams Speech

General Williams in formally declaring the Motor Show open, expressed his pleasure at being honoured by an invitation to officiate on behalf of such a splendid cause as that of Peterboro ealth Association.

The commanding officer at No. 3 Military District remarked that he had been greatly impressed during the motor drive he had taken with the appearance of Peterboro, especially with the number of well kept and well built houses he had seen. "It is evident that you have a city of homes."

Speaking of the war, General Williams paid a warm tribute to the share that Peterboro had taken in providing men for the front. 4,000 men and many splendid officers had come from this city," he said, "and although the casualties had been heavy, the bereaved relatives should feel that the loved ones had died fighting for humanity itself." Among the officers mentioned by General Williams were: Major Go. Bennett and Capt. Harry Rogers, the latter having been taken prisoner at the same time as the speaker, both being first wounded. General Williams, also highly praised Mrs. Bell of Peterboro, who is matron of the Queen's Military Hospital at Kingston.

Speaking of his experience in Germany General Williams expressed his deep gratitude to the Canadian Red Cross whose parcels were the only thing that saved the prisoners from starving. The speaker remarked that the stories of German cruelty and ill treatment of prisoners were absolutely true and that there were other things that were too horrible to be printed.

The speaker expressed his deep interest in returned soldiers. There was a bond of comradeship between the men who had gone over the top and he was looking forward to meeting as many of the Peterboro ex-service men as possible. "Canada ought to be proud of her soldiers", he said in conclusion, before announcing that the Motor Show was formally open.

At the Cafe Chantant

The Cafe Chantant formed a great attraction for all with its attractive surroundings and splendid musical programme. In the band room in connection with this department, dancing was enjoyed by about one hundred people. The music was supplied by Moher and Fitzgerald. A few of those noticed were: Mr. and Mrs. Webber, Miss Ruth Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. MacDonald, Mrs. Northedge Birks, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roy, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Rogers, Miss Mabel Collins, Miss MacBeth, London, Mr. Fred Collins, Miss Rena Aylmer, Captain Vivian Fessenden, Mr. Gordon Matthews, Mr. and Mrs.

Treaties Tie Up Conference

The Peace Conference is Not Yet Out of the Woods.

United Press.
By Fred S. Ferguson.

PARIS, April 10. — Although an agreement has been reached on reparation and responsibility for the war, the Peace Conference is not yet out of the woods regarding the secret treaties entered into by the allies before the American intervention, it was learned from an authoritative source to-day.

Observers seeking to intercept the "Big Fours'" decision that the former Kaiser should be "brought under allied control," professed to see in this his trial by a special international tribunal, and possible banishment from Europe.

The only definite thing regarding Wilhelm, however, appears to be that he is not in danger of capital punishment.

In regard to reparation, the decision that Germany must pay an initial instalment of $5,000,000,000 within two years, with an undetermined balance to be fixed by a permanent financial commission, was regarded as a compromise that would satisfy all the associated powers.

Methodist Pastor Was Arrested

Accused of Distributing Temperance Literature Without a Permit.

(Canadian Press.)

MONTREAL, April 10.—Rev. S. F. Newton, pastor of East End Methodist church, was arrested yesterday afternoon for distributing temperance literature on the public streets of Montreal without a permit. Mr. Newton was arrested outside the plant of the Consolidated Rubber Co. He said he had permission of the company to operate there. He contended that literature was given away outside the Roman Catholic churches every Sunday but no one was arrested.

Voting To-day.

The province of Quebec is to-day voting on the referendum as to whether wine and beer licenses shall be issued or whether the province shall go "dry." Both liquor interests and temperance organizations have conducted vigorous campaigns and the vote is expected to be heavy.

All Protestant ministers have denounced the granting of wine and beer licenses, but the Roman Catholic priests in some cases have not directed their charges. Last night the wets organized a torchlight procession in this city. It marched through the city bearing such announcements as "Let's all go home," "Let Toronto run the show," "Home rule in old Quebec," "Vive La France, Long Live Its Wine," "Look at bone dry Russia."

The Great War Veterans' Association for Montreal district last night passed a resolution against prohibition.

Laymen Arrested.

MONTREAL, Que., April 10.— One Methodist minister, the Rev. S. F. Newton, and three laymen, are under arrest on a charge of distributing prohibition literature on the streets without a license. The laymen are Albert Sinton, Fred Kaser and Joseph Prince.

The accused appeared before Recorder Geofrion, and at the request of Mr. Patterson, K.C., the case was postponed until to-morrow.

The prohibition leaders are very angry, alleging that they have received unfair treatment at the hands of the police, and adding that the torchlight parade of the "wets" was held last night without warrant, and with the police supervision.

Quebec City is Dry.

QUEBEC, April 10.—Voting on wine and beer licenses early to-day seemed to be largely in favour of the measure. Voting in the rural districts is light owing to bad roads and the sugaring season.

Bolsheviki Are Concentrating Men In the Archangel

Situation is Serious for Allied Troops on the Front—Bolshevists Make Poor Soldiers.

NO ALTERNATIVE

By William Phillip Simms.
(United Press.)

PARIS, April 10. —That the Bolsheviki have 600,000 troops concentrated in the Archangel region and are determined to capture that port, was the belief expressed to-day by a French major, who has just returned to Paris after being exiled in Russia since 1914.

The Bolsheviki, according to the French officer, want the largest stores in Archangel, and the fate of the defenders is only of secondary importance to them. He considers the situation serious and insists that the Allies must either reinforce their armies or withdraw immediately.

The Allies on the Archangel front, the officer said, are hemmed in on one side by the Bolsheviki and on the other by a frozen sea. Realizing the extent of the Allies' predicament, the Bolsheviki have concentrated fifty or sixty per cent. of all their available troops in the region for the purpose of capturing the supplies in Archangel.

Well Organized.

"I estimate the Bolsheviki army at about a million," he said. "They are fairly well organized on paper, but will not fight unless they feel like it. They are poor troops for that reason, and do not persist when they meet stiff resistance. In that fact lies the chief hope for the Allies in the Archangel region.

"It is not true that Russia is largely pro-Bolsheviki. I have talked with many peasants. They told me they voted for Bolsheviki officials because they were given land which they always wanted. Now they want order restored above anything. They will welcome any authority guaranteeing them the ownership of land and the opportunity to market their products peacefully. In the meantime they necessarily support the Bolsheviki because they have nothing else to turn to. "Owing to the general feeling that they have been deserted by the rest of the world. I would not be surprised to see the Siberians join the Bolsheviki any day. Not because they believe in Bolshevism, but because they have no alternative."

Chaos Reigns in Parts of Germany

Street Fighting Breaks out — Bavarian Government Moderate in Demands to Berlin Government.

United Press.
By Frank J. Taylor.

BERLIN, April 10. — Street fighting has broken out in Magdeburg, Dusseldorf and Essen, where the government has proclaimed astate of siege. Many persons have been killed. Civil war in Bavaria, it was believed here, depends on the Socialists' ability to gather quickly a formidable force of trained soldiers.

Indications multiplied to-day that the National Soviet Congress, in session here, would confine its efforts to peaceful demands on the Schiedemann Government for certain reforms.

WILL MEET THE VETERANS

General Williams Will Visit G.W.V.A. Headquarters To-night.

Every member of the Peterboro branch of the Great War Veterans' Association is asked to be present at headquarters, George street, tonight at 8 o'clock, when General Williams, commanding No. 3 Military District, will be present. General Williams is a veteran of the great war himself and he should receive a warm welcome from the men who have fought overseas.

LADIES' HAIR DRESSING

The ladies will be interested in learning that Mrs. Harry Mann, of 569 George Street, is now prepared to attend to orders for hair dressing, shampooing, and hair treatment, in her residence at the above address. Mrs. Mann is well equipped to fill engagements in these lines, and to prescribe safe and successful hair tonics whenever needed. She invites the patronage of the ladies. 2d-72

LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN.

The regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women will be held on Thursday afternoon, at 3.30 in the Green Room at the Y. W.C.A.

Discusses Some of the Circumstances Regarding Labour

John William Bruce Tells The Examiner That that Situation is By No Means Hopeless.

THE ENQUIRY

TORONTO, April 10.—"As a member of the Labour Appeal Board since its inception last summer," said John William Bruce of Toronto, one of the Labour members of the new Government Commission on Industrial Reaction. "I soon saw the futility of present methods, those of the lack of specific information concerning industrial conditions."

It is this absence of necessary data which constitutes, in Mr. Bruce's opinion, one of the fundamental reasons for the present inquiry. In 1916 he himself moved a resolution at the Trades and Labour Congress, calling for some comprehensive survey. He is, therefore, in full sympathy with the idea of the Investigating Commission, but thinks its findings must be based on industrial conditions as actually revealed in the inquiry, rather than on preconceived theories.

Industrial Unrest.

In the course of his interview Mr. Bruce discussed various aspects of the Labour problem now facing the country. He thought there was much industrial unrest.

"I know it," he said, "and it is more pronounced even than I know and more than the government itself recognizes."

Mr. Bruce is general organizer for Canada of the United Association of Plumbers and Steam Fitters. His duties take him from one end of the country to the other, and he is considered one of the best informed men in the Labour movement.

"Is there greater unrest in the west or in the east?" asked the Examiner.

"It is perhaps more apparent in the west," was Mr. Bruce's rely. "For the industrialism, where it does exist, stands out in the prevailing sentiment more than it does in the greater congestion and complexity of eastern life. I think, however, that there is just as great a spirit of dissatisfaction and restlessness in the east as in the newer districts."

Mr. Bruce gave as some of the centres of industrial unrest, Cape Breton, Montreal, Toronto and vicinity, Winnipeg, Calgary, the Alberta and B. C. mining districts and the coast.

Growing Conflict.

The Examiner asked Mr. Bruce if the growing conflict between craft and industrial unionism would be considered by the Commission.

"I don't know that it will come within the scope of its inquiry," replied Mr. Bruce, but undoubtedly the Commission will perceive the schools of thought. Especially in the west, the difference will be brought forcibly enough before its attention."

Particularly in his present position, Mr. Bruce did not care to discuss his personal view as to the respective merits of the two conceptions.

Mr. Bruce felt though, although there was industrial unrest at present, the situation was by no means hopeless. He felt the Commissions in Investigations would be important as focusing attention on the problem, while there was yet time to secure an understanding.

"Do you favour co-operation between employers and employees?" asked the reporter.

"Yes," said Mr. Bruce, "if the spirit and desire on both sides of getting together is genuine."

Government Liable To Be Defeated

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, April 10.— The Citizen to-day, in reference to the possibility of a general election, says that although there is no evidence of the Government or Opposition desiring one, the Government is liable to defeat on this session's budget.

The Citizen fears that the democratic forces in Canada hardly seem to be sufficiently unified yet to carry the Hindenburg line of the old party politics. It thinks that the most advanced democratic force, the hammerhead against special privilege, is that of the organized agriculturists. But they still have to find their leader, and all of the forces of democracy have to get together in one unified command.

Soldiers On Way to Canada

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, April 10. — Steamer Lapland, with 40 officers, 47 nursing sisters and 1879 other ranks from Kinmel camp, will arrive this afternoon at Halifax and is expected to dock at 5 p.m. Word was received that the Minnedosa sailed from England yesterday for St. John with 51 officers and 348 other ranks from Buxton camp, also 348 wives and 242 children of Canadian soldiers.

Big "Four" Setting Pace

Steamer Held in Readiness to Carry Back "Saviour" of the World.

(Special to Examiner.)

PARIS, April 10. — The "Big Four" setting a new pace in its deliberations, has reached a stage where it was reliably forecast to-day that the predictions of an "Easter Peace" will not fall many days short of the mark if the present progress continues.

It is said that the Steamer George Washington probably will be held at Brest and will return to the United States early in May with President Wilson on board.

The latest developments in the "Big Four" sessions is that the Italians are now ready to accept internationalization of Fiume, according to authoritative information.

Important Questions.

The peace terms covering the Saar Valley have been completed, with the exception of the formal drafting. It is understood that France will get use of the Saar coal coal mines and control of labor in the mines as part of her reparation. This is regarded as a fair return for Germany's destruction of the French coal mines in the Saar region.

Germany will retain political control of the Saar basin and a plebiscite will be held later to determine the permanent disposition of that territory.

Four important questions, Fiume, the Saar Valley, reparation and reponsibility for the war, which have contributed largely to the delay in arranging a peace settlement, have thus virtually been disposed of within a period of two days.

The Ford New One-Ton Truck

The commercial car is looked upon today as a necessity by progressive business firms who have hauling and delivering problems to consider.

Wholesale or retail merchants who must deliver quantities of merchandise have found the horse-drawn delivery to be too slow, expensive, and entirely inadequate.

The Ford truck, seen at the Motor Show, with a single driver, will do more work and cover more ground than two teams and two drivers, for it travels in half the time. This truck will reduce your hauling costs. It eliminates one driver's salary and the care which horses always require. It will make your delivery service more efficient. It will widen your area of distribution. It will be constantly ready for work—day or night. It will show a profit on your investment.

There has been a popular demand for a Ford truck as is shown by the many uses, for commercial purposes, to which the standard chassis has been put. After most careful designing and exacting tests, the Ford One-Ton truck meet this demand.

The Ford Truck is supplied as a chassis only. This permits the purchaser to mount any one of the many body styles specially designed for the Ford truck, and already on the market, and he can select it to meet the individual needs of his business.

See it at the Motor Show in the Duffus Garage Exhibit. 1d

FRANK JENNE SAYS:

"Semi-ready tailoring approaches its Silver anniversary, but for a quarter century it has been the one progressive and aggressive wholesale tailoring organization which pleads for conservatism and stands for good old British stability and dependability. One can travel from Hongkong to London and be dressed in good form with a Semi-ready tailored design—for it's cosmopolitan."

"Semi-ready was launched in 1895. Good things survive."

Old Groups Are Still in Existence and Farmers and Labour Men, Together With Unionists, Promise a Lovely Scramble If the Present Movements Continue.

WEST PETERBORO NEXT

Where the farmers foregather in these days of political confusion you hear strange stories of a new ordering in both the Legislature and the Dominion House. In Norwood yesterday, rural East Peterboro cast the die for political activity, and thus commiting themselves are evidently determined not to look backward. The farmers hold the whiphand in the Thompson-Sexsmith preserve, and if their political union becomes as solid as their commercial organization they can elect whom they will.

One of the rumours that is circulating in the east is based on the statement that Mr. J. A. Sexsmith's days at Otawa are numbered. Farmer and all that he is, it is told that "Jim" Thompson is getting tired of the Toronto assignment and has ambitions for Parliament. Hence, the story goes that Mr. Thompson will supplant Mr. Sexsmith, leaving the provincial field open to the United Farmers.

In justice to Mr. Sexsmith it must be admitted that this is only the gossip of the groups that eddied about Norwood yesterday. One prominent farmer, formerly a stalwart Tory, declared emphatically that "Sexsmith can't come back," and other opinions were of the same complexion.

Farmers Are Determined

Whatever happens, the farmers will have a candidate of their own, and they have a wealth of good material. One might name a dozen of the men who have been spoken of and yet overlook the nominee of the next convention. There is G. A. Brethen, hitherto a Tory, it was stated, who is mentioned by Grits and Tories alike, who have sunk their differences in the U.F.O. He is an alert, successful farmer who has specialized in dairying and built up record- breaking Holstein herds. Ex-Warden Anderson and Col. Johnston are also in some of the people's thoughts. "Billy" Griffith, reeve of Methuen has a lot of friends who are convinced that he is a farmer first and all the time although he may have been a good Tory. Reeve Max Brown, of Asopodel, Ed Hawthorne, of Warsaw, and Ernie McDonald, the County president, are all potential candidates. In fact the farmers in East Peterboro under the expected domination of the rural clss have something of the opportunities of Napoleon's privates, each of whom carried a marshal's baton in his knapsack. R. B. Rogers and Major Wallace Anderson are also included in the list, and that's not the end.

In Norwood, old line Liberals and Tories regard the farmers' outbreak as a strange manifestation, the results of which they are inclined to pooh-hooh. "Once a Grit always a Grit" was one opinion and the same applies to the Tories. Neither of the old parties are dead in Norwood, and even Union has some advocates.

"If all the parties retin their identity we'll have a nice mix-up at the next election," said one man. "There will be a U.F.O. candidate, a Conservative, a Liberal and possibly a Unionist."

Reeve Nicholls Mentioned

The Examiner was told by a prominent farmer that the next U.F.O. convention will be held in West Peterboro, and that Reeve Nicholls, of Smith township is regarded as the likely candidate for the Provincial House. And here at home the situation is even more pregnant of possibilities for in addition to the parties in the East, the Independent Labour men are steadily organizing, and developing a "class consciousness" that is the counterpart of the new spirit that is absorbing the farmers.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, APRIL 10TH, 1919.

THE VETERANS' TAG DAY

Citizens of Peterboro are reminded of the annual tag day of the Great War Veterans' Association which will be held a week from Saturday. The annual campaign on behalf of the Relief Fund is one of the most important events of the year from the view point of the returned soldiers, inasmuch as upon the result of this effort depends the relief work of the Association for the ensuing twelve months.

The money obtained from the tag day, the public should understand, is placed in a separate fund which is used to relieve cases of distress among returned soldiers and in the families of the men who are still serving. The fund has been well administered by the local branch and Peterboro has as a result been spared much of the suffering that has existed in other cities where no such fund has been available to meet emergency cases. It is consoling to know that the ex-service man who is temporarily in need or the soldier's family who find themselves unexpectedly face to face with a difficult situation are able to find relief from the Great War Veterans. The tag day affords every one a chance to make a contribution towards this most worthy cause and at the same time the burden is evenly distributed, which sometimes is not the case with a canvass of another kind. The people of this city are asked to keep in mind that Saturday, April 19th is the date of this year's G.W.V.A. tag day.

LOCAL OPTION

Many people who have been studying the details of the ballot to be submitted in connection with the liquor referendum are suggesting that the principle of local option which has been incorporated into the third question to be voted on should be also adopted in the case of the second and fourth questions. The third clause reads as follows:

Are you in favour of the sale of light beer containing not more than 2.5 per cent. alcohol weight measure in standard bottle in local municipalities that, by majority vote favour such sale, and amendments to the Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale?

It is not quite clear whether the question means that in the event of an affirmative answer from a majority of the people in the Province, a second vote would have to be taken in the municipalities or whether the Government would proceed at once to permit the sale of beer in standard bottle in such municipalities as returned a majority in favour of the scheme when the provincial referendum was taken. In any case, however, this particular question is based on the principle of local option and even if the Province at large shows a majority opinion in favour of the sale of light beer over the bar the system will only be introduced in the municipalities that have expressed their approval.

Why could not the same principle govern the two questions dealing with the sale of beer and liquors by government agencies? There is no reason why the Government should establish a liquor dispensary in Peterboro, for instance if the majority of the people of this city voted against the system and yet as the referendum ballot stands at present if the question is carried in the province, the system of Government agencies will be operative in all municipalities, even in those towns and cities that have indicated by their votes that they want nothing to do with the system.

It is expected that there will be considerable discussion on this point when the Temperance legislation is discussed in the Legislature.

There are more than 2,000,000 girls under the age of 16 employed in various occupations in the United States.

ELIMINATE THE EXTRAVAGANCE

The official reason for the Government's failure to proceed with the Federal building and the dry dock projects in Peterboro at the present time is that there is a lack of the necessary funds. Whatever grade of truth there may be in that statement there is no question that the administration has been spending public money with reckless lavishness and extravagance even while it pleads with the people of Canada to exercise thrift and economy in their every day life. It is about time that the Government took some of its own advice and followed some of the instructions of its experts hired at big salaries to spread the doctrine of saving among the people. The Government departments are over loaded with useless officials and a thorough combining by an impartial commission would probably save many thousands of dollars in salaries alone. The recent revelations in the printing bureau show the general inefficiency and lack of business system that exists.

That burlesque organization the Department of Public Information, has alone cost the country a total of $81,414 and what benefit Canada has derived from this expenditure is a mystery to everyone, doubtless even to Hon. Mr. Rowell, the originator of the scheme himself. As far as giving out information was concerned the Department has never been known to publish anything that the newspapers of the country had not already given their readers. The head of the Department who happens to be a half brother of the Acting Premier is paid the nice little sum of $6,000 a year for his services, whatever they are and associated with him are over a score of other officials all drawing comfortable stipends. In salaries alone the white elephant is eating into the Victory Loan at the rate of $4,000 a month, while Mr. Rowell's pet publication, the gazette which the Department publishes each week and which nobody reads requires $7,400 a month to pay for its printing, circulation and other expenses.

If some of these utterly unjustifiable expenditures were lopped off, the Government might be in a position to carry on reconstruction work that is necessary and to provide more adequate pensions for Canada's disabled soldiers and for the wives and families of those who made the supreme sacrifice. Imagine giving a pension of a few dollars a month to a man who has been torn by shell or wrecked by gas, fighting for Canada can very easily dispense with. lowers are maintained in useless positions at ample salaries. The Department of Public Information and its weekly Gazette are two luxuries that Canada can very easil dispense with.

RURAL CREDITS

Last year 12,000 acres of new land were broken and put under crop in the province of Manitoba as a direct result of the institution of rural credits to assist the farmers. There are thousands of acres of unproductive land in the province of Ontario, and the Government has under consideration the Manitoba Act with a view to its adoption for the assistance of our farmers. George W. Prout, member of the Manitoba Legislature, and the father of the Rural Credits Act, states that it has been adopted in Alberta and is being taken up in Saskatchewan. Forty-four municipalities in Manitoba are now taking advantage of it as against ten in 1918 and one in 1917, and the total amount of the loans was $215,581.

Fifteen persons or more may petition to form a rural credit society. Each member takes stock to the amount of $100 and his liability is limited to that amount. The government takes half the total amount of the stock and the municipality a similar amount. This constitutes the guarantee fund. The society borrows money from the banks at 6 per cent. and loans it to the farmer at 7 per cent., but no money is loaned until the society has secured subscriptions from at least fifty persons actually engaged in farming or who have agreed to engage in it within one year. Short-term loans are secured for the purpose of seed, feed or other farm supplies; implements and machinery; cows, horses, sheep, pigs and other stock; to meet payments on the cost of draining, ranching and like operations; payments on the of preparing land for cultivation.

In addition the society may act as agent for the members in purchasing supplies and selling products and take steps to extend the application of tis activities to all residents of the district.

There is nothing new in the scheme as outlined except that the application is broader and enables individual farmers to obtain more ready assistance than it possible through the clubs already formed in Ontario. But the clubs that have been doing business will appreciate any benefits the proposed Act may contain and make possible its wide application in a very short time.

Farmers have always complained that hey were heavy depositors with the banks but the banks while loaning money readily to business men, scrupled over accepting their notes. While this may be true of individual cases, the operations of the United Farmers Company in Ontario show that the banks are glad to advance money upon a collective guarantee.

The government should do everything possible to promote the broadening application of the rural credit system in order that the farmer may obtain help when he needs it most. Every farmer cherishes plans for the greater development of his farm by improving his stock, bringing neglected acres under cultivation, adding a silo or putting a basement under the barn, and the realization of his hopes would give him a new interest in his work.—Kingston Whig.

Mickey Wants a German Helmet

No Fun Landing Head Down in Practising Breathless Falls, Says Mabel Normand.

"Mickey," featuring Mabel Normand, to be shown at the Grand Theatre, on to-day, Friday and Saturday, is filled with unexpected situations not called for in the scenario, and although this spontaniety brings many a brilliant flash into the picture still Mabel Normand admits that the life of a comedienne is not all giggle and gurgle.

One day, when Mabel was called up on to dust a chair, during one of the scenes for "Mickey," she tripped over a rug, took a header, landed up against one of those old-fashioned nine-foot high hall clocks and tipped it over. Mabel had just time to brace herself and throw her hands over her head when the clock came down on her. For several seconds she struggled and then Bill Colven, butler in the scene, came to her rescue. The camera man, realizing that the stuff, though not called for, was good action, filmed the incident, and it was been added to the great number of humorous situations in "Mickey."

But sometimes they don't film the "unexpected." Mabel Normand, as "Mickey", was to fall through a roof, in which, to be effective, she must land on her feet. Mabel found it easy enough to fall, but landing head up was another matter. "Oh, for one of those German helmets," she cried after the 'steenth attempt.

Argyle House a Reflection of Government

HALIFAX, N.S. April 9.—Argyle House is but the reflection of the rotten government we have in Canada," said Major F. J. Ewing, who in his capacity of chief caterer to the Canadian Army in England has for the past three years been located at Argyle House and returned on the Megantic. I know Argyle House from top to bottom and I could tell you a few things that would make your hair stand on end. But what is the use so long as we have a government at Ottawa made up of men who have monetary interests in big institutions we will have troubles similar to those at Argyle House. Sir. George Perley, I think tried to do the best he could in England but the Minister was only after personal aggrandisement for Kemp. At Argyle House there has been nothing but mismanagement and lack of co-operation between the departments.

Allies Will Equip Tremendous Armies

Plans Are Formulated For the Crushing of the Bolsheviki—A New Eastern Front With Roumanian, Slovak and Polish Armies—Stubborn Defence in Crimea.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, April 10.—General Humbert and General Graziani have been appointed to command the Allied cordon which will be established from the Baltic to the Black Sea, it was reported to-day. A despatch to The Matin said the Allies have evacuated the Isthmus of Perekop (Crimea) and are fortifying Sebastopol. Recent reports said the Allies would establish a new "eastern front" against the Bolsheviki by bringing about the co-operation of the Roumanian, Czecho-Slovak and Polish armies. These armies were to be officered, equipped and organized by the Allies.

Liquor Vendors Bought Liquor at Bargain Prices

Interesting Testimony at the Investigation—Committee Adjourned.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, April 10.—Evidence that the licensed vendors purchased liquor seized under the Ontario Temperance Act at "bargain prices" was given at to-day's sitting of the Public Accounts committee of the Legislature. Comparison was made by Z. Mageau, of Sturgeon Falls, between the prices on the invoice of liquor sold to Woods Limited Limited with prevailing prices from wholesalers.

"I see that Woods paid $4.50 for Gooderham and Worts, which was selling wholesale at $6.55 a case," said Mr. Mageau. J. F. Mowat, chief clerk of the Department, explained that Woods had to ship the liquor to Montreal and repack it.

Mr. Mageau—"How about Walker' Imperial. Do you know what it was worth?"

Mr. Mowat did not know.

Mr. Mageau —"It was worth $7.5(wholesale, and liquor seized was sold for $5.50.

Hennessy's brand sold to the licensed vendor for $12 per case of 12 bottles Mr. Mageau declared that it could not be bought for that wholesale ten years ago.

Mr. Mowat—"We had to sell at bargain prices. They were damaged goods."

Mr. Mageau— "Do you know that some of the liquor which was sold to the vendor for $5.50 a case was resold for $3 per bottle?"

Mr. Mowat maintained that the Board "got the best price it could."

Mr. Mageau—"I want this committee to know just what was being paid for liquor which was being retailed at a price the Board thought fair.

Red Cross gin was sold to the vendor, I see, at $18 per case, when it could not be bought in Montreal, wholesale ,at less than $25 per case.

A member— "That was cheap all right— when you can't get it." (Laughter.) The committe then adjourned to meet again to-morrow morning at 10.30 o'clock.

FAMOUS CIRCUS COMING

With clash of cymbals and sound of drum, Berzac's Indoor Circus makes its grand entry next Friday and Saturday, April 18-19, at the Grand Opera House, for a stay of two days, with a special Holiday matinee Good Friday.

Novelty and comedy and speed are all combined in this unusual performance. Thrills and laughter, artistry and daring, pleasing equine sketches, dazzling electric effects and Ladies' Concert Band, conducted by Bertha Meyer, famous to vaudeville and concert alike.

Great names are included in the personnel of the cast, artists who have become internationally famous, and animal sketches long known for their intelligent cleverness, as the following groups will show: The Bounding Patterson, the Murray-Ward Trio, Lackland and Lackland, Patrick's Prize Stallions and Monkeys, Livner's Statuesque Dogs, the Alpine Troupe, Mack's Trained Ponies, Jeane Berzac's Comedy Ponies and Donkeys.

A pleasing ensemble has been arranged which will rejuvenate the parents of the youngsters, who will wait to bring them to their first circus.

At the George street Methodist parsonage on Wednesday, April 9th, Mr. William Earle Foster of Waterdown, was united in marriage to Miss Violet Gladys Evans of this city, by the Rev. A. J. Thomas. Mr. J. Foster and Mrs. Charles Webb, of this city, were in attendance.

FEE—SHIELD.

Mr. James Webster Fee, of Mount Pleasant and Miss Annie Marguerite Shield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Shield of Smith township, were united in marriage at George street Methodist church yesterday afternoon at 2.30 by the Rev. A. J. Thomas. They will reside in Mount Pleasant.

STANLEY—HUDGIN.

The marriage took place quietly on Thursday April 3rd of Mr. Matthew Stanley of Perth, and Miss Marguerite Hudgin of Noire, at the George street Methodist parsonage, Rev. A. J. Thomas performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley will reside in Toronto.

ACKISON—SWINTON.

A wedding of great interest to her large circle of friends was solemnized in St. Andrew's church yesterday evening at 5.30 o'clock when Jessie C. Swinton, of Smith township, was united in matrimony to Archibald W. Ackison, also of Smith, Rev. Mr. Lowand performing the ceremony. The bride looked very charming in a wedding gown of white crepe de chene and wore the conventional wedding veil and orange blossoms. She carried a sheaf bouquet of white roses. Amid a shower of confetti thrown by scores of the young people who attended ceremony the birde and groom left for their new home in Smith, where they will reside. The ceremony was attended by about 200 of Mrs. Ackison's friends.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM J. NORTHEY

There passed peacefully away at the family residence near Lakehurst, in Harvey township, on March 10th, one of the few remaining pioneers of that district at the advanced age of seventy-four years. The deceased had been in his usual health until a month before, though suffering from heart trouble for some years, which was finally aggravated by a kidney complaint, which caused his demise. The late Mr. Northey was a man of sterling qualities, a member of the Church of England, a Liberal in politics and an ardent supporter of the Orange Order for many years. He was a son of the late John Northey, of Smith township, and leaves a sorrowing wife, four sons and two daughters to mourn his loss, namely: John, of Chewlah, Wash.; William and Wolseley, of Lakehurst; and Winston residing at home. The two daughters are Mrs. John Smith and Mrs. John Chase, also residing in Harvey. Of his immediate family there are five sisters and three brothers.

Interment took place to Lakehurst Cemetery.

MRS. RICHARD ELMHIRST.

There passed away on March 28th at Indian River, one of Otonabee's most respected residents in the person of Ellen Shaw, the beloved wife of Mr. Richard Elmhirst. The deceased was born in Otonabee sixty-nine years ago and was the daughter of the late Mr. Farrell Shaw, one of the pioneers of this township. She was married in 1870 and ever since had resided on the farm where she died. Her many acts of kindness and amiable disposition endeared her to all and she will be greatly missed. She leaves behind to mourn her loss, her sorrowing husband and twelve children: Mary, at home; Mrs. W. H. Borland, Indian River; Mrs. John Faux, Villiers; Mrs. John Lancaster, Bowden, Alta.; Mrs. Howard Peppin, Silverton, B.C.; Mrs. Hugh Lancaster, Silverton, B.C.; Alice at Edmonton, Alta.; Mrs. Cecil Stark, Indian River; Mrs. Sam Grier, Calgary, Alta. Two sons, Stephen and Willie are at home. The youngest son, Charlie is overseas with the Expeditionary Forces.

The eldest son, Percy, died three years ago. A brother and sister also survive, Mr. Robert Shaw, of Buckhorn, and Mrs. James Weir, also of Buckhorn.

The funeral service was conducted at the house by the Rev. Mr. Robert, of Indian River, the funeral taking place at Fife's cemetery. There were many floral tributes.

The pall bearers were Stephen and Willie, sons, W. H. Borland, Indian River; John Faux, Villiers; and Cecil Stark, Indian River, sons-in-law, and the deceased's only brother, Robert Shaw.

MRS. B. L. TULLY.

Mary Morton Lillico Tully, beloved wife of Mr. B. L. Tully, second concession of Smith township, died Wednesday April 9th, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Tully was the daughter of the late Richard Lillico, of North Monaghan.

She leaves to mourn her loss a husband and son, aged 5 years, her mother, five brothers and one sister, namely, Archibald Lillico, Torrance Lillico and Norman Lillico of North Monaghan, William Lillico of Toronto, J. E. E. Lillico of Peterborough, and Isabelle Lillico, R.N. of Cleveland, Ohio.

The funeral will take place on Friday, April 11th, at 1.30 p.m., to Little Lake cemetery, Rev. F. E. Malott officiating.

RELEASE FROM $6,000 LAND DAMAGES WAS DEPUTATION'S RESULT

The remittal of land damages, representing $6,000, was one of the concessions the city's deputation received from the Hydro-Electric Commission on Tuesday as a contribution toward the Hunter street bridge fund. "And there is the likelihood of getting more," said Ald. McIntyre. The deputation was cordially received by Sir Adam Beck ,and the request for a $50,000 grant to be used in the construction of the Hunter street bridge was well, if not enthusiastically, received by the Premier. This petition is under consideration, but the release from certain land damages is fully assured.

Soviet Congress Demands the Abolition of Snobs

Independent Socialists Must Be Released—Many Demands Made of Government—State Undertaker.

(Special to The Examiner.)

BERLIN, April 10.—A resolution adopted at the opening session of the Soviet Congress here peremptorily demanding release of George Ledebour, the Independent Socialist leader arrested during the Spartacan outbreak, has placed the Prussian and National government in an awkward predicament. The Prussian Ministry of State is said to be opposed to setting Ledebour free, but the Independents propose to press the issue to the extreme limit and hurry a decision. Among the resolutions introduced in the Congress is one calling upon the government to appoint five delegates of the Congress as members of the German peace delegation. Twenty-four mentions were announced on a printed calendar, covering a wide range of subjects, including governmental and military measures in connection with the strikes, amnesty for political prisoners, food problem, ranking of officers and status of volunteers employed for the past few months in throttling the insurrectionary movements. The soldiers' factions submitted a resolution calling for the abolition of all insignia of rank and of honour medals, with the exception of a badge for wounded men, and cancellation of patents of nobility. Anther resolution calls upon the State to assume the functions of an undertaker, in that it assume charge of all burials.

BAVARIAN TOWN REBELS AGAINST SOVIET GOV'T.

Town Now Held by Scheidemann Forces.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COPENHAGEN, April 10. — Despatches from Kissingf report that the citizens and officials of Wuerzburg, thirty miles to the north-west, have struck against the Bavarian Soviet Republic and that the town is now in the hands of government troops.

Motor Show Parade

The motor parade last night which started on its route through the city at 7:30 was the largest parade of its kind ever seen in the city. A notable feature was the large number of touring cars of the "heavy" class which semed to be in preponderance. Many cars were gaily decorated with the Allied flags and coloured bunting. Two bands accompanied the parade. At the commencement of the procession the fire alarm was rung and the red motor and the ladder wagon responded and took their places at the head of the procession.

The Baby Show

The Baby Conference was well attended yesterday, for the opening day and the mothers as well as those in attendance, seemed to thoroughly enjoy the two hours spent together.

Some of the babies were not so sure that they enjoyed the attentions of a strange doctor and a white-capped nurse, and expressed themselves accordingly.

The room allotted for this clinic is an excellent one, roomy light and warm, and when everything was arranged it looked quite attractive.

At one end an inviting-looking teatable had been arranged by Mrs. A. W. Turner and afternoon tea was dispensed by Mrs. Gardiner and served by the two members of St. John's Ambulance Corps, in attendance, Mrs. Jamieson and Miss Hay.

Brigadier-General Williams was met yesterday at the 5.35 train by the Mayor, who accompanied him to the Empress, where he had dinner with Mayor Duncan, Alderman Turner, Col. Mills, Col. Johnston, Capt. Morrison, Major Davidson, Mr. A. L. Killaly, his aide de camp, Major McMannus, Mr. Harry Rush, Mr. J. W. Fraser and Dr. Cameron.

Made an Inspection.

Accompanied by his aide de camp Major McMannus, Col. J. Mills and Captain Harry Rogers, General Williams made an inspection of the Armouries this morning and expressed his complete satisfaction with things in general .Stopped by onlooker, who inquired "what it felt like to talk to a General!" Captain Rogers replied that he had got rather used to it as he was imprisoned in the same German camp and had spent weeks in the same prison hospital with Gen. Williams. On the recommendation of General Williams several improvements will be made in the Armouries in a few weeks, as a consequence of its being used as a barracks.

The Booths.

The booths if possible are really more attractive to-day than yesterday with added decorations. In th candy booth Mrs. A. L. Killaly, Mrs. H. Dearle, Mrs. Cameron and Mrs. Whittaker are in charge to-day. In the Ladies of St. Peter's Booth which has been reinforced with any quantity of attractive ladies and children's wear and a wonderful array of pies, cake and home made bread. The ladin charge to-day are Miss D. Welch, Mrs. (Dr.) Gallivan, Mrs. Conway, Mrs. Owen, Miss L. Hurley, Miss G. McFadden, Mrs. McNulty, Miss Carveth and Miss Tanguey. Today's helpers in the tea room of which the Ashburnham Patriotic Club is in charge are Mrs. R. H. Parsons, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. Mein, Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Nickel, Miss Rogers, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Gemmell, Miss Bryce, Miss Malane, Mrs. Maniece, Mrs. Taylor and Miss Grace Morgan. The tea room did a land office business yesterday evening and is one of the most attractive places at the show. At the candy booth to-day's helpers. Misses Horsefield, Ross, Dennison, Hall, Davidson, Gillespie, J. Richardson, L. Crowe, E. Rae, B. Latimer and the convenor, Mrs. Drummond.

The assistants at the soft drinks booth today are Mrs. Mann, Miss Hatton, Mrs. Carruthers, Miss Halliday, Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. Smith, Miss Munro, Mrs. G. Wood, Mrs. Fortye, Miss Hall, Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Breyfogle.

Instructive Exhibit.

One exhibit which is causing a great deal of interest is the Peterboro Milk Products booth at the east end of the building. In this the clarification of milk is demonstrated actually by a machine similar to those used at the firms headquarters. By means of the machine foreign matter is totally removed and the milk is taken away perfectly cleansed. To any one interested in clean food the exhibit is well worth seeing and really a revelation of the dirt which lies in all unclarified milk.

The Gypsy Encampment

There is undoubtedly some irresistible attraction in having ones fortune told and the gypsies in their minature "Witch of Endor" apartment are finding it a hard proposition to keep up with the demands. A specially selected set of gypsies are on hand today and to-night.

Old Folks' Coughs, Catarrh, Bronchitis Quickly Cured

This Tells of a Method That Cures Without Using Drugs.

Elderly people take cold easily. Unlike young folks, they recover slowly. That is why so many people past middle life die of pneumonia.

Cough Syrups seldom do much good because they upset digestion. Any doctor knows that a much more effective treatment is "CATARRHOZONE," which heals and soothes the irritated surfaces of the throat.

In using Catarrhozone you do not take medicine into the stomach—you simply breathe into the throat, nose and lungs rich piney balsamic vapour, so full of healing power that colds, catarrh and bronchitis disappear almost instantly.

The germ-killing balsamic vapour mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure medicinal essences, whereas with a syrup the affected parts could not be reached and harm would result through benumbing the stomach with drugs.

A Catarrhozone inhaler in your pocket or purse enables you to stop a cold with the first sneeze. Large size costs $1.00 and supplies treatment for two months, small size, 50c.; trial size, 25c.; all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

AMERICAN TROOPS REFUSED TO FIGHT.

Said the War Was Over—Eventually Returned to Front.

ARCHANGEL, April 10.—A company of American troops recently showed some hesitancy in returning to the fighting front south of Archangel, declaring that the war with Germany was over, and that the United States was not at war with the Bolsheviki. The regimental commander, in a speech, said that they were fighting a desperate defensive battle and appealed to them to stick it out. The company then left for the front.

CZECHO-SLOVAKS ATTACK HUNGARIAN BOLSHEVIKS

Violent Fighting Took Place at Ungvar—Severe Losses on Both Sides.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, April 10.—Violent fighting has taken place between Hungarians and Czechs at Ungvar, near the Moravian-Hungarian border. One hundred and fifty Hungarians were killed. The Czechs also had considerable losses. There is a proclamation of the Soviet Republic in Salsburg, in German Austria. Salsburg is near the Bavarian border.

One Hundred Dead South States Tornado

(Special to The Examiner.)

DALLAS, Texas, April 10.—One hundred known dead had been listed as victims of the tornado which yesterday struck Northern Texas, Southern Oklahoma and parts of Arkansas, when order began to form to-day from chaos caused by the storm. The property damage is heavy. The injured, some of them so badly hurt that they cannot recover, are expected to number several hundred.

EAST PETERBORO FARMERS WILL CONTEST THE RIDING AT THE NEXT PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS

Took Initial Step at Meeting of Delegates of Farmers' Clubs Yesterday and Will Select Their Candidate at a Convention to Be Held Later—Large Attendance in Norwood Town Hall.

J. J. MORRISON'S ADDRESS

The United Farmers of East Peterboro cautiously crossed their political Rubicon in Norwood yesterday, when they decided to contest the riding in the next provincial elections. One step at a time is evidently the process of their conscious evolution until they feel themselves accustomed to the responsibility of shaping the substance of their own political affairs instead of glimpsing the shadow in the cut and dried procedure of the old party machines they have cherished and loved so long.

Finding themselves singleminded and in full accord after the first plunge, they drew up to survey their unbroken ranks before selecting a candidate. They may have been reminded of the old adage that it is wise to make haste slowly. At any rate the seeding season is near at hand with long afternoons to ponder over the engaging problems of honouring one of their neighbors, a man of the soil and not of the bar or business, with their united suffrage. Besides, there is time to spare, and for other reasons it was agreed to postpone the nomination for the Legislature until June when a convention will be called for that purpose.

Federal Field, Too, Perhaps.

The Federal field was also scanned, but it is understood that no action was decided upon for the present. Details of the discussion are lacking for the reason that the press was excluded when the delegates somewhat nervously and self-consciously got down to the business of talking political action in either the Dominion or Provincial spheres. The reporters were permitted to hear the introductory, inspirational address of J. J. Morrison, of Toronto, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario. They were then politely requested to retire, and only Mr. Sam Armstrong protested that the exclusion was unnecessary. However, the meeting, which had not been advertised, was referred to as a caucus, and not as a convention, and practically every delegate, influenced no doubt by the opinion of Mr. Morrison on this point, decided that the press should "take the air."

Shortly afterwards several Norwood citizens appeared on the street informing the evicted reporters that it had been likewise hinted to them that they were ineligibles, and more or less aliens. Of course this preliminary sifting of the audience was all very kindly performed by Mr. Ernest McDonald of South Dummer, and the incident is mentioned simply as an illustration of the caution the new party in East Peterboro exercised, within its rights. It was unneccessary, it would seem, for a number of the delegates afterwards stated that nothing had been said or done that need be withheld from publication. The extrusion of the press could be excused, if that were necessary, and comprehended by the opening remarks of Mr. McDonald, who is president of the Peterboro County Branch of the U.F.O., and an estimable and bright young farmer.

Speaking of the purposes of the meeting he said that the letters sent out to the various clubs explained that point, but the delegates were treading on unfamiliar ground. They were unaware of what action they would take. If they decided to enter politics, as many other county organizations had done, it was for them pioneer work, and it devolved upon them to proceed carefully and thoughfully.

In other words, if the comparison will not be regarded as invidious, the East Peterboro farmers yesterday were experiencing something of the problem of a Soviet in setting up its forms and defining its functions.

The caucus was largely attended by delegates and other members from fourteen Farmers' Clubs. Erstwhile adherents of the Liberal and Conservative parties were perhaps about equally divided, but in the new movement these terms are taboo. Otonabee men came from as far as Drummond's station. There were some from the Peterboro district, and the eastern townships were all well represented. Reeve Griffith of Belmont and Methuen was present as a delegate, and Reeve Brown of Asphodel was one of the comparatively large number of Club members who accompanied the delegates.

The audience was composed entirely of farmers, and from the applause that greeted Mr. Morrison's appeal to their class spirit, their rights and interests as farmers, it may be said that the sentiment was strong for a new political deal. The only deviation from the business of the organization was Mr. Thomas Petrie's songs, that provided an entertaining interlude. Otherwise, the meeting was a striking contrast with other political gatherings in the old town hall. Formerly, farmers and villagers met together for nomination purposes, but they were all either "Grits" or "Tories." Yesterday's association under the banner of the U.F.O., was a striking evidence of the possibilities of the solid union of farmers, who, in the words of Mr. Morrison, have been divided politically to their own disadvantge. There were clear signs of sincerity, and the awakened class spirit in East Peterboro may provide another M.P.P. for the United Farmers' ranks.

The Growth of the Organization.

In just five years the membership of the U.F.O., has reached 30,000, according to Mr. Morrison, who added that this was the number by the last registration of the clubs. The actual membership, he believed, was close to 50,000. "We had no intention of becoming political," he stated; "we thought that we would be simply commercial in our activities. We certainly didn't think that in five years we would have members in Parliament, and would be putting others in the field up and down the province. We have developed financially and our last move is the best."

Seven weeks ago, Mr. Morrison continued, the U.F.O. went into the Toronto stock market. They have a seat on the stock exchange, an office and other equipment. In the first week they had only 17 cars of stock; last Monday alone they had 32 cars.

A Service for Farmers.

"Our intention is not to make money for the Association, but for the farmers by giving them the service they need and making it possible for them to sell their own produce. Last year we did one and three-quarter million dollars of business. That shows how we have grown commercially. We have sold nearly 600 tons of binder twine already this year, and we may have our own manufacturing plant in time.

The farmers had been criticized for going into politics. We have been so busy with production that we haven't looked after our industry politically. We have simply been workers and of late we found that we had no influence in the country. We discovered that there were things we wanted but couldn't get, and we have become dissatisfied."

Mr. Morrison appealed to the class consciousness of farmers. "Possessed of that spirit they get a new desire for responsibility, and until they aroused this consciousness in themselves they would simply drift. He told at some length the story of his father who had been a pioneer in Peel township, Wellington county, coming to Canada in a sailing vessel that crossed the ocean in six weeks ,and in one generation had cleared his land, leaving it two years ago, when he died at the age of 95, a modern farm, with all improvements.

Causes of Dissatisfaction.

"We have degenerated as farmers, giving our right to do business to the other fellow and becoming only workers." The children have gone to the cities where they work eight hours a day with half holidays on Saturdays, while the boys remaining on the farm work 15 hours a day, seven days a week, for less wages. Mr. Morrison quoted certified statistics to prove this statement, and remarked that it was no wonder that farmers had become dissatisfied.

"I'd say there was something wrong with you if you were satisfied with such conditions. There must be an evening up to make an all-round contentment." He blamed the political division among the farmers as one cause of this situation. They had simply played into the hands of the old parties that had exploited them.

MABEL NORMAND

In "Mickey," Grand Opera House Today, Friday and Saturday. Matinee Daily.

It was an old game. The white men had conquered the Indians by setting one tribe against another? In the present war, the Germans had tried to drive a wedge between the British and the French.

Whipsawed by Government.

When the war started the government needed two kinds of munitions, shells and food. They went to the manufacturers and promised them profits over and above the cost of production. The manufacturers built factories and hired men at wages that reached $10 and $15 a day, and the more money they expended the greater was their profit, because it had been guaranteed to them.

"To the farmers, the Government said 'Produce ,even at a loss. We must have food for the soldiers in this time of stress.' When they were afraid you might get too much they put arbitrary prices on your cheese and wheat."

Were Called Slackers.

Then, said Mr. Morrison, the farmers were called slackers. The government next said, "If you will vote for us we will exempt your sons and hired help." When they broke that pledge they said we wanted class legislation and that we were afraid to fight. I can prove that we asked only that the boys of nineteen should be exempted, and the hired help until the harvest was off. The manufacturers skilled laborers on the other hand were unmolested. But they told us that our wives and our daughters could do the work—and you never said a word! That's the aggravating part of it. If you are going to continue voting Grit and Tory you will continue in the same old condition. If you do I say you will be traitors to your industry and your forefathers. Is there one man here who respects his party?. You have always been prepared to excuse it. You stood by it through thick and thin. You preferred your party to your own interests. It is time the farmers took an independent stand, and supported the industry that gives them their bread.

If you slip back into the old party lines ,there is no hope for this country, and the agricultural industry will go down and out. The farms will be worked, but by aliens, who are content with a lower standard of living than you are entitled to."

Quebec Will Likely Remain In the Wet List

(Special to The Examiner.)

MONTREAL, Que., April 10.— The Province of Quebec is voting to-day to decide whether beer and wine shall be eliminated from the provisions of the Prohibition Act, which will make Canada dry on May 1st. Last night both wet and drys held demonstrations, but the wets predominated, and with thousands of torch bearers marching to the strains of the "Marsellais," when rain began falling early this morning. The wets hailed this as an omen of success.

Travellers arriving from Eastern Quebec and interior points say the rural districts will cast a slight majority in favour of beer and wine. With Montreal's questioned large vote this leads many to believe this province will be the only wet part of the Western Hemisphere north of Mexico remaining after July 1, when the United States becomes dry.

Knighthood Not in Flower

By H. F. GARSBY.

Knighthood — for Canadians — is not in flower these days. There is reason to believe that Mr. Nickle's antiknighthood resolution, when it comes up—if it ever does—cannot be headed off, as it was last time, by a peevish want-of-confidence bluff on the part of Premier Borden.

As a matter of fact want of confidence in Union Government is not an unknown quantity throughout the country and therefore Union Government would be ill-advised to take chances with want-of-confidence motions. It is just conceivable that Parliament might take Premier Borden at this word and jolt him and his associates off the job. Above all, Union Government should avoid risks with the knighthoods. The world has just been made safe for democracy and this country is more than ever confirmed in its opinion that the tin pot stuff is no good.

Rumor has it that there are still some snobs in Canada who would like to be knights some day, but considering that there are about eight million other people who are opposed to titles, it is not likely that the luft hunting few will get their way. Only the other day two red-tabbed gentlemen in the Militia Department shook the dust of Ottawa off their feet in some dudgeon. Their promised titles had been so long delayed that their hearts were sick. They had been expecting the stroke every morning for a year past and were indeed playfully calling each other "Sir"; but King George didn't come across.

As a matter of fact, Union Government—strong as it may be in the eyes or noses of the people—wasn't strong enough to put it over. Already it it in wrong with one distinguished and highly popular Liberal Unionist who went over to the winning side on the express understanding that no more titles should be handed out. He went over, as I said, and six weeks later a dozen more knights cumbered this fair land. He considers this, very properly, as I think, a breach of faith and it will take only one more knight to land him back where he belongs. There are probably other converts to the Unionist party who are in the same frame of mind.

This country does not like the Knights. It likes the nights so little that many of us seek to add the days by stealing an hour fro the summer months. Even at that, Canada has more knights than days in the year. The average Knight is as puffed up as a bar-room fly. He is egotistical. As the poet says, the Knight has a thousand I's. Sir Thomas White for example—the day but one. The Knight does not fit into democracy. He is indeed a serious menace to our life as a nation. He has only one eye in Canada—the other is on the title-givers in England.

I am instructed that the Mother Country has run out of K.C.M.G.'s, K.C.B.'s, K.B.'s and other big potatoes for the colonials and all that she has on hand now is O.B.E.'s which is the mere spinach of aristocracy and not worth having. That being the case we can very well cut the Knighthoods out. It will be for the good of our national health to say good-bye to titles which are a disease of democracy—the symptoms pride, conceit and vanity, the three grand divisions of the social L. The rich men want to pose as gentlemen, while the officially great want to pose as persons of imperial significance. The rich man wants the stamp of his dollars, while the big wig wants the same stamp on his mediocre talents. It is the weak spot of democracy that we are all so fond of, equality that everybody wants to be an inch higher than everybody else. We have proclaimed equality and have thereby declared the rights of the envious. This country has many second-rate ambition that would fain be esteemed first. Such is the philosophy of this curse of Knighthood.

The present status of the title problem in Canada is this. No more hereditary titles are to be granted. Hereditary titles now held in Canada are to expire with their present wearers—so far as Canada is concerned. wants to take his baronetcy to England and live in a part of the world where baronets have long been a feature of the social scenery there is no reason why the Flavelle dynasty shouldn't go on forever like a string of sausages. But if he stays here the son and heir will be plain Mr. with no trimmings. Even in England titles will not be safe very long, because there is a sort of Bolshevik reaction against this arrogant feudal anachronism in a world which has fought a great war and has upset two dozen kings. It is a safe bet that twenty-five years from now—the Labour party making head—the man who calls himself a Lord in England will look foolish and the one who calls himself a Knight in Canada a damned sight more so.

At all events we have seen the last of the barons and the baronets. We were never in great danger from them because the titles usually cancelled themselves—the Downing Street policy being to put the barren in baronet as far as possible. Now that our law has stamped them out also we can feel pretty sure that we shall no longer be troubled with the nuisance. Of barons we have only three in captivity at present—one Lord Aylmer on a fruit ranch in British Columbia, and two, Lord Shaughnessy and Lord Atholstan in Montreal, a city which has in time past been prolific of barons. Lord Shaughnessy's title puts a golden edge on the C.P.R. dividend and Lord Atholstan is as good as the absent being Graham bred. We can forgive them.

The baronets we do not forgive so readily because—well because as a class they are responsible for Sir Joseph Flavelle who has so smeared his bacon profits with prayer that we are a little sick at the stomach. Sir Joseph's special brand of piety gets all the other baronets in wrong. As consumers we don't mind being robbed—we're used to that—but we hate to be gassed at the same time.

However, as I said before, barons and baronets are stretched from now on. There remain the knights some one hundred and fifty actual and as many more yearning. Parliament ought to do something about it this session—something to scotch it for good. Knighthood has been a hard thing to escape in Canada. What with New Year's honor lists, King's Brithday honor lists and Dominion Day lists, the calendar is more than crowded with all the winter Knights, Spring Knights and mid-summer Knights. The only nights we can call our own are the Autumn nights and they too are spangled with stars. Even the jewelled firmament had got the habit—and gone in for decorations.

The Who's Who and What For of Canadian Knighthood would be a jest book to make a dog laugh. One old boy, as I remember, got it for playing a royal flush. His specialty was consumptive sanitariums. The first one he called the King Edward Sanitarium, the second the Queen Alexandra Sanitarium, the third the Queen Mary Sanitarium and he was just about to fill his hand with a ing George Sanitarium when Knighthood trumped in and stopped the game.

AN ANSWER TO "FAIR PLAY"

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—It was indeed a sad and pathetic tale as told by "Fair Play" in your columns of last evening. What a bad, wicked principal to punish that 8 year old boy (who really hadn't done a thing) so dreadfully that his hands were so swollen on reaching home that he couldn't unbutton his overcoat. As a teacher, I, of course, see a humorous side to this yarn, and I think even parents (save "Fair Play") see it too, as the odd thing about this subject, punishment, is that nine parents out of ten seem to think that all children but their own should be punished. Now, Mr. Editor, it is high time that the voice of the teachers of the city should be heard on school punishment. We teachers are quite aware that some neurotic parent is ever hounding the tracks of the members of our Board of Education, pouring forth tales of the bitter wrongs inflicted on their innocent little ones (who, like George Washington, cannot lie) just because the cruel teacher enjoys that form of recreation. Not long ago a small boy went home with a story absolutely the product of a vivid imagination. His fond father assured me he was going to the "higher-hups" about it. I wasn't quite sure whether he meant the Privy Council of England or the Board of Education, but I told him to go wherever he saw fit. I could give many amusing accounts of the horrible threats received by the poor teacher, and of what will be her fate if she dares interfere with that dear boy, even if he does upset the discipline of the entire class. But before going farther let me say that never yet have I seen a mark left by a rubber strap. In spite of all the lurid tales of "swellings" never one small trace can be produced as proof. It is evident that there should be some sort of propaganda among parents as to the importance of school discipline. The idea also should be firmly established that absolutely no punishment is given by any teacher in this city save that permitted by school law, which decrees that a teacher shall be to a child as a kind, firm and judicious parent.

To-day, just outside the gates of civilization, stand the forces of Bolshevism, threatening all existing ideals of law and order, and even a greater menace than Prussianism. The best minds of our time agree that education is our strong shield against this danger. In the school room the child receives his first ideals of good citizenship, based on the fundamental principle of respect for the rights of others; he learns that established law is necessary to protect the rights of all, and that if laws are broken, punishment will follow. Now, as to the nature of punishment. Those fortunate enough to hear that famous lecturer, Beauchamp, some weeks ago, were impressed by his statement that the percentage of the crime of murder in the United States was much greater than in Great Britain and Canada. Why? Mr. Beauchamp said because the United States had practically abolished capital punishment. It is a far cry from capital punishment for the state to corporal punishment in schools, but each is effective in its place, because one of the strongest primitive instincts of mankind is the protection of the body.

I think it is generally understood that the Public schools of England, such historic institutions as Eton Harrow, Rugby, produce above all else, honest and honourable gentlemen. When a lad enters, he "fags" for the older boys, whose duty it is to flog him if he needs it, be he son of peer or commoner. When a senior needs it, he gets his flogging from the Head—and I've been told they are the real floggings, too—not a touch from a rubber strap. I have myself visited Eton, and have seen the names, carved in the ancient desks, of hundreds of the Empire's great men, past and present. The corporal punishment of their youth did not apparently ruin bodies, characters or careers.

The tendency of the modern home is so much to spare the rod, and, indeed, punishment of any kind, that did the teachers do the same, we might do well to follow the lead of some of those Russian cities, and just turn the schools over to the pupils (with similar results.) There is no progress without discipline. I myself have a good, firm, though not a harsh discipline, as have the other teachers of our school. We find a strap in the desk drawer an excellent deterrent to wrong-doing, and a good corrective to any out-and-out disregard for law as we know it in school. Moreover, before using it, we do not first inquire of the culprit just who his parents are.

Apparently most parents accept implicitly a child's version of a school punishment. Now the average child is not truthful, not because he is bad and wicked, but, so educationalists say, because falsehood is a primitive instinct, used with stealing and fighting, in the early days of the race, as man's armour against his enemies, and it must be rooted out by the process of education. Should parents, then, deliberately encourage falsehood, and also, what is nearly as bad, tale bearing? In later life, the tale bearer is in bad repute in the shop, factory, office, any place to which he brings his despicable wares.

The idea seems to obtain that because teachers have so long worked for such wretchedly small salaries, we are so spiritless that we will stand for anything at all in the way of insults. Possibly if we followed the lead of other organizations, formed a strong Union, forced salaries up sky high, and went on strike whenever the whim moved us, different impressions would prevail.

"IN THE PUBLIC EYE" By Martin J. Roche

We can exactly duplicate your lenses if you save the pieces. We rate you as exactly as if we were following the original prescription. Experienced optometrists agree that person's eyes should be re-examined at least once every two years. Your focusing accommodation is very apt to be better or worse, and a change of lens-power advisable.

A SLUGGISH LIVER CAUSED SEVERE HEADACHES

The duty of the liver is to prepare and secrete bile and serve as a filter to the blood, cleansing it of all impurities and poisons.

Healthy bile in sufficient quantity is Nature's provision to secure regular action of the bowels, and when the liver is sluggish it is not working properly, and does not manufacture enough bile to thoroughly act on the bowels and carry off the waste products from the system, hence the bowels become clogged up, the bile gets into the blood, constipation sets in, followed by sick and bilious headaches, coated tongue, bad breath, heartburn, water brash, bad taste in the mouth in the morning, jaundice, floating specks before the eyes, etc.

Miss Dian Clark, Myer's Cave, Ont., writes:—"I take pleasure in writing you concerning the good I have received by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for a sluggish liver. When my liver got bad I would have severe headaches, but I got better after I had used a couple of vials of your pills."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills gently unlock the secretion, clear away all waste and effete matter by acting directly on the liver, and make the bile pass through the bowels instead of allowing it to get into the blood.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Railway Workers Want More Pay

Eleven Thousand in Winnipeg have Filed Demands.

Special to Examiner.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 10. — Eleven thousand railroad workers residing in Greater Winnipeg are seeking more pay. They have filed demands with their employers and are waiting permission from the Canada War Board to start negotiations.

A year ago these workers embracing nine trades united for mutual enefit. They include pipe fitters, oiler makers, tool makers and pattern makers.

The present wage is 69c an hour for 47 hours weekly, but the demands call for 85c an hour for 44 hours week. Helpers now getting from 65c to 75c an hour want 70 cents.

The machinists in the contract shops also ask higher wages. They are getting 76c an hour, and will seek 85c.

ON MY BACK FOR ELEVEN WEEKS

I was this length of time on my back suffering with a Running Sore, putting my limb in hot water 5 hours a day according to doctor's directions, and then finally he wanted to lance it.

I had been advised by more than one to try "Mecca" Ointment, and I did with the result that in less than 2 weeks, I was up and walking on my front verandah. I believe "Mecca" Ointment to be the greatest antiseptic of to-day.

Union Government Looking for a Few New Props.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, April 10.—Vague rumours that are not tracked to any definite source are rife again that the Union government is after Sir Lomer Gouin's support and that Hon. J. A. Calder is conducting negotiations.

There are observers here who believe that yesterday's Quebec versus Ontario disturbances in the House, as it developed heat under Lucien Cannon's fire, was deliberate on the part of Cannon and other Quebec members, who don't want a rapprochement between the two provinces on the tariff issue.

Father Cote Will Give a Talk to K. of C. Members

LINDSAY, April 10.—Rev. Father A. B. Cote, for three years chaplain of the Canadian forces in England and France, and who arrived in Lindsay on Tuesday, will give a talk on overseas experiences to the Knights of Columbus, at the Parish Hall this evening, at the regular meeting.

A reporter had a talk with the reverend gentleman, who was very modest in referring to his experiences overseas. He had a rather unpleasant experience at one time with a high explosive shell, but fortunately the injuries received were not very serious. Four dugouts, which were occupied by Father Cote on different occasions, were also blown up, and at Passchendaele a German shell came perilously close to his tent, which was situated on an "oasis" in a sea of mud. The shell buried itself in the mud, and of course did not explode.

Rev. Father Cote is in excellent health, and although the duties of a chaplain are trying and strenuous he comes back home in a splendid physical condition, and is being warmly greeted by his many friends.

Voice of The People

'A BLACKSMITH TO HIS ANVIL'

I see in yesterday evening's issue of the papers that Mr. Sheehy is advocating a steel bridge. What does Mr. Sheehy know about the building of a steel or concrete bridge, how many has he built? I will say a steel bridge may be built some cheaper than a concrete bridge as Mr. Sheehy states, but the cure will be worse than the disease, as practically every dollar that goes towards constructing a steel bridge leaves the city, for Montreal or Hamilton. What becomes of the poor working man of Peterborough? He must beg, steal or go to the poor house, or is the city going to provide for him. I may say there are one thousand men in this city out of employment, without one weeks provision in advance, and rent to pay, what are they to do?

Mr. Sheehy seems to have considerable feeling for the rate payers by favouring a cheaper bridge. If Mr. Sheehy were so generous to the rate payers in the past as he is at present, I would ask him right here why he asked the City of Peterborough in his first tender the high sum of some three hundred and eighty thousand dollars ($380,000.00) to construct a bridge that can be built identically the same for some $100,000.00 less, (you are indeed very generous Mr. Sheehy), would you distribute this profit among the working class.

It is only the past few days that he has become so considerate, as I believe his last tender was also among the highest. Mr. Sheehy may be compared with the old "Chestnut" which said "to h— with the profits, win the war."

Miss Law and Her Customer

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Sir:—The report of the recent case of the dressmaker and her customer in yesterday's issue is identical word for word with that of the other town paper showing that it was supplied you from an interested source. Your report is wrong. The judge did say, it was a good coat for the money, but he did not and could not say it was made according to order because the whole evidence was the other way. The statement as to costs is wrong too.

Unfortunately there is no appeal from a perverse judgment in the Division Court and so the Plaintiff has to put up with a denial of justice. The judgment amounts to this, that there is no remedy for anyone entrusting valuable goods to a person to make up if she spoils them, and when persons put up a shingle they need not live up to it.

The coat is useless to the customer however good it may be and anyone that wants to see it may do so.

Yours,
The Customer.

Peterborough, April 9, 1919.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—That some effort should be made by the women of Peterborough to bring down the high prices on our city market. The idea of paying sixty-five to seventy cents a pound for butter at this time of year is outrageous, and a woman who has made many hundred pounds of butter claims at the present time at forty cents a pound a farmer's wife is well paid for her butter. Why then should they demand such prices. Every woman in our city should decide, if they have to pay such high prices, that their grocery store should be the place to buy. Every fair-minded person believes in paying for what they get, but our market prices at the present time are surely a hold-up. And the time has come for the women of our city to make some effort to stop the soaring up of prices. Hoping that something will be done to better conditions.

Fair Play.

Peterboro, April 9, 1919.

Editor, Examiner.

Dear Sir:—Will you have the goodness to permit me to use a small space in your daily for the purpose of passing a few words of comment on the G.W.V.A.

In your issue of this evening, the secretary, Mr. S. W. Whatley writes at great length in answer to "Private," in summing up which it appears to me, he is only airing a private grouch.

Now, perhaps, Mr. Whatley would like to hear of a general grouch, one which appears to be growing greater every day.

In his letter this evening he states that there are now 500 members attached to the local branch, but of these only 400 have actually seen service in France or Belgium.

If this is a Veterans' Club, then what of this extra 100 men. A veteran as I understand and I think the general public also, is a man who has seen service at the front in some theatre of war. Not one, who although physically fit, grabbed off a nice job in England or swung the lead with a yellow streak.

This is one reason why a great many returned men, who are vets, are not joining.

Then there is another one, but this does not touch the G.W.V.A. alone. This is against the city in general.

The boys fought pretty well over there, put up with quite a lot of rough stuff and all that in order that the people of this city might be able to enjoy life in the years to come as they have in the years gone by. But now that it is all over, now that there is no more danger, those who have survived are allowed to slip in as if we were ashamed of them.

As I understand it, one of the duties of the G.W.V.A. was to welcome home returning men and put them in touch with civil conditions. On this they appear to have fallen down very badly.

Although I consider myself a vet, having three years and seven months overseas service, I have no intention of joining the G.W.V.A. under existing conditions.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I am,

Respectfully yours,
VET.

RUSSIA ESTABLISHES RELATIONS WITH BAVARIAN SOVIET.

Have Got in Touch With Bavarian ituation Only of Late.

(Special to The Examiner.)

BERLIN, April 10.—Diplomatic relations have been established between the Russian and Bavarian Soviet governments, according to "Zwolfuhrblatt." As late as April 8th the Russian Soviet government had not got into touch with the Bavarion Soviet authorities, according to a wireless message of that date from Nikolai Lenine, the Russian Bolshevik Premier, who sent a message to Bela Kun, the Hungarian revolutionary leader, asking him to send details of the revolution in Bavaria. "We have only the latest announcement," Lenine's message said.

ASSAULT CASE IN POLICE COURT.

George R. Davidson, of this city, charged Mr. G. Smith, a second-hand dealer on Aylmer Street, with assault and battery. He told the Magistrate this morning that he purchased two pair of pants on Saturday, April 5, at the Smith shop, but found after he went home that one pair did not fit him. Taking them back to the store, he picked up another pair in the store, but forgot to ask if there was any difference in the price. There was. Mr. Smith made a hurried exit of his shop, and after giving Mr. Davidson a good shaking and something more unintelligible, informed him that there was a difference of 50c. in the price of the two pair of pants.

The Magistrate, in dismissing the case, said that Davidson should have asked Mr. Smith if there was a difference in the price of the two pair.

Liquor Concealed In a Trunk

License Inspector Stewart Made a Seizure on Saturday Morning.

Last Saturday, on the 5.12 a.m. C.P.R. train, a trunk containing five wooden cases, four of them each containing a dozen bottles of whisky, was seized by License Inspector Stewart. The other case was empty. The address on the trunk was Mr. Davenport, Peterborough. Mr. Stewart stated that he knew no man by that name, and the liquor was turned over to the License Department by the Magistrate.

RELEASE REFUSED.

COPENHAGEN, April 10.—The release of George Ledebour, which had been demanded by the Soviet Congress in Berlin, has been refused, a despatch from Berlin says.

BOXING BOUTS WERE LEGALIZED.

(Canadian Press.)

ALBANY, N.Y., April 10. — The Gibbs bill, designed to legalize boxing bouts in the state, was passed last night without debate in the Senate by a vote of 27 to 16.

The bill introduced recently by Senator James J. Walker of New York, which also is intended to restore boxing to its former legal status, was reported favorably last night by the Judiciary Committee.

Tempt Authorities With Demonstrations

Certain Elements in Berlin Try to Aggravate Government Troops to Attack Soviet Congress.

Special to the Examiner:

BERLIN, April 10. — Discordant elements seeking to disturb law and order to making a strenuous effort, according to an official announcement, to bring about a demonstration by wounded soldiers in connection with the Soviet Congress, now in session here. The idea behind the plan, it is said, is to provoke loyal troops to pursue cruel tactics, with the result that any conflict that might arise, might be used as a pretext to call a strike and imitate the establishment of the Soviet Government at Munich. Parades are forbidden under the martial law, which still applies to Berlin. The Government adds it was impossible for any parades to be held on the Wilhelmstrasse, where it was reported the demonstration was planned, so that the paraders might march before the Chancellory and the Foreign Office.

Greece is planning to manufacture the yield of its extensive lignite deposits into briquets as a substitute for coal.

MISSIONARY GAVE INTERESTING ADDRESS

Mrs. James Roberts, of this city, who has recently returned from India, and who has visited the mission fields there, gave a splendid address last evening at Murray street Baptist church at the annual meeting of the Women's Circle. Mrs. Robert's address was particularly interesting in view of the fact that she spoke from the angle of a layman and not that of a missionary. The meeting was largely attended.

PARENTS' CIRCLE OF QUEEN MARY SCHOOL

The Parents' Circle of Queen Mary School will hold their regular monthly meeting on Friday afternoon, April 11 at 4 o'clock in the school. FARMER DIRECTORS DID GOOD WORK AT FAIR GROUNDS

It was just the same to the farmer directors of the Exhibition Board whether it rained or shone today, as they determined to level the Exhibition grounds into shape for a ball ground and went to it with surprising enthusiasm all afternoon. Mr. W. S. Merrill, of the firm of Merill and Meredith donned a pair of overalls and drove a team harrow as his share in the activities and demonstrated the fact that the farmer is not the only man who knows anything about work. At a late hour this evening the grounds looked promising.

Bad News For the Brigadier

Thieves Entered General Ralston's Home and Made a Clean Up in the Cellar.

Burglars entered the cellar of Brig.-General Ralston's residence last night and made a great haul from the wine vault. Four doors had to be forced before the cellar was finally reached, but the thieves persevered and finally accomplished. In all eleven cases of liquor were taken, 1 case of rye, Gooderham and Worts' special; 2 cases three star Hennesey brandy; two cases Haig & Haig Scotch; two cases port wine; two cases Gordon dry gin, one case sherry and one case of French wine.

The thieves carried the cases to the northern part of the grounds near the bowling green and here the contents were removed and taken to an automobile or truck which was in waiting on Pine Street. When Mr. Tickell, who looks after the property, went over, he found the cellar doors all open. The footprints of the thieves were quite small but the supposition that it was the work of boys is hardly feasible. — Port Hope Guide.

MOTORISTS MAKE LIFE UNPLEASANT FOR PEDESTRIANS.

The police are receiving many complaints regarding the carelessness of motorists who in order to avoid the mud in front of the Quaker Oats plant, take a curve and run up on to the sidewalk on the north side of the street. Yesterday a child had a narrow escape from a big roadster which crossed the sidewalk. The police state that drivers will be prosecuted who persist in infringing on the pedestrian right of way at this point.

You Will Miss a Real Treat If You Do Not Attend the Motor Show At the Armouries Tonight Proceeds Peterboro Health Association

Special Features Will Mark the Last Night Of the Motor Show

Booths Have Been Re-decorated—The Cafe Chantant Dance Was a Big Success.

THE EXHIBITS

One of the biggest and best Motor Shows ever held in Peterboro will come to a close this evening. No effort has been spared to make the closing night the best of the three

The booths have been thoroughly replenished by the ladies in charge and re-decorated for the occasion. The flower booth has received some wonderful boxes of cut flowers and hope to make a record sale this evening. The tea room of which the Ashburnham Patriotic League is in charge will be conducted today by Mrs. R. H. Parsons and Mrs. C. H. Moore assisted by Mesdames F. Taylor, McDonald, McCartney, McCrae, Sedgwick and Lees and the Misses Primeau and McIntyre. At the Business Girls booth where fresh stocks of homemade candy continues to arrive hourly the ladies in charge today are Mrs. Drummond and the Misses Lowrie, Rose, Dennison, Hall, Horsefield, Evans, Sherwood and Richardson. The ladies at the soft drinks booth which is in charge of the Thursday Club today are: Mesdames Fortye, J. C. Smith, Mann, Carruthers, Perks, Robertson, Hill, and Breyfogle and the Misses Belcher Halliday and N. Hall. The ladies of St. Peter's Cathedral have practically changed their stock of lingerie and children's clothes, so heavy has the demand been and have an even larger stock of home made cooking on hand than heretofore.

Afternoon Reception.

Although the armistice is signed and the fighting apparently over there is still plenty of work for the patriotic societies to do, General Williams told the ladies of the different patriotic organizations yesterday afternoon when he met them at a reception in the officers' quarters at the armouries at a little reception. The General was introduced by Mrs. Joseph Mills, who outlined the work done by the ladies in the past five years. General Williams and Captain Harry Rogers both spoke briefly about their prison life in Germany and both assured the ladies that without the comforts sent by the organizations no British prisoner would have returned. General Williams reminded the ladies of the field for work which lay before them in helping the veterans and their families.

A hearty vote of thanks was moved by Miss Peck and seconded by Mrs. R. J. Dovey.

At the conclusion of the speeches, General Williams was introduced to the ladies and showed a keen and sympathetic interest in the sufferings of the families who had lost relatives in the war.

Increased Attendance.

The attendance last evening was larger, if possible, than that of the evening before. The crowds began to arrive at an unusually early hour and took a real interest in the different exhibits, particularly the splendid cars.

Progress of the Dog Fight In Europe

(Canadian Press.)

COPENHAGEN, April 11.—The Berlin "Lontal Anzeiger" is in receipt of Bavarian advices stating that the Communist Council in Munich elected a new Central Council of men, comprising five workmen and five soldiers, with Herr Klatzs, a bricklayer, as President. Communist leader Levien refused to join the Council. During the night the Communists took eleven hostages from ranks of trade union leaders, the Lokal Anzeiger's report adds. They forced their way to many police stations, disarmed the police and took police commissioners and sergeants as hostages.

GOING GOOD

The Pre-Easter Reduction Sale at P. Blacks store, George St., next to King St., is still going and going good. The spring prices and the new spring goods have brought crowds to this store.

Will Purchase Dairy Plants

(Special to Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man. April 11.—R. D. Hughes, Toronto, started today to arrange for the purchase of all privately owned dairy plants by the city. Mr. Hughes pointed out that in Toronto the price paid to producers was higher than the price paid by Winnipeg firms to milk producers while the selling price in both cities had been the same.

Back Pay for Railway Men

United States Ruling Will Affect Canada.

(Special to Examiner)

TORONTO, April 11.—The railways of Canada will need to pay to engineers, conductors and brakemen and other employees in the operating service over $1,100,000 back pay according to the new wage order of the U.S. Railway Administration, which automatically becomes operative on Canadian Railways. Last August the Railway Brotherhoods in Canada agreed to the establishment of the Canadian Railway Adjustment Board No. 1 It is composed of the Vice Presidents of the Railway Brotherhoods in Canada, and representatives of the railways in Canada. This Board settles all disputes between the Canadian Railway War Board which has the administration of the railways, and the employees in the operating departments.

The chairman of this Board is S. N. Berry, Vice-President of the Order of Railway Conductors, whose home is in Toronto. Last August the Adjustment Board agreed that the increases granted by the U.S. Railway Administration should automatically apply to the Canadian roads. The U.S. Administration has awarded the increases and made them retroactive until January 1st, 1919. The increases, according to officials, of the men will effect from 25,000 to 30,000 men on Canadian Railways, and the back pay will amount to a big sum.

Trained Squirrel a Movie Star

Mickey's Pet Squirrel Develops Dramatic Situation.

One of the many charming features in "Mickey" to be shown at the Grand Theatre to-day and Saturday is a pet squirrel who will go straight to the hearts of all the children. And "children" serves a good alibi for Ma and Pa, for most of these things that are "for children" are like the toy railroad which little Johnny gets for Christmas and never gets a chance to play with because his father has it all day.

The squirrel does a comedy scene with a pet bulldog that is delightfully natural. Mickey's bull terrier makes one dive for the squirrel and Brer Squirrel stands not on the order of his going. He beats it for dear life. Mickey wears boy's clothes during the first part of the play and the squirrel sprints up her trouser leg.

The hero tries to save the lady from the squirming squirrel and his gallant efforts looks very peculiar to Mickey's foster father, who hastens up bent on murder and sudden death And then he sees the squirrel and joins the rescue party.

And, by the way, Mickey ought to get the Iron Cross for her courage. Pshaw! Any girl might lead an army like Jeanne D'Arc, or just save children in burning houses, or jump off cliffs, or any little thing like that. But to let a rat or a squirrel run up your clothes! Ooooo! If there were a call for volunteers to save the country by letting rats run up dresses, the only answer would be a yell fading away in the distance.

Peterboro Boy Reaches Halifax

BOLSHEVISTS SURRENDERED

Opposing Force Has Succeeded in Isolating Munich—Wurzburg Captured.

FORMIDABLE ARMY

By Frank J. Taylor.
(United Press.)

BERLIN, April 11.—Wurzburg has been captured and Munich entirely surrounded by forces of the deposed Socialist government, according to advices received here to-day.

After retreating from Nuremburg to Bamburg, Premier Hoffman, of Bavaria, and several of his ministers, are reported to have succeeded in rallying a formidable Soviet army consisting of soldiers, workmen and students. A large force retook Wurzburg (40 miles northwest of Munich) from the Bolsheviki after a brief encounter yesterday. Most of the Soviet officials and soldiers are said to have surrendered. Another force has surrounded Munich, completely isolating it.

ANNUAL MEETING OF MISSION CIRCLE

Officers Elected for the Year—Delegate to Branch Meeting.

The George street Mission Circle held its annual meeting for the purpose of electing the officers for the coming year at the home of Mrs. aJs. Kendry, Water street, last evening. A goodly number were in attendance. The officers elected were as follows:

President—Mrs. A. Throop.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. (Dr.) Middleton.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Miss A. Elson.
Recording Secretary—Miss Hatherley.
Corresponding Secretary— Miss M. Smith.
Treasurer—Mrs. Wellwood.
Supt. Systematic Giving — Mrs. (Rev.) Thomas.
Supt. Mite Boxes—Miss M. Cooper.
Delegate to the Branch Meeting — Mrs. (Dr.) Weldon.

Mrs. Parker, of Trinity church, gave a very inspiring and interesting talk on the Resurrection, which was most appropriate at the Easter season.

After the business meeting a social hour was spent which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

A Few Birds Were Shown

Meeting of the Peterboro Poultry Association.

In spite of the attraction of the Motor Show at the Armouries there were quite a few birds on exhibition at the Trades and Labour Hall on Wednesday evening, but not as many poultrymen present as there probably would have been.

Mediterranean classes were on exhibition and there were Black Leghorns shown by Mr. Lush, Duckwing and White Leghorns by Mr. Routly and Ancona by Mr. Dickenson. Mr. Brault, who had been appointed judge awarded the sweepstake badge for best bird shown to a Black Leghorn hen. First, second and third cock were placed in the following order 1st to a White Leghorn, 2nd Black Leghorn and 3rd Duckwing Leghorn.

The owners of birds belonging to the American class are asked to bring them to the next meeting on the 2nd Wednesday in May. Mr. Lush has promised to be on hand to judge them.

No Reduction In Local Power Rates

The reduction in power rates announced by Sir Adam Beck this week does not apply to Peterboro judging by the fact that the local Hydro office has not been advised of any change here. Mr. H. O. Fisk, manager of the Peterboro Utilities Commission, stated that Peterboro enjoys power rates that are probably the lowest in the province. During the war there have been no advances in the charges, and Mr. Fisk expressed the opinion that if any reductions had been fixed for local consumers the Commission would have been notified.

Agreement Has Been Reached

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, April 11. — The Peace Conference has reached an agreement on all questions concerning peace with Germany, reparation, indemnities, and frontiers on the Rhine and Poland, according to an interview with the private secretary of Premier Lloyd George. Certain delays remain, and, it is added, they will be settled in two or three days. The German delegates will be summoned to Versailles within two or three weeks

Investigation Was Resumed To-day

How Entries Were Made of Liquor Seized.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, April 11.—Difficulty was experienced in securing a quorum for the meeting of the Public Accounts committee of the Legislature this morning, and it was after 11 o'clock before Mr. J. F. Mowatt resumed the stand. The witnesses filed a copy of invoices of seized liquor sold to T. A. Woods, and also a copy of amount stored in the standard warehouses during the operation of the O. T. A.

Replying to Mr. H. H. Dewart, Mr. Mowatt said the copy of the amount in the warehouse was prepared from an account book in the Department. This book was entered from memoranda suplied by inspectors who took in the goods.

Mr. Dewart mentioned 37 barrels seized at Guelph, all of which, with two exceptions, were sent to hospitals. These two were entered as shipped to O.A.C. Mr. Mowatt could not explain this as he was not concerned with it in the course of duty.

An entry of 15 barrels to "Ontario Government Velledito" was explained by J. D. Flavelle to be the amount shipped to Hospitals for the Insane. It was explained that the license fee for each vendor was five dollars.

TROOP MOVEMENTS ON CANADIAN PACIFIC

The Equivalent of Twenty-two Battalions Carried by C.P.R. During March.

Lt.-Col. Walter Maughan, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Canadian Pacific Ry., and Chairman of the Railway Committee on Demobilization, says that during the last month, for which returns are available, the one way mileage of Canadian troop trains was 103,750 miles, which has to be doubled to show the actual distance run, as the equipment has to be returned after unloading the troops. This totals 219,500 miles or more than 8 1-2 times the distance around the world.

In this movement there were carried 23,537 of all ranks, or the equivalent of 22 battalions, and they were moved all distances up to a maximum of 3,730 miles, Halifax to Vancouver. 76 special trains were run, requiring 956 engines, 97 baggage cars, 109 standard, 86 tourist and 603 colonist sleepers, 47 diners and 67 commissary cars, or a total of 1,009 cars. If these cars were put into one train they would stretch for nearly 18 miles.

No less than 4,663 railway employees, or more than four complete infantry battalions, were engaged in transporting the troops.

208,007 course meals were served to soldiers and, when the meals required by train employees on the round trip is added to this, the total number is brought up to about a quarter of a million.

The coal consumed in the round trip movement of the special trains during the month totalled 11,194 tons or 22,388,000 lbs.

FRANK JENNE Says:

"Semi-ready" — it means man's clothes made by a company called the Semi-ready Corporation—though twenty years of successful operation has given it a secondary meaning—well-tailored clothes, finished to the try-on stage.

There is only one genuine Semi-ready—and the way to know it is to find the label and the maker's price value sewn on the inside of the pocket.

There is only one Semi-ready Store in each town and city—just as there is only one postoffice and one customs house—for efficiency and economy of production and distribution makes the one label price possible—the same East as West.

TO SEIZE GERMANY

Confirmation of Bolshevik Plan Received in Paris—Refuse to Carry Out Peace Terms.

WORLD WIDE REVOLT

(United Press.)
(By William Philip Simms.)

PARIS, April 11. — Confirmation of a Bolsheviki plan to seize Germany as the initial step in a world-wide proletariat revolution, has been received in government circles here, it was announced to-day.

According to available information, the Bolshevik scheme is this:

The Spartacans, possibly with the acquiescence of the present government, will assume the administrative power in Germany during or immediately after the Versailles congress.

Once in control, the Spartacans will greet the allied demands with folded arms and a general attitude of "Do what you like but as far as we are concerned we will do nothing" — meaning they will refuse to pay indemnities or carry out any of the other peace terms.

The Spartacans thus hope to force the allies to occupy central Europe which they believe would embitter the allied peoples against their governments.

ACTIVE PROPAGANDA.

With the allied armies in the interior of Germany, the Spartacans would carry on an active propaganda to convert the troops to Bolshevism. Confident of their success in this the Spartacans believe the troops, returning to their own countries, would carry the seeds of revolt into a soil made fertile by the miscarriage of the Versailles peace terms, combined with the general social unrest in the world.

CLOSER ALLIANCE.

Meanwhile a closer alliance between the Russian and Hungarian Soviet governments is being effected, according to the official advices received here.

M. Lamelle, the personal representative of Premier Lenine, is said to have arrived in Budapest. He is reported to have promised the Hungarians an army of 150,000 to aid them in strengthening their control of the country. Lenine, it is said, contnues to counsel moderation for the Hungarians and advises them to avoid the Russian excesses. He hopes soon to establish physical communication with Hungary, which is impossible at present, because of the fact that strong Rumanian and Czechq-Slovak forces now form a barrier.

Lenine also is reliably reported to be making preparations to instill Bolshevism in Rumania and Bulgaria, thus directly linking Russia up with Hungary and Bavaria.

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

Railway Board's Report in Hands of Government—Apprehension of Country Members.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, April 11. — It is understood that the decision of the Board of Railway Commissioners regarding daylight saving is in the hands of the government and that it will be announced in the House to-day.

Predictions are that the Board's decisions that it has no jurisdiction, although rural members might fear the Board's decision would then be in favour of the new time. Parliament itself, most authorities believe, could order the railways to revert to standard time. Whether or not it will attempt to take such a step is a matter of doubt.

Ottawa Keenly Interested In Result of Yesterday's Quebec Beer and Wine Vote

It is Almost Certain There Will Be Some Modification of Prohibition Measure.

RESULT EXPECTED

(Special to the Examiner.)

OTTAWA, April 11. — Ottawa is keenly interested in the result of the Quebec beer and wine vote. The result was as expected here.

It is almost certain that there will be some modification of the prohibition orders in council when they are transformed into legislation at this session.

There are those who think that the alcohol content will be raised for the whole of Canada, but a more careful opinion is that the manufacture of beer and wine will be permitted in those provinces where the vote is allowed.

The Federal government does not deal with the sale but merely with importation, manufacture and interprovincial shipment.

There is a recent precedent for the government in allowing the manufacture where sale is permitted. In Ontario, under the Ontario Temperance Act, the sale of native wines was not prohibited, and an exception in their favor was also made by the Federal government in the form of an extension of time in which they might be manufactured.

OVER 100,000.

(Canadian Press.)

MONTREAL, April 11. — With a large number of the more distant points in the province to be heard from, "wet" majority registered in referendum yesterday in favor of light wines, cider and beer jumped to 100,000 this morning, and was expected to go still higher.

The temperance element, which was inclined to be very downcast last night at the landslide, this morning was more cheerful. While the bone-dry prohibition aimed for has not been achieved, the leading temperance advocates here pointed out that substantial victory has nevertheless been secured, because the people yesterday showed unmistakably, they say, that they want "hard stuff" done away with. The vote also means the abolition of the bar, it is argued, as the establishments securing licenses wil have to provide seating accommodation for all patrons

(Special to Examiner.)

MONTREAL, April 11. — That the ballot boxes were stuffed in some sections of the city in yesterday's referendum, is the accusation made by S. J. Carter, the President of the Dominion Alliance.

Increase For Railway Men

(Special to Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, April 11—Train and engine men on lines of the national railways to-day were granted another increase in wages by Director Gen. Hines. The order effects more than four hundred thousand employees and the increases are retractive to January the first. Claims of the employees for the time and a half for overtime in road service was left to a board for decision.

Agreement Is Reached

Re-arrangement of the Command on the Siberian Front.

(Canadian Press.)

HARBIN, April 11.—It is announced in the newspaper controlled by General Semenoff, published here, that complete agreemnt has been reached between General Semenoff and General Ivanoff-Rinoff, representative of Admiral Kolchak, head of the Omsk government. General Semenoff, it is said, will be commander of special far eastern corps and also hetman of the far eastern Cossacks, under the orders of General Ivanoff-Rinoff. General Semenoff will be subordinate to Lieut.-Gen. Horvath, who will be in direct control of administration of Cossack territory in Eastern Siebria. The Omsk government will provide funds for the maintenance of General Semenoff's corps and General Semenoff will mobilise his troops under government section, being allowed broad powers in enlisting volunteers. General Kalminkoff, Cossack commander on the Ussuri river front, is going to the front with his own troops and part of those mobilised by General Semenoff. As a result of agreement between the leaders, Tungusian and Buriatic troops in Trans-Baikalia are on the same basis as the Cossacks.

Government Will Not Interfere

Looks on New Order of Things With Passive Approval.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, April 11.—The weakening of the German Government's prestige has, according to reports from legations in adjacent countries, tended to weaken official attitude toward the signing of the peace treaty, and President Ebert is reported as having stated in conversation with an intimate friend, that the government would have to sign any peace the Allied and Associated governments imposed.

All reports from Germany indicate that the Weimar government will not venture on any attempt of active intervention in Munich for which forces at its disposal are entirely inadequate, and will confine itself, like the majority Socialists of Bavaria, to an attitude of passive approval. It is felt here that all its strength will have to be reserved to combat the tendency for extension in other directions of the movement for establishment of a proletarist republic, in which the present majority leaders would play but a small role owing to their commitment to principles of existing government and keen bitterness and hostility which have developed between them and the Independent Socialist party, to say nothing of open warfare between them and the Spartacan group.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MR. E. G. STEPHENS WILL BE HELD TOMORROW

The funeral of the late Mr. E. G. Stephens will take place tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock from the family residence 56 Hilliard street, to Little Lake Cemetery. The deceased is survived by his wife who was formerly Miss Beatrice Crowe, daughter of the late Richard Crowe and former member of Warsaw Council and ex-Warden of Peterboro County. Four daughters also survive. He was a member of the Independent Order of Oddfellows and the Independent Order of Foresters. The late Mr Stephens was forty-one years of age.

LADIES' HAIR DRESSING

The ladies will be interested in learning that Mrs. Harry Mann, of 569 George Street, is now prepared to attend to orders for hair dressing, shampooing, and hair treatment, in her residence at the above address. Mrs. Mann is well equipped to fill engagements in these lines, and to prescribe safe and successful hair tonics whenever needed. She invites the patronage of the ladies. 2d-7t

WHAT WOULD YOU DO

Without your eyes? Your health, personal efficiency and earning power depend largely on eyesight. Unknown to you, your eyes may be failing. To know that you are seeing clearly and without strain have your eyes examined. An examination does not always mean glasses. See W. H. Lacey, Exclusive Optometrist, 410 George street.

FRIDAY, APRIL 11TH, 1919.

GENERAL WILLIAMS.

Brigadier General Williams, the new officer commanding No. 3 Military District, has, during his visit to Peterborough, succeeded in making a very favourable impression upon the officers of the city, the members of the Great War Veterans' Association, and upon the public generally. In his addresses at the various receptions at which he was a guest, General Williams, while demonstrating that he is not an orator, spoke like a soldier and a gentleman, and his straightforward talk won the regard of his hearers. A veteran of the war himself and a man who has been wounded and suffered the privations coincident to being a prisoner of war in German hands, the General is naturally sympathetic towards all returned soldiers, a very necessary quality at the present time for the important position he offers. The impression he created here was that men who have fought in the great war can always count upon a friendly hearing and a square deal from General Williams, and that they need have no hesitation in forwarding any legitimate complaint to him for investigation.

THE QUEBEC RESULT.

That the result of the referendum in Quebec is a distinct blow to the prohibition forces cannot be denied. While it was evident during the past few weeks that there was a strong sentiment in favour of the sale of light beer and wine and temperance leaders were apprehensive of the result, it was not anticipated that the vote in support of the "wet" policy would reach such proportions, and the huge majority of over 100,000 in favour of the sale of beer and wine, is the worst setback the supporters of prohibition have met in many years. There are those who say that the result in Quebec yesterday is prophetic of what will happen in Ontario when the referendum is taken in this province. That is a statement in which the wish, perhaps, is father to the thought, and that is based on guesswork. The question in Quebec was a clear one. The people had merely to say whether or not they wanted to permit the sale of beer and wine. It was a simple case of "yes" or "no." On the other hand the electors of Ontario have to indicate their choice of four propositions—or rather have to express their opinion on four questions. The ballot is involved and the different alternatives offer opportunities for a split in the vote, so that it is difficult to forecast the result with any accuracy and any prophecy, based on the vote in Quebec can be nothing more than a guess. The result in the lower province will probably have no effect one way or another upon the local situation, beyond robbing the Ontario temperance forces of a chance to use the slogan, "Do you want Ontario to be the only wet spot on the continent?"

MISAPPREHENSION

The varied opinions that different labour organizations in Peterboro have expressed, show unmistakably that many of the labour officials and members have so far utterly failed to appreciate the ideals or the objects of the Board of Trade. The Trades and Labour Council declined to have anything to do with the Board on the ground that it never accomplished anything. On the other hand the Independent Labour Party instead of viewing the Board as a useless and ineffective organization, see in it "a snare and menace to community service," and a "masquerade of the dominant class interests." There is certainly a wide difference of opinion in these two views, and neither of them seems to be justified.

It will be admitted of course by the Board of Trade officials themselves that the results in the past have not been as complete as they would have liked. The reason is not hard to find. It lies in the apathy of the citizens generally to the aims and objects of the Board and in the suspicion and distrust of sections of the city's population. To be of real value to a community a Board of Trade or Chamber of Commerce must be supported and endorsed by all classes of citizens. So long as one element can find it its objects only a plot to promote the financial interests of its members, the work of the Board will be handicapped and interfered with. It is unfortunate that there should be any misunderstanding on this point and those who are real friends of Peterboro and anxious to see this city progress, will hope that the day is not far distant when the objects of the Board of Trade will be seen in their real light.

THE CIVIL SERVICE

Confirmation of the Examiner's complaints of extravagance and unnecessary expenditure in many of the Government departments, has been furnished by Hon. Frank Carvell, Minister of Public Works, who admitted to the House on Wednesday that the Civil Service had been unbusiness-like every since Canada was a country and at the present time is "overloaded, overmanned, glutted." The Minister confessed that in his own department there is a number of clerks whose services are not required and who are not giving value for the wages they receive, and further than that, there were many government officials who could be dismissed without detriment to the public service.

The remedy proposed to deal with the intolerable condition of affairs as proposed by Hon. Mr. Carvell is retire or pension those officials who have outlived their usefulness. There will be no complaint over this proceeding if the men who are to be so treated have been long and faithful servants of the country. But there will be protests loud and long if the removal of these officials is followed by the appointment of a new lot of camp followers. The pensioning of long-term officials is a desirable step but what the public demands is a real cleaning up of the departments. It is not the old worn-out civil servants that the people complain of—it is the aggregation of hundreds of useless officials who should be turned out to find positions somewhere else. It is said that most of those who comprised the staff of the Food Board have been given other billets while the Government continues to maintain the Department of Public Information and other equally unimportant departments which are nothing else than sinecures for the welfed and well-paid officials who draw good salaries for nominal service. The cleaning up that Hon. Mr. Carvell talks about should be a thorough operation, not merely transferring the older officials to the pension lits and appointing new officials in their places, while the parasites continue to hold their snug berths.

ON ADVERTISING.

For more than a year a combination of Canadian newspapers of the principal cities from coast to coast have been conducting an advertising campaign on behalf of Canada in a number of eminent American journals. Indirectly, of course, the Canadian newspapers sought to attract advertising patronage, which is the lifeblood of the publishing business, but in a general way the advertising copy talked up Canada as a nation, and gave some attention to the importance we have assumed as a buying power, and as a location for American industries.

Well-prepared advertisements, graphically written and illustrated, were furnished by one of Canada's best advertising agencies, and the newspapers went into the "club" in all the leading cities. Both local papers were in the campaign, and it is gratifying to know that the expenditure has brought results. It proves that Canada can sell its goods in the American market. The newspapers had advertising space to sell. They believe in advertising. They picked the best mediums for reaching those who use advertising space. And they sold the space in greater quantity than they had expected.

We are glad to say the newspapers have given a lead to the rest of the country, in this instance. They have blazed the trail for selling many things Canadian in the American market. They have realized that those 100,000,000 people across the line are ready to buy from Canadians. He who runs may read. The lesson is there to be read by all to whom the idea may be applied.

For instance, all of the municipalities in Western Ontario are after American industries. We are fighting for them with local organizations and local industrial commissioners. We are getting them by means of disconnected, individual effort. There is no team work about it, but rather the reverse. Perhaps our methods drive away a good many industries. Perhaps we do not go after the kind that are peculiarly suited to different localities.

What is to hinder a number of Canadian municipalities, such as Hamilton, London, Brantford, Woodstock, Ingersoll, Chatham, Sarnia, Guelph, Galt, and dozen others, from banding together for a big drive to put our country over? Co-operative effort would get more for all, and be a stronger campaign, just as the campaign of twenty newspapers for Canada was a much stronger effort than the campaign conducted by one newspaper could have been.

We have got to advertise Canada. We have to give the people to whom we wish to sell a picture of our field and an impulse to come over with their factories and help to develop with the country. The manufacturer who never tries to sell his goods excepting in his own, high tariff country, may learn something from the newspapers which jumped the fence and got some of the legitimate fruit in the neighbouring orchard.—London Advertiser.

LARGE HATS AT SIMMONS FUR CO.

An Interesting Array of Millinery, Coats, Suits, Blouses and Dresses.

The Arcade Store of the Simmons Fur Co., George Street, have been strongly catering this spring for a share of the patronage of the ladies for their spring millinery and ready-to-wear. Just now both these departments are in full bloom with an interesting display of millinery and ready-to-wear. Dame Fashion has allowed herself plenty of latitude here in which to greet the joyous Easter Season of 1919. The styles are universally becoming, as are also the delightful color combinations.

Large Hats reflect the Springtime gladness. Easter is but one week away and a spring hat is a necessity. The Simmons Milliners have displayed very artistic taste and their handiwork has produced millinery creations which reflect on their skill and ingenuity. There is a wide choice of large floppy hats, also hats with curved brims and hats of the smalled or happy medium variety, very moderately priced.

Spring Coats and Suits and natty new Blouses also appeal to the feminine eye. There is a delightful array here for review, and it's a daily happening to have a "parcel" of the nattiest and newest creations drop into this section.

Dresses in various new materials are shown, slender and elegant of line, as well as very smartly tailored. The favorite trimmings for these models are used. Taffeta is extremely popular in their handsome shades and colors, and the printed Georgettes and willowy silks are quite lovely.

A special sale of Poplin Dresses is at present being held at the following reduced prices:

$14.00 Poplin Dresses for ..... $ 9.95
$18.00 Poplin Dresses for $11.95
$20.00 Poplin Dresses for $12.05
$22.50 Poplin Dresses for $13.95
$25.00 Poplin Dresses for $14.95

BRITISH PRICES STAY UP

Will Be "Only 30 Per Cent. Higher" Than 1914 Level, Minister States

LONDON.—The Ministry of Reconstruction is convinced that while prices in Great Britain may be expected to fall from the present war record, "it is out of the question that they should fall to anything like the 1914 level in the near future. With luck, the general level for the next decade may be only 25 to 30 per cent. higher."

This information is contained in a pamphlet issued by the Ministry and sold to the public. After pointing out that prices were advancing before war was declared, it explains the various causes which have combined to bring about the great rise of the last four years. Reduced output, increased freight rates, limitation of imports and issuance of paper money are assigned as the principal causes.

WOMAN KILLS MAN TENANT IN QUARREL OVER LEASE.

NEW YORK, April 11.—In a dispute over a lease Samuel Silverberg, of No. 2,809 West Seventeenth Street, Coney Island, was shot and killed by Mrs. Rebecca Wansker, of the same address. When arraigned in the Coney Island Court Mrs. Wansker told Magistrate Dodd that she killed Silverberg in self defence. She waited examination and was held without bail for the Grand Jury.

According to the police Mrs. Wansker leased part of her house to Silverberg. Two weeks ago Mrs. Wansker had Silverberg in court and charged him with attempting to assault her with an axe. The case was dismissed. Silverberg went to Mrs. Wansker's apartments to renew the subject of the lease. During the discussion, she declared, Silverberg struck her repeatedly in the face and attempted to choke her. She broke away from him, fired two shots, one of which penetrated his heart. She called attention to scratches on her nose and finger marks on her throat to bear out her allegation that Silverberg had attacked her.

The dead man lived with his wife and four children. Mrs. Wansker has a young son.

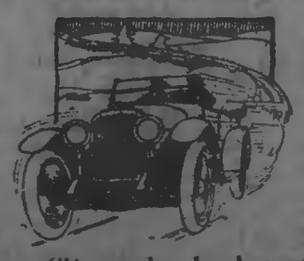
Everybody Talking About It



Heretofore many Motor Car owners have been sending their money out of town for Accessories and Supplies.

Now they are jubilant over the fact that they can buy all the supplies they require at the same prices, without any delay or express charges, at the Duffus Garage, Wholesale and Retail.

City and suburban garages are delighted with this department of the Duffus Garage which enables them to procure standard Parts and Supplies without delay or difficulty, instead of having to wait or to carry costly stocks themselves.

The Peterboro Horticultural Society

"Peterboro Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed"

The following letter has been received by the Peterboro Horticultural Society:

To the Officers and Members of the Horticultural Societies of Ontario:

The splendid success of last year's activities is a ground for special gratification on the part of our members. While the floral work was not seriously neglected, yet, our most strenuous efforts were exerted in the great national food-production campaign; the responsibility of leadership and direction falling in many cases, upon our organization. "Greater Production" must still be our slogan for the present year ,and the enlistment of every energy for the great campaign against famine and the pestilence that walks always in its wake. This is necessity's imperative command; Opportunity's beseeching call.

The Great War, we believe, is over and the rich morning-glow of Peace's newest, brightest day lies all across the land. Our boys are flocking back to us out of the black horror of war that for four years has swallowed them up. Yet the faces that we miss, of our valiant, unreturning dead bespeak the glory of their sacrifice and the tragedy of our loss. That their noble deeds shall never be forgotten is the firm conviction of every loyal and red-blooded citizen and a growing movement is already under way to commemorate by the erection of suitable monuments their deeds of valor. Not all will be of sculptured marble or of granite; parks and boulevards will no doubt b every popular and I trust our members will lend themselves to the worthy task of the artistic decoration of these parks, while even the sculptured marble will require an appropriate setting of trees and shrubs and flowers to bring out its chiselled beauty.

Our membership has reached the gratifying point of Seventeen Thousand Five Hundred, but we set Twenty thousand as our goal for this Peace year. It is my earnest hope that the officials and members will face the task with enthusiasm and make this a banner year. We believe that the increased efficiency of our Board, due to the infusion of new blood into our directorate will contribute much to the realization of this hope.

Realizing that mainly upon us lies the responsibility for the cleanliness and arboreal and floral beauty of our cities, towns and rural districts let us be diligent in securing new members for our societies. This is bound to develop in our fellow-citizens an enhanced appreciation of the beautiful and is likely to secure their active co-operation in placing flower-beds, trees and shrubs where they will transform what today are hideous blemishes upon our landscape into arbors of fragrance and of beauty.

And, now thanking you in anticipation of your united efforts for the highest well-being of our beloved Ontario.

I am,
Yours sincerely,
Wm. Hortry,
President.

Demonstration Was Squelched

Spartacans Parade Streets in Rome.

(Canadian Press.)

ROME, April 11. — A group of Spartacans, carrying a red flag, attempted a demonstration here to-day, but the public attacked the crowd and dispersed it. Several of the Spartacans were heard and others were arrested.

There ensued an enthusiastic demonstration in honour of the army, and the victory of the allies. Many cries were heard of "Long Live the King," "Long Live our Italian Fiume."

A Rome despatch of April 9th said the Socialists there had decided upon a general strike for 24 hours on memory of Dr. Karl Liebnecht, and Rosa Luxemburg, kiled during the winter demonstrations in Berlin, and also in honour of the birthday of Nikolai Lenine, the Russian Bolshevik premier. It may be stated that the government had forbidden meetings by both the anti-war and pro-war Socialists, fearing grave clashes would result.

GREAT INTEREST IN McLAUGHLIN EXHIBIT AT SHOW

GREAT INTEREST IN McLAUGHLIN EXHIBIT AT SHOW.

See the Newest Model Car With California Permanent Top.

A very complete and varied exhibit of McLaughlin cars is that of A. Brown & Co., at the Motor Show this year. A hearse and seven different models are displayed and great interest was shown by the large crowd of spectators last evening.

One has only to note the number of McLaughlin cars on the streets of Peterborough to get an idea of the splendid success this firm has had in the past, and judging from the great interest displayed at their exhibit the McLaughlin has lost none of its popularity.

The exhibit comprises a McLaughlin Hearse, a Seven Passenger 49, Five Passenger Extra Special, a 45 Mistomarue Touring Car with California stationary top, a 44 Special Roadster, a 62 Coupe (five passenger), H-63 Special and H-63 Standard.

Particular interest centred aroond the Mistomarue car with the California top. This is the very latest idea in automobile tops and illustrates that the trend is to do away with the old folding top.

The McLaughlin Hearse displayed has been procured for D. Belleghem, undertaker, and this firm has been using a McLaughlin Ambulance for the last couple of years, this will make two up-to-date vehicles equipped with McLaughlin motors.

A. Brown and Co. are agents for the Republic Truck Co., in Peterborough, and it it was expected that two of these trucks would have been here for the show, but owing to freight conditions they may not arrive for a day or two. If it so happens that their arrival is too late for the motor show, they will be displayed at the company's show rooms on Water street and will be well worth looking at.

The Republic Truck Co. has purchased a large tract of land at London, Ont., and will build a Canadian factory at once according to a letter received by Mr. Brown this morning. This will greatly facilitate deliveries among Canadian purchasers.

To Relieve Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness, or who are growing hard of hearing know that this distressing affection can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances had effected complete relief after other treatments have failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. Therefore, if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength.) Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until disolved. Take one tablespoon four times a day.

Parmnit is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflamation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air presure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are nearly always quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form or distressing, resembling, hissing sounds in their ears, should give this recipe a trial.

GLOVES of WASHABLE CAPESKIN And Others

There's a Wide Selection, too, in the Ever-Popular, Ever-Fashionable Silk Gloves

With Spring gales whistling in our ears, and the Spring sunshine greeting our eyes, we commence to doff our winter garb, and among the first to go is the muff, that warm friend on biting days. With our hands thus unprotected from the public gaze our thoughts naturally turn toward gloves.

Then too, it's so near Easter-time, when new gloves are absolutely essential—for everyone knows that Easter gloves are almost as famous as the Easter egg.

With an eye to this necessity, the following suggestions are made to help you choose:

Washable Capeskin gloves, very well cut from especially pliant skins, may be had in white, natural, brown and black. With plain or fancy backs. Priced at $2.50, $2.95 and $3.25

Plain Kid gloves, fine soft qualities, come in white, tans and black, and are priced at..... ....$2.00 and $2.50

Something extremely smart, yet so useful, are the brown kid motor gloves. Made in gauntlet style. Price.....$2.50

Silk Gloves may prove the solution to your color problem. In the new sand and dust color, white, black, taupe and smoke grey. "Queen Quality" and "Kayser" makes, and the prices are from ....75c to $1.50

LIFE IN RUHLEBEN CIVIL PRISON CAMP

Interesting Lecture in St. John's Last Evening.

Under Auspices of Young Men's Class at St. John's Last Evening.

Mr. J. Davideon Ketchum, son of the late Judge Ketchum, of Cobourg, gave a fine lecture in St. John's Sunday schol last evening on his experiences while a prisoner in Camp Ruhleben, Germany. Dr. G. S. Cameron was the chairman of the evening and introduced the speaker to the audience. Mr. Ketchum gave a graphic account of camp life from the standpoint of a prisoner from the beginning to the outbreak of the revolution. The lecturer has evidently been in close contact with German information, and it was most interesting to compare the impression of the German people in regard to the war and the ending of it with the facts of the case.

The picture which he gave in Ruhleben Camp with its popualtion of over 4,000 civilians of every rank, kind and condition was most interesting, and was given with many touches of humour. He gave few harrowing details, but especially brought the brighter sides of camp life such as they were. There were many alleviations to the dullness and monotony of their position and most of these were contrived by the ingenuity of the different prisoners. The whole camp was divided into sections and each section competed to add to the general uplift and entertainment of the whole area. It was largely a successful struggle to overcome the tedium and oppression of their imprisonment by social and religious agencies. Mr. Ketchum was one of the first forty prisoners to be sent to the camp, having been arrested on the first day of the war. The camp was then occupied by thousands of Russians and were shortly afterwards sent elsewhere and their places taken by British civilians from all over the German Empire. There, confined, were many men of note in the worlds of society, art, literature and all walks of life, including a British nobleman. At first they loked for release by Christmas, 1914, but this only came with the signing of the armistice in November, 1918. A large measure of self-government through organizations, was granted the prisoners, which tended to interest them and alleviate some of their difficulties.

Mr. Ketchum gave a brief outline of the events leading up to the revolution and also an insight into the present conditions in Germany. The whole lecture was punctuated by expressions of appreciation from the audience, and at the conclusion, Mr. C. E. Jamieson, on behalf of the Young Men's Class, under whose auspices the lecture was held, expressed the appreciation of the audience to Mr. Ketchum for his splendid lecture on a subject which is little known in this country.

Reclassification of Civil Service

Postal Clerks Will Likely Get All of Demands—Attitude of Western Men Not Known.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., April 11.— An interim reply on certain points has been sent by the government to the postal clerks. It is understood that the gist of the government's case is that a re-classification of the whole civil service is now proceeding, that such a change will likely give the postal employees most of the things they are asking for, and that meanwhile the government can't step in themselves by anticipating altering or ignoring the work of re-classification now in progress. There seems to be some confusion as to how far the western postal men were prepared to go. It was reported that they were determined upon a strike, but some of their officials say that such was not their intention. Meanwhile the eastern men decided to co-operate with the west in their demands, and also talked of a strike.

The situation remains obscure and unsettled.

Large Increases For Railroad Men

$85,000,000 Extra Pay This Year—Retroactive to Jan. 1, 1919—Only Few Minor Difficulties Now.

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Wage advances aggregating $85,000,000 were ordered to-day by Director-General Hines for four hundred thousand railroad engineers, firemen, trainmen and conductors in both passenger and freight service, members of the Big Four Railway Brotherhoods, retroactive since Jan. 1, 1919. The average advance in pay per man per year will be about $180. This action practically completed the war cycle of wage increases granted the railroad men since the government took over the management of roads 15 months ago. Only a few minor requests for more pay remain to be acted upon.

Including to-day's order, aggregate pay increases allowed by railroad administration to two million railroad employees, is at the rate of $362,311,000 a year, more than $400 average per man.

BAVARIA WILL NOT BE INCLUDED IN THE PEACE TREATY.

(United Press.)

BASLE, April 11. — The allies have notified the German government that Bavaria will not be included in the peace treaty, a despatch from Stuttgart reported to-day.

Such action by the allies would be regarded as virtual recognition of the independence of Bavaria, though not necessarily of the new Soviet government.

Wheat Outlook Is Uncertain

General Principle Now War is Over is Against Fixing Price

LONDON, April 11.—Members of the Supreme Economic Council today stated it was extremely difficult to express an opinion as to the fixing of the price of Canada's wheat crop. The world's food situation is still vague, as there is little knowledge of the probable production of central south-eastern Europe. The acreage of Poland, Ukraine, Roumania, Serbia, and Bulgaria is certain to be much below normal, therefore the demand for foreign wheat in these countries will be great.

It is too early by many months to estimate the American crop, and the principle, now the war is over is against fixing the price. The unrest in all countries is largely owing to the scarcity of food and the high cost of living, and any artificial bolstering of the price of wheat will be extremely dangerous. It is possible that wheat may, if the crops are not good, go above $2.25. Even $1.75 should give Canadian farmers a fair profit.

Brigadier-General Williams Addressed the Veterans

Complimented G.W.V.A. Upon Excellent Work They Are Carrying on in Peterboro—Commanding Officer of No. 3 District Makes Most Favourable Impression Upon Peterboro's Returned Soldiers.

The ears of the individual who wrote the letter in yesterday's issue of the Examiner, criticizing the Great War Veterans' Association, must have been burning last night, for General Williams, the officer commanding No. 3 Military District, who paid a visit to G.W.V.A. headquarters last night, vigourously condemned the spirit of the letter-writer in the course of a tribute to the excellent work that is being carried on by the Association and expressed the opinion that the manly course would have been to write his complaint over his own signature. "I was so stirred up when I read that letter," said General Williams, "that I was tempted to write a reply myself."

There was a large turnout of War Veterans in the G.W.V.A. rooms to greet the General Officer Commanding. The G.W.V.A. band was in attendance and the General Salute was played as General Williams arrived. He was introduced to gathering by Capt. A. S. Morrison, president of the G.W.V.A., who after expressing the pleasure of the veterans at the visit of General Williams, referred briefly to the progress that the Association is making in Peterboro.

General Williams in a soldierly and manly talk made a very favourable impression upon the Veterans present. In beginning he complimented them upon the splendid work they were carrying on and upon the good reports he had heard of the work of the ladies auxiliary. It was a pleasure, he said, to be able to be present because he felt there was a bond of fellowship between men who had gone over the top together and suffered together. He informed them that his office at Kingston was always open to them and that he would be at their service whenever they felt that he could be of assistance to them.

The speaker passed on to deal with his experiences in Germany, giving some very impressive details of what he had seen while a prisoner of war. "It is up to your Veterans to keep the Bosche out of Canada," he declared, and applause.

Speaking of the debt that Canada owed to her returned soldiers, General Williams said that he felt impatient when he heard people saying that we must do this or that for our men who have fought. "You men don't want to be pampered," he said. "All you want is a square deal. Am I not right?"

And there was a lusty affirmative shown.

General Williams remarked that he had promised to help them; now he promised to ask them to help him by assisting in the re-organization of the active militia. They had done their bit overseas, and he was ——? felt that they did not want to don the khaki again, but there was work to do here and he urged them to give the matter every consideration. It was desirable that the militia should be thoroughly re-organized and the returned soldiers could play a big part in the work. He suggested that a Veterans company should be formed, composed of officers and men who had fought overseas.

He paid a hearty tribute to the Veterans band which he said was a magnificent organization and a great asset to the Association, and expressed his willingness to assist them in any way possible. The speaker also congratulated the Veterans upon their excellent quarters and expressed the hope that when he next came to Peterboro he would find them located in their new building which would make admirable club quarters.

Capt. A. S. Morrison and Secretary Whatley of the G.W.V.A. pointed out several ways in which General Williams could assist the local Association and the General Officer Commanding promised to see that great coats were secured for the band, and rifles and the necessary harness for the quadriga for use at military funerals. Secretary Whatley also called attention to the fact that number of local returned soldiers who were discharged last year were without uniforms, having to turn them in in order to get their clothing allowance and General Williams said that he would deal with that matter also on his return to Kingston.

Three rousing cheers were then given for General Williams, after which the meeting was brought to a close with the National Anthem.

Mabel Normand At the Grand

Picture is Full of Action---A Vast Track Scene.

Mabel Normand, the celebrated film star, was never seen to better advantage than in her latest production "Mickey", show at the Grand Opera House, last evening and to be repeated to-night and to-morrow afternoon and evening.

The story opens in a mining community in the western states with Miss Normand in the title role as Mickey, the daughter of a hard working placer miner who has been struggling for 20 years to obtain "paying dirt." Mickey as uncontrollable and guileless on the hills on which she lives is inconsolable when told that she must leave her home, her trousers and the only mother she ever knew, an old Indian squaw to go to New York to become a lady. She must leave her sweetheart, Mr. Thornhill from New York who is visiting in the west. In New York after many escapades with the daughter of the house and with the head servant she meets Mr. Thornhill. The mother and daughter enraged at the success of Mickey with Mr. Thornhill, because the young mining promotor is regarded as a ladder by the match-making mamma by which to ascend from the financial hole in which the family finds itself, Rescued fro the clutches of the son of the house by Mr. Thornhill, Mickey without more ado accepts him for her protector for life.

The picture is full of action and life and is one of the best vehicles in which Miss Normand has appeared. The race track scene is a thrilling episode and the race between an express train and a motor car, reminiscent of a similar scene in "The Whip" is one of the most exciting features of the big picture.

Aerial Flight Overseas May Start To-day

(Special to The Examiner.)

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., April 11.— That Lieut. Harry Hawker would start to fly across the Atlantic in his Sopwith airplane some time to-day, was the belief expressed by responsible aircraft officials here. The Governor inspected the Sopwith plane this morning, and it is believed that if good weather continues to prevail, Hawker may make his start this afternoon.

Lakefield Man Seriously Hurt

Automobile Became Too Friendly With James Hendren.

LAKEFIELD, April 11.—While Mr. James Hendren was repairing his automobile on Wednesday he started it up, and as the brake had not been set it rushed forward and caught him against a post and broke his left leg near the thigh.

Doctors Fraser and Smith were soon in attendance and reduced the fracture, which proved to be a bad one.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Eadie, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Riddle, left on Wednesday for their home at Penticton, British Columbia.

Mr. Albert Graham went to Peterborough on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Staples, of Cobourg, are the guests of the latter's aunt, Mrs. John Hall, on their honeymoon.

The funeral of the late Mary Nugent, wife of the late Jeremiah Moore, was held from the residence of her brother, Mr. Samuel Nugent, to the Lakefield Cemetery.

She had died in Toronto, her body being brought here by train.

Rev. Frost is holding a series of special meetings this week in the Methodist Church.

City Baseball League Organized For Season

At an enthusiastic meeting in the Empress Hotel last night at which Rev. Father Gorman presided, the Peterboro City Baseball League was re-organized for the season. There were applications for admission from two new teams, the Great War Veterans and the Lakeview Athletic Club, and two of last year's teams, the Riversides and the Thistles, dropped out so that the membership of the League this year will consist of the two teams, and Matthews-Blackwell, the DeLaval and the Thistles, although it was decided last night to hold a place open for a while for a sixth team if any organization wishes to enter.

The folowing officers were elected:

Hon. Pres., Mayor Duncan and Mr. W. Patterson.

Hon. Vice-Presidents, Messrs. J. H. Burnham, M.P., and G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P.

President, Gordon Matthews.

Vice-President, Rev. Father Gorman.

Sec.-Treasurer, Horace Walkey.

Executive—One member from each team.

Messrs. W. Patterson and Dan McCabe were appointed representatives to the O.B.A.A., and Mr. McCabe will attend the meeting of the Ontario Association in Hamilton on Saturday.

Questions as to the grounds and as to what action should be taken in regard to the Central Ontario Baseball Association, were left to the executive, which will meet on Wednesday, April 23rd. It was decided to enter the Ontario Association.

South Central Baseball Team

Yesterday evening the boys of the South Central School met together to organize for baseball and other sports for the season of 1919. The following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres.—Mr. J. A. McKone.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—Dr. Wightman.
Pres.—Mr. K. S. Wightman.
Secy.-Treas. and Manager—Mr. F. E. Kerr.
Mascots—Masters K. French and Geo. Sukloff.
Executive Committee—One representative to be elected from each of the three senior rooms.

Ottawa Keenly Interested

Mr. Carter says that over and over again votes were cast by men who proclaimed themselves to be the owners of names that were on the electoral lists but who in reality bore no such names and had no vote in the district. Scrutineers could not be provided for all the polls, said Mr. Carter.

A QUIET DAY.

MONTREAL, April 11. — Yesterday's referendum was one of the quietest polling days Montreal has ever seen. While there was considerable interest in the balloting, as shown by the large number of votes cast, there were practically no instances out of the ordinary and no demonstrations of any kind during the day, apart from some scattered cheering around the bulletins as the "wet" majority piled up. There was no excitement during the night.

An examination of the results as tabulated this morning shows that there were 74 polls in Montreal, in which not a single "No" ballot was cast. Laurier division is the leader in this regard, with 14 polls without a "No" vote. Westmount and St. Anne divisions were the only ones where there were no polls without a "No" vote.

In one of the polls in Griffin Town, where there is a big workingman's vote, a bottle of whiskey reposed in state near the returning officer's table. It was wrapped in crepe as a silent reminder of the "dear departed." Many of the voters, who were well known, and in the "know," were directed outside the door after casting their ballot, and a bottle containing something more than 2½ per cent. beer was awaiting them if they cared to imbibe.

Returns from the country districts are coming in very slowly, and it will probably be some days before the final result is known. There seems little doubt however that the majority in favor of beer and wine will reach beyond the one hundred thousand mark.

MONTREAL, April 11. — It is of interest to note that Richmond Co., which is represented in the Legislature by Hon. Walter Mitchell, who fathered the referendum bill, voted "dry" by a majority of 104.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, April 11.—Federal legislation on prohibition will be brought down in the House of Commons shortly after Easter, and in the meantime the government is considering the situation resulting from yesterday's vote in Quebec for beer and wine. As things stand at present the Dominion's legislation, by order-in-council, prohibits the manufacture or importation of wine anywhere in any province. It is understood that the new Dominion legislation will make provision for provincial rights in this matter, giving provinces that desire it the privilege of manufacturing or importing, but preventing such manufacture or importation in provinces who don't want it.

Wants Bridge to Correspond

Editor, Examiner,—

The new Hunter Street Bridge is built, it is neither concrete nor steel, it is a "wind bridge," owing to an abundance of hot air. The Council seems to act the same as the old man and his jackass, trying to please everybody they please nobody and lose the bridge into the bargain. Had they gone ahead with the matter on due time all the idle labor in the city could have been employed this last six weeks or more and their wages spent with the business men of the city. The Quaker Oats Co. did not dilly-dally about erecting their one-and-a-half million dollar plant. If the Council cannot handle the proposition why not turn it over to the G.W.V.A. or I.O.D.E. and not play the dog in the manger. We want a beautiful bridge to correspond with our beautiful city and a bridge built with home labor.

Farmers Organize Branch of U.F.O.

Address delivered at Havelock Meeting—Officers Elected.

HAVELOCK, April 11.—A local branch of the United Farmers of Ontario was organized at a large meeting of farmers in the town hall here when matters of great interest to them were discussed.

Addresses were delivered by E. N. McDonald, the County Chairman, of Warsaw; Mr. McRae of the Dept. of Agriculture, Norwood; Mr. O'Grady, the Manager of the Stock Dept., Indian River, and Wm. Barry, the County Secretary of Norwood.

The following officers were elected:

President—W. E. Griffith.
Vice-President—Jno. H. Scott.
Secretary-Treas.—W. H. Johnston.
Directors—J .B. Rylott, Bert Wannamaker, Jno. M. Wright, D. Burgess A. C. Buchanan and Wm. Anderson.

Messrs. J. H. Scott Jos. Johnston and J. A. Dafoe were appointed a Committee to arrange where the meetings were to be held and to notify the members accrdingly.

Messrs. J. H. Scott Jos. Johnston, J. B. Rylott and D. Burgess were appointed as delegates to a Special County Meeting held at Norwood yesterday, at which the advisability of bringing out a candidate to contest the Riding against either Grit or Tory, would be considered. The delegates to this meeting were to be men who would sacrifice the old party spirit to the cause of the U.F.O. and unite as one in the fight for the interests of the farmer.

REVOLUTIO IN BAVARIA SPREADING TO BADEN.

May Unite Two Soviets.

(Canadian Press.)

COPENHAGEN, April 11. — The revolutionary movement in Bavaria has spread to Baden and agitators are now working in Karlsruhe, Mannheim and other large towns. Agitators are said to be attempting to start a revolution and to proclaim a Soviet Republic in Baden and unite Baden with the Bavarian Soviet government.

Theft Case Was Dismissed

Figures Proved to Be Too Confusing for the Court

An ordinary public school arithmetic match took place in police court this morning with the Crown Attorney matching his adding powers against those of Magistrate Dumble.

Seigel and Lansky, butchers at 315 Charlottee street charged their erstwhile clerk, Mr. Blake Cullen with the theft of $151 which Mr. Charles Seigel asserted Cullen took from the cash taken in by him from the sale of meat.

Mr. Seigel in the box stated that the business was strictly cash. Cullen had entire charge of the shop except when the Hebrews bought their meat, when Seigel took charge. They had no cash register, Mr. Cullen putting the money in his pocket and accounting for it at the end of the week by the amount of meat which had been brought into the shop and the amount left. Seigel tried to supply figures to the Bench, showing how much meat had been put in the shop and at this juncture the Crown Attorney and the Magistrate indulged in a little public school work. The column would be about half added when Seigel would throw in an extra $49 or $20.50, etc., which would set the two calculators off their track. At last the evidence became so muddled up through the refusal of Seigel to reply directly to the questions of the Crown, that the Magistrate dismissed the case, saying that it was impossible for the meat company to know whether Cullen had taken any of the sales or not.

Do You Suffer From Hyperopia?

Hyperopia means Farsightedness.

If your work is being done at a little too great a distance between the eye and the hand it is evident that you need glasses.

Why put the extra strain on your eyes and run the risk of permanently destroying your eyesight?

Walter Jarvis Was Injured in Car Barns This Morning

Walte Jarvis, 35 Conger street a motorman on the street railway, was severely shaken up this morning by a fall into one of the pits in the car born on King street. These pits are sunk between the rails to enable the repair men to work at the under parts of the trucks. Mr. Jarvis was crossing the tracks to enter his own car. Passing in front of an intervening he stepped on its fender and at that moment the car started, throwing him backward. He clutched the fender of another car that was standing over part of the pit. This helped to break his fall into the pit, but failed entirely to save him. One leg was bruised and twisted, and his arms were strained. As a result it is expected that Mr. Jarvis will be confined to his home for a week or more. Employees stated that no blame attached to the motorman of the car that since he did not see Mr. Jarvis when he stepped on to the fender.

"Pure Alcohol" Freezes in West

Good Story Comes from Edmonton, Alberta

Unknowingly or otherwise, the police of Edmonton have evidently "pulled" a good one on a dispensary at Montreal, to judge from testimony submitted before the public accounts committee of the legislature at Edmonton, Alberta. Some 25 barrels of alcohol which were sent from Edmonton to the Montreal company, under the supervision of the provincial police, and which are said to have been lost in Hamilton for four days, en route, arrived at their destination "a mass of ice." That "pure alcohol," seized by the Edmonton police and sold to the Montreal firm, should arrive there in a congealed condition is nothing short of amazing. License Inspector James Sturdy said that "alcohol has been known to withstand a temperature of 50 degrees below zero and has seldom been known to freeze." As a result of the transaction in "pure alcohol" which froze stiff, the government vendor's office in Edmonton, Alta., and certain purchases by Chief Inspector Forster are now involved in an investigation which is still in progress.

Railroad authorities here state that they know nothing of the shipment that is alleged to have been lost for four days here. Neither does Inspector Sturdy nor the Hamilton Importing company. But an opinion was expressed to the effect that alcohol, if it was alcohol, could not remain within the confines of the Ambitious City for four whole days and escape the local pack of "booze hounds."

SOVIET GOVERNMENTS ARE EXTENDING

Ten Thousand Workers Drive Out Managers of Iron Smelting Plants.

(Canadian Press.)

VIENNA, April 11.—German-Austria is coming under the influence of the establishment of Soviet governments at Munich and Budapest. At Donawits, 10,000 workers in the iron smelting plants have driven out the managers because the latter have refused to grant increased wages.

GREAT PROGRESS IN PEACE CONFERENCE LAST TWO DAYS

(Special to Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11. — The Peace Conference has made more progress in the last two days than in the previous two weeks, private advices to the White House stated.

The officials were plainly pleased with the turn of events and the cables to-day indicate that the American delegates in Paris expect a settlement of the major questions shortly.

In Siberia a dissatisfied husband tears his wife's cap or veil off and that constitutes a divorce.

BULGARIA'S CLAIMS.

1. That King Ferdinand was imposed on Bulgaria by the Great Powers.

2. King Ferdinand was responsible for Bulgaria's entry into the war on Germany's side.

3. That the armistice sought by and granted to Bulgaria helped materially to shorten the war.

4. That there can be no just or lasting peace in the Balkans without righting the wrong done to Bulgaria in 1913 when Macedonia was divided between Greece and Serbia, the district of Kavalla was given to Greece, much of the district of Dobrogea was given to Roumania, and a considerable part of Thrace was given back to Turkey.

DEATH SUMMONS
REV. MR. HAZELWOOD

Was For Many Years Outstanding Figure in Methodism in Ontario.

TORONTO, April 10.—In the death of the Rev. J. H. Haselwood, who passed away yesterday morning at his residence, 80 Summerville Gardens, the Methodist church loses one of its strongest supports. Dr. Haselwood was an outstanding figure in Methodism, and was field secretary of the Department of Evangelism and Social Service of the Methodist church since 1913, when he left the pulpit. For the last year he had been in poor health, and for four weeks had been confined to bed, though his death from heart failure was sudden at the last.

Dr. Haselwood was born in Brockville and was in his 63rd year. He entered the ministry in 1882, studying at Wesley College, Montreal, and was ordained in 1887. He came to Toronto from Hamilton fourteen years ago, and was pastor of High Park Avenue and Central Methodist churches.

GUM TENDERNESS —A TOOTH-MENACE

It is true that four out of five people over forty suffer from gum-shrinkage, or Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease). But many people even under thirty have Pyorrhea. Women, particularly after the baby comes, are peculiarly subject to Pyorrhea. At such time they cannot be too careful about their teeth.

Pyorrhea commences with tender gums, or with gum-bleeding, at tooth-brush time. Gradually the gums become spongy. They inflame and then shrink. The teeth become exposed to decay at the base and tiny openings in the gums become the breeding places of disease germs which infect the joints—or tonsils—or cause other ailments.

Beware of that first gum tenderness! Try Forhan's for the gums. It positively prevents Pyorrhea, if used in time and used consistently. No ordinary tooth paste will do this.

And Forhan's cleans teeth scientifically as well. Brush your teeth with it. It keeps the teeth white and clean.

If gum-shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment. 30c and 60c tubes. All druggists.

LOW WAGES CAUSE NEGRO MIGRATION

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10. — Hunger wages and lack of employment during a large part of the year are assigned as among the causes of negro migration from Mississippi in a report on negro migration in 1916 and 1917, by R. H. Leavell, of Mississippi, just issued through the office of the Director of Negro Economics, Department of Labour. Wages in Southwest Mississippi rarely exceed seventy-five cents a day, Mr. Leavell reports, though a range from fifty cents to $1 appeared in his investigation.

The volume of migration from Mississippi to the North cannot readily be determined, but an estimate by W. T. B. Williams places the figure for Mississippi at about 109,000 in approximately eighteen months.

A number of causes contributed to the movement, among them the disastrous storm of 1916 and the boll weevil, which necessitated means of cultivation that required less labour power. Improved living conditions in the North, described by those who had already left the State, proved a great factor in inducing others to go. The increased death rate from pellagra in 1915 and pellagra mortality figures in general apparently have a direct relation to wage rates. Pellagra is due to a monotonous low protoid diet, which can be corrected by using meats, vegetables and cereals in greater abundance.

Try Magnesia For Stomach Trouble

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour Gassy Stomachs and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless, if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little [illegible] not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bisurated magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form. Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach, which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn, and the bloated or heavy lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that, provided you take a little bisurated magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards— Receipts, 48 cars, with 519 cattle, 388 calves, 1,264 hogs, and 34 sheep and lambs.

The market was a little slow and draggy, but on the whole there was a pretty fair clean-up at about steady prices. One or two loads of choice quality were held over, their owners refusing to let them go at the prices bid. Packers are fairly well supplied for the Easter trade, and the market is not quite so keen on the heavy steers. Selected choice baby beeves sold at good prices, one selling at $19, and good butchers around $16.50 to $16.

THE CHRISTIAN'S BANK.

I have a never failing bank,
A more than golden store,
No earthly bank is half so rich.
How then can I be poor?
'Tis when my stock is spent and gone
And I without a groat
I am glad to hasten to my bank
And beg a little note.

Sometimes my banker smiling says,
Why don't you oftener come,
And when you take a one-pound note
Why not a larger sum?
Why live so nigrardly and poor,
Your bank contains splenty,
Why come and take a one-pound note
When you might well have twenty?

Yes, twenty thousand ten times told
Is but a trifling sum
To what your father has laid up
Secure in God his son,
Since then my banker is so rich
I have no cause to borrow,
I'll live upon my cash to-day
And draw again to-morrow.

I've been a thousand times before
And never was rejected,
Sometimes my banker gives me more
Than asked for or expected,
Sometimes I've felt a little proud
I've managed things so clever,
but, ah, before the day was gone
I've felt as poor as ever.

Should all the banks in Britain break,
The bank of England smash,
Bring in your notes to Zion's bank
You'll surely get your cash,
And if you have but one small note
Fear not to bring it in,
Come boldly to this throne of grace
The banker is within.

All forged notes will be refused
Man's merits are rejected,
There's not a single note will pass
That God has not accepted.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

'Tis only those beloved of God
Redeemed by precious blood,
That ever had a note to bring,
These are the gifts of God.

Base unbelief will lead the child
To say what is not true,
I tell the soul that feels self lost
These notes belong to you,
The Leper had a little note,
Lord if you will you can,
The Banker cashed his little note
And healed the sickly man.

We read of one young man indeed
Whose riches did abound,
But in the Banker's book of grace
This man was never found,
But see the wretched, dying thief
Hang by the Bankers' side,
He cried dear Lord, remember me,
He got his cash and died.

J. H. TAYLOR.

THE OLD ADAM.

He was a staunch supporter of the kirk, but he also had a dash of sporting blood in his veins.

One Sawbath morn, as he was proceeding to the kirk with his Bible under his arm, he came upon a group of laddies playing football on a piece of waste ground. He watched the game for some minutes; then, when there came a lull, he called the boys over to him.

"Eh, laddies, ye knaw it's verra wrang tae play fitba' on the Sawbath! Ye maunna dae it. Whaur dae ye think ye'll gang when ye dee if ye play fitba' on the Laird's day? And you, ma mannie" — indicating the captain—"why don't ye shoot oftener for goal? Ye dribble far ower much! Ye're nuthr, feckless players, the lot o' yel!"

LOW WAGES CAUSE NEGRO MIGRATION

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10. — Hunger wages and lack of employment during a large part of the year are assigned as among the causes of negro migration from Mississippi in a report on negro migration in 1916 and 1917, by R. H. Leavell, of Mississippi, just issued through the office of the Director of Negro Economics, Department of Labour. Wages in Southwest Mississippi rarely exceed seventy-five cents a day, Mr. Leavell reports, though a range from fifty cents to $1 appeared in his investigation.

The volume of migration from Mississippi to the North cannot readily be determined, but an estimate by W. T. B. Williams places the figure for Mississippi at about 100,000 in approximately eighteen months.

A number of causes contributed to the movement, among them the disastrous storm of 1916 and the boll weevil, which necessitated means of cultivation that required less labour power. Improved living conditions in the North, described by those who had already left the State, proved a great factor in inducing others to go. The increased death rate from pellagra in 1915 and pellagra mortality figures in general apparently have a direct relation to wage rates. Pellagra is due to a monotonous low proteid diet, which can be corrected by using meats, vegetables and cereals in greater abundance.

Try Magnesia For Stomach Trouble

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour Gassy Stomachs and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless, if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief. But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little Bisurated magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bisurated magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form. Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach, which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn, and the bloated or heavy lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that, provided you take a little bisurated magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards— Receipts, 48 cars, with 519 cattle, 288 calves, 1,264 hogs, and 34 sheep and lambs.

The market was a little slow and draggy, but on the whole there was a pretty fair clean-up at about steady prices. One or two loads of choice quality were held over, their owners refusing to let them go at the prices bid. Packers are fairly well supplied for the Easter trade, and the market is not quite so keen on the heavy steers. Selected choice baby beaves sold at good prices, one selling at $19, and good butchers around $15.50 to $16.

THE CHRISTIAN'S BANK.

I have a never failing bank,
A more than golden store,
No earthly bank is half so rich.
How then can I be poor?
'Tis when my stock is spent and gone
And I without a groat
I am glad to hasten to my bank
And beg a little note.

Sometimes my banker smiling says,
Why don't you oftener come,
And when you take a one-pound note
Why not a larger sum?
Why live so niggardly and poor,
Your bank contains splenty,
Why come and take a one-pound note
When you might well have twenty?

Yes, twenty thousand ten times told
Is but a trifling sum
To what your father has laid up
Secure in God his son.
Since then my banker is so rich
I have no cause to borrow,
I'll live upon my cash to-day
And draw again to-morrow.

I've been a thousand times before
And never was rejected,
Sometimes my banker gives me more
Than asked for or expected,
Sometimes I've felt a little proud
I've managed things so clever,
but, ah, before the day was gone
I've felt as poor as ever.

Should all the banks in Britain break,
The bank of England smash,
Bring in your notes to Zion's bank
You'll surely get your cash,
And if you have but one small note
Fear not to bring it in,
Come boldly to this throne of grace
The banker is within.

All forged notes will be refused
Man's merits are rejected,
There's not a single note will pass
That God has not accepted.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in; about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

'Tis only those beloved of God
Redeemed by precious blood,
That ever had a note to bring,
These are the gifts of God.

Base unbelief will lead the child
To say what is not true,
I tell the soul that feels self lost
These notes belong to you,
The Leper had a little note,
Lord if you will you can,
The Banker cashed his little note
And healed the sickly man.

We read of one pound man indeed
Whose riches did abound,
But in the Banker's book of grace
This man was never found,
But see the wretched, dying thief
Hang by the Bankers' side,
He cried dear Lord, remember me,
He got his cash and died.

J. H. TAYLOR.

THE OLD ADAM.

He was a staunch supporter of the kirk, but he also had a dash of sporting blood in his veins.

One Sawbath morn, as he was proceeding to the kirk with his Bible under his arm, he came upon a group of laddies playing football on a piece of waste ground. He watched the game for some minutes; then, when there came a lull, he called the boys over to him.

"Eh, laddies, ye knaw it's verra wrang tae play fitba' on the Sawbath! Ye maun dae it. Whaur dae ye think ye'll gang when ye dee if ye play fitba' on the Laird's daye And you, ma mannie" — indicating the captain—"why don't ye shoot oftener for goal? Ye dribble far ower much! Ye're nuir, feckless players, the lot o' yell"

AVOID ALUM IN FOOD

Baking Powder is one of the most important food ingredients. Alum or other injurious acids are frequently used by some concerns to lower the cost of production.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER

Contains No Alum

It is a pure phosphate baking powder and is guaranteed to be the best, purest and most healthful baking powder possible to produce.

W. Matthew Williams, in "Chemistry of Cooking," says: "Phosphates are the bone-making material of food and have something to do with building up of brain and nervous matter."

Some Cobalt People Against "Uplift"

COBALT, April 9. — To offset the possible evil effects of too much 'uplift," the citizens of Cobalt are forming a "Citizens' Protective League," which they anticipate 75 per cent. of the voters will join.

The objects of the league are as follows:

To watch all legislation that has restrictions against personal liberty.

Have the member representing the district report all legislative measures to the league that have a bearing on personal liberty.

Members to pledge themselves to vote for the candidate who will guarantee to stand up in the House, and fight on any question that the league considers is against the personal liberty of the citizen.

The league is to be non-partizan, and non-sectarian. Membership fees, $1.00 a year.

Similar leagues will be formed in all districts of Timiskaming. It is anticipated that as soon as the ideas are understood local leagues will be formed all over Ontario.

MRS. BALFAME

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON

Poor Dr. Anna, uncompromisingly plain from youth, worshipped beauty; moreover, a certain mental pressure of which she was quite unaware caused her to find in Enid Balfame her highest ideal of womanhood. She herself was never trim; she was always in a hurry; and the repose and serenity the calm and sweet dignity of this gifted being both fascinated and rested her. That Mrs. Balfame took all her female adorers had to offer and gave nothing but enhanced her worth. She knew the priceless value of the pedestal, and although her wonderful smile descended at discreet intervals her substantial feet did not.

Dr. Anna, who had never been sought by men and had see too many of them sick in bed to have a romantic illusion left, gave to this friend of her lifetime, whom the years touched only to improve—and who was never ill—the dog-like fidelity and love that a certain type of man offers at the shrine of the unattainable woman. Mrs. Balfame was sometimes amused always complacent; but it must be conceded that she took no advantage of the blind devotion of either Dr. Anna or her numerous other admirers. She was far too proud to "use" people.

Mrs. Balfame seldom discussed her domestic trials even with Dr. Anna but this most intimate of her friends guessed that her life with her husband was rapidly growing unendurable. She was, naturally, the family doctor; she had nursed David Balfame through several gastric attacks, whose cause was not far to seek.

But despite much that was highly artificial in her personality, Enid Balfame was elementally what would be called, in the vernacular of the day, a regular female; for a fortnight she had longed to talk about Dwight Rush. This was the time to gratify an innocent desire while watching sharply for an opportunity to play for higher stakes.

"Anna!" she said abruptly, as they sped along the fine road, "women like and admire me so much, and I am passably good looking—young looking, too—what do you suppose is the reason men don't fall in love with me? Dave says that half the men in town are mixed up with those telephone and telegraph girls, and they are pretty in the commonest kind of way—"

"Enid Balfame!" Dr. Anna struggled to recover her scandalised breath. "You! Do you put yourself in the class with those trollops? What's got into you Men are men. Naturally they let your sort alone."

"But I have heard more than whispers about two or three of our good friends—women of our age, not giddy young fools—and in our own set. Why do Mary Frew and Lottie Gilming go over to New York so often? Dave says it isn't only that women from these dull little towns go over to New York to meet their lovers, but that some of them are the up-town wives of millionaires, or the day-time wives of all sorts of men with money enough to run two establishments. It is a hideous world and I never ask for particulars, but the fact remains that Lottie and Mary and a few others have as many partners among the young men at the dances as the girls do; and I can recall hints they have thrown out that they could go farther if they chose."

"This is a busy country," remarked Dr. Anna dryly. "Men don't waste time chasing the prettiest of women when convinced there is nothing in it—to borrow the classic form. Young chaps, urged on by natural law to find their mate, will pursue the indifferent girl, but men looking for a little play after business hours will not. Why, you—you look as cold and chaste as Caesar's wife. They couldn't waste five minutes on you."

"That's what he said—that I was like Caesar's wife—"

"Enid!" Dr. Anna stopped the little machine and turned upon her friend, her weary face compact and stern, "Enid Balfame! Have you been letting a man make love to you?"

"Well, I guess not." Mrs. Balfame tossed her head and bridled. "But the other night, when I left your house, Mr. Rush was passing and saw me home. He nearly took my breath away by asking me to get a divorce and marry him, but he respected me too much to make love to me."

"I should hope so. The young fool!" But Dr. Anna was unspeakably relieved. She turned faint at the thought that her idol might be as many other women whose secrets she alone knew. "What did you say to him?" she asked curiously, driving very slowly.

"Why, that I would not be a divorced woman for anything in the world."

"You're not the least bit in love with him?" asked Dr. Anna jealously.

Mrs. Balfame gave her silvery shallow, care-free laugh. It might have come from any of the machines passing, laden with young girls. "Well, I guess not! That sort of foolishness never did interest me. I guess my vanity was tickled, but vanity isn't love—by a long sight."

Dr. Anna looked at the pure cold profile, the wide cool grey eyes, and laughed. "He did have courage, poor devil! It must have been—no, there was no moonlight. Must have been the suggestion of that old Lovers' Lane, Elsinore Avenue. But if you wanted men to make love to you, my dear, you could have them by the dozen. Nothing easier—for pretty women of any age who want to be made love to. As for Rush—" She hesitated, then added generously, "he has a future, I think, and could take you somewhere else."

"I should be like a fish out of water anywhere but in Elsinore. I have no delusions. Forty-two is not young—that is to say, it is long past the adaptable age, unless a woman has spent her life on the move and filling it with variety. I love Elsinore as a cat loves its hearth-rug. And I can get to New York in an hour. I think she would be the ideal life with about two thousand dollars more a year, and—and—"

"Dave Balfame somewhere else! Pity Sam Cummack didn't turn him into a travelling salesman instead of planting him here."

"He's never been interested in anything in his life but politics. But I don't really bother about him," she added lightly. "I have him well trained. After all, he never comes home to lunch, he interferes with me very little, he goes to the Elks every night soon after dinner, and he falls asleep the minute he gets into bed. Why, he doesn't even snore. And he carries his liquor pretty well. I guess you can't expect much more than that after twenty-two years of matrimony. I notice that if it isn't one thing it's another."

"Good Lord! Well, I wish he'd break his neck."

"Oh, Anna!"

"Well, of course I didn't mean it. But I see so many good people die—so many lovely children—I'm sort of callous, I guess. I make no bones of wishing that he'd died of typhoid fever last week, instead of poor Joe Morton, who had a wife and two children to support, and was the salt of the earth—"

"You might give Dave a few germs in a capsule!" Mrs. Balfame interrupted in her lightest tones, although she turned her face away. "Or that untraceable poison you once showed me. A bottle of that would finish him!"

"A drop and none the wiser." Dr. Anna's contralto tones were gloomy and morose. "Unfortunately, I am not scientific enough for cold-blooded murder. I'm a silly old Utopian who wishes that a plague would come and sweep all the undesirables from the earth and let us start fair with our modern wisdom. Then I suppose we'd bore one another to death until original sin croped out again. Better speed up. I guess. I've a full evening ahead of me."

CHAPTER IV.

The "smart set" of Elsinore was composed of the twelve women that could afford to lose most at bridge. Mrs. Balfame, who could ill afford to lose anything, but who was both scientific and a lucky player, insisted upon moderate stakes. The other members of this inner exclusive circle were the wives of two bankers, three contractors, two prosperous merchants, one judge, one doctor, and two commuters, who made their incomes in New York and slept in Elsinore. These ladies made it a point of honour to dine at seven, dress smartly and appropriately for all occasions, attend everything worth while to which they could obtain entrance in New York, pay an occasional visit to Europe, read the new novels and attend the symphony concerts. It is superfluous to add that the very foundation of the superior social status of each was a large house of the affluent type peculiar to the prosperous annexes of old communities, half brick and half wood, shallow, characterless, impersonal; and a fine car with a limousine top. The house stood in the midst of a lawn sloping to the street, unconfined by even the box hedge and undivided from the neighbouring grounds. The garage, little less pretentious than the mansion, also faced the street, for all to see. There was hardly a horse left in Elsinore, taxi cabs awaited the traveller at the station, and people that could not afford handsome cars purchased and enjoyed the inexpensive runabout.

Divorce is the old lunch that follows love's banquet.

It is sometimes better to try and fail than never to have tried at all.

The louder a man talks — well, you know what there is in a bass drum.

Gosh! How my back aches!

After influenza or colds the kidneys and bladder are often affected—called "nephritis," or inflammation of the kidneys.

This is a red-flag of danger—better be wise and check the further inroads of kidney disease by obtaining that wonderful new discovery of Dr. Pierce's known as "Anuric" (anti-uric), because "Anuric" expels the uric acid poison from the body and cures those pains, such as backache, rheumatism in muscles and joints.

Naturally when the kidneys are deranged the blood is filled with poisonous waste matter, which settles in the feet, ankles and wrists; or under the eyes in bag-like formations.

Dr. Pierce's Anuric is many times more potent than lithia and often eliminates uric acid as hot tea melts sugar.

Port Horn, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Anuric is the best kidney remedy I have ever taken. For many years I suffered with my kidneys. I would have backaches, my eyes would puff, and I would have dizzy spells. I also suffered with my bladder, would have scalding and burning when I didn't and full of sediment. I have taken nearly every well-known kidney remedy on the market, but I have received more relief since taking Anuric than all the rest. My back does not bother me and the secretion has cleared and I am not smart or burn. I am better in every way than I have been for years.—Chas. Scott, Retired.

The Admiral's Broom—and—Up From Somerset H. Ruthven McDonald 216053

"The Admiral's Broom" is a ballad, vigorous and tuneful, having all the swing of a rollicking song of the sea and possessing breadth of bigness as well as strength of workmanship. This rousing baritone song as rendered by Ruthven McDonald is remarkable for clearness of enunciation, and the listener will have no difficulty in following every word.

"Up From Somerset." The old song has all the qualities of the good old ones, the expressions used all possess the power of conjuring up pictures in the mind of the listener, which is one of the highest qualities of art. Mr. McDonald's voice is not only ample in volume but he can phrase with delicacy and the tones of his upper register are remarkable for their richness.

Death of Private, Arrest of Four, Laid to Cheap Whiskey

NEW YORK, April 10 — Cheap whiskey is thought to have caused the death of one soldier and the overpowering intoxication of four others, who obtained it in same manner Saturday night.

The dead man was Private Louis Meider, twenty-four years old, of Company I, twenty-second Infantry, stationed at Fort Jay, Governor's Island. Four others of his company, when arrested, were in a stupor similar to the one from which he never recovered.

Meider was found unconscious in a seat in a Fourteenth street theatre late Saturday night. A provost guard removed him to the provost barracks at Pearl and Park streets. Officers at the barracks said Meider was placed in a cot and was heard to move about two o'clock Sunday morning. When soldiers sought to call him for breakfast they were unable to arouse him. Captain D. E. Chase, commander of the barracks and also a physician, pronounced him dead. The body was taken to the Morgue, where an autopsy will be performed. The man's company commander was notified of his death.

At the barracks it was said that many other cases of soldier poisoning by cheap whiskey have been noted, but that this was the first fatality from this source.

Berliners Regarded Fight as Spectacle

Spectators Drank Tea at Intervals and Joked as Struggle Proceeded.

BERLIN.—All one cold afternoon I stood in the Alexanderblatz watching the battle between the revolutionaries and the Government forces—I should have said attended the battle, for it is a "function," in a way.

Several thousand spectators who were present took advantage of all the cessaes in the fighting to saunter into near-by cafes and drink tea. It was something like attending a baseball game, only the Germans take their revolutions a little more seriously. While there was plenty of laughing and joking, nobody cheered the "good plays."

The Red Army is made up mostly of sailors, who were trying to drive the police and Government troops out of the police station. The defenders of the situation wore white bands on their arms. When I left the zone at 6 o'clock the police had been driven into one corner of the red brick building, which they had turned into a fort.

The Reds had obtained a tank and brought it up, ready for action. It chugged at the curb like a waiting taxi. The Reds had threatened to turn loose with the tank if the Government forces did not agree to their demands for surrender.

It was an orderly, well-conducted battle. When one of the Reds would fall, as the result of a well-directed shot from the police station, soldiers with a Red Cross flag would run out, stand over the man that was down, and wave the flag.

Instantly the battle would stop, as a football game does when the centre sprains his ankle and the referee takes him out. Four or five soldiers and sailors would run out, pick up the wounded man, and carry him to an improvised hospital in the lobby of a hotel in Alexanderplatz overlooking the square.

The wounded man taken inside, the Red Cross flag would disappear, and the crack of rifles and the splutter of machine guns would begin again. How many were hurt or killed I do not know, but automobiles and waggons that acted as ambulances carried several dead men past me.

Some men with flesh wounds in their hands and faces, who were put out of the game and sent to the side lines, while substitutes were put in, stood around in the crowd, where they were regarded with great admiration. They explained the fight to us.

I wanted to stay to see the tank go after the police station, but a drizzling rain had been falling for two hours, and it looked as if the battle was going to be called off for an hour or so, for supper, because a waggon with steaming soup kettles came through the crowd.

The sailors immediately took more interest in the soup kettles than in the battle. They slung their rifles on their backs and fell in behind the soup wagon, while the crowd sauntered off in all directions across the platz. My interpreter told me that the defenders had obtained time to take out their wounded and dead and make up their minds if they wanted to surrender or have a night session.

No Wild Vampires, No Wilder Flirts, Coney Island Rule

Welfare Detective Has Quiet Day Among 100,000 at Beach for Sunday.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Vampires women bathers who appear in socks, and male flirts all will be regarded as public nuisances by the Coney Island police this season. Detective John Ryan, precinct welfare officer, will divide his time between protecting men visitors from the two first named, and guarding women from the advances of the last named. Everything considered, Detective Ryan is scheduled for a fairly busy season, it was the concensus among policemen of the Island.

From Brighton and Manhattan beaces on the east and Norton's Point on the west, Surf avenue on the north, and a wide stretch of ocean on the south, the detective will range the resort in search of persons belonging to any of the three groups.

Yesterday there wasn't a thing for Detective Ryan to do. Of the hundreds of bathers at the various beaches only seven were women. Five of them wore summer furs and winter weight stocking, while promenading the beach in bathing suits. The other two wore fur lined coats and refused to go into the surf.

Not a single vampire could be found in the throng of 100,000 that arrived early in the morning and went home late. The scarchy of vampires of the Newark (N.J.) class was equaled only by the lack of flirts, and at twenty minutes past one o'clock this morning, Detective Ryan left for home.

Bam-boo-la, Coney Island's wildest wild man in past seasons is even wilder, now that prohibition threatens to scorch the island for its entire length. His yips of despair were the only noises there, unless the cash register gongs are considered as making noise and not music. There was recorded an unusually large sale of——, now known as Liberty Links, and sold as always between halves of rolls and well painted with mustard.

The first "Peeping Tom" of 1919 was chased from beneath the boardwalk end of Jones' Walk by a dozen irate women. He succeeded in escaping by plunging into the midst of a throng that gathered to see him caught.

A LINK WITH THE PAST.

Capt. Samuel Filgate Helped Make Our History.

Capt. Samuel Filgate, who died in Montreal recently, was probably the last of the spirited band of dragoons who escorted Lord Elgin on his exciting journey from his home in Monklands to Montreal to sign the Rebellion Losses Bill in 1848. On this historic occasion Parliament House was robbed and burned and the Governor-General's carriage stoned.

Capt. Filgate was born in Toronto—then Little York—on Christmas Eve a little over 100 years ago. He came of fighting stock, his father having been a member of the 66th Light Infantry, then attached to the garrison in Toronto.

The veteran never tired of relating his varied experiences. He could remember as far back as 1830 when he left Little York and journeyed to Montreal, his father's regiment having been transferred thither. The journey occupied weeks. The regiment left Little York in a fleet of river bateaux, each carrying 40 men who took turns at the oars. They stopped at night, preferably in the neighborhood of barns, in which they took shelter. At the rapids, the boats hugged the shore and were guided through by Indian pilots.

In 1837 Capt. Filgate was a resident in Quebec and fought through the Papineau Rebellion. But in his military career of nine years he considered the greatest incident was that in connection with the Rebellion Losses Bill. This measure was introduced for the purpose of paying to the loyal inhabitants of Upper Canada the sum of £40,000 for the damages they had suffered in the rebellion. When the Governor went to the Parliament Buildings to sign the bill, which had received the royal approval, there was an uproar. The Governor had not been long in the building when a great commotion broke out outside. In a few minutes smoke belched forth from the windows and the members rushed out with their books and papers in their hands. Lord Elgin was driven away under escort to the Chateau de Ramezay.

There the bill was signed and the Governor left the Chateau to return to Monklands. On the way an ugly mob was encountered who awaited the vice-regal party with stones. The horses took fright and many of the troopers were hit. To the day of his death Capt. Filgate bore on his head the scar of a cut received from a stone which cut through his "shako"—as his plumed head piece was called—and wounded him severely.

Soon after this incident the Queen's Light Dragoons, in which the captain was serving, was disbanded, partly owing to the fact that it was learned by the authorities that they had bargained with the Loyalists "to shoot high" in case they were ordered to fire.

The veteran often compared conditions in the army of to-day with those of his time. In his day each soldier was paid one shilling a day, in addition to receiving an allowance of one pound of bread and one of meat and twopence halfpenny was deducted for mess rations. Out of this mess fund the soldiers supplied themselves with fresh vegetables and other extras. The regulations were two meals a day, breakfast at 8, and dinner at 2 o'clock. Their coffee was burned barley. And they considered themselves well fed. But that was seventy years ago.

Until about twelve years ago the captain navigated two river boats on the St. Lawrence, the Belmont and the Filgate. The latter was constructed under his own instructions, and was the first iron steamer built in Canada.

—but what Sugar?

MANY women, when they think of Sugar, are inclined to let their interest dwell upon the matter of price rather than upon quality. But we who make Sugar, and the grocer who sells it, know there is something more important about Sugar than the price. We want you to learn about Sugar Quality. The best way to obtain a realization of how good a sugar can be, is to try a dollar's worth of

DOMINION CRYSTAL SUGAR

This is the only Sugar that may rightly be termed "Canadian from the ground up." We do import the finest of Raw Cane Sugar and refine it for Canadian use. But our pride is in the product we make from Canadian Sugar Beets.

Pure, sparkling and finely granulated. A sugar that will give unfailing satisfaction in preserving, in baking, and for table use.

Most grocers carry this brand. They will substantiate all we say about its quality—they will tell you it is a matter of pride with them to be able to offer a Sugar so good, that is made from Sugar beets grown on Canadian land. Most grocers have it in the popular 20-pound bag, as well as in barrels. Specify "Dominion Crystal" next time you order Sugar.

PIECE OF TOOTH LODGED IN LUNG

Walter Fry of Dundas, Coughed Up Fragment of Molar.

HAMILTON, April 10.—Walter Fry, brother of Police Magistrate Fry, of Dundas, had a peculiar experience. Mr. Fry has been seriously ill for some time and local physicians seemed unable to diagnose his case. Tuesday he was seized with a violent coughing spell and as a result of it, he coughed up a piece of tooth which evidently had in some manner been lodged in one of the lungs. Mr. Fry feels much improved since the ejection of the unwelcome piece of tooth.

CURED OF DYSPEPSIA BY USING BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

The symptoms of dyspepsia are so numerous and diversified in different individuals that probably no description could exactly represent them as they occur in any given case, but a few of the most prominent are a rising and souring of food, pain, flatulence and distention of the abdomen, a sensation of discomfort after every meal, which is sometimes followed by sickness and vomiting.

To get rid of dyspepsia a careful arrangement of the diet is necessary and due time must be given for the digestion of the meal.

You will find that Burdock Blood Bitters will help with this digestion. It does this by toning up the stomach in such a way that the dyspepsia soon disappears.

Mr. Robt. Baldwin, Winnifred, Alta., writes:—"I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters for curing dyspepsia, of which I have been a sufferer for years. I have tried a good many doctors and proprietary medicines, so one day I thought I would try something different. I got a bottle of B. B. B. from our local store, as it was about the only remedy he kept, and I can certainly say that I was more than pleased with the results, as I got better right away. I will always recommend it to other sufferers."

EASY ENOUGH.

Putting up a stove pipe is easy enough if you only go at it right. In the morning breakfast on some light nutritious diet and drink two cups of hot coffee; after which put on a suit of old clothes, or new ones, if you can get them on time, put on an old pair of buckskin gloves and when everything is ready to strike the fatal blow, go and get a good tinsmith who understands his business. If this rule is strictly adhered to, the gorgeous 18 karat, stem winding profanity of the present day would be diminished and the world be profited thereby.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigour and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro phosphate, which is inexpensive and sold by McDermid & Jury in Peterboro and most all druggists under a guarantee of entire satisfaction or your money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION:—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

C. M. SCHWAB "LOANED" $1 EACH TO 154 NEGRO SOLDIERS; 138 HAVE PAID THE LOANS

NEW YORK, APRIL 4—Charles M. Schwab, formerly head of the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation, is not troubled about any inroads of Bolshevism is likely to make in the United States. He has supreme confidence in the sanity, honesty and stability of the average American, and in particular, of the American soldier, who is going to form the backbone of American life for same time.

"After observing conditions in Europe during my recent trip overseas, I returned home without worry as to the future of Bolshevism in this country," said Mr. Schwab at the launching of the steamship Strathnaver at the Downey shipyards, Statan Island, on Thursday. "I'll tell you an incident that will give you one of the reasons why I think so. I came home awo weeks ago on a transport bearing seyeral thousand negro troops. There was a canteen aboard and the boys—those of them who were lucky at rolling the bones—were patronizing it liberally. I noticed one great big fellow giving the candy stand some very longing glances, but he wasn't doing any buying.

"I went up to him and said 'What's the idea? Are you broke?'

"'Boss,' he said, 'I ain't seen no pay five months.'

"'Well,' I said, "I'm going to loan you a dollar. It's yours and you needn't trouble about getting it back to me.' That gave me an idea. I decided to test those men, just for the experiment. I made it known that I was willing to help out any of the men who were broke and one hundred and fifty-four of them responded. To each I said something like this: 'Now you needn't pay this back if you don't want to. You know me and where I am at. Suit yourself.'

"Do you know what? Up to date one hundred and thirty-eight of those boys have sent me the money they borrowed. It came out as I expected. The boys were sound to the core. That's one of the main reasons I'm not worrying about the United States going Bolshevist next election."

The simplicity and democracy of this master mind of organization was typically illustrated at the launching. Miss Margaret Carnegie, who was sponsor, and Mr. Schwab were chief guests. Chief guests by every rule of convention should arrive in limousines and wearing fine clothes. But nobody knew Mr. Schwab had arrived until a newspaperman discovered him beneath a huge umbrella, looking along the side of the poised vessel, intent upon observing her construction.

He gave a hearty laugh as he was accosted, and extended a firm handshake to each of the three reporters. He wore a soft, black fedora, rather the worse for its drenching in the downpour of that afternoon. His coat collar, like everything else, was turned up.

"No, I'm not going to make any speech to-day," he said, "it's too wet for speeches."

After his talk with the reporters he disappeared in the crowd and reappeared a moment later, escorting Mrs. Andrew Carnegie up the stairway, holding the umbrella above her. When he continued to shield her the top of the platform the motion picture men shouted at him to get the umbrella out of range of their cameras.

"All right, boys!" he shouted in return. Down came the umbrella, and the movie men focused their machines. Mr. Schwab took charge of the arrangement of the party and for the benefit of the camera men he occupied himself as busily as if he were on the staff of some film news weekly, instead of being one of the government's most valuable human assets.

He led men in three cheers for Miss Carnegie, and the men then led themselves in three cheers for "Charlie."

"Speech!" yelled one of the shipworkers.

"Next time I come," said Mr. Schwab, "then I'll bring a lot of new stories."

"You're full of them, 'Charlie'!" shouted one of the crowd.

THE TRICKERY OF WORDS.

"Why don't you make an oration on this subject," asked the admiring friend.

"I've quit making orations," replied Senator Sorghum. "I find too often that when I make a speech in favour of something I simply suggest ideas for some new arguments against it."—Washington Evening Star.

Lived as Recluse, Wore Male Attire, Man Jilted Her

Brother Finds $1,900 Secreted in Barren House Occupied by Dead Newark Woman.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The strange case of a woman who donned man's attire and led the life of a recluse after she had been jilted and vowed she would have nothing more to do with men came to light yesterday when Richard E. Shaefer, of No. 48 Freah Pond road, Maspeth, N.J., appeared in Newark to take care of the body and effects of his sister, Miss Anna L. Schaefer, who was found suffocated by firemen in her home at No. 908 Morris avenue, Newark, Friday night.

Beside the woman had been found the body of a faithful black and tan terrier. Her body was clothed in a ragged pair of trousers, three vests and a seamy old coat. In every pocket of her attire and sewed in the lining of her tattered clothing bills of large and small denominations were found. They were dug out of crevices in the floors and found under piles of newspapers and rubbish throughout the house. Up to last night the searchers had recovered $1,900.

Fifteen years ago the woman was jilted, according to her brother, by a new prosperous business man of Newark. She vowed at that time she would never have anything more to do with men and she kept her promise. She lived alone in the Morris avenue house, and, save for the one room which she used, the three story house was almost barren of furniture where she died. Neighbours told the police that the woman donned man's clothees more than ten years ago and that she seldom left the house except after dark or early in the morning. No one in the neighbourhood could recall having seen her enter or leave the house during the last two years.

The police learned the address of the woman's brother, and sent for him. In the eleven rooms of the house there were piles of newspapers, but no furniture, except two stoves, one chair and a table in the room she occupied. There was not even a bed in this room, but there was a large pile of papers in one corner which the woman had evidently used to sleep on. Boxes of dresses and other feminine apparel, which evidently had not been worn for years, were found in the closets of several of the rooms. No one could be found who had ever heard her say why she discarded them for the attire of the sex, one member of which had been the cause of her hermitage.

CATTLE MARKET

The bulk of the buying for the Easter trade is practically already completed. It was generally expected that this week would see a little more active trading in that line, but as a matter of fact the big packing houses have been steadily buying up all the choicest cattle offering during the past few weeks, so that at the opening of this week's trading most of the big fellows were already well stocked up with beef. It was understood in fact that they are rather more than well supplied, and are so loaded up with beef bought at high prices, that they are beginning to look rather anxiously for a profitable outlet, via a good export demand. Such an outlet seems to be promised in a statement just issued from Ottawa, to the effect that the British embargo on chilled beef and other meat products is likely to be lifted in favour of the Canadian product. Such an opening will be welcomed by the packers, provided the prices which the European countries can pay for the meats they so urgently need, will warrant the shipping of the large stocks at present on hand. However that may be the fact that the packers have large stock on hand accounts for the rather slow trading in the local market in the past week. A good run of cattle has been offered, and some high prices realized for selected lots but taken on the whole, it a doubtful if the week has been quite as satisfactory to the shipper as expected.

In the case of small meats, receipts have not been heavy, except in the case of calves. Sheep and lambs have been light runs, and prices have been extremely light, lambs going up to record levels.

Hog receipts [illegible] packers to get prices down to more normal levels were unavailing, the market closing strong at the top prices for the week.

A GOOD MEDICINE FOR THE BABY

Nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets as a medicine for little ones. They are a laxative, mild but thorough in action, and never fail to relieve constipation, colic, colds and simple fevers. Once a mother has used them she will use nothing else. Concerning them (Mrs. Saluste Pelletier, St. Damas des Aulnaies, Que., writes:—"I always keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. They are the best medicine I know of for little ones and I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ALLIED FOOD SHIPS RETURNED EMPTY.

BERLIN, April 11.—The first entente food ships that reached Germany had to leave in ballast on their return trips because in all Germany there could not be collected enough freight to load them, it is announced in semi-official quarters. Neither was it possible to re-coal the steamers completely.

The announcement concludes by propounding the question as to how long the entente will be willing to deliver food under such conditions.

Flyer Facing Death at Sea Saved By Carrier Pigeon

Bird Flies to Shore at Atlantic City Bearing Warning Message From Ensign Stranded on Waves for Twenty-four Hours—Aircraft and Destroyers Go to Rescue.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., April 10. —A blue coated naval carrier pigeon which fought a heavy off shore wind from a disabled seaplane miles off the Jersey coast saved the life last night of Ensign Howard Finch, a navy aviator, down in the surf without gas and with no help in sight.

The pigeon, released by the aviator as his final effort at getting rescue, carried a message that enabled flyers from Cape May and swift submarine chasers that operated with them to pick up Ensign Finch about one o'clock this morning and he is now safe at Cape May.

The bird fluttered into the room of William Lydall, of Toronto, on the fourth floor of the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel at eleven o'clock. Noticing its exhausted condition Mr. Lydall carried it to the hotel office. Lieutenant Mathew Taylor, of Pittsburg, who was standing near the desk, recognized the bird as one of the type used by the navy in its courier service and found attached to its leg a small cylinder in which was the following message:—

"Down in heavy seas. Gas exhausted. Submarine chaser ten miles west. Fifteen minutes past four o'clock A.M., dawn, April 5. Ensign Finch."

Lieutenant Taylor telephoned the Coast Guard stations and soon had the Fourth Naval District at the League Island Navy Yard. From the Cape May Naval Station seaplanes equipped with searchlights immediately put out and headed off the coast.

Submarine chasers started out at the same time, and began to comb the waters between the city and Cape May, the Coast Guard assisting.

After two hours' search Ensign Finch was found fighting gamely, after nearly twenty-four hours in the surf. He was working valiantly to keep the boat attached to his plane free of the water. Late in the afternoon he had been exposed to heavy rainstorms, in addition to the beating waves. The wide spread of the wings kept the craft above the water when the seas swept over his boat. Several times the officer was obliged to climb on top of the wings to avoid being crushed by the heavy seas that hurled themselves over his craft.

When rescued Ensign French had drifted eight miles from the spot at which he had released his pigeon.

Naval officers at Cape May telephoned Lieutenant Taylor here to see that the pigeon had the best care. Ensign Finch will fly here to get the bird.

Big Prices For Pure Bred Stock

Mr. J. O'Reilly, of Peterboro County, Disposed of High Price Cattle at Toronto Sale.

The first annual Canadian National sale of Holstein cattle, under the auspices of the Canadian National Holstein Club and the Ontario Department of Agriculture, which opened Thursday at the Exhibition Grounds bids fair to make a record in the way of dairy cattle sales in Canada, judging by the quality of the stock in the several consignments and some of the prices obtained, when 55 head of the total of 121 were disposed of.

Peterboro Responsible

Among the high-priced sales made were the following:—Totilla of Riverside, consigned by The O'Reilly Stock Farm, Peterboro, to A. J. Tamblyn, Orono, $900; Het Loo Duplicate to Wheatfield Farms, La Salle, N.Y., $805, Aggie Favorite Joanie by G. S. Gooderham, to E. E. Muirhead, Newmarket, $800; Egmont Pride, Oak Park Stock Farm, to E. E. Muirhead, $750.

Already one ready has ben set, namely, that of the price, $3,350, paid by G. E. Black, of the Soldier's Re-establishment Commission for the five-year-old bull, King Segis, Pontine Posch, consigned by Gordon S. Gooderham of Clarkson. The animal will go to the farm at the Military Hospital at Guelph. The atendance was fairly large, and those present were nearly all possible purchasers, so bidding was brisk and animals offered went through in good time.

Interest was added to the occasion by the announcement made just previous to th start of the sale that he Holst..a cow, Rolla Mercena De Kol, owned by J. B. Hanmer, Norwich, Ont., which had just completed a seven-day test for the Record of Merit, has established a world-record for butter production by yielding, in the seven days, milk capable of producing 51.92 lbs. of butter; her highest yield of milk for one day while under this test being 114 pounds. This performance results in Canada holding the world records for both milk and butter production; the milk record being held by May Echo Sylvia, the property of A. C. Hardy, Brockville, with a yield of 152 pounds of milk in one day. When the announcement of the latest world record by the Holstein was made, the crowd at the sales ring "raised the roof" with cheers.

GRAIN MARKET

Slightly lower fractional charges in cash quotations on the coarse grains yesterday, but on the whole the market continues very dull and inactive. In the options prices closed 5-8c. higher for September. Unfavourable weather for farmers' receipts had its effect in slightly stimulating the bull side of the market, although underlying conditions are believed in some quarters to favour a bear movement.

TROOPS TO RUSSIA.

First of Relief Forces Leave for Archangel.

TILBURG, Eng., April 10. — The first transports bearing the British relief forces for the Archangel front will sail to-night. The members of the contingent began embarking here today. The new force comprises veteran officers and men who fought in various theatres during the war. It is an army in miniature, every arm of the service being represented.

Recruiting for further reinforcements for North Russia is proceeding satisfactorily.

Liner at Victoria Gets Permission to Dock After Sundown.

VICTORIA, B.C., April 11. — For the first time in many months a trans-Atlantic liner secured permission (license to communicate with the shore) after official sundown when the Australian boat Makura docked shortly after midnight.

She had all her passenger accommodation filled up. Major Sir Robt. Walker, late of the Coldstream Guards; Sir Walter Buchanan, a leading member of the Legislature of Australia; Sir Charles Dawson, Chief Justice of Suva, with Lady Dawson and child, were among the passengers.

The Makura brought only a small general cargo.

AUSTRIAN PRINCES EXILED

To Be Sent with Families Under Escort to Switzerland

GENEVA.—All the Austrian Archdukes with their families, including Archduke Friedrich, a former marshal, have been officially expelled from Austrian territory, according to information from reliable sources. A special train, escorted by Republican guards, will leave Vienna tomorrow, conveying the Archduchess party to Switzerland.

The Swiss, it is declared, are not particularly gratified at this, for they continue to be severely rationed.

This Car Warrants Its Price

GRAY DORT

There are many reasons for the price of a motor car. The car may be built down to a selling price.. The price may be forced up to a profit mark. There may be weight, size, speed, that you do not need. But the Gray Dort price is the lowest price at which a big, efficient organization can build a fine light car.

The Gray Dort is built right first. It is built with real big car quality and comfort and appearance. It is built to give you all the service you need, free from trouble. Then by factory efficiency the price is kept low.

So when you buy a Gray Dort you are putting every dollar into real motor car value. Ride in a Gray Dort—then you will see how greatly cheaper cars fall short of it—and how light cars higher-priced give you no more or not as much.

The touring car is $1245; the Gray Dort Special—the car with added refinements and extra equipment, is $135 extra; there are also a coupe, and a sedan. All prices f. o. b. Chatham and are subject to change without notice.

YAQUI INDIANS GET WEAPONS BY RAID INTO UNITED STATES

NOGALES, Ariz.—Yaqui Indians have crossed the boundary from the State of Sonora, Mexico, into the United States, obtained a large amount of arms and ammunition and then recrossed into Mexico, headed, it is believer, toward Nogales, Sonora. This information was brought here by Mexican officials.

The Mexican officials asked Colonel E. C. Carnahan, United States commander, for assistance to stand off the Yaquis, who, the Mexicans fear, intend to attack Nogales, Sonora.

As a measure of precaution Col. Carnahan ordered a mounted detachment of the Twenty-fifth infantry to Lochiel, Ariz., though he stated that he believed the affair has been much exaggerated.

In the meantime th streets of Nogales, Sonora, are filled with heavily armed Mexican soldiers and excitement prevails in expectation of the Yaqui attack.

A SPRING TONIC GREATLY INCREASES YOUR EFFICIENCY

Lay the Foundation of Good Health Now by Building Up Your Blood and Strengthening Your Nerves.

The good old fashion of taking a tonic in the springtime, like most of the customs of our grandparents, is based upon sound common-sense and good medical practice. No matter how mild the winter it is a trying time, even in the most favoured climates. for those who are not in rugged physical health. Many men, women and children go through the winter on reserve strength they have stored up during the sunny, summer months, and grow increasingly pale as the spring days approach. A tonic for the blood and nerves at this time will do much for such people, by putting colour in the cheeks and banishing that tired feeling that worries thousands at this season of the year.

You can not be energetic if your blood is thin and weak, or if your nerves are frayed or shattered. You cannot compete with others if you do not get refreshing sleep at night, or if you are losing weight. You need a tonic at this time to add to your efficiency now, as well as to save you from suffering later on. And in all the realm of medicine there is no safer or better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These pills make new rich, red blood, which circulates through every portion of the body, strengthening jaded nerves and run-down organs, and bringing a feeling of new strength and energy to weak, easily tired, despondent men. women and children.

CURED BILIOUS HEADACHES.

Mr. D. C. McClure, Heffley Creek, B.C., says: "As a spring tonic I know of nothing else that can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Last spring I felt weak and run down and suffered a great deal from bilious headaches. I got a half dozen boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking them I felt like a new man. The lassitude from which I suffered had disappeared, I had a better appetite, and was in every way stronger and better than before I began the use of this medicine. Almost everyone needs a tonic in the spring, and for this purpose I can strongly advise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

NEVER FELT SO WELL.

Miss Beatrice Bishop, Fendale, N. B., says: "I have never felt so well as I do since taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I began their use I was very much run down. I had no colour, no appetite, could not go up stairs without stopping to rest on the way. I had frequent headaches and a feeling of despondency. I took Pink Pills regularly for about eight weeks and,while I felt a benefit from them almost from the first, at the end of that time I was in better health than I had ever enjoyed before. I freely give you permission to publish this letter as my experience may be the means of pointing the way to new health to some other weak and run down girl."

GAINED WONDERFULLY.

Mrs. Herbert Hanson, Lower Hainesville, N.B., says: "I have the very highest regard for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I began their use I suffered greatly with sick headache, dizziness and a feeling of depression and tiredness. A short treatment with the pills fully restored my health. My daughter Blanche was suffering from anaemia, and through the use of six boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills gained wonderfully in weight, strength and general health. We think so much of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that we are never without them in the house, and I consider them my best friend."

HAS A BETTER APPETITE.

Mrs. M. D. MacLeod, Caledonia, P.E.I., says: "I have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a spring medicine with satisfactory results. Before I began their use I was subject to weak spells, but these have now disappeared. I find that my appetite is better, and I have every confidence in your pills as a blood builder.

STRONG AND WELL AGAIN.

Mr. H. H. McKelvey, Orono, Ont., says: "My experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills has been of the most favourable kind. At the time I began their use I was so weak and run down that I could hardly go about. My stomach was also out of order and the food I took did not seem to do me a bit of good. Then Dr. Williams' Pink Pills came to my rescue, and under their use my stomach grew better, my general health improved, and I was soon as healthy and vigorous a man as I had ever been. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, with the use of Pinklets as a laxative when needed, is now our family medicine, and we would not be without them."

BUILD UP YOUR BLOOD.

The purpose of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is to build up the blood. They do this one thing and they do it well. They are, for this reason, an invaluable remedy in diseases arising from bad or deficient blood, such as anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, pains in the back or side and the after effects of influenza or fevers. If you are suffering from any troubles due to weak, watery blod, or shaky nerves, a fair use of these pills will restore you to full health and strength. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail, post paid, at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MRS. BALFAME

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON

Mrs. Balfame had segregated her smart set for strategic reasons, but that did not mean that both she and they were not kindness itself to the less favoured. Obviously, an imposing party cannot be given by twelve families alone, especially when almost half their number are childless. On all state occasions the list of invited numbered several hundred, in that town of some five thousand inhabitants.

It said much for the innate nobility of these wealthier dames of Elsinore who read the New York society papers quite as attentively as they did the war news, that they submitted without a struggle to the dominance of a woman who never had possessed a car and whose husband's income was so often diverted from its natural course but Mrs. Balfame not only outclassed them in inflexibility of purpose, but her family was as old as Brabant County; the Dawbarns had never been in what might be called the cavalry regiment, consisting of those few chosen ones living in old colonnial houses set in large estates and with both roots and branches in the city of New York; but no one disputed their right to be called Captains of the infantry. And Mrs. Balfame, sole survivor in the direct line, had two wealthy cousins in Brooklyn.

Once in a while Dr. Anna, a privileged character, and born at least in Brabant County, took a hand at bridge, but she was a poor player, and, upon the rare occasions when she found time to spend a Saturday afternoon at the Country Club, preferred to rest in a deep chair and watch the young folks flirt and dance until the informal supper was ready. Never had she tripped a step, but she loved youth, and it gave her an acute old-maid's delight to observe the children grow up; snub-nosed, freckled-faced, awkward school girls develop at a flying leap into slim American prettiness, enhanced with every late exaggeration of style. She also approved heartily, on hygienic grounds, of the friends of her own generation dancing, even in public, if their partners were not too young and their forms too cumbersome.

Mrs. Balfame and Dr. Anna arrived at the Club shortly after four o'clock. Young people swarmed everywhere, within and without; perhaps twenty older matrons were sitting on the verandah knitting those indeterminate toilette accessories for the Belgians which always seemed to be about to halt at precisely the same stages of progress.

Mrs. Balfame, who had set the fashion, had not brought her needles today. She went directly to the card room; but her partner for the tournament not having arrived, she entertained her impatient friends with a recent domestic episode.

"I have a German servant, you know," she said, removing her wraps and taking her seat at the table. "A good creature and a hard worker, but leaden-footed and dull beyond belief. Still, I suppose even the dullest peasant has spite in her make-up. I have been reading tomes of books on the war, as you learned from painful experience yesterday; most of them, as it happened—a good joke on Anna that, as she gave me the list—quite antagonistic to Germany. One day when Frieda should have been dusting I caught her scowling over the chapter heads of one of them. Of course she reads English— she has been here several years. Day before yesterday, when I was knitting, she asked me whom I was knitting for, and I told her—for the Belgians, of course. She asked me in a sort of growl why I didn't knit for the homeless in East Prussia—it seems that is where she comes from and she has been having letters full of horrors. I seldom handy words with a servant, for you can't permit the slightest familiarity in this country if you want to get any work out of them. But as she scowled as if she would like to explode a shrapnel under me, and as she is the third I have had in the last five months, I said soothingly that the newspaper correspondents had neglected the eastern theatre of war, but had harrowed our feelings so about the Belgians that we felt compelled to do what we could for them. Then I asked her—I was really curious—if she had no sympathy for those thousands of afflicted women and children, merely because they were the victims of the Germans. She has a big soft face with thick lips, little eyes, and a rudimentary nose; generally as expressionless as such a face is bound to be. But when I asked her this question it suddenly seemed to turn to wood—not actively cruel; it merely expressed the negation of all human sympathy. She turned without a word and slumped—pardon the expression—out of the room. But the breakfast was burned this morning—I had to cook another for poor David—and I know she did it on purpose. I am afraid I shall have to let her go."

"I would," said Mrs. Battle, wisely. "She is probably a spy and quite clever."

"Yes, but such a worker!" Mrs. Balfame sighed reminiscently. "And when you have but one servant—"

The tardy partner bustled in and the game began.

CHAPTER V.

It was about six o'clock when Mrs. Balfame, steadily losing, contrary to all precedent, her mind concentrated, her features, like those of the rest of the players, as hard as the stone faces dug out of Egypt, her breath escaping in hissing jets, became vaguely conscious of a disturbance in the outer room. The young people were dancing, as was usual in the hour before supper, but the piano and fiddles appeared to be playing against the ribald interruptions of a man's voice. It was some time before the narrow flow of thought in Mrs. Balfame's brain was deflected by the powerful outer current, but suddenly she became aware that her partners were holding their cards suspended, and that their ears were cocked toward the door. Then she recognized her husband's voice.

For a moment she lost her breath and her blood ran chill. She had been apprehensive for some time of a scene in public, but she had assumed that it would occur in a friend's house of an evening; he attended her nowhere else. The Club he had deserted long since; it was much too slow for a man of his increasing proclivities, especially in a county liberally provided with saloons and road houses.

During the last month she had become sensible of a new hostility in his attitude toward her; it was as if he had suddenly penetrated her hidden aversion and all his masculine vanity had risen in revolt. Being a woman of an almost excessive tact, she had sprayed this vanity for twenty-two years with the delicately scented waters of flattery, but the springs had gone suddenly dry on that morning when she had uttered her simple and natural desire to bring the conjugal sleeping accommodations up to date.

And now he had come out here to disgrace her, she immediately concluded, to make her a figure of fun, to destroy her social leadership. This might also involve him in a lose, but when a man is both drunk and angry his foresight grows dim and revenge is sweet.

Only last night there had been an intensely disagreeable scene in private; that is to say, she had been dignified and slightly contemptuous, while he had shouted that her knitting got on his nerves ,and the sight of all those books on the war made him sick. When the whole business of the country was held up by this accursed war, a man would like to forget it when at home. And every man had the same story, by God; his wife was knittin when she ought to be darning stockings; trying to be intellectual by concerning herself with a subject that concerned men alone. Mr. Balfame had always resented the Woman's Club ,and all talk of votes for a sex that would put him and his kind out of business. Their intelligent interest in the war was a grievous personal indignity.

Being a woman of clear thought and firm purpose, and of a really high order of moral courage, Mrs. Balfame was daunted for a moment only. She laid down her cards, opened the door and entered the main room of the clubhouse. There she saw, at the head of the room, a group of men surrounding her husband; with one exception, almost excited as he. The exception was Dwight Rush who had a hand on one of Balfame's shoulders and appeared to be addressing him in a low tone. Little Maude Battle ran forward and grasped her arm.

AN AUSTRALIAN FUR-BEARER.

The wombat, or "pouched rat," of New South Wales and South Australia, is a marsupial animal. In appearance it resembles a little bear, and is sometimes classed with the badger, because of its burrowing habits. It is two or three feet long, plump, with a thick coat of long, grayish-brown woolly hair. The head is large, wide, flat, and rabbit-like, with upper lip cleft, and small eyes and ears; its legs are short and nearly equal in length, and the feet are five-toed. The tail is about half an inch long, nearly bare. The wombat is easily domesticated. In the mountainous districts of Australia its flesh is preferred to that of many other animals.

The Outstanding Product of a Large Manufacturing House

FOUR large factories and five distributing warehouses stand back of Brandram's Genuine B.B. White Lead.

Every step in its manufacture is closely watched by chemical engineers—nothing is left undone which would help to maintain the quality of the world's finest white lead.

Brandram's Genuine B.B. White Lead

is different from any other white lead. To begin with, it is corroded by several secret processes which are then merged into a pigment of marvellous smoothness. This pigment is ground no less than five times, first under huge stones, and finally between heavy steel rolls. In this grinding process, it is made into a pulp by being mixed with pure refined linseed oil made in our own linseed oil mills.

Whenever you paint, use Brandram's Genuine B.B. White Lead if you mix your own paint. If you want to save the labor of mixing you can ensure the use of this quality pigment only by getting B-H "English" Paint.

SIZE DIDN'T COUNT

Thought That Heartened Young British Soldier.

Helped to Overcome Natural Nervousness of His First Physical Impact With the Huns—Realized It Was "Fight or Die."

Tommy Kehoe, a sixteen-year-old English boy, tells how he "got his first Hun." Not a hundred feet away they were when our lads were jumping to the parapet to meet them with their bayonets. I made a leap for the top of the ladder, grabbed at it, missed and slipped back. Somebody reached out a hand and pulled me up.

Almost on us they were. Oh, never in my worst dreams—and I've had many a bad one since then—have I seen a more dreadful sight than that. They came at us out of the dark like fiends from another world, like the pictures I've seen of men from Mars, for their heads were covered with the most evil looking masks that anybody could imagine, masks with huge round eyes and long, piggish snouts. Shells were bursting above them, machine guns were tearing through their ranks and their masks were white and ghastly in the light of the rockets. Many a time I had thought of what war would be like, but never had I thought I should look on such a sight as that.

"Fight or die, Tommy Kehoe! Fight or die!"

That's what I told myself as I crouched in front of the sand bags, with my bayonet ready for them.

Whopping big men they were, head and shoulders above me. But as I waited there a thought flashed through me of the Bantam regiment, little fellows scarcely bigger than I, who had made good against even those giant Prussians. Size didn't count behind a bayonet. It was quickness that counted. I was sure of it. If it didn't, then it was all over with me.

Even then, when they were almost up to us, how the guns were mowing them down! It looked as if none could be left in a moment or two. But those that didn't fall came on like madmen and poured through the lanes where the big guns had leveled our wires.

One—he was a six-footer if he was an inch—ran straight for me with his bayonet. I crouched and thrust at him—thrust upward. His bayonet went over my shoulder. He staggered and fell over my gun. I had got him! I had got him! In the stomach!

'Twas lucky for me there was no time to think over it or to stand there gaping at him—the dead Hun hanging over my gun with his masked head almost touching me—for it was horrible. For a second or two I turned dizzy and sick. But it was fight again or die. I jerked my rifle back and stumbled over the dead man as he flopped to the ground.

"Make for their stomachs, Tommy Kehoe! Make for their stomachs!" I told myself. "Size don't count."

Find Historic Relics.

Excavators for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit subway tunnel to Brooklyn, under Whitehall street, came upon a large number of piles which had been imbedded in the mud at that point since Revolutionary days. The site of the historic find was, at one time, that of the old Whitehall ferry, whence Gen. George Washington embarked one December day in 1783, immediately after he had bidden farewell to his officers at Fraunce's tavern, at Broad and Pearl streets, four blocks away. While the diggers were hoisting up the old piles they also found some old wooden mains used during the administration of Aaron Burr as water commissioner of the city. Many old relics have been dug up in this section of the city with the excavating for the new tunnel. Two blocks away the hull of an old wooden ship was found 15 feet beneath the surface of the street, a year or two ago, while further "inshore," near Broad and Front streets, huge clam shell beds were dug up, showing that at one time the shore line had been further inland.

Garlic to Be Imported.

Because of the scarcity of food in Europe and the difficulty of transportation, the war board discouraged the importation of food products from Europe, hoping to save them for home consumption and to save tonnage. Garlic from Italy was included under this general prohibition until the Italian government represented that great financial loss would result, due to the vast acreage planted with garlic in Italy. The supply of this year's yield would be far too great for home consumption. Due to this, the war trade board issued a permit for the present year, with the understanding that after January, 1919, fewer acres would be planted to garlic, but would be devoted to the cultivation of other food products, which would be used for home consumption.—Italian-American News Bureau.

Bismarck's Head Sold Cheap.

An iron head of Bismarck was recently sold to the New York war savings committee for transformation into munitions. The iron chancellor's metal duplicate was appraised at $6, paid in War Savings stamps, and within two hours was on its way to a munition factory. The owner, who refused to give his name, declaring that since the war he had been so embarrassed about its possession that he hesitated to dispose of it as refuse, fearing the cynical comments of the junk collectors of his neighborhood.

DEVUELLE GETS 8 MONTHS FOR TRAFFICKING IN COCAINE.

LONDON, April 11.—A sentence of eight months' imprisonment was given Reginald Devuelle, a fashion designer, formerly of New York, in the Old Bailey Court, after he had been found guilty of trafficking in cocaine.

Last Friday Devuelle was acquitted of manslaughter in connection with the death of "Billie" Carlton, an American dancer, who was found dead under mysterious circumstances in a London hotel last December. A Coroner's jury charged that Devuelle had supplied the dancer with cocaine.

HER FIVE CHILDREN

Had Whooping Cough At the Same Time

Whooping cough is one of the most dangerous diseases of children, especially to those under five years of age. It first starts with a fever and cough, sneezing, watering of the eyes and an irritation of the throat. Later the coughing increases, the child becomes livid in the face, the eyes appear as if they would burst from their sockets and suffocations seems imminent till relief is brought by the "whoop."

On the first sign of whooping cough we would advise the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This famous remedy will clear the bronchial tubes of the collected mucous and phlegm, and in this way ease the racking cough and in a short time make it disappear entirely.

Mrs. Walter McGaughey, North Battleford, Sask., writes:—"I have five children, the eldest thirteen and the baby two years old. They all had the whooping cough at the same time. I tried two or three cough remedies, but none gave the same satisfaction as Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A home where there are young children should never be without it. I will highly recommend it to those who want a quick cure."

There are many imitations of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so be sure you get the genuine by insisting that the package is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. and manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

TENDER AGE OF HAVELOCK TEACHER.

The lady teachers on the school staff have a grievance — the same world-wide grievance that every normal man has—that of paying taxes, especially income taxes. Assessor Williams has assessed them for income this year, and between the times they are not indignantly discussing the awful predicament and "blessing" the assessor and all the powers that be, they are figuring just how much it is going to cost them, and how they are going to break even on their salaries. One fortunate member of the staff is said to be under 21 years of age, and therefore not assessable, and the question that is causing us more grey hairs is, "Which one pleaded guilty to that tender age?"—Havelock Standard.

Germany Sees Future Strength

Army Was Defeated, But Not the People, Writer Says—Leaders Lost War.

NO CONTINENTAL VICTORY COULD HAVE BEATEN BRITAIN, GENERAL'S BELIEF

LONDON, March 8.—An article in the Frankfuter Zeitung by Major Paulus has made a considerable stir in German military circles. It may be recalled that Major Paulus argued that Ludendorf was "finally beaten" when he had to fall back on Antwerp- Brussels- Namur line as a result of the German offensive and of the whole course of operations from July to September, 1918.

In the Kreuz Zeitung General Von Fretag-Loringhoven, who, until a few days ago was deputy chief of the German general staff, makes a very tame reply, which, however, contains some points of interest. He admits that the German command intended to retire to the Antwerp-Brussels-Namur line, and without asserting that this line was defensible, he merely remarks that its defensibility has not been tried and consequently has not been disproved. At the end of September the German army was still fighting far to the west, and not "finally beaten."

Freytag proceeds: "This was proved by the increasing paralysis of the enemy attacks. The English infantry could not longer be brought to the attack; the French had been driven back with bloody heads north of the Aisne, and even the attack of our freshest opponents the Americans had each been brought to a stand-still between the Argonne and the Meuse. When the enemies attacked it was always under cover of their numerous tanks. But the tanks had lost their terrifying effect upon our troops, who had learned to combat them effectively. The German army in the west had been hit by heavy reverses, but had in the main overcome their after-effects.

Internal Enemy Real Factor

It remains true that the enemy who really overcome our army was the internal enemy—Our Supreme Command made its demand for the immediate conclusion of an armistice because of the slight power of resistance which had been exhibited immediately before by considerable ports of our army."

Freytag admits that the German offensives of last year were only in the nature of sorties from a fortress, and admits that the aims of the German Supreme Command may have been too ambitious, but he asserts that the army could not have held the lines on which it stood on the second half of July if its morale had not been undermined. Freytag does not say, however, how long the German army could have held out in this way, nor does he explain how Germany could have ended the war.

As regards the alleged waste of German troops in the east for political purposes, Freytag is content to observe that many of the troops in the troops in the west were not fit for service in the west, that the military leaders were not in a position to decide everything and that after all, Germany was "fighting almost against the whole world."

Could Never Have Won

On the other hand, an anonymous Major General writes to the Frankfurter Zeitung to say that in reality Germany never could have won the war. The Frankfurter Zeitung observes that this is exactly the point of view which the German censorship would never allow to find expression. The Major General's letter is well worth quoting, because it contains the formula, which is perhaps most likely to hold the ground in Germany:

"The fact is that no victory in France or elsewhere on the continent could stop the source of English strength. We might occupy all France, but that was not a blow at England's heart. Still less was America's vital nerve hit by events in France or Europe. The hope that England would not remain capable of moral resistance to the impressions produced by our further victorious progress in France is too easy a foundation upon which to base a war plan which can only be accomplished with the overthrow of the enemies. The characteristic of the true greatness is to feel by instinct the limits of the attainments and never to overstep them. The greatness had not been vouchsafed to our leadership.

Doctors Stand Amazed at Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong---According to Dr. Lewis

Guaranteed to Strengthen Eyesight 50% In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

BOLSHIES AIMING AT THE CRIMEA.

Already Into ontact With the Franco-Greek Troops.

LONDON, April 11.—The Bolshevik armies which captured Odessa are now trying to penetrate the Crimea. They have already come into contact with the Franco-Greek troops, who, according to Bolshevik reports, were driven back. The Bolsheviki captured Perekop, one hundred miles north of Sebastopol. It is officially announced from Omsk that two Bolshevik regiments were completely defeated at Satapul, nine hundred being killed.

The ex-Emperor is said to have bought a large and extensive estate known as "Klein England." The municipal council of Amerongen is reported to have decided to tax him on an income of 80,000,000 marks.

The Outstanding Product of a Large Manufacturing House

FOUR large factories and five distributing warehouses stand back of Brandram's Genuine B.B. White Lead.

Every step in its manufacture is closely watched by chemical engineers—nothing is left undone which would help to maintain the quality of the world's finest white lead.

Brandram's Genuine B.B. White Lead

is differenft from any other white lead. To begin with, it is corroded by several secret processes which are then merged into a pigment of marvellous smoothness. This pigment is ground no less than five times, first under huge stones, and finally between heavy steel rolls. In this grinding process, it is made into a pulp by being mixed with pure refined linseed oil made in our own linseed oil mills.

Whenever you paint, use Brandram's Genuine B.B. White Lead if you mix your own paint. If you want to save the labor of mixing you can ensure the use of this quality pigment only by getting B-H "English" Paint.

SIZE DIDN'T COUNT

Thought That Heartened Young British Soldier.

Helped to Overcome Natural Nervousness of His First Physical Impact With the Huns—Realized It Was "Fight or Die."

Tommy Kehoe, a sixteen-year-old English boy, tells how he "got his first Hun." Not a hundred feet away they were when our lads were jumping to the parapet to meet them with their bayonets. I made a leap for the top of the ladder, grabbed at it, missed and slipped back. Somebody reached out a hand and pulled me up.

Almost on us they were. Oh, never in my worst dreams—and I've had many a bad one since then—have I seen a more dreadful sight than that. They came at us out of the dark like fiends from another world, like the pictures I've seen of men from Mars, for their heads were covered with the most evil looking masks that anybody could imagine, masks with huge round eyes and long, piggish snouts. Shells were bursting above them, machine guns were tearing through their ranks and their masks were white and ghastly in the light of the rockets. Many a time I had thought of what war would be like, but never had I thought I should look on such a sight as that.

"Fight or die, Tommy Kehoe! Fight or die!"

That's what I told myself as I crouched in front of the sand bags, with my bayonet ready for them.

Whopping big men they were, head and shoulders above me. But as I waited there a thought flashed through me of the Bantam regiment, little fellows scarcely bigger than I, who had made good against even those giant Prussians. Size didn't count behind a bayonet. It was quickness that counted. I was sure of it. If it didn't, then it was all over with me.

Even then, when they were almost up to us, how the guns were mowing them down! It looked as if none could be left in a moment or two. But those that didn't fall came on like madmen and poured through the lanes where the big guns had leveled our wires.

One—he was a six-footer if he was an inch—ran straight for me with his bayonet. I crouched and thrust at him—thrust upward. His bayonet went over my shoulder. He staggered and fell over my gun. I had got him! I had got him: In the stomach!

'Twas lucky for me there was no time to think over it or to stand there gaping at him—the dead Hun hanging over my gun with his masked head almost touching me—for it was horrible. For a second or two I turned dizzy and sick. But it was fight again or die. I jerked my rifle back and stumbled over the dead man as he flopped to the ground.

"Make for their stomachs, Tommy Kehoe! Make for their stomachs!" I told myself. "Size don't count."

Find Historic Relics.

Excavators for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit subway tunnel to Brooklyn, under Whitehall street, came upon a large number of piles which had been imbedded in the mud at that point since Revolutionary days. The site of the historic find was, at one time, that of the old Whitehall ferry, whence Gen. George Washington embarked one December day in 1783, immediately after he had bidden farewell to his officers at Fraunce's tavern, at Broad and Pearl streets, four blocks away. While the diggers were hoisting up the old piles they also found some old wooden mains used during the administration of Aaron Burr as water commissioner of the city. Many old relics have been dug up in this section of the city with the excavating for the new tunnel. Two blocks away the hull of an old wooden ship was found 15 feet beneath the surface of the street, a year or two ago, while further "inshore," near Broad and Front streets, huge clam shell beds were dug up, showing that at one time the shore line had been further inland.

Garlic to Be Imported.

Because of the scarcity of food in Europe and the difficulty of transportation, the war board discouraged the importation of food products from Europe, hoping to save them for home consumption and to save tonnage. Garlic from Italy was included under this general prohibition until the Italian government represented that great financial loss would result, due to the vast acreage planted with garlic in Italy. The supply of this year's yield would be far too great for home consumption. Due to this, the war trade board issued a permit for the present year, with the understanding that after January, 1918, fewer acres would be planted to garlic, but would be devoted to the cultivation of other food products, which would be used for home consumption.—Italian-American News Bureau.

Bismarck's Head Sold Cheap.

An iron head of Bismarck was recently sold to the New York war savings committee for transformation into munitions. The iron chancellor's meral duplicate was appraised at $8, paid in War Savings stamps, and within two hours was on its way to a munition factory. We bled and exhausted ourselves in vain. There is a tragedy for our people and for the Supreme Command.

"But the achievements of the people and the army are not lost. Whatever may be the ultimate appearance of the peace of Paris, it will certainly be something from a peace imposed upon us in Berlin in 1915 by English and Russians. And the proved efficiency of our people is also a clear sign of internal strength, and health, that we have the firm foundation for trust in the future. Our leadership, political and military has lost the war. The people has won the war; by its power of resistance it has created out of the developments of 1914-1918, a foundation for reconstruction. This will be proved by the future."

Doctors Stand Amazed at Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong---According to Dr. Lew

Guaranteed to Strengthen Eyesight 50% In One Week's Time in Many Instan

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them is a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to spared the trouble and expense of getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and are prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or poor glasses. I can highly recommend it in cases of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above, is not a patent medicine or secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen weak eyes 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in this city by The Wat'ne Drug Company.

BOLSHIES AIMING AT THE CRIMEA.

Already Into ontact With the Franco-Greek Troops.

LONDON, April 11.—The Bolshevik armies which captured Odessa are now trying to penetrate the Crimea. They have already come into contact with the Franco-Greek troops, who, according to Bolshevik reports, were driven back. The Bolsheviki captured Perekop, one hundred miles north of Sebastopol. It is officially announced from Omsk that two Bolshevik regiments were completely defeated at Sarapul, nine hundred being killed.

EX-KAISER BUYS ESTATE, CALLED "KLEIN ENGLAND."

And "Klein" Means Little—He Saws Little Wood Nowadays.

AMERONGEN, Holland, April 11.—Former Emperor William is continuing in excellent health, but the ardor for wood sawing which he displayed for so long has apparently cooled, as he is working much less than formerly.

The ex-Emperor is said to have bought a large and extensive estate known as "Klein England." The municipal council of Amerongen is reported to have decided to tax him on an income of 80,000,000 marks!

WHERE'S MOTHER?

When father came from work at night,
Before he'd wash his hands and face,
Or hang his hat upon the peg,
His glance would wander 'round the place,
And if dear mother's sunny head
Was not within his ken,
He'd search for her from room to room,
Upstairs and down and all, and then
He'd stop and ask,
"Where's Mother?"

But if he found her in her chair
He'd potter off about the lot,
And pick a mess of early greens,
Or fix a chicken for the pot:
He'd mend a fence or set a hen,
Or do some other homely chore,
With only now and then a glance
Toward the half open kitchen door
That seemed to ask,
"Where's mother?"

When mother left us sorrowing
He followed her within a day;
And while we laid white flowers around
His smooth-brushed hair as white as they,
We could not think that when the light
And beauty of that wondrous place
Burst on his newly-quickened gaze,
He must have raised an eager face,
And simply asked:
"Where's mother?"

—Marion Parks.

Give the young and struggling a word of encouragement when you can. You would not leave those plants in your window boxes without water, nor refuse to open the shutters that the sunlight might fall upon them; but you would leave some human flower to suffer from want of appreciation or the sunlight of encouragement. There are a few hardy souls that can struggle along on stony soil—shrubs that can wait for the dews and sunbeams, vines that climb without kindly training; but only a few utter the kind word when you can see that it is deserved. The thought that no one cares and no one knows, blights many a bud of promise. Be it the young artist at his easel, the young preacher in his pulpit, the workingman at his bench, boy at mathematical problems, or your little girl at the piano, give what praise you can.

CHRIST LOVED HOME

Though too poor to have a home of His own, He went out to spend the night at Bethany, two or three miles walk from Jerusalem, and over a rough and hilly road that made it equal to six or seven ordinary miles, every morning and night going to and fro. He loved the quietude of home life, and He was lovely in His domesticity.

How He enjoyed handing over the resurrected boy to his mother and the resurrected girl to her father and reconstructing homesteads which disease or death was breaking up! As the song, "Home, Sweet Home," was written by a man who at that time had no home, so we think the homelessness of Christ added to his appreciation of domesticity.

Every wife should be a helpmate to her husband. For instance, if you have the pleasure of a large washing before you and he has the laborious task of going to the city, or taking a trip through the country, change work with him, let him help you wash in the forenoon and you help him ride in the afternoon. A good wife will deny herself to entertain her husband, especially on wash day. But some men will say, "When I come down to that I'll hire it done?" We find no fault with hiring it done, but as to coming down to help a woman, my dear sir, who created you so far above a woman that you have to condescend to come down? We know the Bible says that "the husband shall be the head of the household," but it also says that "the wife shall be a crown to him," and you know the crown is a little higher and just above the head. Such being the case come up, gentlemen, on a level with your wives and assist in the home whenever you can do so without infringing upon larger and more important duties.

To the young man who has no taste for reading, the evening hours become loaded with temptation. It is tiresome to sit moping by the stove, and he naturally drifts to the street or the card table. There he finds others like himself, with vacant hours to while away and thus grow up those habits and associations which soon eventuate in dissipation or lead to crime.

Death List From Liquor Substitute Alarms Officials

Dr. Copeland to Fight Sale of Wood Alcohol, Blaming it for many Fatalities.

NEW YORK, April 11. — Startling facts concerning the sale of methyl alcohol, commonly known as wood alcohol, as a substitute for whiskey, were made known to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, who, in a letter from Dr. Charles E. Norris, medical examiner, was told that sales of alcohol in poisonous forms imbibed as a liquor, had caused many deaths in this city recently.

The statement was made in connection with the autopsy held in the case of Pte. Louis Maider, of Company I, Twenty-second infantry, who was found dead in a bunk at the provost guard headquarters, Pearl and Park streets, last Sunday morning. The autopsy proved, Dr. Norris announced, that death was caused by acute alcoholism. Dr. Norris in his letter to Commissioner Copeland, states:

"I desire to call your attention to the frequency with which we are finding methyl alcohol by a chemical analysis of suspected cases at the Morgue. There have been cases in which at autopsy, nothing has been found to indicate the cause of death except congestion of the viscera. I feel that the Board of Health should be cognizant of these facts, for the reason that there is evidently a large amount of bad spirits being sold."

Dr. Norris further stated in his letter that in February his office had investigated four cases of death caused by methyl alcohol, and in March four cases. In two of these large quantites of methyl alcohol were found. The medical examiner offered to assist Commissioner Copeland in preventing the sale of methyl alcohol when offered in substitution of whiskeys, etc. The offer has been accepted, and the two departments will start a vigorous crusade against dealers who sell methyl alcohol.

Another autopsy will be performed on the body of Pte. Maider to-day to decide if he was poisoned by the wood alcohol, although it has been proved that death was due to alcoholic poisoning

From what the medical examiner's office could learn it is said that Pte. Maider, with a number of other soldiers of the same regiment stationed at Fort Jay, Governor's Island, were in a motion picture theatre in East Fourteenth street last Saturday night, where they were seen to drink from a bottle. Five of the men collapsed at or near the theatre, and were taken into custody by the provost guard and lodged for the night in the provost barracks. Maider was found dead in his bunk the next morning.

Helfferich Gives German Side of Pre-War Events

...tes the Kaiser as Saying Conflict was due to Russia's Mobilization Order.

BERLIN, April 10. — Russo-German negotiations in July, 1914, as described from the German viewpoint, by Dr. Karl Helfferich, formerly the German Vice Chancellor, in his book "Pre-War History," which will be published shortly.

Mr. Helfferich, refers to a visit made to Berlin on July 26, 1914, by M. P. Davydoff, a prominent Russian banker, who wanted Mr. Helfferich's view on the possibility of persuading Austria to modify her ultimatum to Serbia. After the interview, Alfred Zimmermann, then Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and Mr. Helfferich, suggested that Austria should be given a free hand in Serbia, with the assurance that any action she took should not disturb the balance of power in the Balkans.

Mr. Davydoff promised to take the suggestion to Petrograd, saying that nothing definite would be done until after his arrival there except that Russia "probably would mobilize part of her army."

Warned Mobilization Meant War.

Mr. Helfferich says he warned him that this would lead to a German mobilization and war, to which, he says, Mr. Davydoff replied:

"Well, we can demobilize again; that costs money; but it need not cost blood!"

The one time Vice-Chancellor asserts that he also got assurance from Austria that a note would be sent to all the powers containing facts bearing on the conspiracy against Archduke Francis Ferdinand, and its connection with Pan-Serbian agitation, in order to permit the governments to convince themselves of the correctness of the facts cited in the ultimatum to Serbia."

Mr. Davydoff, Helfferich adds, promised that he would urge the Petrograd government to accept this, saying he had seen at the Russian Embassy a hopeful statement regarding the last previous conference between Sergius Sazonoff, the Russian Foreign Minister, and Count Portales, the German Ambassador in Russia, who agreed that no further military measures should be adopted by either side.

Says Russia Offered to Desert France.

Dr. Zimmermann, Mr. Helfferich continues, was not informed regarding these assurances, which were contrary to increasing reports that the Russians were mobilizing on the German border.

Mr. Helfferich asserts that prior to the murder of the Archduke, Russia privately asked Germany if she would leave Austria in the lurch, whereupon Russia would forsake France. This was refused, he adds, because public opinion and the German officials were convinced that a firm alliance with Austria-Hungary was absolutely essential.

Referring to the yachting trip made by the fugitive Emperor in the summer of 1914, the then Vice-Chancellor says the Emperor went after being reassured by the Chancellor. When he read of the ultimatum to Serbia, the Emperor started home, and immediately telegraphed to King George, Emperor Nicholas and Emperor Francis Joseph to stop a conflict.

Mr. Helfferich declares that this attempt would have been successful the Emperor told him, "If the unfortunate Czar had not allowed himself to be forced into signing the order for Russian mobilization."

Palmer Is Strongly Opposing Clemency for Eugene V. Debs

Declares Law Must Be Respected, and To Be Respected It Must Be Enforced

NEW YORK, April 11.—Executive clemency will not be extended to modify or suspend the tweny-year prison sentence of Eugene V. Debs, socialist labor advocate recently convicted of violation of the Espionage Act, according to statement made public by A. Mitchel Palmer, Attorney General. It is believed President Wilson will sanction the position taken by Mr. Palmer, and that in spite of threats made by Mr. Debs to incite a general labor strike if he is imprisoned, the law is to be allowed to take its course.

"Eugene V. Debs has filed no petition with either the President or the Attorney General, asking for the exercise for executive clemency," says the official statement. "The facts in his case are such that until such a petition is made by him I should not feel called upon to consider making any recommendations in his case. Debs was convicted not because of his political or economic views but because he plainly violated the law of the land.

He was given a fair trial by jury. The charge of trial judge was eminently fair and on appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States that court by a unanimous decision affirmed the judgment of conviction.

"Following the action of the Supreme Court the defendant has indulged in violent criticism of the American courts of justice and practically defied the power of the government to administer the law against him.

"In this situation my duty is clear. Respect for the law and our institution is the basis upon which every application for executive clemency must rest. The law must be respected and obeyd. To make sure of that it must be enforced. I would b doing a grievous wrong to the country and striking a blow at law enforcement if I adopted any course which would interfere with the normal administrations of justice in this case."

WOULD AMEND LORD'S PRAYER

Seemingly Nothing Was Sacred From Revising Mind of This United States Senator.

A well-known senator annoys his colleagues sometimes because in his desire to make legislation thoroughly good he insists on many amendments. During discussion in committee recently, this senator, whose name is not Brown, insisted on amending and amending, practically without end.

Finally, somewhat exasperated, a colleague said to him, "Brown, I believe if the Lord's prayer were being discussed here, you would want to amend it."

Brown replied:

"Yes, I would. I would change the clause 'Lead us not into temptation' to read 'Give us strength to resist temptation.'"

Dames Once Scorned Coal Fires.

Coal and its products were not always so popular as they are today. Alexander Findlay, a Welsh chemist, reminds us in his book, "The Treasures of Coal Tar."

"The introduction of coal, especially as a domestic fuel, was for a long time regarded with disfavor," he writes. "Even in the seventeenth century it met with an active boycott on the part of 'the nice dames of London,' who 'would not come into any house or rooms where sea-coales were burned, nor willingly eat of meat that was either sod or roasted with sea-coal fire' —doubtless by reason of the pollution of the atmosphere by smoke and of the stench produced by the burning coal."

Coal was more popular in England in 1850, when mauve dye appeared as one of the coal tar products and became so much the rage that Punch referred to the fashion epidemic as the Mauve Measles.

Mule Meat.

"If the Germans capture any American mules," says the Birmingham Age-Herald, "they may be tempted to try mule steak." Perhaps so, but we trust none of our friends over there will ever be called upon to resort to any such expedient. We are proud of our mules, the great work they have done and are doing over here and over there for victory. So appreciative are we of the mule's services that we are ready to stand hats off when he attempts to bray the "Star-Spangled Banner;" but we can never, no never recommend his steak even to the despised Boche as anything approaching a gastronomic dainty.—Nashville Banner.

Inventions.

A craze for invention is sweeping the country. Many a man who has never been able to invent an excuse to hand the wife for getting home late is now accomplishing wonderful things. Already 2,000,000 appliances for the destruction of U-boats have reached the patent office. One man has evolved a brick boat, built entirely of brick from the keel to the crow's nest. The chief value of this construction is that the brick boat will fool the wisest U-boats. It sinks as soon as it is launched and the U-boats are never able to find it.—New York Mail.

Protect the Bumblebee.

Expert agriculturists in Australia and the Philippine Islands realized the importance of the bumblebee to the clover crop, and imported immense numbers of them to help along the crops of their countries. The bumblebee is a tireless worker and keeps steadily to the business of protecting our interests. If he went on strike or were driven away, as might have happened not so long ago, when everybody considered all insects a pest, the parasites would soon get the upper hand and destroy our clover crops.

Wifely Sarcasm.

"Where shall we go tonight?" asked Mrs. Twobble.

"I would rather stay at home and rest," answered Mr. Twobble, with a groan. "I'm tired out, my dear. You have no idea of the wear and tear I'm subjected to in business."

"Oh, yes, I have. I've never visited your office yet that I didn't catch you either listening to somebody else telling a yarn or telling one yourself. The strain on you must be terrific."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"COL." MACKLEM ARRESTED.

TORONTO, April 11. — "Coloney" Omar L. Macklem was arrested by Dectectives McConnell and Stewart yesterday afternoon on a charge of a breach of the War Charities Act. The War Charities Act states that persons or organizations raising money for war or patriotic purposes must have authority from the government to do so.

A CHILD DOESN'T LAUGH AND PLAY IF CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! Is tongue coated, breath feverish and stomach sour?

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

A laxative to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleasing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup Company."

SCENE OF MIRACLE

How "The Field of the Bear" Received Its Name.

According to Legend of Ancient Gaul It Was the Place of Bruin's Penance at Behest of Indignant Saint Medard.

"The Field of the Bear," that is the interpretation of the name of that Ourscamp forest which figured so conspicuously in the good news of the irresistible advance of the allies in the valley of the Oise. The ground in question forms a part of the thickly wooded massif which extends for a long distance along the left bank of the Oise, and in the center of which, like a diamond set in the heart of a huge emerald, lies the royal city of Compiegne.

But whence this curious name of Ourscamp—Urscamp, Ursi Campus, the Field of the Bear? Listen to the legend of ancient Gaul. It was very, very long ago, when the bear and the aurochs divided between them northern Gaul, and the puny two-legged creature man had just begun to invade their "ancient, solitary reign." Bitterly did they resent the invasion, and indefatigably did they put every conceivable obstacle in the way thereof. But it was in vain. Little by little man forced his way in cutting down parts of the forest and turning over the surface soil with his plow; using to drag this implement a tamed and spiritless cousin of the aurochs. Because of that relationship, perhaps, the aurochs refrained from violent interference with the plowing, but not so the bear. Ruthlessly the mighty plantigrade rushed upon the yoke of oxen, struck down the fattest one and bore his carcass away to his den in the depth of the wood.

Aggrieved at the loss, the plowman hastened to good St. Medard, the bishop of Noyon, and told him of the bear's foul deed. "It is enough," said the saint. "Master Bear shall be taught a lesson that he will not soon forget." So he went to the scene of the tragedy and easily traced the course of the bear from beside the plow in the unfinished furrow to his lair in the forest, where he found him gorged upon his ill-gotten prey.

"So, thou murderous glutton!" exclaimed the righteously indignant saint. "Thou didst slay a peaceful, harmless, useful creature. And dost thou expect to go unwhipped? Not so, but thou shalt make reparation in kind and with interest. This poor man is deprived of one of his yoke of oxen and cannot therefore complete his plowing. In the name of the Lord, come thou and thyself take the place of the creature thou hast slain. I'll warrant me thy stout legs and burly body will drag the plow through the most stubborn sward!"

So, all through the rest of the plowing season, Master Bear had his thick neck in the yoke by the side of the ox, and never was there field more quickly or more deeply plowed than that; to the edification of the country round, and to the spiritual chastening of repentant bruin. And thereafter the plowman and his neighbors, filled with wonder and admiration, consecrated and perpetuated the memory of the good saint's miracle by building there a church in honor of St. Medard and calling the farm and neighboring wood Ursi Campus—Ourscamp, the Field of the Bear.

Stung Again.

Two rookies were indulging in the soldier's privilege—growling about his station and how the soldier gets stung for everything.

"I ordered a chicken dinner at a cafe down town and they charged me a dollar and six bits," Bones was saying.

A newsie overheard him. "Say, mister," he said, "I know where you can get a chicken dinner for two bits. A good big one, too."

The soldiers looked skeptical, but the newsie insisted that he was telling the truth. Finally the soldier who had been stung asked where this place was located. The newsie mentioned an address on one of the side streets of San Antonio.

A few days later the two soldiers went to the city and determined to visit this cheap restaurant. They found the address. It was a feed store.—The Bayonet.

Never Broke a Food Law.

A German church journal tells the story of a professor, a conscientious man, who from the beginning of the war made up his mind to give strict obedience to any laws that might be laid down by those placed above him.

Most scrupulously did he observe all the food regulations. Never once did he give way to "hamstering" and the clandestine food trafficker knew him not. He and his family were poorly clad, and often went to bed hungry; but his conscience remained clear and his honor bright.

"Good Lord, is this man still alive?" incredulously exclaims Vorwaerts of Berlin, the Socialist organ.

South Now Makes Pottery.

The effort to establish in the Southern states a pottery for the manufacture of high grade ware has, after many years, at last been successful. In 1917, for the first time, white ware was manufactured in the South. The Southern Potteries (Inc.), began to operate at Erwin, Tenn., a ten-kiln plant for the manufacture of semi-vitreous porcelain tableware, using domestic clays exclusively.

A Hot Spot Chalmers Knows Neither Altitude Nor Weather

ANYONE who has motored much knows how a change of altitude—even of 600 feet—affects the average car. And when the weather changes, even if you never leave your home town, what a terrible affair it is to get your motor "running right."

A Hot Spot Chalmers knows neither altitude nor weather. For the Hot Spot device is proof against both.

No matter what the day, no matter where you are on the map, the Hot Spot carburizes the gas into a "dry" vapor from which all the power is wrung with amazing ease.

It is throbless, frictionless power, and on a cold day the engine runs warm in an instant or on a hot day runs cold consistently.

For "pulverizing" gas nothing yet has equalled the Chalmers Hot Spot and for racing it into the cylinders (a trick that is highly important), nothing has ever been made to approach the Ram's-Horn.

Either one of these two magnificent devices are worth an hour of any man's time. Both of them provide you a mental feast on modern engineering that you'll long remember.

Come see them. They've made the Chalmers one of the few great cars of the world.

COAL MINERS' PET CAT SAW FIFTEEN YEARS' SERVICE

The existence of a remarkable colliery cat has been brought to light throught the recent trouble in the South Yorkshire coal field. A half-bred Persian is the pet of the men employed at South Kirby Colliery, and the animal has been engaged in keeping the roads clear of mice in the vicinity of the Haigh Moor Seam for the past fifteen years.

The timekeeper solved the difficulty by fetching it out of the pit and taking it to his home. The animal then saw daylight for the first time for fifteen years. It was blind for a time when first brought out.

When the labor trouble came to an end, "Jimmy," as the cat is affectionately called by the miners, was again taken into the bowels of the earth to resume the gentle art of mice stalking Jimmy's spell of fifteen years' unbroken service is believed to be unique as the records of colliery cats go.

According to a Norwegian scientist Saturn's rings are electrical phenomena, produced by the radiation of luminous particles from the planet, which renews them constantly.

War Surgery Adds to Science

AMONG the many changes which the war has brought about it looks as if one of the most important would be a complete revision of our present text books for army surgeons, and the introduction of new methods of treating ragged wounds, whether in military or domestic life.

Doctors at the front have found that the engines of modern warfare, asphyxiating gases, flame projectors, tear shells and the incessant crash of artillery fire, produce conditions in the wounded never before known. Shock, exhaltation, furor and demoralization and such abnormal symptoms frequently make the employment of any anaesthetic dangerous.

Dr. B. Sherwood-Dunn, who was himself wounded at the front, relates the case of an officer who was brought into the front line hospital with a slight fracture of the forehead but suffering from profound shock. He was put to bed with a first aid dressing without administering any anaesthetic. Later, when he was anaesthetized, he developed a state of extreme exhaltation, "calling upon his men to charge, and urging them on with cries of encouragement and patriotic fervor."

Almost without exception, all the doctors who were sent to the front line hospitals at the beginning of the war had been taught that their function was to douche all wounds with iodine solution, apply a first dressing and send the patient to a base hospital for any operation that might be necessary. As the journey, with repeated transfers, frequently took ten days or two weeks, the usual result was the development of countless cases of gaseous gangrene, tetanus and fatal infections. Thousands of men lost their lives or limbs through ignorance of the proper treatment.

During the early stages of the war it was the universal opinion of army surgeons that operations could not be performed in the war zone. If the standard text books and records of past wars are consulted it will be found they prescribe that no operating shall be done in field hospitals. This ruling was based on the fact that the majority of the wounds in past wars were made by bullets.

In this war rifle fire has been almost entirely replaced by shells, and almost all the wounds are from shell splinters or objects forced into the body by shell explosions. In former wars a bullet wound was usually a clean cut track, seldom contaminated. Under modern warfare the nature of the wounds has completely changed, both in their aspect and gravity, and they not only demand immediate treatment, but treatment never dreamed of in field hospitals of former wars.

Instead of the smooth path of a bullet the surgeon has to deal with fragments of shells, grenades, torpedoes and shrapnel. Each of these carries into the wound bits of clothing, which is always dirty; particles of earth, hair, splinters and even small pebbles, which are almost certain to set up immediate infection.

The necessity for immediate treatment lies chiefly in the form of the wounds. A shell fragment bruises and mangles the flesh, causing what rapidly becomes dead tissue and forming a nest for infection. To apply a rough temporary dressing to a cavity filled with torn and ragged tissue, foreign matter, dirt, metal splinters and coagulated blood is absolutely useless.

No matter how liberally the wounded man may be douched with iodine it cannot penetrate all the recesses of such a wound, and the inevitable result is infection, which it may take months to eradicate if the patient survives.

The modern surgeon proceeds upon the theory that he is as much of a soldier as the man with the gun and that whether he is in a front line hospital or fifty miles back of the firing line his duty is to do his best. He has thrown antiseptics to the dogs. During the early stages of the war they were in universal use; now they are studiously avoided.

The idea that there is not time or that the surgeon has not the nerve to operate under fire is exploded. He starts upon the assumption that every wound which is not made by the clean cut track of a rifle or machine gun bullet is contaminated, and the first thing he does is to open it up so completely as to expose the entire cavity. Every particle of foreign matter is then removed and any tissue that looks as if it might die and slough away is cut out.

The old method of treating the entrance and exit of a projectile by enlarging them as little as possible and passing a drain through is obsolete. Instead of that the surgeon makes liberal incision, long and wide enough to search the recess and traumatism thoroughly.

The greatest departure from the old text books lies in the recommendations for the front line surgeon to do his work thoroughly and to lay open the wound rather too much than too little. This insures the patient against infection in case it should be ten days or two weeks before he arrives at the base hospital.

If his wounds have not been subjected to a careful and thorough cleansing by the front line surgeon by the time he arrives at a fixed hospital infection may have progressed to a degree that will entail months of treatment.

But if his wounds have been properly opened and cleaned out, the surface thoroughly gone over with tampons and soaked in hydrogen peroxide the cavity being then carefully packed with gauze and bandaged to withstand the demands of rough travel, he will usually arrive at his final destination in condition for the beginning of healthy granulation.

A Nebraska inventor's electro magnetic screw seriver has a dry battery in the handle, from which current can be switched to a coil surrounding the blade to pick up screws.

Rheumatism

Rheumatism has become so common nowadays that hundreds of people make no effort to rid themselves of its fatal grip, believing it to be incurable save in exceptional cases.

No greater fallacy exists. Sufferers from rheumatism can be relieved if the cause is remedied and removed.

Let us examine the facts. The direct cause of rheumatism and kindred diseases is poisoning of the blood stream, through failure of the kidneys to filter and remove the impurities that are constantly collecting in the system.

Once the kidneys are out of order, the trouble starts. The poison-ladened blood circulating through the system deposits its impurities in the muscles and joints, setting up infection, and Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, etc., follow.

The first step necessary is to bring the kidneys to perform their natural function once again, and relief will be the immediate result. Gin Pills will do it, and will save weeks of fearful suffering if taken at the first indications of rheumatism.

Gin Pills have been recognized as an assured relief to sufferers from rheumatism, backache, painful urination, brick dust deposits, and gravel. Thousands of testimonials bear witness to the fact that they relieve kidney or bladder troubles instantly. Try them. For sale everywhere at 50c a box. Gin Pills cost little, but are worth a lot. Nothing Like Internal Bathing for Constipation

If people only knew what Internal Bathing is doing for thousands of others there would be fewer Pills and Laxatives swallowed and very much less suffering from Constipation and the accompanying Stomach and Nervous troubles resulting from it.

Mrs. C. G. M. of Strathroy, Ont. writes: "I am pleased to have this opportunity of testifying to the merits of the "J. B. L. Cascade." I have been using it now for a year with satisfactory results. I am an old woman, but my health is so improved that I have a renewed lease of life. You are at liberty to give my address to anyone privately who may desire to write to me regarding the Cascade."

By the proper application of nature's cure, warm water, by means of the "J. B. L. Cascade," the lower intestines are kept free from all poisonous waste. Drugs force Nature. Internal Bathing assists her.

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, a specialist on Internal Bathing, invented and perfected the "J. B. L. Cascade," which has done more during the past 20 years in restoring health and lessening disease than all other means combined. Ask Warne Drug Co., Peterborough, for Booklet "Why Man of To-day is Only 50 per cent. Efficient." They will also be pleased to show and explain the J. B. L. Cascade to you.

WALKING FOR HEALTH.

The Pedometer Habit Is a Splendid One to Cultivate.

A famous New York doctor was called upon some months ago by a patient who presented an appearance of illness, but with whom he could find nothing the matter. Questioning disclosed the fact that he had not taken regular physical exercise for years. "That's your trouble," remarked the wise physician. "I'll write you a prescription." When he got outside the office the patient opened the bit of paper and read, "Get a pedometer and bring it back to me in three weeks with the indicator pointing to 100 miles." When the patient returned at the time mentioned the doctor, without making an examination, told him he need not come back any more. His looks demonstrated the efficacy of the treatment. But he was counseled to persevere in keeping the pedometer busy and thereby save many a doctor's fee.

There are imaginative patients, most of whose troubles may be traced to the "thermometer habit." They are constantly taking their temperature, and their feelings are regulated by their discoveries. A splendid substitute is the "pedometer habit." Instead of continually fussing to keep his temperature below 100, for instance, the possessor of one of these clever contrivances can try how long it takes to send the pedometer above that figure. Lots of fun is to be obtained from ascertaining distances between various points by walking them. Incidentally the liver gets a good shaking up, the lungs receive the fresh air for the lack of which they have been starving, and the enthusiastic pedestrian feels a new joy of living. It is not convenient for all to play that most excellent of pastimes—golf. But the pedometer game is available to most, and it renders interesting what is, after all, a rather monotonous form of exercise.—Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

CUTTING THE CABLES.

How It Is Done In Wartime In Deep and Shallow Waters.

Cutting submarine cables in wartime is by no means so easy a job as it sounds.

Briefly the method is as follows: The cruiser detailed for the work steams slowly at right angles to the cable route, dragging after her a special kind of grapnel, like a five pronged anchor with shears attached, which grip and cut the table at the same time. This grapnel is connected with the cable cutting ship by a strong rope formed of strands of steel and hemp interwoven, and attached to which is an instrument called a dynamometer, that shows when the cable is hooked.

By steaming once or twice backward and forward the cable can be cut in two places at, say, half a mile apart, and the severed portion can then be dragged away by another kind of non-cutting grapnel and left lying on the ocean bed at some distance away, where it is, of course, impossible to locate it, rendering any attempt to repair the damage a very difficult and laborious operation.

Such is the usual method adopted for destroying an enemy's cable in comparatively shallow seas. In the case of ocean cables submerged at great depths, however, the mode of procedure is somewhat different.

A similar five pronged grapnel is used, but it is a noncutting one and simply grips the cable, holding it fast. The fact that it has been hooked is, of course, notified to those on board by the dynamometer, when the ship is immediately stopped and the cable hoisted up toward the surface.

It never reaches the surface, however, for presently the lifting strain becomes too great, the cable snaps of its own accord, and, the two ends flying wide apart, the severed cable settles back to the ocean bottom obliquely, leaving a gap of possibly a thousand yards or more between the portions.—Pearson's Weekly.

A MODEST CANDIDATE.

He Uses the Movies to Show Himself In His Best Light.

A French politician who seeks election to the council of one of the departments has adopted a time and labor saving scheme to urge his claims on his constituents. Perhaps the Chinese praying machine inspired him.

Instead of haranguing the voters at election meetings he invites them to a cinematograph theater. There to the popular music one or two picture comedies are shown.

Then the candidate appears on the screen. He is seen addressing a meeting, shaking hands with the prefect and entering his motorcar. Another reel of film shows him helping an old woman to load her donkey with a bundle of wood, indignantly refusing a bribe and paying a visit to an old man stretched on a bed of illness.

In the last and most effective picture of the series the sympathetic candidate proves his heart is in the right place by discreetly slipping a banknote into the sick man's hand before bidding him au revoir.—Paris Cor Washington Herald.

HAVELOCK BAND WAS REORGANIZED.

Havelock's Band came to life again on Friday night of last week, when at a meeting held in the Council Chamber, the band was reorganized and assurances held out that it will be a live, progressive institution from now on. The first practice was held on Monday night, and the regular practice nights have been fixed for every Wednesday and Friday nights. The band starts off with about twenty-one pieces and more will be added in the near future. Mr. R. S. Dickson, who was elected leader, has had a life-time experience in band work, including some of the best bands in the province, and he hopes to have a first-class organization in a comparatively short time. Following are the officers elected: Leader, R. S. Dickson; Secy.-Treas., John Moore; Property Man, Robt. Wright; Committee—J. Howe, H. W. Roche, R. E. Covert and Robt Anderson.

Specks Floating Before His Eyes

When specks start to float before the eyes, when everything turns black for a few seconds and you feel as if you were going to faint, you may rest assured that your liver is not working properly.

The essential thing to do in all cases where the liver is slow, lazy or torpid, is to stir it up by the use of a medicine that will clear away all the waste and poisonous matter from the system, and prevent as well as cure all the troubles arising from this accumulated mass which has collected in the system.

Keep the bowels open by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and you will have no liver trouble of any kind. They will clear away all the waste and effete matter which has collected and make the liver active and working properly.

Mr. John R. Morrison, Grand River Falls, N.S., writes: "Several months ago I was troubled with a sour stomach, and had specks floating before my eyes. I took five vials of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills which cured and cleaned my blood before any length of time. I told my friends about it and they got some, and they, too, find themselves different since they took them. I recommend your pills very highly."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HEROIC VETERANS

Napoleon's Famous Fighters, the Imperial Guard.

LIVED UP TO THEIR MOTTO.

Even at Waterloo the Survivors of the Old Guard Fought Their Way on Their Retreat and None Surrendered. Their Shameful and Pathetic End.

Probably no household troops or bodyguards in the world ever achieved the reputation of Napoleon's Imperial guard, and they had their origin in a manner that shows that Imperial guards, like inventions, generally are often mothered by necessity.

It was during his Milan campaign, in the days of the republic, while Napoleon was still General Bonaparte, that the Austrians nearly captured the Little Corporal. If they had succeeded probably the whole history of Europe would have been different and Waterloo would be still waiting for a reputation.

He was passing along the bank of a river with a small escort lent from the divisions of Augereau and Massena. An Austrian corps was hastening up the banks of the same stream to join Beaulieu. After General Bonaparte had ridden some distance in company with Augereau he then returned to Valeggio, where he stopped. He had been suffering from headache and believed that a foot bath would effect a cure.

So during his stop he pulled off his boots and sought to bathe his feet at a house in the village. While he was thus engaged the Austrians appeared. They came so rapidly that there was scarcely time to sound an alarm. However, the alarm was sounded, the gates of the carriageway closed, and the post began to make adefense.

Pulling one boot on one leg and fearing to spend the time to boot the other, Bonaparte rushed out through a back way and thus made his escape on his horse. He rushed as hard as his horse would carry him to Messina, and, although his troops were at mess, they were quickly gathered and started off after the Austrians, who, when they were met were forced to flee.

But the experience taught Napoleon a lesson. He found that it was perfectly possible for a commanding officer to be taken prisoner with comparative ease, and he soon found a way to make this more difficult.

He organized a command, at first called guides, whose principal duty was to protect the commanding officer. By degrees this body was increased, and under the consulate it was known as the Garde Consulaire, receiving that title in 1799. At that time it consisted of 9775 men and was a mere body of household troops, although naturally with a man like Napoleon it was a combatant force and not for ornamental purposes.

LIFEBUOY SOAP

In 1804, with the creation of the empire, this body became the Imperial guard. It grew in size and importance and in 1809 it was divided into the Vielle garde and the Jeune garde. It was a place of honor. To be admitte the soldier must have served in three campaigns. Consequently it was know as the elite of the Imperial troops. Every man was a veteran. It could b depended upon to do its utmost. I 1814, when Napoleon abdicated for th first time, the Imperial guard had be increased to 112,482 men of all branch of service.

It was owing to the fact that th army, called the Imperial guard, wa composed of veterans, men who ha seen service and were old campaigner that Napoleon believed them to be in conquerable. The brunt of battle a ways had to be borne by the Imperi guard. They consequently were a ways fearfully cut up. Only a rem nant of the guard returned from Ru sia, and at Waterloo their ranks we cut down until few of the old guar remained. It was their motto that th old guard never surrenders, and thos who were able to walk away from the battlefield at the foot of Mont St. Jean fought their way on their retreat, an none surrendered.

After Waterloo the old guard was trented shamefully. As many as could be caught were court martialed, and the remainders were regarded as so many banditti. General Lallemand brought 200 of them to America and with them founded a colony in Texas then not United States territory. Th settlement, which was unsuccessful, was named Champ d'Asile, or Field of Refuge. The Mexican government compelled them to leave, and they next sought refuge at Galveston, but again were made to move on. And finally, after a few months, the 47 of the 200 that survived arrived in New Orleans. They came here in 1818, and it was not until 1830, when there were only a few survivors, that a sum of 80,000 francs reached the exiles.—Exchange.

Butler and Bishop.

A former bishop of Bath and Wells loved to impress on his ordination candidates the importance of a thorough study of the "Analogy" of Bishop Butler. "Goodby, my dear young friend," he once said in taking leave of a student at the palace door and then earnestly added, "Whatever you do, don't forget the Butler." "Oh, my lord, I haven't," stammered out the youth, "I have just given him half a crown."—T. P.'s London Weekly.

Tomorrow will be like today. Life wastes itself while we are preparing to live.—Emerson.

Abandoned Manuscripts.

It is said that Kipling's "Recessional" was rescued from his waste-paper basket, and had it not been for the intervention and pleading of a friend that magnificent fragment "Hyperion" would have been put behind the fire by Keats, while even the still more famous "Ode to a Nightingale" was discovered by the same friend behind a pile of books.

Newman thought nothing of his "Dream of Gerontius." He wrote to please himself and would forthwith have burned it. But again a friend stepped in and saved a poem which Elgar has set to splendid music, and which provides one of the finest hymns in the language, "Praise to the Holiest in the Height."

One day Tennyson wrote to "Omar" FitzGerald, casually mentioning that he had left a few verses behind him in his cupboard at his late lodgings, and would be rather glad to recover them, says the San Francisco Argonaut. Fitz found them among the butter and sugar, written in an old butcher's book They were "In Memoriam."

FitzGerald thought a great deal about "Alfred's" verses, but very little about his own. He wrote "Omar Khayyam" in all its haunting beauty long before his death, and had a few copies printed, but he seems to have told nobody about it. Another poet found a copy in the twopenny box of a second-hand bookshop, and boomed it into deserved fame.

Browning actually did destroy everything he wrote before "Pauline," and tried to withdraw that from publication in order to burn the last left copy. He did not succeed, but he made it so scarce that a first edition was sold recently for £480.

Sir Walter Scott threw the first copy of "The Lay of the Last Minstrel" into the fire, and was only persuaded to rewrite it from memory by two friends to whom he had formerly read it. Even the first of his novels, "Waverley," was accidentally flashed out of some lumber where it had lain for years little regarded.

"What is This Nerve Food You See Advertised in all the Papers, Some Kind of Patent Medicine?"

"PERHAPS that is what you might call it."

"Well, do you know anything about it?"

"I certainly do, and have a box right here in my grip. Why, say, in my estimation, it is the greatest thing ever invented in the medicine line."

"You seem to be rather enthusiastic. You are not selling Nerve Food, are you?"

"No, I am not selling it, but I am recommending it. When I find a good thing I like to tell others about it."

"What did it ever do for you?"

"I was on my back with the 'flu' for two weeks, and when I got up was so weak that I did not get out of the house for ten days. I started out on my trip on the road, but did not have the energy to sell goods."

"What seemed to be the matter?"

"The doctor said my nerves were in bad condition. I could not sleep nights, and after talking to a customer I seemed to be all in. There was so little nerve force in my system that I went all to pieces with a little exertion.

"I did not get right until I had used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for about two weeks. By that time my appetite was good and I began to feel like myself again.

"For a month I scarcely missed a dose of the Nerve Food, and am now feeling fine. I eat and sleep well, and take the same old pleasure in my work that I always did when in good health."

"You must be all right, then."

"Yes, and I certainly appreciate what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done for me, for I thought I would have to quit the road entirely. You can call it a patent medicine if you like, but, anyway, I swear by it."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. On every box of the genuine you will find the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author.

Railwayman Honored.

Col. George McLaren Brown, European manager for the Canadian Pacific Railway, has been created Knight Commander of the Order of the British Empire. Col. Sir George McLaren Brown is one of the most widely known and most popular of Canadian railway officials. Born in Hamilton, Ont., in 1865, he entered the service of the N. & N. W. Railway, Hamilton, in 1881, and a year or two later went to the Grand Trunk. In 1887 he became agent of the C.P.R. at Vancouver, and within the next twenty years passed through various phases of the railroad's service, including assistant general passenger agent of the western division, executive agent, western lines, superintendent of hotels, dining and sleeping cars, and general passenger agent of Atlantic steamship lines. In the latter appointments he was located in Montreal.

In 1910 came the appointment to London, England, as general European manager of the C.P.R. In London the commanding stature and the genial presence of Col. McLaren Brown have made him a familiar figure. As assistant in the transportation work of troops, he was made lieutenant-colonel, and during the war he has spent a large part of his time at one of the emergency extensions of the War Office. He was one of the founders of the Canadian War Contingent Association, which was charged with looking after the welfare of Canadian troops, and he was mainly responsible for the establishment of the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital at Beachborough Park, Shorncliffe, which in the early stages of the war did much for our troops. Col. Brown was W.M. of Canada Lodge, A. F. and A. M., in 1915, and has looked well after members of that craft who have gone on active service. He has, in fact, made his offices on Trafalgar Square of great service to all members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and has helped many anxious relatives by causing enquiries to be made on behalf of wounded and missing men. A busy man, Col. Brown always made it a rule to find time to see those who had legitimate claims, and none more than the newspapermen appreciated this.

Free Yourself of Rupture Without Pain, Operation or Loss of Time

FOR the benefit of our readers we take pleasure in publishing the Brooks offer to save all who are ruptured from wearing painful makeshift trusses that do not cure.

The Brooks appliance Co. gladly sends their remarkable patented Appliance ON TRIAL to prove that it holds the rupture back, keeps it in its place, prevents it coming down or slipping out and finally assists Nature to heal up the rupture.

No man or woman ever can look and feel his or her best while suffering the torment, pain and discomfort of rupture.

Every day that you suffer from rupture----every hour of truss torture that you endure----after you read this page is your own fault.

For many years we have been telling you that no makeshift truss will ever help you. We have told you about the harm ill-fitting trusses are doing. We have told you that the only truly comfortable, sanitary and scientific device for holding rupture is the the Brooks Rupture Appliance.

Now we offer to prove it to you, entirely at our risk. We will send you a Brooks Rupture Appliance on trial. If you really want to be rid of your rupture fill out the coupon below and mail it to-day.

Instead of wearing a steel spring or inflexible harness, try the velvet-soft Brooks Appliance.

Instead of the old hard or stuffed pad, use the soft rubber automatic air-cushion of a Brooks Appliance:

The Brooks Appliance clings to you without force and you are hardly conscious of its presence. But above all else, it HOLDS always.

Within an hour after you receive the Brooks Appliance, if you take advantage of this remarkable trial offer, you will throw away your truss forever.

Qver 685,000 People Have Accepted This Offer? Why Not You?

Doesn't that prove that the Brooks Appliance is not an experiment but a positive success—that it does all we claim for it? Among these 685,000 men, women and children there must be hnndreds whose condition was identical with yours. Can you afford not to investigate and satisfy yourself when it costs you nothing to prove what thhe Brooks Appliance will do for you.

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Inventor of the Appliance. Mr. Brooks cured himself of rupture over 30 years ago and patented the Appliance from his personal experience. If ruptured, write TO-DAY to the Brooks Appliance Company, Marshall, Michigan.

This wonderful device is a triumph of scientific and mechanical genius, the outcome of more than 30 years experience and the results accomplished by its use are little short of miraculous.

Many hundreds of physicians and surgeons recommend the Brooks Appliance and condemn makeshift trusses as more harmful and dangerous than any other method of retaining and treating rupture. Thousands of people have written us testifying to the amazing results they have secured from this great invention. Many of these people live right in your vicinity and we will be glad to send you copies of their thankful letters if you will ask for them when you write.

Men, Women and Children Find the Brooks Appliance Equally Effective

No matter if your rupture is old and severe or only recently developed, no matter if you are young or old, you should not fail to profit by this No Risk Trial Offer

No other rupture support, truss, lock, device, pad or plaster is offered to the public uader so broad a guarantee of satisfaetion.

If for any reason whatever you do not wish to keep the Brooks Appliance after you try it, send it back. You don't have to give any reason. You are to be the sole judge. There will be no argument, no dispute or misunderstanding.

Ten Reasons Why You Should Accept This Offer.

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance embodying the principles that inventors have sought after for years.

2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.

3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.

4. Unlike ordinary so-called pads, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.

5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.

6. The soft, pliable bands do not give the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.

7. Nothing to get foul; it can be washed without any injury.

8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.

9. All materials are the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.

10. Our reputation is so thoroughly established and our prices so reasonable, our terms so fair, that you should not hesitate to send the free coupon to-day.

Dominion Railway Board Has Decided in Favour of Daylight Saving Measure

Parliament Follows Suit and Adopts the New Time—Judgment of Commission.

PUBLIC SAFETY

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, April 12.—The Dominion Railway Commission has decided that the railways acted for public safety and convenience in adopting daylight saving time in conformity with the United States.

Following the judgment of the Railway Commission on daylight saving, Parliament adopted the Ottawa time for the sittings of the House. Just before the House adjourned, Hon. Arthur Meighen, who was leading the government, rose and stated that the effect of the judgment was that the setting of standard or local time was a matter for Provincial jurisdiction. That being the case, he suggested that the House, when it adjourned, should meet again at three o'clock local daylight saving time, on Monday. D. D. McKenzie, leader of the Opposition, suggested that the judgment of the Railway Board, which could only have been comes to after a great deal of deliberation, be placed on Hansard. Mr. Meighen agreed to this suggestion, and the House adjourned.

Few Changes In the Covenant

France and Japan File Objections to Present Form.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, April 12.—With the single exception of the amendment specifically exempting the Monroe Doctrine from being affected by the Covenant, no vital change was made by the League of Nations' Commission in that document in its meetings on Thursday and Friday night, last night's meeting marking the conclusion of the consideration of the Covenant.

Last night's discussion lasted four hours. No date was set for a plenary session of the Peace Conference to consider the Covenant. The Covenant, as the Commission left it, did not include any section granting Japan's request for the recognition of racial equality, and neither was a section introduced covering the request of France for an international military general staff. Both Japan and France announced that they reserved the right to bring up the amendments they desired before a plenary session of the Conference. As it now stands, the Covenant contains 26 sections.

Increase For Postal Clerks

Assurance Given By Newton Wesley Rowell.

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, April 12.—R. H. Cox, the secretary of the local union of the Federation of Letter Carriers, told the Examiner to-day that there was no authority for the statement that either the letter carriers or the postal clerks intended to strike on Monday if they did not receive their demands.

A despatch from Ottawa says that the letter carriers and the postal clerks have received a written assurance from Hon. N. W. Rowell that they will receive this year the $130 necessary to equalize the salaries of employees of the postal department in Eastern Canada with the salaries of the employees of the department in Western Canada.

HAVE CHANGED HUNTING DATES

Deer and Moose Season Will be 5th to 20th November.

The Fish and Game Committee of the Provincial Legislature has extended the royalties on fur-bearing animals to include muskrat, fisher marten, etc., and amended the regulations regarding deer hunting to one deer instead of two, as was the ruling during the war. The Treasury Department will increase the awards on bush wolves from $5 to $10, and on timber wolves from $20 to $40.

The hunting season for deer and moose has been changed frm 5th November to 20th, south of the main line of the C.P.R., instead of from the 1st to the 15th.

Bring Order Out of Chaos

German Government More Stable Than It Appears to be on the Surface.

By Frank J. Taylor.
(United Press.)

BERLIN, April 11, Via London, April 12.—The present German government is much more stable than appears on the surface. It can throw half a million well trained and equipped troops into the fild, if necessary, and is in a position to maintain order by force.

But the government is not averse to the occurrence of strikes and other troubles—so long as they do not get out of hand—until peace is made. Then we probably shall see the Germans bringing order out of chaos like American business men wading into the day's work.

The Bavarian affair is not serious [illegible] eral Communist outbreak. Organized resistance by the deposed Socialist government is steadily gaining followers, because the real Bavarians resent the way the Spartacans flocked to Munich and seized control. The Soviet Republic there is largely the work of a population that has floated in during or since the war—munition workers and soldiers.

Same Old Machine.

If the Ebert-Schiedemann government should, by some chance be overthrown, the Foreign Office would remain the same. Foreign Minister Brockdorff-Rantzau has some sort of an agreement with Hugo Haase, and the other Independent Socialist leaders who admire him for his pacificism, and if Brockdorff-Rantzau stays, his cousin, Count Von Bernstorff and the rest of the present outfit, will likewise stay. That means the same old machine will conduct the negotiations in Paris.

The Germans probably will make a great bluff at trying to scare the Allies. That is, they will threaten to Bolshevise themselves and try to get the French and Italian workmen to join them, but it does not seem possible that, in view of the German's traditional love of system and order, the government would "quit cold."

Inasmuch as the workmen are disarmed and cannot fight, the only thing that could force out the government would be a tremendous strike—much larger than the present one—which most observers believe the radicals will will be unable to swing.

A message from Danzig to-day reported a railway strike in that district. The strikers, numbering 20,000, are demanding establishment of a Soviet Republic and an alliance with Russia and Hungary. Three persons were reported to have been killed in a clash between srikers and soldiers who were guarding a sqaure in front of the principal railway stations.

FRANK JENNE SAYS:

"Custom tailoring at wholesale prices—that is just what our special order tailoring department is.

"When we have not in our large stock the exact cloth pattern a man likes we can show 300 different patterns of imported British woolens, and from many of these our customers can have made to measure a suit in any style he likes. We have fashion portfolios showing 50 different suit models and we can vary or add to these any exclusive kink our patron may think of or wish for."

Mr. Jenne says that in the Semi-ready shops in Montreal, they can finish 200 custom made suits each working day—and every special order is cut and tailored on a four-day schedule.

PUNISHMENT FOR WILHELM

Committee on Responsibility Divided on the Question—International Court.

SACRED PERSONS

By Lowell Mellett.
(United Press.)

PARIS, April 12.—A roll call of the whole Peace Conference may be necessary to determine whether the former Kaiser is to be hanged or otherwise punished for his crimes.

The Committee on Responsibility for the War was divided on the question of personal punishment for Wilhelm. Great Britain, France and Italy favoured it, the United States and Japan opposed it. The ultimate decision, it was said to-day, may have to be rendered when the plenary session discusses the committee's report.

Point at Issue.

The point at issue was a paragraph in the committee's report providing arraignment before an International Court, of National Courts, of all persons deemed guilty of military crimes, "regardless of rank." The Japanese and American members made a reservation on this provision.

Twelve hundred and fifty copies of the report were ordered printed, but the printing was held up because the dissenters wanted to include a memorandum setting forth the reasons for their objections, while the other three desired simpl yto note the fact that there was a dissenting opinion.

The American objection was based on the inability to find any International law sanctioning procedure of the heads of States, because it legally assumed the actions are dictated by a policy of State. The Japanese protested they could not subscribe to a doctrine which would contract their theory that an Emperor is a sacred person, reigning by divine right.

There was some talk in British circles to-day that Premier Lloyd George will demand Wilhelm's head in open conference. If he does not get it, the former Kaiser's personal punishment is likely to be a paragraph in the committee's final report condemning his actions, since things [illegible] conference than they did in committee.

War Crimes.

The report as finally drawn, includes another ground for indictment of persons responsible for war crimes, making a total of thirty-two. The thirty-second relates to "organised terrorism," as a deliberate war policy. Under this a number of High German officials might be summoned before an International Court, even the former Kaiser and Crown Prince, Grand Admiral Von Tirpitz, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and General Ludendorff escape under American technical objections.

Overheated Pipe Caused a Fire

Charlotte Street House was Slightly Damaged.

A hot stove pipe, running through an unprotected division in the wall, at the home of Mrs. O'Brien, 213 Charlotte street, last evening at 7.10 caused a small fire. Mr. Walsh, one of the boarders at the house, sent in an alarm and the brigade laid 1150 feet of hose and used 46 gallons of chemicals before the blaze was extinguished. The flames shot up through the partition into the attic, setting fire to the roof and the firemen were compelled to pull off the shingles on the west end of the roof. The house is the property of the Chamberlain estate and is insured. The damage was slight.

IN FAVOUR OF ONE QUESTION

(Special to The Examiner.)

HAMILTON, Ont., April 12.—The hotelmen of the city met and decided to ask the government to submit but one question in the proposed amendment. They think a single question, such as submitted in Quebec yesterday: "Are you in favour of light wine and beer being sold over the counter?" should be voted on. Some of the temperance people also favoured one question such as, "Are you in favour of prohibition?"

Veterans Will Picket Border

Will Prevent the Settling of Mennonites in Canada.

(Special to Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, April 12.—The Great War Veterans of Winnipeg are determined to prevent the settling of more Mennonites in Canada if they have to stand guard at the border, and use force to keep them from crossing the line. They will build huts for border pickets.

F. W. Law, secretary, says the Veterans have reiterated their determination to picket the border if Mennonites attempt to cross.

They want every Mennonite entering Canada to sign a declaration of willingness to abide by all the duties of citizenship, including military service.

Several carloads of effects left Emerson for Eli, Man., yesterday in charge of Michael Waimer of Huron, S.D. Another colony is expected to reach the border within a week.

EXEMPTION CANCELLED.

OTTAWA, April 12.—The announcement of the Winnipeg war veterans that force will be used if necessary to prevent the Mennonites from the United States from entering Canada at Emerson, has been followed by an order in council cancelling all exemptions from military service hitherto granted to the Mennonites. They were granted exemption by the Federal government in 1899.

Profiteering in Coal Business

Matter was Aired in Legislature Yesterday.

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, April 12.—Answering questions asked by Hartley Dewart with regard to profiteering in coal alleged to have been practised, Hon. G. H. Ferguson stated in the Legislature yesterday that the government had found that overcharges had been made to dealers in Winchester and that as a result $1741 had been recovered from wholesale dealers and distributed among those purchasing coal in that district.

Pending investigation by the Fuel Administration, the matter has not been brought to the attention of the Attorney-General.

The allowance of $10,000 made to R. Home Smith re the provincial fuel problem, Mr. Ferguson stated, includes the duty of reporting upon the above matter. He has made numerous verbal and written reports to the government on the subject.

NON-JURY SITTINGS OF THE HIGH COURT

The Non-Jury sittings of the High Court will open in Peterboro on Monday at one o'clock. Mr. Justice Lennox will preside. Included in the list of cases to be brought before the Court will be a motion to be made for the appointment of Mrs. A. Rowe as committee of the person and estate of her husband, George H. Rowe, Mr. C. R. Widdifield is acting for the applicant. The Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities will be represented on the motion by Mr. O. A. Langley.

Jessie Alexander Recital

Last evening Miss Jessie Alexander was enthusiastically received by a large and appreciative audience in St. Paul's church. Peer amongst entertainers as she is, Miss Alexander's wholly sang froid manner proved irresistable to the audience, which refused to let any number go without at least one encore. Her selections covered recitations from practically every field and all were given with a highly dramatic effect and in clear and distinct tones.

The programme was opened by a violin solo by Miss Laura Logan, rendered in her customary artistic manner. Mrs. Maurice Park and Mr. Douglas Carlisle also assisted in the programme, and their selections were keenly appreciated, and heartily encored.

Miss Alexander's opening number was "Flander's Fields," and "America's Answer," to Col. McCrae's immortal war poem. These numbers were given with dramatic effect and great feeling. Following these selections "Mandy on 'Mother's Day,'" a recitation full of humour and yet with an intensely patriotic vein underlying the negress, (Mandy.) A monologue on "Motheris Day" was well received; likewise J. J. Bell's humorous "Visit to the Country," in which an old Scotch lady describes to her friend all the horrors of a few days' visit with her sister in law in the country.

In "For Belgium," Miss Alexander displayed her ability not only as an elocutionist but as an actress. The selection describing the mining of a Belgian bridge by a patriotic Belgian girl, was one which necessitated a real artist to make the best of it, which Miss Alexander did, and appeared to live in it.

Her closing number, her own experiences on registration day, with Irish, Scotch, English, Russian and deaf registrants, and an artistocratic old lady, who insisted on impressing upon Miss Alexander that she came from Rosedale, was extremely ludricous ,and kept the audience in a roar of laughter throughout the recitation. To each number Miss Alexander gave a generous encore.

The audience felt indebted to the Fraser Mission Band, under whose auspices the affair was given, for an entertainment of unusually high order.

CONFERENCE THIS MORNING

Dominion's Representatives Are Still Enjoying a Seat on the Doorstep.

ARE IMPRESSED

(Canadian Press.)
(By Leon Trepanier.)

PARIS, April 12.—At a meeting of the plenary council yesterday afternoon, Canada was represented by Sir Robert Borden and by Hon Mr. Sifton, and Hon. Mr. Doherty, who have been giving special attention to details of the labor convention, which has formed a subject of discussion.

There was a long conference in the morning between the British Prime Minister and the Prime Ministers of the Overseas Dominions, to whom Mr. Lloyd George gave a full report of the proposals now under consideration by the council of four, and whose advice and assistance he sought on several questions of great importance.

It is understood that the representatives of the Dominions were favorably impressed with the progress which has been made in reaching tentative conclusions, and that proposals placed before them were discussed with satisfactory results.

By means of such frequent consultations, the representatives of the Dominoins enjoy specially favorable opportunities for keeping closely in touch with the proceedings of the Council of Four, and also of urging their views in respect of all matters that concern thei rinterests.

Military Crosses to Mark Graves of Peterboro Men

General Williams Made a Generous Offer—Visited the Cemetries.

In order that the proper respect may be paid to the men who died in connection with the war General Williams, after an inspection of the two cemeteries while in the city, offered at his own expense to furnish monuments for all who desire to have them. The mosuments which are made in the form of a white cross braced on four sides are identical with those used in France to mark the graves and bear the name, military number, rank and place of death. General Williams will send a copy of the monument he suggested next week to Captain Morrison and all who wish to secure one whether for the Little Lake or St. Peter's Cemetery, may do so by applying to Captain Morrison at 190 Charlotte street. One gentleman who was to have erected a large monument to his boy changed his mind on seeing the military cross suggested, and said, "that as his boy died a soldier, he preferred to have his grave marked as a soldier."

Military Plot.

General Williams wants a military plot set aside both cemeteries for all the men who died in the service since 1914. This plot would be used for all who have no family plot or whose families wish their boys to rest with their comrades.

Higher Prices On the Market

Prices Slumped Off Towards the Close.

Higher prices were asked at the market this morning than last week from the earlier buyer, but the market took a drop towards eleven o'clock on account of the refusal of many housewives to be held up.

Butter sold at 60 and 65 cents a pound.

Eggs at 40 and 43 cents a dozen.

Chicken at 30 cents a pound.

Potatoes at $1.45 a bag.

Maple Syrup at $3.00 a gallon.

Apples sold for $2.40 a bag and 80 cents a peck.

PRICES TOOK A DROP AT CLOSE

At twelve o'clock today butter dropped in price from 65 cents to 58 cents and maple syrup from $3.00 a gallon to $2.65.

Government Has No Information

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, April 12.—Dr. Widden inquired when the peace treaty would be ready for ratification, and if there was any possibility of the Government setting aside time for the consideration of its terms. Sir Thomas White said he had no information as to when the peace treaty would be ready for ratification.

Special Bridge Committee Made a Fresh Start On Hunter St. Bridge Proposal

Met Last Night and Decided to Call for New Lump Sum Guaranteed Bids Based on Certain Alterations—Steel Bridge Will Not Be Considered.

The Council's Special Bridge Committee made a fresh start last night toward securing a suitable tender for the Hunter street bridge, when they decided to call for new lump sum guaranteed bids based on the following alterations to the Barber plans:

The elimination of the granite finish except on the banisters and railings; also of the concrete masonry, substituting for it concrete of the same class.

The elimination of the granite finish in the arches, and of the sidewalks on the loose fill in the approaches.

A shorter fill on the west side of the river, allowing for a 4% grade in the approach on that side only; and no filling to be made west of the point where this approach begins.

A reduction of nine feet in the width of the bridge.

These instructions will be forwarded to Mr. Barber at once, and tenders will be accepted from the contractors who previously submitted the required marked cheques of $10,000.

Lump Sum Bids.

The committee also desires that the new tenders be explicitly itemized showing the amount of the reduction in their bids covering each of the above alterations. This condition is asked for in order that the effect of the alterations shall be manifest.

Last night's action sprang from the hope that the contractors will submit lump sum bids, and also that the fullest information possible on the apparent cost may be secured before the contract is let. The alterations are expected to admit of considerable reductions in whatever new bids are presented, and the itemized statement of the various features that may be eliminated may afford certain options to the committee and to the council that may or may not be carried out. For example, it was decided to call for a tender on the 9 feet reduction in the width of the bridge largely for the purpose of ascertaining what difference in the cost this detail represents. Members of the committee felt that this drastic cut would not be necessary, but they agreed that it was advisable in the interests of the ratepayers to obtain a separate estimate on this possible alteration.

Ald. McIntyre stated that one of the contractors had assured him that he could build the bridge without interfering with traffic, but he refused to communicate his information to the committee.

Will Not Shorten.

Following the advice of City Engineer Parsons, the Committee decided not to shorten the approach on the east side of the river for the reason that any abbreviation on that end would cause a dip that would be unsightly and also obstructive to traffic. The filling on that side of the river will begin at the centre of the Burnham street intersection.

An alternative steel bridge was barely mentioned by the committee, the majority of whom have evidently determined that a concrete structure will give the city the best all round service.

SPEEDING PLANS FOR THE FLIGHT ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

Another British Aviator Has Arrived on the Scene—Will Fly Smaller Machine.

KEEN INTEREST

(Special to Examiner.)

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, April 12.—Major C. W. F. Morgan, the British aviator, who arrived here on board the steamer Sachem, from Liverpool, was to-day speeding plans for a flight across the Atlantic in the Martinsyde plane, which he brought over with him.

Morgan hopes to make his start before the larger Sopwith plane with which Harry Hawker plans to make the flight can again take the air.

Major Morgan's theory is that his smaller plane with its narrower wing spread, will not require the same calm weather conditions necessary for Howker.

The latter was all perpared to make the flight yesterday afternoon but was prevented by a stiff north west wind and light snow falls.

The ground about the Sopwith hanger, from which Hawker will start his flight, was drying fast to-day but an overcast sky is believed to forecast light rain showers, keeping the big Sopwith machine on the ground until early next week.

Morgan has alerady leased a field near St. John's, and expects to be ready to start before Hawker is ready for another flight.

Keen Interest.

Keen interest was manifest to-day in the contest to be the first to cross the Atlantic in an airplane. Until Morgan's arrival, Hawker and Lieut. Commander Grieve, his navigator, have had a clear field but Morgan's presence here and his readiness quickened the sporting blood of all concerned. Morgan's pilot is F. Praynard, a veteran flyer.

Morgan brought with him a complete R. E.-8 hangar, made of canvas, such as was used by the British during the war. The hangar can be put up in an hour and thus Morgan is not faced with the necessity of building a wooden hangar as Hawker was.

Few details are known regarding the Martinsyde machine. The wings are 26 feet over all, and have a 41 foot span. It is considerably smaller than Hawker's Sopwith plane.

Says Salaries Are Inadequate

Peter Wright Addressed Gathering in Toronto Last Evening.

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, April 12.—Peter Wright, the representative of the British seamen, spoke before a gathering of credit men at their monthly dinner last night. He declared that the statements of Dr. Cody that all was well in the schools was not correct, drawing attention to the starvation wages that were paid teachers who had classes of from 15 to 40 children, who were not taught the powers of observation, but were taught to memorize, and at the age of fourteen, when their muscles were undeveloped, were thrown upon the labour market. The speaker declared that a business man would pay ten thousand a year for a manager, because he would give results, but very poor wages were paid teachers, and therefore the best could not be obtained.

Several Positions Were Filled During the Past Week

Of fifty-nine applications at the Labour Bureau, thirty-nine were placed this week. Thirty-six vacancies, mostly for carpenters, were filed during the week. In the soldiers' department, twenty-nine applications were received and twenty-three, of whom ten were former applicants, were found positions. Of about five applications, three men were directed by Captain Morrison for vocational training, while a number of applications for gratuities and pensions were attended to. One application for office work was received from a woman, one was placed as a housekeeper and four vacancies for weavers were filled.

A NEW PROBLEM

The result of the referendum in Quebec while it may not have any effect on the Ontario situation is undoubtedly affording the members of the Dominion Government much food for reflection. As the Dominion prohibition law stands, the importation of and manufacture of beer and wine in any province is forbidden, so that for the present at least, although Quebec has placed herself in the "wet" column as far as these beverages are concerned, the only beer and wine that can be sold there is what is already in stock in the province as no more can be manufactured or imported as long as the Dominion laws prohibit this being done. The supply may be sufficient to provide the people of the Province with all they desire for the present, especially as Thursday's vote is non-effective in the many townships which previously had adopted local option and which will continue to remain dry until local option is repealed.

However, the Dominion Government is now facing the problem of whether or not they shall continue the policy of prohibiting the manufacture and importation of beer and wine in a province which by an overwhelming vote has expressed its desire to have these beverages. The result puts a different face on the subject of prohibition as far as the Dominion Government is concerned and is expected to effect a change in the legislation that is to be brought down after Easter.

ANOTHER DOMESTIC LOAN?

That the people of Canada may be asked to subscribe to another domestic loan before the end of the present year was fore-shadowed by the speech of Sir Thomas White in the House of Commons on Thursday. The Minister of Finance pointed out that although there was still the sum of $200,000,000 in the treasury this might be all needed to furnish credits to countries to whom Canada wished to sell products. Already the surprising big credits of $500,000,000 have been arranged by the Dominion in the past few years. The war expenditure for the ensuing year is estimated at $206,000,000, of which by far the greater part is for the Department of Militia and Defence. The war gratuities to be paid to the members of the C.E.F. alone will require a total of $92,000,000.

Incidentally the Minister of Finance gave some figures that show how huge has been Canada's war expenditure. By the end of the present fiscal year the total will reach the staggering figure of over one billion and a half dollars.

If a new loan is decided upon as seems altogether probable from the tone of Sir Thomas White's remarks, the people of Canada will expect to see a more economical system of floating the loan than has characterized similar campaigns during the war. The cost of putting over the last Victory War Loan was altogether too great when compared with the expense of the Liberty Loan in the United States. More economic methods should be studied so that when the drive on behalf of the new loan is inaugurated next autumn, many of the expensive features will have been eliminated.

DR. BELAND'S BOOK

A book that every Canadian family should have is "My Three Years in a German Prison," written by Hon. Dr. Beland, M.P., and published by William Briggs, Toronto. Dr. Beland, former Postmaster General, is one of Canada's outstanding war heroes. His fellow countrymen will not forget that although he had a chance to escape from Belgium where he was visiting when the grey hordes of Huns swept over that heroic little country, he rather chose to remain and do what he could as a doctor to ease the suffering of the wounded. His book tells in a most interesting manner the story of his capture by the Germans and of his experiences as a prisoner for three years in Berlin. His recital of how he was treated by his captors throws a new light upon the brutality of the Germans and the methods they used in dealing with their unfortunate captives. It will be remembered that Madame Beland who had accompanied her husband to Europe was left in Belgium when he was removed to Berlin. Afterwards she became gravely ill, and when news of her condition reached Dr. Beland he exerted every effort to be allowed to pay hr even a brief visit, but the stony-hearted Prussians refused absolutely to accede to his request. It was two days after Madame Beland had been buried, before Dr. Beland was informed of his wife's death.

In his book Dr. Beland draws some very interesting pen pictures of the German officers who were in charge of the jail and of his fellow prisoners. He had an unique opportunity to study the conditions generally as for some time he was officiating surgeon in the prison and on this account had a chance for observation that was not available to the ordinary prisoner.

The book is well written and intensely interesting and should be in demand by the Canadian people who will want to preserve it for future generations as a testimony by a well known Canadian of the inherently brutal character of the Germans generally.

RE-ORGANIZING THE MILITIA

One of the interesting features of the visit to Peterboro of General Williams was his reference to the re-organization of the militia units of the district which is to be proceeded with at once. Naturally the commanding officer of No. 3 Military District recognizes that in the re-building of the regiments of the active militia, the returned soldiers of Canada should have a most important share. It might almost be said that if the ex-members of the C.E.F. cannot be induced to show an interest in the militia, the re-organization of the regiments will be practicaly an impossibility.

On the other hand if service in the home regiments can be made sufficiently attractive to interest the returned soldiers, the militia will undoubtedly be on a better footing than before the war. There will, however, have to be common sense and judgment used in the re-organization, especially in the selection of officers and non-commissioned officers. As far as possible these must be men who have fought in the war. The fighters who have returned from the battle front cannot be expected to soldier at home under officers who did not offer themselves when the country called upon them. There are officers, of course, who by reason of physical unfitness or other legitimate reason, could not get overseas, and the returned men will have no quarrel with them, but they are not likely to be inclined to join a unit officered by those others who were soldiers before the war, but who were found wanting when the test came. Care must be taken to see that this stumbling-block in the way of the successful re-organization of the militia is removed.

Again the system by which officers of the active militia who went overseas must revert to the rank they held in their home regiments in peace times, is an injustice that will interfere with the rebuilding of the regiments. It is manifestly unfair that an officer who may have been a lieutenant when the war broke out and who has won promotion on the field to the rank of major or lieutenant-colonel, as many of them have done, should have to drop down again to his old rank of subaltern when he resumes his place in his militia unit, while at the same time some other officer who remained at home has gone up the ladder of promotion. As the system now operates Lieut.-Col. Girvan, of the 48th Highlanders, who rose from the ranks during the war until he eventually commanded a fighting battalion at the front, would have to revert to the grade of private in his former regiment. So, too, would the famous Lieut.-Col. Pearkes, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., who is another officer who has risen from the rank of enlisted man. The method is so obviously unjust and ridiculous that its continuance will have a marked effect upon the development of military affairs at home.

The training of the militia too must be altered if it is expected to appeal to the veterans of the war. Canada's fighting men who for many months have experienced the real thing in soldiering, will not be content to go to the Armouries once a week to do squad drill and other elementary work. General Williams himself expressed his agreement with this view and remarked that he hated squad drill. Doubtless the course of training will be re-arranged so that it will be interesting to the men who have fought.

There need be no question of the success of the Canadian militia if the defects are removed and the system so arranged that the services of ex-members of the C.E.F. can be utilized.

SICK OF SIBERIA.

Canadians are Anxious to Return, Says Soldier.

VANCOUVER, April 11. — When the C.P.O.S. liner Empress of Japan steamed into port yesterday it had on board the first Canadian soldiers returning from Siberia. There were 78 officers and men all of whom were inbalided home, being unfit for further military serbice, but none of them seriously ill. The men reported a fine passage across the Pacific, and not a complaint was received by the officers in regard to the treatment or food.

"The boys are all sick of it over there and are anxiously awaiting their turn to get back home. There is too much inactivity and there is no 'pep' over there. Outside of the manoeuvring there is little to do but fuss around," said one man.

The party was in charge of Lieut. F. H. French, R.N.W.M.P., who led the expedition into the far north and brought back the two Eskimos who murdered the two priests two years ago.

Lumber Company Opens in Lakefield

Capitalized at $40,000—Lakefield News.

LAKEFIELD, April 12.—A new lumber company has been incorporated called the Kawartha Lumber Company, capitalized at $40,000.

President—E. R. Tate.

Sec.-Treas.—G. J. Elmsley, Toronto.

Purchasing agent and salesman—J. F. Lillicrap.

Headquarters of the company will be at Lakefield. It is not the intention of the company at present to put in lumber camps or operate saw mills, but to purchase lumber, either cut or in the log and get it cut and then re-sell it.

They have about a quarter million feet already purchased and they have also established a connection for selling their lumber from Ottawa to Windsor.

Lakefield Council.

A special meeting of the Village Council was held in the Council Chamber on Monday evening last. The members present were Reeve Moore in the chair, and Councillors McDonald, Porter, Smith and Young.

On motion the reading of the minutes of the last meeting was dispensed with.

Moved by Councillor Porter, seconded by Councillor Smith, that Councillors McDonald, Young and the Reeve be a committee to superintend the cleaning up of the old town hall premises.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Smith, seconded by Coun. Porter, that the Council adopt daylight saving and that the Reeve issue a proclamation to take effect on Wednesday, April 9th. The motion was handed to the Reeve, but he positively refused to put the motion before the meeting. In explanation or his refusal he stated that he would like to find out from the citizens as to whether they wished to have daylight saving or not.

Councillors Smith and Porter in reply, stated that they had been approached by a great many citizens to have daylight saving adopted, and pressed that the motion be put to the meeting, but Reeve Moore declined, stating that he would not be forced in the matter. In consequence the motion was laid over until the next meeting of the Council on Monday evening.

Moved by Councillor Smith, seconded by Councillor Young, that the Clerk draw up for reading at the regular meeting on April 14th a by-law authorizing the village to issue debentures for the sum of sixteen thousand dollars ($16,000) for the purpose of building a new town hall, said hall to be called the Lakefield Memorial Hall, terms of debentures 20 years, with interest at 5 1-2 per cent. yearly, payable in equal annual installments.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned.

The company is also setting up a new railing around the north lawn. On the east and south sides of the lawn, the iron posts will be sunk in concrete, as a special preventive against the destructive actions of the crowds. The lawn will be greatly improved. It is the company's intention to raise it and build it up with fresh earth, bringing it to the level of the sidewalk, and eventually benches may be set out beneath the trees.

The station is being repainted, several old storehouses have been demolished, and a new one eighty feet along on Sherbrooke street is nearly completed. There is a great deal of other work going on about the yards which will be put in first class condition at once.

Thinks President Is Blundering Into Hands of Germany

Senator Harding Says Teutons Are Gaining More by Delay Than They Hoped by War.

NEW YORK, April 10.—That President Wilson is using the position of the United States as a world creditor and its attitude as an arbiter to force Europe and America "into a hasty compact to establish world internationalism," was the charge made here to-day by Senator Warren G. Harding, republican, of Ohio.

Senator Harding issued a formal statement in which he also declared that it was time the League of Nations was dropped and a treaty of peace signed.

"The delay and the drift," he said, "have carried us apparently to a recognition of the Bolshevist destroyers, and not only is Bolshevist destructiveness to be countenanced in fallen Russia, but the world will awaken soon to the fact that Germany is dominant there, and has expanded infinitely more through revolution and delay than it was expected to accomplish by force of arms."

Senator Harding said it was difficult to discuss the League of Nations until it was known what sort of a covenant would be finally proposed. He declared, however, that the original draft is doomed here, "if it is not buried at Paris."

"It is regrettable that we know so little," he continued. "In the face of the solemn pledge of 'open covenants openly arrived at,' we are astonished to read of threatened exposure of hindering influences, and my own reluctant impression is that the peace conference isn't getting anywhere near actual accomplishment. I doubt if we have any serious proposal for a league with the treaty of peace, for which peace treaty all the world is calling.

"The oft uttered demand for something constructive in place of opposition to the President's first proposal seems to have been met and has turned the course of events. If not literally constructive, it is at least corrective and preservative. Clearly the original proposal is forsaken now, and the sanctity of one man distation is ended."

Senator Harding said the United States would accept nothing which puts an end to national aspirations.

"How simple it would be," he declared, "to provide for a clear and unmistakable enunciation of international law, and commit the allied nations to its enforcement. Under such an arrangement there would never be another world war, unless some mad man of the future again undertakes the domination of the world. In that event the world will do again as it has so recently done; it will resort to force to strip him of his power. All the leagues ever dreamed of will never eliminate the world politics as is today halting the peace conference, or prevent the development of dangerous ambitions. Our problem is to commit the moral, and if need by the physical force of America against the aggressions and transgressions of both.

"It is impossible longer to ignore the serious concern of our people over delayed peace. General Foch fixed up armistice terms in less than ten days, which rendered Germany impotent as an armed force. We might ask Foch to write a treaty."

The Early Residents of Peterboro Found Means of Meeting Public Wants

When the Only Resident Doctor in What Was Then Known as Scott's Plains Threatened to Move to a More Remunerative Field of Labour the Populace Got Together and Erected a Substantial Dwelling as an Inducement for the Doctor to Remain.

HOUSE IS STILL IN SERVICE

(By F. H. Dobbin.)

One of the well springs of our being and always of our progress as a community, is the permanence and persistence of community effort. A plain, commonplace name for the attributes of citizenship. Citizenship means doing things that make for the immediate or possibly ultimate benefit of the community as a whole, whether the activity be made in a hamlet, village, town or city. It is the concentration of the shove or impetus, the aggregate of unpaid-for effort that put a place on the map. If this were not so this old world would presently stand still. It is the unrewarded service of public-spirited citizens that makes for the life and progress of any community.

To-day we think we have grounds to claim that we are distinctly the people. Rather proud of what we have done in patriotic and in other lines. Yet a few years ago we raised as a public effort something like five thousand dollars and placed in the tower of St. John's church a fine chime of bells. That was a distinct community effort and when it was accomplished we pulled down our vests and called on the district to admire, which it did. That total of financial performance sinks into insignificance alongside of what has been accomplished in the last five years. Peterborough has given to all good objects and to war work away beyond a half-million of dollars. This would twenty years ago, have been looked on as a preposterous proposition, that this city should go down into its jeans and hand out any such money. Yet it was done and is yet in the doing.

Scott's Plains.

Now, it will not do to run away with the idea that in the days when the city was young there was not a similar spirit of community helpfulness, for as a rule the smaler the place the more need for mutual help and support. People have to lean, to rely, to look to one another, for what the locality does not offer. Such need and reliance brings out what is best in human nature, bringing to the surface the will and the way to do and accomplish what otherwise would be left undone. So the story of how the people of Scott's Plains, afterwards the town of Peterborough, met a public want and filled a public service, is interesting, if only to substantiate the claim that in the older days people were as virile, agile, thoughful and resourceful as in this, the hundreth anniversary year of the settlement of the ground that is now covered by the city. Here is the tale:

Walk along Brock street going west. As one rises the hill at the crossing on Bethune street, on the right hand, or north side of the street, is seen a neat, substantial, stone dwelling. To be precise, the house is No. 270 Brock street, in recent years graced with the addition of a well-deserved verandah or porch. That now mature-in-years stone was built under most extraordinary circumstances. Never has one learned of such an enterprise, of the erection of a dwelling in such a way, and as the outcome of community effort. A lasting testimony to a spirit of citizenship of the very finest kind.

Without being specific as to dates, which are not material to the story, he house has stood for seventy years, or possibly longer.

During the late thirties of the last century, Peterborough ,as it was afterwards named, was visited with a severe epidemic, including a virulent attack of small-pox, and very many cases of ship fever. Ship fever was the early name for typhoid or typhus fever. Sanitary conditions on emigrant ships—sailing vessels, at times two months on the water—were anything but adequate.

Hospital Point.

To combat the attacks the first isolation hospital for ePterborough was quickly built of sawn lumber and located on what was afterwards known as Hospital Point, the ground now covered by the sawmill of the McDonald Lumber Co. The building was hastily furnished with beds, bed linen and utensils contributed by the people of the locality. A cordon or line of damarcation, was drawn across the point, from about at the opening of what is now Rink street, to the shore of the lake, about where Lake street ends at the water's edge. The line was patrolled day and night, and the issue fought to a finish. Many of those afflicted died, despite the most careful attention that could be given.

The entire population at this time numbered about 1800 souls. Medical attendance was of a very uncertain character so far as residence of practitioners was concerned. For a time medical service had been given by doctors sent out under instructions from the British authorities, especially at the time of the Robinsonimmigration, and for some years afterwards. Profiting by the experience passed through, it was decided that the needs of the situation called for more than "old woman's doctoring." So Dr. John Hutchinson, a Dublin University man, who had located in the township of Cavan, was induced to come to what is now Peterborough, and take up practice. Among other things in the way of public effort he was one of the first to assist in the establishment here of the Old Scotch Church, being one among the first duly elected officials. In other ways he proved to be both a power and a help in the young community.

Built a House.

He at once gained a fairly large practice, but the money results were hot encouraging. He found that he was accumulating large amounts of firewood, provisions, etc., but not much money. Practically all the cash in circulation was what had been brought with those coming in from England, as the district was not exporting much of anything. Eventually he decided to move to York (now Toronto), and take up practice. The people were loth to have him go. A meeting was held and the joint entreaties of the gathering employed to have him alter his decision. As a last resort it was proposed that if he would consent to stay, the community would club together and build him a house and present it to him in consideration of his remaining.

Now, it may strike the reader that in a community of which the people could not collar enough of money to pay their doctor's bill in current coin, it would be fairly impossible to get together enough money to pay for the house. But our pioneer fathers had overcome difficulties. At a further meeting it was decided that the house would be built entirely, or almost so, by volunteer labor. It would be a supreme community effort and for the community good.

Purchased Lot.

Dr. Hutchinson was wise in his day and stipulated that he was not to be set off on some lot on the edge of the place, but that the house should be located within a reasonable distance of the area of population, as such things were at that time determined. So the first thing to do was to secure a lot. Three wise and able citizens were assigned to the duty. They took thought and made observation. At that time the block of land bounded by Brock and Stewart streets and defined on the east and north sides by the escarpment of the hill, around which now the line of the G.T.R. curves on its route to Lindsay, contained only one building, the old stone structure at the north-west corner ,so long used and occupied as the Protestant Home. It had been built for use as a distillery in the days when whiskey was only a trifle per gallon and was not looked on as an intoxicant but only a beverage.

It would be plain that any citizen looking for a lot on which to place his house would rather shy away from planting it next to a distillery. While the people used and cultivated whiskey they had reservations. The lot was in the market. It was bought for five pounds ten shillings—a fair start in the way of economy. Then a call was sent out for volunteers. Of stone the house was to be, because brick had not as yet been made in the vicinity, and a wooden house did not appeal to the prospective owner.

Worked Night and Day.

The stone was quarried from the hole over which the toboggan slide of the Street Railway in after years stretched its length, the same hole from which came the stone for the Court House and St. John's church, and other well built edifices. Men who could not spare the time in daylight came at night. Big bonfires were lighted to the [illegible] and the work. Night after night this [illegible] went on, the stone being carried and piled on the roadside. When the snow roads were available a call was sent out to settlers owning teams and sleighs. They came and brought the stone and piled it on the lot. Great heaps of it.

While this was being done by one army of citizens, others go to work on the cellar. This was not a very onerous proposition, for being on the hillside the material was dumped over the bank, to form the yard, as a sort of terrace. The following spring work in erecting the house went on in earnest, and in the same old awy. A stonemason was hired to boss the job. Any man who could handle stone came and gave of his work. Often for a day or two, but more often at night so long as daylight prevailed, for summer time had not been devised. Gradually the walls rose, stone on stone. Most of the lime was begged, the sand had for the asking and willingly brought to the lot.

A General Bee.

From the mills cutting lumber for domestic use and for the limited export trade the flooring and finishing lumber was purchased, begged, and almost commandeered. The shingles likewise. And on a certain day, the walls being finished, and the rafters ready for placing, a general bee was held and before the sun went down the roof was in place, and covered with shingles. Sash and door were provided for on a partial payment plan. Part of the paint and glass and hardware was a gift, and the balance had to be, reluctantly, paid for. Glass at that time was a very dear material for it had to be brought from the Front.

Well was Dug.

To complete the premises a shed was put up and to finish off the proposition as such a benevolent matter should be completed, a well was dug, or digged, and supplied with one of the old fashioned well sweeps and bucket. For many years afterwards the well sweep formed a conspicuous eye mark to the neighborhood, where it stood, pointing to the sky like a gigantic fishing rod. On the completion of the house there was great festivity and it was a veritable home coming. All who had participated in the work met and made a joyous occasion. Outside of the voluntary work and the materials so supplied an estimate of the cost of the house in money actually paid for lot and materials was £45. 18.9, about $224.00 of decimal money.

In this house Dr. Hutchinson lived until he passed away, and singular to relate, he died from the fever contracted while attending patients in the same old emergency hospital on Hospital Point, the building of which years before, had ultimately led to his removing to Peterborough. A man highly valued in the community, a useful citizen, faithful friend, and notably a man who contributed to make life safer and easier to the people with whom he lived and to whose wants and needs he administered.

The house after his death passed into the hands of James Harvey, and ultimately into those of the late Peter Connal, to be now habited in turn by his son.

Week-Old Corns
Should Be Unthinkable

These positive facts are now known to millions.

The pain of a corn can be instantly stopped, and forever.

The corn itself can be ended completely, and usually in two days.

The method is scientific. It consists of attaching a Blue-jay plaster, forgetting the corn, and letting things take their course.

The results have been proved by experience.

They have been proved to so many people that corns are now comparatively uncommon.

Corn aches are needless.

Paring corns is folly.

Old-time harsh and mussy treatments have no place today.

You will know these facts, and quickly, if you'll try a Blue-jay on one corn. Do it tonight, and the whole corn question will settle itself forever.

SHADES OF ARGYLE HOUSE

HALIFAX, April 12.—Further evidence of the short-sightedness of Argyle House was furnished by an officer who has been in close touch with the situation. The mismanagement in question concerns the feeding of the troops in England, and the unrest among the troops may in some measure be attributed to this bungling.

After months of patient endeavour experts in cooking had built up a system whereby the food for the Canadian soldiers in England would be well cooked. In all the camps there were men highly trained for this purpose. This was in the early days of 1917. Then came the dark and anxious days when every fit man was needed in the firing line, and the order was given that all cooks of category B were to be transferred to the fighting units. No person kicked at this order, as the need for men was well realized. Category B men were substituted on the understanding that they were permanent. The heads of the catering branches of the Canadian army recommended that a bonus of 35 cents per day be given to N.C.O.'s acting as cooks, and 15 cents a day to the men serving in this capacity. This figure, however, fluctuated, acording to the number of men in the camp. The result was that when there were only a few men in the camp the cooks got practically no bonus, and nobody wanted to be a cook. Schools were opened at different centres for instructions in cookery, but when the armistice was signed headquarters ordered the schools to be closed at once, regardless of the fact that there were as many Canadian troops to be fed in England, as ever. This was not the worst feature of the short-sightedness of Argyle House. No sooner was the armistice signed than an order was issued that all men of category B were to be discharged at once.

Not Out of Woods.

This made the situation acute, so far as the cooking of food for the troops was concerned. The schools were closed so that new men could not be instructed; all the cooks had to go because they were in category B. And regimental cooks laughed when the authorities in England suggested they should remain there as cooks in the several camps. Lately the bonus has been slightly increased, and a few cooks are available, but one who is very well qualified to speak, expressed the opinion that the Canadian overseas authorities "are not yet out of the woods," so far as the troubles of satisfactorily feeding troops in England is concerned.

ELECTRICAL ENERGY IN PETERBORO

The Commission of Conservation of Canada in a report issued some time ago, have the following to say regarding electrical generation and distribution in Peterboro and Lakefield:

PETERBOROUGH, Peterborough Co. (20,598). Supplied under municipal control, being obtained from the Central Ontario System of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. The Peterborough Hydraulic Co. also has a hydro-electric plant here, a portion of whose output is supplied to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, while the remainder is supplied in bulk to a large cereal mill.

Municipal System—Energy obtained, 4,500 h.p., at $17.50 per h.p.-year, at 6,600 v. and 2,400 v. Substation: Six 250-k.w. and two 750-k.w. station transformers step voltage down from 6,600 v. to 2,400 v., 3 ph., 60 cy.; output divided, 11 per cent. for lighting and 89 per cent for power; average load factor, 60 per cent. Distribution: 90 mi. of streets; primaries at 2,400 v. and secndares at 1110 v. to 550 v.; 525 line transformers, of from 2 k.w. to 75 k.w. capacity. Number of consumers, 4,956. Distribution system valued at $252,716, including $16,171 for the substation. Rates: Domestic rate, from 1.25 to 2.5 cents per k.w.h., plus 3 cents per 100 sq. ft. of area per month; commercial, from 0.5 cents to 5 cents per k.w.h.; power rate, from 0.1 cent to 1.3 cents per k.w.h., plus a monthly fixed charge of $1 per h.p. All rates subject to 10 per cent discount, with an additional discount of 10 per cent. for power. Street light: magnetic lamps and 60-w tungsten lamps, at $50.50 and $9 per lamp per year, respectively.

Peterborough Hydraulic Co.—Power Plant: Concrete dam 325 ft. long and 20 ft. high, with an adjacent concrete and brick power house 40 x 110 ft.; normal head of 27 ft. afforded. Equipment: One 1,600 h.p. and one 2,000 h.p. turbine, direct connected, respectively, to a 750-k.w. and a 1,500-k.w., 3-ph., 60-cy., 2,400-v. generator. Plant designed for an ultimate capacity of 4,000 k.w. to 4,500 k.w.; present maximum demand, 2,300 k.w. Slight trouble sometimes experienced from anchor ice. While there is sufficinet flow for the present output, the latter, it is stated, would be greatly increased by the use of storage above the dam. The plant, which is valued at $500,000, was installed in 1902 and gives a continuous service.

Lakefield Power

Lakefield, Peterborough Co. (1,033). Supplied by the Lakefield Electric Light Co. from a hydro-electric plant on the Otonabee river, the dam being a portion of the Trent canal system. Hydro-Electric Plant: The main dam, of timber, is 200 ft. long and 10 ft. high; a longitudinal timber dam, 800 feet long, forms a headrace, whence the water is led through a penstock 25 ft. long and 12 ft. wide to a frame power house 25 x 20 ft.; available head, 12 feet Equipment: one 125-h.p. turbine, belted to a 75-k.w., 3-ph., 60-cy., 2,200-v. generator. Maximum load, 100 h.p.; practically continuous service. Load divided, 75 per cent. for lighting and 25 per cent. for power. Plant purchased in 1907, and valued at $6,000; cost of generation, $13 per h.p.-year. Distribution: 6½ mi. of streets; primaries at 2,200 v. and secondaries at 110 v.; 13 line transformers, of from 2 k.w. to 15 k.w. capacity. Number of consumers, 150. Distribution system valued at $4,000. Rates: Flat rate, from $3.12 to $5.20 per. 16-c.p. lamp per annum. Street lighting: 60-w. and 100-w tungsten lamps, at $13 per lamp per year.

The Peterboro Horticultural Society

"Peterboro Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed"

Scope of Work

To advise and assist the citizens in maintaining pleasant parks, attractive home environments and productive gardens.

As indicated by the select list of options presented this year, every phas of horticultural work is represented in the activities of the members, from the cultivation of a window box to an expansive garden.

The annual lawn and garden competition provides an incentive to turn ideals into realities with a reward for the effort.

To aid in making city planning a success; and to help along the idea that clean, tidy, cheerful surroundings are healthy.

Membership

Open to any resident of the County of Peterborough on payment of the entry fee of One Dollar.

Options or Premiums

Each member is entitled to One selection from the list of twenty-seven options, and also to the fall delivery of bulbs. This feature alone is of splendid value.

Membership Campaign

In order to properly accomplish the work before it in this year of reconstruction and new ambitions, a membership of six hundred is necessary—600 for 1919. The Spring drive is under way and every new member helps in gaining the objective.

Competitions

Prizes will this year be awarded for the following:

1.—For Lawns and Gardens.

2.—For Church, School and Factory Grounds.

3.—For Flower Bed kept by boy or girl of 16 years or under.

Last year it was the War Garden. Now it is the Peace Garden, and it is just as necessary because the food supply of the world is still short. With your garden you can celebrate Victory in the right way and yourself enjoy fresh vegetables and good health.

Some window boxes, a flower bed, shrubs, or a tidy lawn all enhance the appearance of your property and add to the "City Beauitful."

Let the Horticultural Society assist you along any of these lines.

The list of spring options will be published on Monday.

Vaudeville and Pictures At the Grand

"The Safety Curtain," which will be shown at The Grand Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with the brilliant select star, Norma Talmadge, in a favourite emotional role, tells the story of Puck, Norma Talmadge, a dancer in a cheap London music hall, who is suddenly transplanted into army life at a post in India.

Puck is caught between the safety curtain which drops behind her, and an explosion in the audience, when Capt. Merryon, from his box, sees her plight. He leaps on to the stage and Puck, remembering a secret passageway from the theatre to an unused alley, is saved just before the walls of the stage cave in.

Merryon takes her to his rooms, where he cares for her until morning. In the early papers they read of the disaster and Puck sees that her brutal husband, Vulcan, who has often beaten her for fancied attentions to another man, is reported dead. Later in the list, however, she sees her own name and realizes that his name, too, may have been a mistake, and that she is not yet surely free from him. However, without telling Merryon of her past, she consents to a marriage with Merryon and flees to India.

Fearing Vulcan, she begs that Merryon does not vet claim her as his wife, and except for the growing unrequited love for Puck, life runs happily. When the hot season begins, and Puck is sent with the women of the colony to the hills where she meets Sylvester, a young sport who had pursued her while in London. He understands the situation and threatens to betray her to Merryon unless she yields to him, hinting that Vulcan is still alive.

Puck flees, and Sylvester wires to Vulcan, who is in Bombay. Puck runs through the storm to the Post to confess to Merryon, but her husband appears before she has told the truth. At this same time cholera has broken out and Merryon is called away to prevent the natives from removing their sick from the hospitals to a fakir's hut for treatment.

Sick with worry over Puck's duplicity, he hurries away, after Vulcan, telling them that he will await Puck's return at Dak Bungalow, had left them.

A note then arrives from Vulcan threatening to ruin Merryon and take Puck back by force unless she returns to him, and loving Merryon better than herself, she writes a note to him saying that she has returned to Vulcan and that she loves Merryon more than anything in the world. Braving the cruelty which she knows will be her reception, Puck goes through the storm, when Merryon, arriving home and finding the notes, seizes a revolver and hastens after her.

Vulcan is ill with cholera and has been told that he is dying. Gathering together the strength to carry out his fearful threats, he reaches for a lash and rushes at her, just as Merryon rushes into the room. Vulcan towers over her, and as she turns to the man she loves rains blow after blow. But the exertion is too great, and as Merryon takes her in his arms, the huge man falls at their feet.

A very special programme of vaudeville has been arranged, headed by Pepple and Harris, big musical act Four Jacks, and a Queen, a musical gambol of mirth and melody — 6 people, Jonny Margles, the World's Greatest Juggler, and Charlie Chaplin at his best, in His Million Dollar Job.

Reserve your seats in advance for the evening performances. Matinee daily at 2.30.

WANT FINES FOR MUNICIPALITIES

Delegates Take Case to Premier and Minister of Public Works.

TORONTO, April 11.—A deputation of representatives from Hamilton and nearby cities waited on Premier Hearst and the Minister of Public Works, Hon. Finlay MacDiarmid yesterday afternoon, relative to the fines imposed by magistrates. This deputation asked that a great proportion of the fines imposed by magistrates be given to the municipalities, particularly the fines imposed on violators of the speed laws. The deputation pointed out that the municipalities would be placed in a better position with regard to the upkeep of roads if a portion of these fines were retained by the municipalities.

PATENT YOUR INVENTIONS

AN interesting and encouraging thing about those fortune producing inventions is that most of them are of ordinary or minor value in themselves. If you have a notion that you must invent a big thing to make money, get rid of it at once. Many of the Patents that have made their inventors millionaires are those which contained very few entirely new ideas. The simplest ideas have earned fortunes for their patentees. The safety razor, the sanitary drinking cup, the hump hairpin, the demountable tire rim—any of these could have been invented by a man of average ability. In your every day life, at home, at your office, in your shop you handle any number of articles that are subject to improvement. If you can think of a way of improving some article or process already in use, or if you can invent a new useful device or process or article of manufacture, you are on the road to fortune. Dennison made a fortune from a single shipping-tag. Prepare now to meet the demands of Industry in All Fields for New Ideas and New Inventions. Before sending your invention to any attorney or manufacturer or disclosing your invention, write for our free blank form PROOF OF CONCEPTION in order to protect your invention and secure your rights.

WE ADVERTISE our Clients Inventions Free in INDUSTRIAL CANADA, which is the Official Magazine of the Canadian Manufacturers Association. It pays to have Shipman's Service. Ask for our new Booklet "Patent Protection"

Send Model, Sketch and description of any new inventions you have for Free Opinion as to Patentability. To Create a Peace Bridge

Movement on Foot in the United States.

(Special to The Examiner.)

BRIDGEBURG, April 12.—A bill to create a peace bridge between Buffalo and Fort Erie, to be known as the "Roosevelt Memorial" bridge, in memory of the late Theodore Roosevelt, and also to be a monument to the 100 years of peace between Canada and the United States, as well as the successful conclusion of the great war, has been introduced into the New York State Senate by Senator Ross Greaves of Buffalo, N.Y., according to notification filed with the Canadian wing of the committee.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat less meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending b'adder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

FIVE MILLION DOLLARS ON TORONTO PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Must Be Spent in Next Five Years, Says Chief Inspector.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, April 12.—Chief Inspector Cowley, of the Board of Education, said that five million dollars will have to be spent in Toronto on Public school buildings within five years to keep the overcrowding from getting worse.

"One million dollars a year will barely keep up with the present requirements," said Mr. Cowley.

Pale Cheeked Women Told About Restoring A Rosy Complexion

A few years ago the girl with pale, drawn cheeks scarcely knew what to do in order to restore her fading appearance. At that time there was no blood-food medium made that really would put color and strength into systems that were more or less worn out.

To-day it is different. The blood can be quickly nourished, can be made rich, red and healthy. All you have to do is take two Ferrozone Tablets with a sip or two of water after meals. The effect is almost magical.

Mothers, look at your children. Are they ruddy and strong—do they eat and sleep well, or are they pale, weak and anaemic?

FERROZONE will rebuild them. Take your own case—is your blood strong and rich? Have you that old-time strength and vigor, or are you somewhat under the weather?

FERROZONE will supply the strengthening elements you require. It is a blood-forming, nourishing tonic that makes every ailing person well.

FERROZONE is a marvellous remedy, it contains in concentrated form certain rare qualities that especially fit it in cases of anaemia, poor color, thin blood, tiredness and loss of weight.

Every day you put off using FERROZONE, you lose ground. Get it to-day, sold in 50 cent boxes by all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

MUNITION GIRLS VARNISHED FACES

Only Way to Protect Them From Poison, British Found.

LONDON.— How the Ministry of Munitions succeeded in protecting the women working with poisons by varnishin gtheir faces and hands has been disclosed by Dr. W. J. O'Donovan, Chief Medical Officer to the Ministry.

Every morning the faces and hands of the women employed in poison processes were varnished and the solution used took ten minutes to dry, he told a meeting of the Institute of Public Health, and the sickness list almost disappeared, the only victims remaining being those who either were careless or who refused to undergo the process.

Viscount Chetwynd, who presided at the meeting, said that the Ministry found a great difficulty in dealing with women operatives who would not feed themselves.

"They thought they were satisfied with a couple of cups of tea and a bun and in two hours they fainted," he said. "In one factory employing 3,000 women we were averaging fifty to sixty fainting fits a day. I started to feed the women and we practically abolished fainting fits."

After long experimenting, an Italian scientist has succeeded in making felt and cloth from spun glass for use as insulating material in storage batteries.

Canadian Butter Cheaper In Old Country Than Here By Twenty Cents a Pound

The Appreciable Lowering of Prices Looked for in the Immediate Future—Little Hoarding in Cold Storage Vaults, Declare Wholesalers.

Canadian butter, so those "in the know" say, is being sold in Great Britain 20 cents a pound cheaper than in Toronto, and the situation here has reached such a point that Prof. R. J. McFall, the Cost of Living Commissioner, has gone to Toronto from Ottawa to investigate supplies in cold storage and endeavour to solve the reasons why butter has become a luxury of the rich.

Butter wholesalers, interviewed, stated that the situation might become easier within the next ten days or two weeks, but an appreciable lowering in the price is not expected for some time to come.

A review of the butter situation for the past few months reveals a situation which few consumers will understand, after the past war years of stringent economic observation on the parts of United States and Canadian Governmentes. Conditions in Canada and the United States are somewhat equal but both countries, on the admission of Toronto shippers and wholesalers, are being made to "pay through the nose," while their allies in Europe are enjoying the best creamery at prices which have not been quoted here for years back.

Shipping of Surplus.

When the United States declared war the Government commandeered 60 per cent. of the American butter supply for the use of its military contonements and the supply of its army and navy at various points. Upon the signing of the armistice this precaution was abandoned and the wholesale price of butter fell nearly fifty per cent., in view of the surplus on hand. For some reason unknown, this surplus was shipped to Europe, and American butter soon reached 70 cents wholesale, and local dealers now state that but a week's supply is on hand to-day in the United States.

The Canadian Government recently lifted the war embargo on butter and several large shipments sent across the border a few weeks ago at a 2½ per cent. duty a pound wiped out what surplus this country possessed, according to wholesalers, and caused a shortage which finds Canada with two days' supply on hand. Hope of relief from the United States, from which country Canada used to import butter, is out of the question, dealers say. The tariff on butter coming into the country is 4 per cent. a pound.

Scorn Idea of Hoarding.

The Allied Buying Commission, which is largely responsible for the supplies of American and Canadian produce now being sold in Great Britain and Allied Europe at low maximum Government controlled prices, is held up by Toronto shippers and dealers as in a great way to blame for high prices and low stocks here. The wholesalers laugh at the idea of cold-storage plants, of which there are a gigantic number in the two countries, being filled with choice butter which, if thrown on the market, would knock fifty per cent. off the present retail price.

Preparations are being made to show Professor McFall just how cold, barren and empty their butter vaults are, a condition which they declare is general in America. Prices quoted wholesale range from 69 to 85 cents a pound, which means that retailers make about 5 cents profit in the pound.

One dealer stated that a car of 60-lb. boxes due in Toronto from Winnipeg this week should be laid down here at 61 cents, and after being cut into one-pound prints, wrapped and delivered to retailers, would possibly realise one cent per pound profit. Two Ontario cars, expected by the same firm, would be laid down here at 62 cents a pound, one of the managers told The Times. Just why an expensive rail-haul should make butter less expensive than that purchased in a neighbouring county, Professor McFall may determine during his stay.

Supply and Demand Again.

Certain Toronto newspapers are blamed by a dealer for the booming of butter prices.

"In one morning newspaper I read an alarming article under the heading, 'Dollar Butter in Sight,'" he said. "What happens when we try to induce the farmer to sell at a reasonable price? He holds out for that dollar. When an inquiry is started whom do the newspapers get after? The middleman, the distributro, who really saves money for the consumer."

"What arrangement exists between the American and Canadian dealers which keeps butter in both countries at prices so closely resembling one another?" he was asked.

"The American dealer is paying 70 cents wholesale," he replied, "or somewhere near it. It is the old question of supply and demand. There is no arrangement between us and the Americans. The supply is short and the price is long, as usual."

"Does it not seem unreasonable, after controlling the supply so long, that as soon as hostilities ceased the butter which had been saved through strict for the armies should be turned over to Europeans the moment a reasonable price was assured by a surplus in America?" the reporter inquired.

"You know what Americans are for the extra dollar," was the reply.

Some Relief in Fortnight.

"Then, again, the wholesalers must have foreseen this coming shortage in Canada. Why was the Canadian surplus shipped to the United States?" was asked.

"As soon as the Canadian embargo lifted, the market across the border might have appeared more profitable," he replied, adding: "Most of that butter was shipped from the West.

"It was really difficult to anticipate the present shortage," he continued. "Production has been low and we are now between the two seasons, but we are hoping for better conditions within the next ten days or two weeks.

"I would not say, though," he concluded, "that prices will be much lower for some time."

I.L.P. Reads Out Labour Alderman

Say He "Has Shown Himself a Stool pigeon for the Capitalists"

LONDON, Ont., April 12.—The Independent Labor party, in a statement published yesterday reads out of the ranks of Labor Ald. John Colbert, President of th Street Railwaymen's Union, the Labor candidate elected at the last municipal contests.

Ald. Colbert is attacked because he was the seconder of the motion to grant increased fares to the London Street Railway Company.

The I. L. P statement says that Ald. Colbert, "by his action and vote in the Council in the matter of increasing the load on the working class has shown himself to be a stool-pigeon in public office for the capitalistic shareholders of the London Street Railway. Such a vote and action are not in the interests of working class solidarity or of democracy, and tend to discredit the Labor movement before the public. Therefore, this branch of the Independent Labor party declares that Ald. Colbert is unworthy of the political support of organized Labor."

To Absorb Freckles And Other Blemishes

Every spring numerous inquiries are made by girls seeking some reliable recipe for removing freckles. Very favorable reports have been received from many who have used mercolized wax during the freckling season. The wax which completely absorbs the freckles, with no harmful effect whatever. The complexion improves wonderfully, becoming as soft as a rose petal, and as delicately tinted. Get an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at any druggist's, spread a thin layer of it over the entire face every night for a while, washing this off in the morning. For rough, spotty skin, sallowness, blackheads, pimples, and all cutaneous blemishes, this treatment is superior to any other.

Great Bill For the Grand Opera House

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Will Be Three Big Days— Don't Miss It.

Commencing Monday next for three days at the Grand opera house, vaudeville and pictures will reign supreme. Norma Talmadge will be seen in the Safety Curtain. Patrons will remember her best as "Anne" in De Luxe Anne, seen here a few weeks ago. A big musical comedy skit with six people, "four Jacks and two Queens," will head the vaudeville programme. Johnny Mangels, the camouflage juggler, will keep the house in suspense with his wonderful juggling feats. Charlie Chaplin will be seen at his best in his big photo play, "His Million Dollar Job." The Grand Screen Magazine, The World Before Your Eyes, with special music by the "Grand" orchestra, will complete a well balanced bill. Attend the matinee. Seats reserved for evening performances in advance.

Voice of The People

Editor, Examiner

Dear Sir,—Shall we open the dam? The flood-tide of evil which is the concomitant of drink, has been held in check by the O.T.A. and the Federal law, and the resultant good has been such that the Premier of Ontario in his speech to the Legislature said: "I do not know of any one Act or measure in this province that increased the efficiency of our people, conserved our financial strength, aided thrift and generally contributed to our fighting power to a greater extent than the Ontario Temperance Act."

If this is a fact, and I believe any man with his eyes open must admit it is, is there any adequate reason why we should vote to have it repealed or made weaker? True, the Ontario Temperance Act was passed as a war measure, and it is perfectly right and proper that in this democratic country all classes should have a voice in determining the issue, but surely sensible thinking men and women will note vote away an aid to thrift, to efficiency, to conservation of financial strength at a time when we have the waste of a four and half years' war to make good, when we have a multitude of wounded men to look after and provide for, men who suffered in our room and stead, when it will require all the financial strength, clearness of vision, and firmness of purpose possible to build up a society that will be best for all. Let the citizens of Ontario look round upon the world at large struggling in the throes of reconstruction, with its complex problems, and say whether this is a time when we want the brains of our people fuddled by liquor, their resources wasted, and their efficiency impaired. Even under license it was found advisable to close the bars on election day. Why? Because drinking would have rendered the electorate less able to inteligently vote. If this was so in normal times, how much more do we need to conserve the brains and energies of our people to contend with the issues before us now? Do we want the impatience and restlessness that is inevitable before all the questions affecting capital and labour, cost of living and wages are satisfactorily settled, inflamed by alcohol. All classes will need as much self-control and steadying power as they can get, and prohibition, if retained, will be found in the reconstruction period as in war time, to be the best aid to efficiency, to thrift, to financial strength, and also to that strength which is required to weld a cosmopolitan people into a strong and progressive nation.

GEO. LEADER.

Mr. Editor:—

Will you please allow me a little psace in your paper to say what I think of some low cur living in the vicinity of Benson Avenue, who have started their dirty, mean, contemptible work at poisoning animals again. It is certainly nothing to boast of or nothing clever about such work and if the guilty one who is so clever at it had a little more sympathy for dumb animals and a good Christian spirit they would not lower themselves by doing such wicked deeds on poor innocent animals. This person must be possessed of the devil, or else they can not be in their sane senses. Their turn is coming, and I sincerely hope they get their just deserts for it before long. Pople who commit such dirty low acts, are certainly deserving of no good, and may reap as they sow.

Asthma Cured To Stay Cured

Thousands testify to the lasting benefit secured from Catarrhozone

CURES WITHOUT DRUGS

One of the finest discoveries in medicine was given to the public when "Catarrhozone" was placed on the market about fifteen years ago. Since then thousands have been cured of asthma and catarrh. An interesting case is reported from Calgary in a letter from Creighton E. Thompson, who says:

"Nothing too strong can be said for Catarrhozone. I suffered four years from asthma in a way that would begger description. I went through everything that man could suffer. I was told of Catarrhozone by a clerk in Findlay's drug store and purchased a dollar package. It was worth hundreds to me in a week, and I place a priceless value on the benefit I have since derived. I strongly urge every sufferer to use Catarrhozone for Asthma, Bronchitis and Catarrh."

The one-dollar package lasts two months; small size 50c sample size 25c; all store-keepers and druggists or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston Canada.

Blain Sees Long Life For the Government

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, April 11. — "Though it is not my mission to prophesy, I say the Union Government will live out four if not its five years," was the declaration made by Senator Richard Blain to Ward 4 Liberal-Conservative Association last night. "Some people may venture to say that the Union Government is not holding together. I am here to give a denial to that statement. The Union Government, as far as I know, and I do know, is as united as it was when it was formed, and there has not been a ripple so far as individual membership of the Government is concerned."

Basket Social Well Attended

Mr. Hughson Johnson Auctioned off the Baskets

Over one hundred people attended the basket social given last evening in May's school house by L. O. L. No. 2440 and the affair was a complete success in every way. After a good programme of vocal and piano solos the basket were auctioned by Mr. Hughson Johnson, who, with great enterprise, ran the bids as high as $4.00 for a basket belonging to Miss Adamson. A suitable prize was awarded for this. The entertainment was opened by a short address by the chairman, Mr. Johnson.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM SHANNON.

Death occurred quite suddenly of Mr. William Shannon, at his residence, 89 Aylmer street, on Saturday last, April 5th.

The deceased was born in England 67 years ago, and came to this country seventeen years ago. For a number of years he has been connected with the MacDonald Lumber Co. of this city. He was highly respected and liked by all who knew him. He leaves besides his wife a large circle of friends to mourn his loss.

Possession is nine points of the law—and if found in a thief they all went toward the penitentiary.

Palaces Now Workmen's Clubs; Baroness Plays Harp For Food

Communists Feverishly Organizing Country—Trust Idea to Apply to All Industries—Costly Race Course Plowed Up for Potatoes.

Budapest, April 12.—The work of organizing the country is being feverishly continued by the new Soviet. The central feature of the plan is to apply the trust idea to all industries, putting each group of factories, textiles, glassware, hardware, etc., under one expert, who is made responsible for its operation.

All the clubs and fashionable exclusive resorts have been socialized including the park club. The jockey club has been converted into a laborers' home, and the splendid race course, which cost a year's time and $5,000,000 to make, is being plowed up for potatoes.

Many of the aristocratic women of the city have been reduced to want. Baroness Schossberger, once having property worth a million dollars or more, is now playing a harp in a cheap restaurant for her food. All the palaces have been converted into resorts for working men's clubs. The attempted exodus of the well-to-do class is continuing and there is a flourishing trade in foregin passports, some of which are bringing as high as $1,000.

An Anglo-American train will leave today for West Europe by way of Vienna.

FOCH'S BOGUS PLANS DECEIVED GERMANS

Two U. S. Colonels Helped in Successful Strategy.

BOSTON, —Officials at the headquarters of the Department of the Northeast vouched to-day for a story told by a Major who arrived on the Agamemnon yesterday of how two Colonels of the American [illegible] assist in an important bit of strategy in the St. Mihiel district. The Major, whose name the department declined to reveal, said that he Germans got wind of the original plan to start the drive on September 5, 1918.

Gen. Foch then had elaborate plans drawn up purporting to set forth details of an impending attack on Belfort. These plans were entrusted to two American Colonels ,who took them to a town where there were known to be German spies. While they were there the plans disappeared for a time. That they had fallen into German hands became evident when the Germans withdrew large forces from parts of the St. Mihiel salient and massed them about Belfort.

This diversion assisted greatly in carrying out the real plan of attack, which was begun on September 12.

A COMFORTABLE PLAY GARMENT

"WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD," HE SAYS

John Anderson Tells of His Recovery Through Taking Tanlac.

John Anderson Tells of His Recovery Through Taking Tanlac.

From the way Tanlac has fixed me up I consider it is worth its weight in gold," said John Anderson, of 103 Stuart Street, West, Hamilton, Ont., recently.

"I had suffered terribly for several months from indigestion and kidney trouble," he continued, "and during the past few months my condition was so bad that I was obliged to lay off from work. My stomach felt as if it had lumps in it, and I had terrible pains in my chest and back. My kidneys worried me constantly and I was so dizzy at times that I would stagger and almost fall.

"One of these dizzy spells came on me when I was in the shop one day, and when a friend gave me a dose of Tanlac I got over it right away. I bought a bottle and haven't had the slightest touch of indigestion in some time, and I have felt different ever since my first dose. My kidneys do not trouble me any more and all the pain is gone from my back and chest. My appetite is just great. I eat anything I want, and never have any trouble afterwards. I am working every day and feel fine all the time."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Taner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle & Son

NOBBY TREAD
The King of the Road
A DOMINION TIRE
"NOBBY TREAD" is a universal favorite. It is equally popular with owners of limousines and big touring cars and those who drive the less expensive cars.
"NOBBY TREAD" TIRES are practically puncture-proof. But the big nobs do not account for all of this popularity.
It is the marvellous workmanship—the superb materials—the creative genius of construction—that make "NOBBY TREADS" almost immune from blow-outs and road-cutting.
When you consider their greater mileage, their wonderful durability and their freedom from ordinary tire troubles, their greater ease and comfort in driving, 'NOBBY TREADS' are the most economical tires you can put on your car.

A PRO-ENGLISH IRISHMAN

"Mummy!"

"Yes, dear."

"What did England do in the Great War, mummy?"

"Can't you find it in any of your books, darling?"

"No, mummy."

Although it may not be fashionable to say so, unless something is done to counteract the present craze for smothering the English Idea out of existence, future generations of English children may well grow up more pro-Canadian, pro-Australian, pro-French or some other nation than pro-English. The only "day" we have never had seems to be an English Day.

Let me tell you how I came to be pro-English.

Firstly, in Brussels, in 1914, I was pro-Belgian. Next, in France, I became pro-French. After that in Poland, I turned pro-Pole. Coming back to England in 1915, I became pro-Australian. And then for two years in France, owing to certain military circumstances, I was pro-Canadian.

I date the final change as September, 1917. In that month I started off on a journey of some interest from Ypres to Baghdad, from one end of the British front to the other, and on that trek across half a world of war 70 per cent. of the troops I met were—English.

Not Welsh, or Scottish, or Irish, or anything else—just English.

Mind you, I am not belittling anybody, I am just stating the facts.

There they were, English Tommies by the hundred thousand, entrenched of humanity as if the scene were his own native village.

You need to see a young English officer replying to a deputation of vestal Virgins who wished to break with a custom by which they became betrothed at birth. You need to see an English sergeant-major rationing out olives to his labor company of women on the Olympus. You need to glance down from the bridge of a transport clipping the moonlit waters somewhere east of Suez, and there below on deck see a thousand Englishmen sleeping huddled side by side in the stillness of the night.

These and similar little things — not pomp and mightly happenings— were what made at least one person appreciate the importance of being English—though he happens to be Irish.—London Daily Mail.

ed day after day, month after month, in the Alpine snows and arid wastes of "Mespot," in the uplands of Greece and ceaseless sand of Gaza. To the world they were known as British, yet had they been Australians they'd have heard their praises sung as Australians.

I believe the English have been the greatest people, type, race, in this war.

You need to see, as I have seen, a Cockney youth playing the mandolin at night to a terrified Italian family—'keepin' their minds off the bombs, sir." You need to see a solitary northern N.C.O. waiting on a little Grecian isle with a football under his arm—waiting for us to land. You need to see a Hampshire man on point duty in Piccadilly circus, Baghdad, controling an eastern riot

MRS. BALFAME

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON

"Oh, dear, Mrs. Balfame," she gasped, "do take him home. He is so—so—queer. He snatched three girls away from their partners, and the boys are so mad. And his language—oh, it was something awful.

The women and girls were huddled in groups, all but Alys Crumley, who, Mrs. Balfame vaguely realized, was sketching. Their eyes were fixed on the group at the head of the room, where Rush was now trying to edge the burly swaying figure toward the door.

Mrs. Balfame walked directly up to her flushed and infuriated spouse.

"You are not well, David," she said peremptorily. "In all the years of our married life never have you acted like this. I am sure that are you getting typhoid fever—"

"To hell with typhoid fever!" shouted Mr. Balfame. "I'm drunk, that's what. And I'll be drunker when they let me into the bar. You get out of this."

Mrs. Balfame turned to Dr. Anna, who had marched up the room beside her. "I am sure it is fever," she said with decision, and the loyal Anna nodded sagely. "You know that liquir never affects him. We must get him home."

"Huh!" jeered Balfame, "you two get me home! I'm not so drunk I can't see the joke of that. The matter with you is you think I'm disgracin' you, and you want to go on bein' the high cock-alorum of this bunch. Well, I'm sick of it, and I'm sick of being told to eat out when you're at matinees or that damned Woman's Club. Home's the place for women. Knittin's all right." He laughed uproariously. "But stay at home by the fire and knit your husband's socks. Smoke a pipe too, if you like it. That's what my granny did. The whole lot of you women haven't got one good man's brain between you, and yet you'd talk the head off the President of the United States—"

He was about to launch upon his opinion of Elsinore society when a staccato cough interrupted the flow. Mrs. Balfame turned away with a gesture of superb disdain, although her face was livid.

"The sex jealousy we have so often discussed!" Her clear tones from the first had carried all over the room. "He must be taken home." She looked at Dwight Rush and said graciously: "I am sure he will go with you. And he will apologize to the Club when he is himself again. I shall go back to our game."

She held her head very high as she swept down the long room, but her jaw was set, her nostrils distended, a narrow strip of eye was fixed and glaring.

An unforseen situation had blown to flame such fires of anger as existed in her depths, and she was unable to extinguish them as quickly as she would have wished. To the intense surprise of the bridge women who had followed her out of the card-room and in again, she sank into a chair and burst into tears. But she managed to cry quietly into her handkerchief, and in a few moments had her voice under control.

"He has disgraced me!" she exclaimed bitterly. "I must resign from the Club."

"Well, I guess not." The ladies had crowded about her sympathetically. "We'll all stand up for you," cried Mrs. Battle. "The men will give him a good talking to, and he'll write an apology to the Club and that will end it."

These friends, old and more recent, were embarrassed in their genuine sympathy, for no one had ever seen Mrs. Balfame in tears before. Vaguely they regretted that, extreme as was the provocation, she should have descended to the level of mere womanhood. It was as if they were present at the opening of a new chapter in the life of Mrs. Balfame of Elsinore; as, in truth, they were.

Mrs. Balfame blew her nose. "Pardon me," she said, "I never believed I should break down like this—but—but—" once more she set her teeth and her eyes flashed. "I have a violent headache. I must go home. I cannot ruin the game."

"I'll take you home," Dr. Anna spoke. "Oh, that beast!"

The other women kissed Mrs. Balfame, straightened her hat, and escorted her out to the runabout which Dr. Anna brought to the rear entrance of the clubhouse. She smiled wearily at the group, touching her brow with a finger. As soon as the little car had left the grounds and was beyond the reach of peering eyes, she made no further attempt at self-control, but poured forth her inmost soul to the one person she had ever fully trusted. She told the doctor all the secret horror of her life, her hatred and loathing of David Balfame; everything, in short, but her determination to kill him, which in the novel excitement that had invaded her nervous system, she forgot.

Dr. Anna, who had heard many such confessions, who obstinately had hoped that her friend's case was not as bad as it appeared superficially, was glad that she was not driving a horse; humane as she was, she should have forgotten herself and lashed him to relieve her own feelings.

"You must get a divorce," she said through her teeth. "You really must. I saw Rush lookin at you. There is no mistaking that expression in a man's eyes. You must—you must divorce that brute."

"I'll not!" Mrs. Balfame's composure returned abruptly. "And please forget that I gave way like this and—and said things. She wondered what she really had said. "I know I need not ask you never to mention it. But divorce! Oh, no. If I continue to live with him they'll be sorry for me and stand by me, but if I divorced him—well, I'd just be one more divorced woman and nothing more. Elsinore isn't Newport. Moreover, they'd feel I'd no further need of their sympathy. In time they'd let me pretty well alone."

"I don't think much of your arguments," said Dr. Anna. "You could marry Rush and go to New York."

"But you know I mean what I say. And dont' worry, Anna dear." She bent over the astonished doctor and gave her a warm kiss. "And as I'm not demonstrative, you know I mean that too. You are not to worry about me. I've got the excuse I needed, and I'm going to buy some things at second hand and refurnish one of the old bedrooms and live in it. He can't say a word after this, and he'll be humble enough, for the men will make him apologize to the Club. I'll threaten him with divorce, and that alone will make him behave himself, for it would cost him a good deal more to pay me alimony than to keep the old house going—"

"That isn't an argument that will have much effect on a man, usually in liquor. But women are queer cattle. Divorce is a great and beneficent institution, and here you elect to go on living under the same roof with a brute—Oh, well, it's your own funeral! Here we are. I've got to speed up and practice medicine. Am expecting a call at Honston's any minute. Baby. Good night."

CHAPTER VI.

Mrs. Balfame let herself into the dark house. Saturday was Frieda's night out.

Contrary to her economical habit, she lighted up the lower floor recklessly, and opened the windows; she felt an overwhelming desire for light and air. But as she wished to think and plan with her accustomed clarity she went at once to the pantry in search of food; the blood was still in her head.

The morrow would be Sunday, and the Saturday luncheon was always composed of the remains of the Friday dinner. On Saturday she dined at the Country Club. Therefore Mrs. Balfame found nothing with which to accomplish her deliberate scientific purpose but dry bread and a box of sardines. She was opening this delectable when the front door bell rang.

Her set face relaxed into a frown, but she went briskly to the door. The poison might be transpirable after all, and her alibi must be perfect; she had changed her mind about going to bed with a headache, and at ten o'clock, when she knew that several of her childless friends would be at home, she purposed to call them up and thank them sweetly and cheerfully.

When she saw Dwight Rush on the stoop, however, she almost closed the door in his scowling face.

"Let me in!" he commanded.

FIRST ATLANTIC STEAMER.

Centennial of the Savannah's Trip to Europe to be Celebrated.

SAVANNAH.—The centennial anniversary of transatlantic steam navigation will be celebrated here on May 22, the date when the Savannah, the first ship to cross the Atlantic propelled by steam, and the forerunner of the great greyhounds of to-day, sailed from this port for Liverpool on her historic voyage.

The Savannah was built at New York city and was launched on Aug. 22, 1818. She was mastered by the two Rogerses—Captain Moses Rogers being the commander and Captain Stevens Rogers the sailing master. The vessel left New York city March 26, 1819, and arrived in this city for the first time on April 12, 1819.

On May 22, 1819, the trip across the Atlantic was started from this port. Everything went well until June 17, when the vessel was stopped by the British cutter Kite, whose commander thought the Savannah was on fire and was anxious to assist her in fighting the flames.

The vessel was stopped outside Liverpool by an English sloop of war, whose commander wished the American vessel to display the British colours above its own. Captain Rogers refused and threatened the British officer with a boiling water bath if he did not leave the ship. He left immediately.

The Savannah docked in Liverpool on June 20, after completing the voyage in 29 days and 11 hours. The engines were used only eighteen days on the trip.

The entrance of the Savannah under full steam caused excitement in Liverpool, and while the vessel remained in port it was the centre of interest. The Savannah then proceeded to Stockholm, and on Sept. 15 arrived at St. Petersburg, (now Petrograd), where she was inspected by the American and foreign ministers and the nobility.

The ship left St. Petersburg on Sept. 29, 1819, and arrived in Savannah on Nov. 30, after an absence of 192 days.

This was the first and last trip of the Savannah across the Atlantic. Afterwards her engines were removed and she was used as a sailing vessel between New York and Savannah. She was wrecked off Long Island in 1821.

THE MIGHTY AMAZON

Called the Greatest River in the World Because it is.

The school boys are still discussing the mighty Amazon, apparently, says the Columbus Dispatch. At least some one writes us, without signing his name, to know "why the Amazon is called the greatest river in the world, when the Mississippi river is still on the map," and we suppose the writer is a school boy.

The Amazon is called the greatest river in the world, because it is. The Missouri and Mississippi combined form a river of greater length, but they do not drain so much territory, and are not nearly so great in volume. The Amazon drains 2½ million square miles of territory, and its estimated length is 3,500 miles—which makes a considerable river.

As for its volume, there is nothing else comparable with it in the whole wide world. It is two hundred miles wide at its mouth. A thousand miles from the sea it is more than four miles in width. Two thousand miles from its mouth it is still more than a mile wide.—wider than the Mississippi river at New Orleans. But still more startling, the Amazon and its tributaries are navigable for thirty thousand miles; that is, the total navigable length of the streams making up the Amazon is thirty thousand miles.

And, better still, we are going to hear a great deal more about the river in the future than we have ever heard in the past. The great basin of the Amazon can be made to feed and clothe the world. It has never been developed, but it is known that there is no other such productive area in the world, and now that the world is hungrier than it has ever been; now that war is at an end, giving people a chance to think of some thing else, the great Amazon river basin is going to be explored and brought into use for the happiness of mankind.

DOMINION RAYNSTERS
"Made-in-Canada" Raincoats
The Sunny Day Coats For Rainy Day Wear.

The chief difference between a Dominion Raynster and a made-to-measure spring overcoat is that a Dominion Raynster is absolutely waterproof.

The cloth is not "treated" or made merely "shower-proof"; it is reinforced with an inner lining of rubber, which makes the entire coat, even to the seams, waterproof.

In style and appearance, Dominion Raynsters have the effect of tailor-made spring garments; they simply give you the double service of a reliable raincoat as well as a stylish spring coat.

Made in a pleasing variety of patterns and cloths for men, women and children.

The best stores that carry clothing also carry Dominion Raynsters. Ask to see them, and look for the guarantee label of the Dominion Rubber System.

THE RISE OF BOHEMIA

NATION WAS RULED BY REACTIONARY AUSTRIA.

Teach Love of Freedom Was Apparent for Many Years Before Great War, But It Expanded and Burst the Bonds When Teuton Alliance Went to Pieces Last Year and "Ramshackle Empire" Collapsed.

BEFORE the war, the actual ruling powers of Austro-Hungary were in a decided minority. But though the Slavs were superior in numbers, they exercised no rule but suffered under various disabilities, political, social and otherwise. Apparently, however, they had only to combine their forces and to make common cause against the German and the Hungarian, in order to win a measure of political freedom and their rightful standing among the nations of Europe. For the Bohemians and the Serbo-Croats this step seemed to be a natural one, as both could lay claim to distinctive nationality and to historic rights, as well as to a degree of political organization and the tradition of a persistent policy of resistance to Teutonic aggression.

But there were several well-defined reasons why any attempt to assert Slavic historic rights might not have been attended with success. In the first place, the Slavs within the empire could not make common cause, for the simple reason that many of them were merely scattered fragments of races, or formed detached portions of ancient kingdoms which had been conquered or annexed by an alien people. For centuries, the Hapsburgs had maintained their power by a subtle and well-recognized policy of division. All the time, the Slavs were being permeated and infiltrated with German thought, language and policy, from which there was no effective escape. Bohemia, the most powerful of the Slav countries, was no exception to the rule.

The Germanization to which Bohemia was long subjected was such that the preservation of her nationality and her strongly marked racial characteristics is nothing less than remarkable under the circumstances. She was made an integral part of the Holy Roman Empire; indeed Prague was at one time the capital of that empire of the German emperors; and German influences, German language and literature, and German institutions threatened completely to absorb the Tzechs. But the alien master was never able wholly to assimilate the race, and the struggle against Teutonization had the one supreme effect that it proved for the Bohemians a perpetual impulse toward a renascence of Bohemian natural life and literature. It is well it was so. There came a time when the Germanization of Bohemia had reached such a stage that the Bohemian language fell practically into desuetude.

The literary revival marked by the work of John Huss purified Bohemian from Latinisms, and asserted the language as a living entity. It was placed at once on a new footing as a cultivated tongue, and in the early part of the nineteenth century, when the troubling of the political waters throughout Europe sent currents of feeling to Bohemia, the Tzechs set about in earnest firmly to establish their language and literature in the schools and universities. It is said, however, that one of a number of Tzech patriots and savants who met together at the time, in a coffee house in Prague, exclaimed: "If this roof were to fall in, Tzech literature would perish with us." To such a pass had the Bohemian cause fallen!

When the war broke out, it happily found the Tzech language enjoying equal rights with German in the schools. In Prague, so much had the language progressed that one could hardly get an answer to a question in German. German influence has been, in fact, a declining factor in Bohemian development ever since the federation of the Germanic states excluded the territories of the House of Hapsburg. The Tzechs form 70 per cent. of the population of their country, and an enthusiasm for Tzech ideals has long been aroused among the educated and upper classes, as well as among the people generally.

Hence the resistance of the Tzechs to the tyranny of Austrian rule seemed to grow more pronounced in proportion as their dearly won privileges increased. Nothing seemed to rouse this resistance in the Tzech more surely than the language question. It was something the significance of which the lowliest peasant could understand, and something which came home to him personally and vitally the moment he entered the imperial army as a conscript. The rule that there should be only one language in the army, and that German, struck him at once as an assault upon his rights. Herein lay the common source of friction between the German and the Tzech elements. The Tzech soldier had only to refuse to answer his superiors in German to probably cause one of those racial outbreaks peculiar to Prague. Punishment, inevitably followed for the offenders, with the result that the rest of the regiment would probably start a sympathetic revolt.

The revolt would often spread to the civilian population, who readily made common cause with the Tzech soldiers. There would be demonstrations in the theatres, and in the cafes collisions were liable to occur between the Jews or the German sections of the population on the one hand and the Tzechs on the other, followed by personal encounters and the smashing of the windows, tables and chairs of the cafe. Thereupon the Austrian military authorities, taking alarm, would hurry a crack German-Austrian regiment like the Deutschmeister, to the scene, and picket it in the public squares for the purpose of restoring order. A clash between the people thus was often inevitable. The Austrian soldiery would open fire, there would be a number of killed and wounded on both sides, and an event, characterized as another day of martyrdom of the Tzechs in their struggle for full racial and political freedom, would go on record in the intensely patriotic Tzech newspapers. On such occasions, the mayor, or other patriotic leader of the city, had but to show himself, to be hailed by the people with a fervor in which all the Tzech love of freedom and its passionate hatred of oppression seemed to be concentrated.

Now that freedom has come, it is not so much to Bohemia nor its adjoining crownland of Moravia that the attention of the world will be drawn as to that lesser known Slovakia, which, as the third part in the tripartite republic, joins Moravia on its eastern boundary. Before the war its existence was hardly guessed by the man in the street; indeed it did not figure upon the ordinary school map of the Austro-Hungarian empire. Its people, though distinct now, are probably remnants of the old Tzech family detached from the once Greater Moravia in those days when it extended as far south as the Adriatic. As a dominant power, Moravia came to an end when it was conquered by Hungary.

But Slovakia has suddenly come into the limelight by the prompt action of Tzech troops in taking possession of territories hitherto held to be part of the Hungarian crown, and by the quick retaliation on the part of the Hungarians, who have attempted to eject the Tzechs on the ground that the Allies have agreed not to interfere in the internal affairs of Hungary. But, according to the Tzech, the people of the territories of the new Slovakia, which are understood to include Pressburg, the ancient Hungarian crowning capital, and the line of the Danube to the point where it bends suddenly southward toward Budapest, speak the Tzecho-Slovak tongue; whilst on the southern boundary and part of the northern or Carpathian border, the people comprise Slovaks, Ruthenians and Magyars. This northern boundary follows the line of the Carpathians through the famous High Tatra region and extends eastward almost half way across Hungary. Moravia, at the same time is believed to lay claim to the greater part of Austrian Silesia, which separated it from Prussian Silesia. Thus the once notorious strip of land or gallery which led to Galician Poland, and formed the only outlet of Bohemia for her goods into Russia and Poland, has been widened into a broad stretch of territory from which Hungary, Austria and Germany are completely shut out.

Should these newly defined boundaries, which have already brought the young Bohemian republic into disfavor with Hungary, be upheld at the Peace Conference, the long threatened action of the Central empires in shutting Bohemia off economically from the surrounding world becomes impossible. A friendly and united Poland to the north and east would see to it that Bohemia's merchandise reached the sea and the outer world by way of the new Polish port of Dantzig on the Baltic.—The Christian Science Monitor.

HOW WEAK WOMEN ARE MADE STRONG

Mrs. Westmoreland Tells in the Following Letter.

Harrison, N. Y.—"When my first child was born I did not know about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and had a very hard time. I read in the newspaper about the Vegetable Compound and when my second child came I took it and was well during the whole time, and childbirth was a hundred times easier. Ever since then I have used it for my weakness and would not be without it for the world. I do all my work and am strong and healthy. I am nursing my baby, and I still take the Vegetable Compound as it keeps a woman in good health. You may publish my testimonial for the good of other women, if you choose to do so."—Mrs. C. WESTMORELAND, Harrison, N.Y.

Women who suffer from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, headaches and nervousness should lose no time in giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial, and for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

MR. BIRKLINGTON WAS LATE

Mrs. B. Had Been at the Jewelers on a Similar Mission Some Few Months Before.

Mr. Birklington drove up in a "taxi" and entered a jeweler's shop accompanied by his valet, who carried an oblong box of steel. Mr. Birklington asked for a private interview, and, on being shown into the office, he opened the box, exposing a splendid array of diamond and pearl necklaces, earrings, tiaras and rings. "Mrs. B.," he said, "is now abroad. Before she returns I want you to extract these stones and replace them with good imitations, selling the real jewels and giving me the money. This of course is to be a confidential transaction." "I should be glad to do as you ask," said the jeweler, "but two years ago Mrs. B. called here on a similar errand to that which now brings you and the errand in her case was successful. The paste jewels that you offer me are worth little more than the hire of the 'taxi' awaiting you outside!"

IT'S the richness of Carnation Milk that makes it such a wonderful food.

The fresh milk is received daily at our condenseries located in the better dairy sections.

And the Carnation method—evaporating this good milk to the consistency of cream, taking away nothing but water, adding nothing—assures you of fresh, rich milk.

Give the children lots of Carnation Milk. Give it to them as cream on cereals and as whipped cream on desserts (chill it first of course). Add water and give it to them to drink. Get "The Story of Carnation Milk" with its 100 splendid recipes and see what Carnation Milk will do for your cooking. See page 31 for suggested baby food formula. Write to Aylmer and we'll send a copy.

Of course you buy Carnation Milk the convenient way, too—from your grocer. Order several cans to-day. Directions on every can.

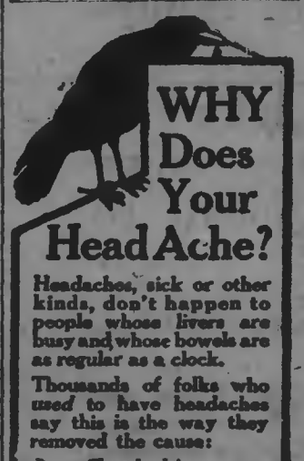
Wanted Some Syrup

George had not been overkind to his wife when he left for camp. And the prospects for his wife when he returned were not any brighter when she got this note from him: "Them white folks here put some sirup in my arms from the blood of a mad bull and a game chicken that will make a nigger fight a cannon and I is already feeling like fighting. When I comes home wid that fighting blood in me, if I finds out you ain't been doing right, watch out for George; and I knows how big you are."

"The wife took the note to the judge of the county in which she lived.

"Well, Eliza," said the judge to the colored wife, after he read the letter, "what can I do for you about this?"

"Judge," replied Eliza, "I'se wan' a divorce or sum of dat sirup."



WHY Does Your Head Ache?

Headaches, sick or other kinds, don't happen to people whose livers are busy and whose bowels are as regular as a clock.

Thousands of folks who used to have headaches say this is the way they removed the cause:

One pill at bedtime, regularly. Largerdose if there's a suspicion of biliousness or constipation.

A Good Send-off For the Labour Commission

Canadian Papers Friendly to Project, Although Differing Re Personnel.

OTTAWA, April 12.—Apart from the question of personnel, in which there is already a considerable difference of opinion, the new Industrial Relations Commission begins its work with the good wishes of the great majority of the Canadian papers which have expressed an opinion on the subject. The comments reveal a striking unanimity of opinion that the present system is unsatisfactory, and that the rights of working men must be extended in the direction of a share in control.

"It will not be easy," thinks the Brantford Expositor, "for an employer who has been accustomed to dictatorial methods to adapt himself to the new order of things, but if he is wise he will do so as speedily and gracefully as possible."

The Montreal Star says: "We must face the fact squarely that something is wrong with our industrial system. We must diagnose and remedy the trouble, or court disaster."

Eliminate Antagonism

"A co-operation," thinks the London Advertiser, "which will give the worker a greater interest in what he produces must appeal to the employer as good business. Providing the powerful reactionary influence at Ottawa is made to keep its hands off, the investigation should supply a new and more democratic control of industry that will wipe out antagonism and misunderstanding that now hamper Canada's industrial and social progress."

The Hamilton Herald says: "If Mr. Robertson's ideal of automatic adjustment of wages according to profits of industry is to be attained, there will have to be a closer organization of industrial capital than there is at present. Each branch of industry will have to be organized and managed on a co-operative basis, with the principle of competition largely eliminated."

"The best safeguard against any trouble," believes the Moncton (N. B.) Times, "in countries such as Canada is complete co-operation, or something as near to it as possible, between Capital and Labor."

The Calgary Albertan says: "We have entered an age when human rights take precedence of property rights. To have a peaceful solution we must keep this constantly before us and interpret it liberally."

To Every Factory

The Quebec Chronicle sincerely hopes that the commission will work out a "feasible plan of co-operation, and that it will be extended as rapidly as possible to every plant and factory in the Dominion."
